N.Y. Critics give Leo the high-sign on his first visit to the Music Hall!

"YOUNG DR. KILDARE", the first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production to bow into New York via Radio City Music Hall screen, is a product worthy of both its studio and the theatre."

Kate Cameron—N.Y. DAILY NEWS

"The Radio City Music Hall, ordinarily dedicated to the presentation of the most stupendously elaborate, this week presents a refreshingly modest and winning story. In its simple humanity the film packs its strongest appeal. 'YOUNG DR. KILDARE' captures your interest and holds it."

Bland Johaneson—N.Y. DAILY MIRROR

"So admirably turned out, so expertly are the story, direction and acting woven together, that 'YOUNG DR. KILDARE' rises far and becomes the first M-G-M picture ever to have been booked into the Radio City Music Hall."

Leo Mishkin—N.Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH

"Credit it, too, with cementing the comeback of Lew Ayres. 'YOUNG DR. KILDARE' has refreshing simplicity of story, honesty of characterization and naturalness of presentation."

Frank S. Nugent—N.Y. TIMES

"Leo, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lion, growled for the first time from the screen of the Radio City Music Hall yesterday and a healthy growl it was. Leo may well count his debut a success."

Herbert Cohn—BROOKLYN EAGLE

"Encouraged by the success of its 'Judge Hardy' pictures, M-G-M is launching another film series. The first opened yesterday at the Radio City Music Hall and, judging by the initial entry, the series should become a popular one. Like the films in the Hardy list, 'YOUNG DR. KILDARE is warmly, likeably human."

Rose Pelswick—N.Y. JOURNAL AND AMERICAN

"The Music Hall film, first M-G-M production to run at the great theatre, tells of people whom you would like to know and whom maybe you do know, of the real life of America. There is word from Hollywood that this may be the first of a series like the Hardy family. That is good word. The movies could stand a good many more people like Dr. Kildare and his friends."

Eileen Creelman—N.Y. SUN

" 'YOUNG DR. KILDARE' at the Music Hall is as entertaining and pleasant a film as you will see in a month of looking. In fact, if the same people make the next one, this department will positively look forward to it."

Archer Winsten—N.Y. EVE. POST

Warners 97 mins.

One of the cleverest concoctions of pulse-pounding excitement, heart-stopping thrills and throat-catching emotional human touches ever to hit the screen. It sets a new milestone in gangster dramas with a powerful human story. Large praise, but this Warner whirlwind of power-drama is something to let your hair down about and give it the ole showman gun on all counts. ¶Any exhibitor who can't knock off recent box-office records with this b. o. baby is simply asleep at the turnstile switch. Look what you've got to play with: Names—Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien, 'Dead End' Kids, Humphrey Bogart, George Bancroft. And what a line-up of tough-egg talent that is! ¶Story—this story has never been topped in its theme-field for downright excitement, close-knit driving punch, glamour of gangsterism contrasted with the finer things in life building to a great emotional climax with the humanities triumphing. It extracts every last ounce of entertainment value out of the thrills, menace, danger and suspense. ¶Warners have done a great service to the industry in pointing the way to the proper handling of the gangster theme so that not even the narrowest-minded reactionary can find material to quibble with. ¶Director Curtiz has done one of the finest heart-stopping dramas of the day. So, exhibitors, give it all you can on a doubled ballyhoo budget, and you won't regret it! ¶CAST: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, George Bancroft, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey, Gabriel Dell, Huntz Hall, Bernard Punsley, Joe Downing, Edward Pawley, Frankie Burke, William Tracy. ¶CREDITS: In Charge, Hal Wallis; Producer, Sam Bischoff; Director, Michael Curtiz; Author, Rowland Brown; Screenplay, John Wexley, Warren Duff; Music, Max Steiner. ¶DIRECTION: Excellent. PHOTOGRAPHY: Grade A.

BASIC PROBLEM

WHAT is to be the world market of the screen? The most poignant problem of the American motion picture industry, producer and exhibitor alike, was forcefully brought to the attention of the Oklahoma City convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America by Mr. Nate D. Golden, chief of the motion picture division of the Department of Commerce in Washington.

Mr. Golden's remarks stated clearly the line of possible eventuations:

1—The maintenance of the foreign market.
2—Reduced costs of production for an industry supported mainly by the domestic market.
3—Increased film rentals, increased admission prices to support the contemporary standards of production.

With all of Mr. Golden's friendly assurances of the cooperative attitude of Mr. Daniel C. Roper and the Department of Commerce, he did not, and presumably could not, offer much of assurance that foreign trade arrangements could prevail against the walls of nationalism ever rising in Europe.

Meanwhile, by no apparent design, Hollywood production costs in relation to entertainment values came in, more inferentially than directly, for a going-over. Mr. Harry Sherman in an exceedingly frank discussion of his Hopalong Cassidy productions explained why, what with labor scales and such, his cost per picture had risen from $65,000 a negative to $80,000. And that in turn caused Mr. M. A. Lightman of Memphis to suggest that such figures might well be an indication to Hollywood that competent entertainment might be had for rather less than a million dollars a shot. The degree of approbation from the exhibitor audience was impressive.

SAVING THE CLASSICS

THE International Federation of Film Archives announced by Mr. John Hay Whitney pertains to a movement and service which is to grow more important with the years.

The work and products of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, and its now allied and kindred institutions in London, Berlin and Paris, constitute all that can be done for the preservation of the story of the motion picture as an art.

The nature of the motion picture is such that it can not be put on paper in words. Words are ever a poor substitute for seeing and never are they more inadequate than in trying to represent a picture.

On the occasion of Mr. Whitney's announcement there was a presentation of a program of some of the oldest efforts of the motion picture camera. The films, new prints, variously produced by duping and re-photographing, done with extraordinary patience and skill, presented the old pictures vastly more competently than they were put on the screen when they were made.

Incidental to the main purpose of retracing some early steps of the art was the demonstration of the large progress and substantial perfection of modern motion picture projection and film. A few years ago before the evolution of the special fine grained emulsions this restoration and preservation of the historic old pictures would not have been possible.

WANTS LAW ON "SWING"

THERE seems to be some special quality pertaining to the more earnest followers of music which tends to make them as bitterly belligerent as a prohibitionist. Mr. Alfred L. Dennis, president of the Bach Society of New Jersey, with a vigorous protest to the Federal Communications Commission, has started a one man war against "swinging" of the classic masterpieces. Mr. Dennis' letter remarks of "the slurring saxophone" and "the jungled discords of the clarinet." He'd have stations which broadcast such renditions suspended for the first offense, their licenses permanently cancelled for the second. Until such time as that is done, Mr. Dennis can find useful an ingenious device provided on his radio set, actuated by a little knob. If he will take that between thumb and forefinger and turn it as far as it will go counter-clockwise he will get relief. Meanwhile the principal reason we have too much government is that so many people ask for it.

TRAVEL NOTES in the streamline of consciousness manner: aboard the Southwestern Limited in Middle America——The paunchy person with the big fraternal emblem on his midriff watch chain with the manicure kit on the other end of it seems inwardly compelled to fish for both football games and anti-New Deal speeches on the radio in the Observation, while his almost identical equivalent pursues the same policy in the Club car. The net result indicates that the static of Ohio, Indiana and Missouri are of about equal quality. It would seem a waste of time and electrons to purvey anti-New Deal to the plump customers of a limited train. * * * Refuge is to be had in this peculiar Pullman cubicle, done in alarming harmony of pale blue, French grey and brushed chromium, with all appurtenances folding, including devices sanitary, cosmetic and soporific vanishing into walls, the whole air-conditioned, indirect-lighted and supplied with a duo-toned chime to summon a tea-tinted servitor whose soft "yessir" would be a gift to Hollywood. In your editor's opinion the Pullman tradition has gone to hell entirely. All that remains is to give these wagons a new line of names, like "Clarice," "Ysobel" and "Eurydice." They could never have done anything like this while Robert Lincoln lived. * * * There is relief in the landscape of honest soil, long eared mules and fence signs for Mail Pouch chewing tobacco. And that reminds one of the vociferous days of the late Ben Hampton, who before he got motion picture notions was advertising manager for the American tobacco company and decorated the magazines with pictures of smart young men in evening clothes rolling Bull Durham cigarettes in the lobby of the Metropolitan, while he made the bucolic landscape loud with virile billboard proclamations that "the men who chew are the men who do." Ben was probably right. Certain it was that the state of the nation was happier when the affairs of the land and the ballot were in the hands of the keen spitters who sat around the cannonball stove at the General Store, the Postoffice and Jake's Place.

MPTOA Convention

A workable system of self-regulation of the motion picture industry is near at hand, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, told the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America this week at their eighteenth convention, in Oklahoma City. Mr. Rodgers, in his address, which the convention had awaited as official expression of the results to date of the conferences of distributors with representatives of the MPTOA, Allied States Association and other exhibitor groups not affiliated with either of the national organizations, said that "had this convention been held one week later there is little doubt that we could have here announced a program of trade practices which would have set a new milestone in our business."

FCC Probe

The investigation into alleged monopoly in radio broadcasting to be conducted by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington will get under way November 14th when representatives of the national networks, in the order of the date of their establishment, will be called as the first witnesses. The FCC is also undertaking a study of the Communications Act of 1934 to determine the commission's authority in dealing with undesirable programs. A ban on the broadcasting of "war scare" programs is expected to be imposed by the government in the near future as a result of the radio presentation Sunday of "War of the Worlds," which panicked a large section of the country.

For complete details of the FCC investigations and the "war scare" program repercussions see page 26.

Educational

Arthur A. Lee, vice-president and general manager of Gaumont British in New York said this week that the British-made G-B school films to be distributed here by the company will be sold through the company's regular channels. The company has a library of 250 educational films, of which Victor Cockle, GB export manager, judged 200 to be suitable for American distribution. The films, which cover such topics as biology, history and physical education, will be sold to schools, colleges, clubs and the like.

Distribution is expected to get under way shortly, with GB now in the field which Eastman and others have been trying to develop.

Theatres Exempted

Exhibition is exempt from the new federal "wages and hours" law, but the industry must work out with unions the application of the law to various studio positions.

Details of the federal rulings applying to this industry are reported on page 34.

Sound and the SMPE

Sound in motion pictures still is the chief subject of interest and action before the technicians of the industry. This topic drew most attention this week at the Fall meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, in Detroit. E. Allan Williford, elected by mail ballot, is the new president.

The report of the convention's activities, starting on page 21, is by George Schutz, editor of Better Theatres.

Television Invasion

Television stations here under English ownership, as well as the sale here of English-made receiving sets, were indicated as possibilities with the arrival, Thursday, on the Queen Mary, of Sol Sagall, managing director of Scophony, an English television organization.

Mr. Sagall said he would "investigate proposals" to establish a branch of Scophony in the United States, not only to retail television reception apparatus, but also to build transmission stations, under patents obtained by his organizaiton.

New York Leads

New York State is leading in "Quiz" replies sent in on the $250,000 industry campaign, with California running second. Replies are now coming in at the rate of 1,000 daily.

In the progress of the motion Pictures' Greatest Year drive this week, campaign headquarters reported plans to conserve for future use an analysis of the replies in the "quiz" contest.

Also noteworthy were a letter of indorsement by National Theatres executive Spyros Skouras; investigation by postal authorities of "tipster" services for the quiz; "Movie Music Week," a concerted plugging of music from noted pictures, by famous band leaders; interest in the drive from all over the world, with English film men reported anxious to try the idea; smash campaign ideas reported from the field.

The all-industry short, made for the drive, is being released this week; and its reception was so favorable that instantaneous bookings in the New York territory were immediately arranged.

See page 17.

Olympic Film Envoy

Leni Riefenstahl, described by Associated Press as "a plumber's daughter who became Germany's film queen and who has been considered one of Adolph Hitler's few women friends," was reported en route to New York to launch her films of the 1936 Olympics, according to an AP dispatch from Berlin Wednesday.

When Hitler placed Miss Riefenstahl in charge of the 1936 Olympics in Germany she forbade American newsreel men to make any pictures of the event unless they would do so under her close supervision and submit their footage to her.

Associate Press in its dispatch said Miss Riefenstahl's friends "tried to dissuade her" from making the trip to the United States "on the grounds of unfavorable feeling there."

Hollywood's Radio City

Hollywood Radio City, new headquarters for the National Broadcasting Company, will be opened to the public on December 1st, according to an announcement by Don Gilman, the company's vice-president in charge of the Western division. Although the public already is being admitted to broadcasts and the office building is open for business, finishing touches are still being put on the structure.

In the basement, the Radio Corporation of America is making a special installation of equipment which will give the public a scientific explanation of how radio functions.

"Graceful" Salute

The Federal Theatre project in Chicago, enthused over the history of motion pictures, some weeks ago announced plans for an elaborate stage revue dedicated to the glorification of films. For their project, temporarily titled "The Horse Opera," they needed sequences from old films. Submitting their plans and script to the MPPDA office they asked permission to use certain scenes and were refused on the ground that the plan the WPA theatre authorities considered a graceful salute to the industry was in reality exceedingly harmful in many of its phases. Disappointed but not discouraged the impresarios announced this week they would proceed with their plan for a revue based on the film industry but the end this time will be to rattle as many skeletons as possible, cast as much ridicule as they are capable of, and paint the industry as black as their stage machinery will allow.

William F. Crouch tells the story on page 16.

Constitutional Changes

Three proposed changes in the present New York State Constitution, incorporated within the nine amendments to be offered state voters next Tuesday are of interest to the motion picture industry, including circuit operators, small exhibitors and producers alike.

Subjects of discussion within the industry are three separate proposals, one section is known as the "equal rights" subdivision; another deals with review of decisions made by state departments, agencies and officials, while the third relates to collective bargaining and is commonly called "labor's bill of rights."

The "equal rights" section is designed to prevent discrimination in places of public amusement by employers against persons of race, color, creed or religion.

Monogram Product

Monogram will complete production on this season's 42 pictures one month ahead of schedule; the company has sold 500 more accounts to date than last year; the sales force soon will reach its quota, which has been increased to $6,750,000 ($2,500,000 ahead of last year), and the company raised its production budget this year by $1,000,000, and is "definitely in the black"—all these optimistic statements emanated on Monday at a press conference, from W. Ray Johnston, following his return from the Coast. (Picture in Pictorial Section.)

The company, he said, will have 22 pictures done by December 30, "so that we can catch that spring business."

Mr. Johnston added that 4,800 contracts have been signed to date.

Australian Plan

Producers and exhibitors of Australia have presented a memorandum to Premier Stevens of New South Wales demanding a film commission and new legislation to govern the film industry of the state. Beside the demand for a commission, the memorandum asks for the registration of foreign films, with a tax on their import, designed to subsidize domestic production; reciprocity on quota within the Empire; control of theatre licensing; fixing of film rentals, and a standard exhibition contract. The large majority of films shown in Australia annually comes from the United States, while domestic production is negligible. Attempts to put the New South Wales quota into practice have failed because of the small amount of production there.

Archives

John Hay Whitney, who is president of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, in addition to his other associations with films, signed the charter of the International Federation of Film Archives last Thursday, thus officially starting the Federation's work in preserving films for historical, educational and artistic purposes throughout the world.

The story of the Federation's origin and purposes, and a picture of the ceremony, will be found on page 31.

Strike Probe

Intelligence officers of the Internal Revenue Bureau, reputedly moving secretly, have launched an intensive investigation of the circumstances which ended last year's ill fated Federated Motion Picture Crafts strike in Hollywood studios.

Leaders of various labor locals, some of whom participated actively in the walkout, have been summoned to testify on the moves which ended the strike after eight weeks' duration. The testimony is reportedly in connection with the intelligence agents' desire to trace the circumstances surrounding the reported passing of $100,000 to a labor leader.

Counsel for Studio Utility Employees, Local 724, this week charged that International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees coerced and intimidated several hundred members of the utility local into joining the alliance "by reason of corrupt control" of IATSE officers.

Skirmishing between the Screen Actors Guild and agents over the guild proposal to regulate agents has reached a point where the Artists-Managers Guild, headed by M. C. Levee, has agreed to franchising by the guild of agents in Hollywood. The concession was granted only on the condition that all agents now in business in Hollywood be given the first franchise and that both groups draft a code of ethics.

New British Worries

Internal problems of British exhibitors have taken a back seat while the threat of increased regulation by municipal authorities has taken a chair right down at the ringside. There's the question of socalled "non-flam" shows outside of theatres, censorship of newsreels, higher taxes on Sunday openings, and city control of management, and this month the Home Office Advisory Committee goes into action to advise on administration of the Films Act.

Aubrey Flanagan writes of these matters in his article on page 30.

South African Deal

United Artists will join with Twentieth Century-Fox in the distribution of product in South Africa. Twentieth Century-Fox at present operates an exchange in Johannesburg. Some of the United Artists product which already may be sold away will not be included under the new arrangement but the deal will take in all other United Artists films.

It is understood that this UA-20th Century-Fox deal would become effective around the first of the year. Arthur W. Kelly, in charge of foreign sales for United Artists, sailed Saturday for South Africa to complete the deal.

MPTOA CONVENTION TOLD SELF-REGULATION PLAN IS EMERGING IN WEEK

by TERRY RAMSAYE
in Oklahoma City

Surrounded by oil wells, decorated with Indians and cowboys, swept by a wild prairie wind, Oklahoma City, sophisticated young metropolis of the great plains country, heard about movies this week with the 18th annual convention of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, devoted mostly to listening to the problems of the screen in this troubled era.

Hollywood paraded stars with Metro's effulgent Mickey Rooney and ever so many from Warners and an assortment of somewhat indigenous western players, all doing a terrific traffic in autographs, and local press attentions.

The convention heard much, discussed much, ran without rumpuses and took no new action. It recognized that the problems of the industry are on round tables of conference in New York.

From "the majors" the showmen got, in a speech by William F. Rodgers of MGM, the only answer yet available on the paramount issue of trade practises, the answer being in substance promise of concilliation, without specification, in any detail whatever.

Program Near Completion

Mr. Rodgers indicated that about a week hence the plan and program would be complete. It was to be inferred that there were yet to be negotiations and conference with the sector of exhibitions represented by the Allied States Association, although that organization was not mentioned by name.

Incidentally the Allied organization did not respond to invitation for official representation at the MPTOA convention.

By resolution the convention declared against score charges, radio competition and governmental interferences with and dictation to industry.

From A. Julian Brylawski, of Washington, the convention at its final session got uncomfortable assurance that the battle of the Neely-Pettingill bill was to go on and on with reintroduction in January.

Schaefer on Larger Problems

From George Schaefer, talking from his chairmanship of the "greatest year campaign," the exhibitors heard a somewhat defensive analysis of the "Quiz" contest, declaring it was "not intended to be a continuous bank night, anyway," but intended rather to contribute to a process of drawing the public's attention to the more important institutional messages of the industry.

Mr. Schaefer indicated that there would in all probability be some kindred sort of contest next year.

It was as president of RKO, and the broad position of a major executive of major interests, that Mr. Schaefer surveyed the larger problems of the screen, with emphasis on the influence of rising production costs and the shrinkage of the world market because of political conditions from Berlin to Tokyo and way stations.

FURTHER MEETINGS ON SELF-REGULATION

Present status of meetings between representatives of exhibitors and of the large distributors on self-regulation stand is as follows:

1. Committeemen for unaffiliated exhibitor groups, representing 1,600 theatres, concluded meetings with distributors, in New York, last Friday, the exhibitors' proposals having been formally "received and discussed," with both sides describing conversations as friendly.

2. Representatives of Allied States and distributors resumed discussions in Chicago's Congress Hotel Thursday, after 10 days of conversations in New York. The interruption was made to allow Allied's committee to discuss progress at a directors' meeting, called especially for the purpose before going any further with the distributors. "Definite results" will come out of Allied's meetings with distributors, Mr. Myers told the Associated Theatres of Indiana Wednesday at Indianapolis.

3. Final conferences between distributors and the MPTOA will be held starting November 7th, in New York, following this week's open airing of the MPTOA's demands and the progress it has made, in the annual convention in Oklahoma City, as reported on this and following pages.

"It would not be a good idea, I think," observed Mr. Schaefer, "to talk at an exhibitor's convention about higher film rentals, so I am not going to go into that subject."

Mr. Schaefer made emphatic argument for the competency of Hollywood production and pleas for recognitions of its large responsibilities and problems in the delivery of 350 pictures a year. The inevitably speculative nature of creative endeavour got attention and Mr. Schaefer remarked: "one picture in three pays off."

The international situation, with detailed presentation of the inhibiting situations in foreign lands, was presented by N. D. Golden of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

Imperturbable and facile in his slightly southern accent, Ed. L. Kuykendall, president, drove through the schedule of programs and events with a suave persistence that prevailed over a considerably gala and disconcerting atmosphere of high pressure hoopla in the western tradition. The president was flanked at the dais by the MPTOA's concise general counsel, Edward G. Levy, of New Haven, and the emphatic chairman of the board, Fred Wehrenberg, of St. Louis. Mr. Wehrenberg incidentally gave sage advice on exhibitor labour relations and the diplomacies and efficiencies of cooperations with better Films Councils. He credited "Family Night" with a 50 per cent increase at the box office in his experience.

Indians and Cowboys

The convention-dominated Hotel Biltmore at first flush looked like a possible set for a cowboy opera, with an Indian tepee—Indians imported from Old Town, Maine, and in costume, while slightly critical, oil-rich Oklahoma Indians in smart tweeds strolled the lobby—while there were sound effects with a six-gun supplied, seemingly at all hours, by the indefatigable T. B. Noble, State Theatre, Oklahoma City, and whitehatted scenic effects by C. B. Brownie, Tad Advertising Company, and extraordinary plainsman vestments displayed by the otherwise most dignified L. C. Griffith, of the extensive and celebrated Griffith Circuit.

The convention hall enjoyed the patriotic and spectacular attentions of National Screen Service, which in fact did an impressive job of both exterior and interior decoration in all departments, including a first aid station adjacent to press headquarters on the second floor.

Under the title of "Utilizing the Show Window of the Theatre," Charles L. Casanave, vice-president of the division known as National Screen Accessories, addressed the Monday session.

The convention enjoyed the standard and proper succession of social events, including considerable entertaining by M. A. Lightman of Memphis at a pent house apartment at the Hotel Black, and culminating Wednesday night in a dinner dance at the Oklahoma City Golf and Country Club.

Owing to the sumptuary legislation affecting the region, many tea parties were announced. The report, however, that Oklahoma City is in a dustbowl was not supported.

A slight touch of the lighter vein was conveyed to the convention by Terry Ramsaye, editor of Motion Picture Herald, who in the course of a talk of reminiscences remarked that "In 1889 Thomas Edison refused to spend $150 to patent the motion picture in Europe on the ground that 'it isn't worth it.'" Mr. Ramsaye, referring to the prior discussions of the foreign market, suggested that now, 50 years later, it appeared possible that Mr. Edison would be vindicated.

Rodgers and Schaefer On Trade Practices

The convention, anxiously awaiting official word on the subject, heard from the majors on Tuesday on conciliation, but not in specific terms. The spokesmen of the industry were George Schaefer and William F. Rodgers, from RKO and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, respectively.

The unrecorded background, untouched in the gentle words of the spokesmen, lay in the fact that great discretion was to be exercised in official expressions from official persons, in communication with defined exhibitor groups. It soon became clear that despite earlier impression, the MPTOA was not to be the recipient of any special "self-regulation" announcement from the distributors in advance of other groups, including Allied States Association, unmentioned but inferred.

Mr. Schaefer, speaking Tuesday morning, delivered a pro-industry and pro-producer-distributor message, discussed the "Greatest Year" campaign, explained the "Quiz" and its status, and paved the way, in part, for Mr. Rodgers' afternoon address by expressing optimism for the outcome of the trade practices conferences in New York, but remarking "Don't expect Utopia." He pledged RKO's cooperation in resultant better relations between distributors and exhibitors.

Goodwill Campaign

A general industry goodwill campaign is in prospect for next year, but it is only in embryo at present, Mr. Schaefer disclosed.

The present industry drive, he said, was a success, and he gave credit to Howard Dietz, MGM; Robert Gillham, Paramount; Charles E. McCarthy, Twentieth Century-Fox, and E. J. Churchill, of Donahue and Coe.

"We do not think of, nor intend a continuous bank night," said Mr. Schaefer. The campaign, he felt, has recaptured public interest in films, and obtained favorable press reaction.

This is Mr. Schaefer's 25th year in the film business, and he took the opportunity to pay tribute to Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, his "teacher and guide."

Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia, president of the United MPTO of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, and Delaware, in attendance to speak on exhibition contracts and as chairman of the committee on conciliation and arbitration, became seriously ill with a recurrent abdominal malady and was taken for treatment to St. Anthony Hospital. It was expected that at least two weeks would elapse before he would be able to return to his home.

Sees Program Complete Soon

Interesting was this observation by Mr. Rodgers: "Had your convention been held one week later, there is little doubt but that we could have announced here a program of trade practices that would have set up a new milestone in our business that could have been considered as a yardstick by which we could govern our future operations. We believe this will be a realization in a matter of a very short time. Your president and committee are to resume discussions next week, November 7th, in New York. I am leaving here tonight to again take up negotiations with other exhibitor bodies," referring to an Allied meeting Thursday in Chicago.

"We need no government interference with the regulation of industry matters," Mr. Rodgers insisted. "We have developed the industry by concentrated efforts. Block booking has been attacked viciously. The few injustices that have resulted therefrom have been magnified, and a few if any of the virtues have been presented for the very system that has been the means of security for many and under which the majority have prospered. Laying aside all of the dressing up of the arguments, there is not one company of importance which could successfully operate under the provisions of the Neely and Pettingill bills. It is not only possible but seems to be nearly a certainty that we can and will regulate our affairs from within. All that we ask is that a fair opportunity be given with this purpose in mind. Confidence is needed now more than ever in these final stages of negotiations.

Edward A. Golden, Monogram vice-president, spoke pessimistically of any sort of regulation, either self or governmental. He summed up with, "the cure for the evils of our industry is in the elimination of harmful practices which took root while the industry was developing. The measures which will restore a sound balance in the industry are the elimination of block booking and the divorcement of theatres from distribution."

Calling upon the industry to choose "a representative state in the Union," Mr. Golden advocated the use of that state as a testing ground where pictures could be played without block booking and theatres operated without control by distributors, "for a definite length of time."

Mr. Golden praised the "idea" of self-regulation, but criticized its practicability.

Far worse in its ultimate effect, according to the Monogram vice-president, would be the results of Government meddling. Mr. Golden said he "trembled at the very thought"

Mr. Golden traced the rise of the industry and the causes which developed the practices so obnoxious to independent exhibitors and distributors, and then advocated a limited trial of block booking and theatre divorcement elimination.

Resolutions Presented

The resolutions committee late Wednesday presented for adoption by the convention a series of drafts of declarations to record the attitude of the membership on most of the issues before the industry. They included:

1—Criticism of the Department of Justice for not pressing the monopoly action that is pending in the southern district of New York, against ASCAP.

2—Criticism of radio competition in those air shows deemed unfair.

3—Denunciation of the exchange of information between branch managers of film exchanges in each zone.

4—Demand that "trade practice" concessions from producers and distributors, expected to be forthcoming, be made to apply to current contracts.

5—Formal affirmation of the amended MPTOA 10-point plan. Also included was a special resolution, resolving against score charges.

6—Condemnation of the Neely-Pettingill Bill, not as to purposes, but as to modus operandi. There were also set down declarations against the principle of government regulation in the industry, this coming in sequel to Edward Golden's speech of the day before.

The resolutions committee is headed by Arthur Lockwood of Middletown, Connecticut.

Regardless of the current trade practice conferences and the government suit against the industry, Senator James Neely has disclosed that he will reintroduce his anti-block booking bill at the next session of Congress in January, A. Julian Brylawski, exhibitor leader of Washington, warned the convention Wednesday morning.

"We will have this fight to make all over again when Congress convenes," the MPTOA vice-president declared.

"In spite of the best efforts of the MPTOA in the last session of Congress the Neely bill was defeated only in a last minute rush and left in committee," he added.

In explaining how Senator Neely nearly obtained passage of the bill at the last session of Congress Mr. Brylawski said the Senator frankly announced that he would refuse to support the bills of any of his colleagues unless they voted for his anti-block booking bill.

Officers Reelected

All officers of the MPTOA were re-elected in a special board meeting at the Biltmore Hotel Sunday, the official opening day of the convention, with Edward L. Kuykendall again heading the association and Morris Loewenstein continuing as secretary. Because of the importance attached by MPTOA to the completion of the present trade practice program, the incumbent officers were endorsed for another year. The

Allied Gains in Pennsylvania; West Virginia and Indiana Meet

Allied last Friday added a Pennsylvania affiliate, 80 Philadelphia owners, led by Morris Wax, chairman, establishing a state unit at a meeting in the Broadwood Hotel, born as a result of dissatisfaction in Lewen Pizor's United MPTO. The sponsors are David Milgrim, of Affiliated Theatres; Luke Gring, Dave Barrist, Harry Fried and Columbus Stamper. Sidney Samuelson, New Jersey, and Colonel H. A. Cole, Texas, national Allied officers guided the initial meeting. Mr. Samuelson described Philadelphia as "luscious picking for distributors."

Abram F. Myers, national Allied counsel, led the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana in an analysis of legislation, taxation and trade practices, at their convention at the Hotel Antlers, Indianapolis, Tuesday and Wednesday. Following introduction of State Senator Jacob Weiss as new counsel, members elected 20 directors and five alternates. Officers reelected were: Maurice Rubin, president; I. R. Holycross, vice-president; Frank Sanders, treasurer; Don Rossiter, executive secretary, and Mrs. Norma Campbell Todd, recording secretary.

Independent Theatre Owners of West Virginia, in convention at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Saturday, reelected M. A. Rosenberg president, and named William Brown vice-president, Joseph Gellman secretary and Bennett Amdur, Frank Panapoulos and M. Shapiro directors. Resuming at the Waldo Hotel, Clarksburg, W. Va., Monday, delegates postponed to November 29th a proposal to affiliate with Allied.

MPTOA, Cowboys And Indians

Members of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America met in Oklahoma City for their annual national convention this week with a goal toward which they have worked for years declared to be finally in sight. Self-regulation, the subject of round table talks last week between distributor and exhibitor representatives in New York, was the prime item on the convention agenda, and developments in that field brought cause for rejoicing. Delegates are pictured on this page in extracurricular moments.

LIGHTMAN URGES INDUSTRY LOYALTY

ten points of the association's trade practice program were discussed at the Sunday meeting and were approved by the board.

The slate in addition to Mr. Kuykendall and Mr. Loewenstein includes: Vice-presidents, M. E. Comerford, Scranton, Pa.; M. A. Lightman, Memphis; E. C. Beatty, Detroit; Mitchell Wolfson, Miami; A. Julian Brylawski, Washington, D. C., and Walter Vincent, New York, treasurer, and Edward G. Levy, New Haven, general counsel.

Fred Wehrenberg, St. Louis, was renamed chairman of the board which remains the same. Confirmation of the appointment of three directors during the past year was made by the board. They were S. S. Stevenson, Henderson, N. C., replacing Charles W. Picquet, Pinehurst, N. C.; Frank Cassil, Kansas City, replacing John Stapel, Columbus, Mo., and A. C. Hayman, Buffalo, N. Y., replacing J. H. Michaels, Buffalo.

Other board members for 1938-39 are William Benton, Saratoga Springs; Joseph Bernhard, New York; E. M. Fay, Providence; Y. Frank Freeman, New York; Frank Cassil, St. Joseph, Mo.; John J. Gillette, Tooele, Utah; L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City; H. V. Harvey, San Francisco; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Arthur H. Lockwood, Middleton, Conn.; Sidney B. Lust, Washington, D. C.; L. O. Lukan, Seattle; Jack Miller, Chicago; Sam Pinanski, Boston; Benjamin Pitts, Fredericksburg, Va.; Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia; William C. Ripley, Longview, Wash.; E. A. Schiller, New York; Spyros P. Skouras, New York; Major L. E. Thompson, New York; R. X. Williams, Jr., Oxford, Miss.; Judge Roy L. Walker, Lampasas, Tex.; Charles E. Williams, Omaha, and Mitchell Wolfson, Miami, Fla.

Present at Sunday's board meeting were E. M. Fay, Frank Cassil, L. C. Griffith, H. V. Harvey, A. C. Hayman, O. C. Lam, Arthur Lockwood, Sidney Lust, L. O. Lukan, Lewen Pizor, W. G. Ripley, S. S. Stevenson, R. X. Williams, Jr., R. L. Walker, Fred Wehrenberg, Charles E. Williams and Mitchell Wolfson, besides all of the officers of the association.

Mr. Kuykendall presided over the president's reception, Sunday night, first event open to all delegates, at the Biltmore. He was made Chief of the Moving Shadows by Cherokee Indians who were present at the convention. Mr. Kuykendall was then presented with a gold identification tag which read "Distinguished Citizen of Oklahoma City," as signed by W. A. Quinn, city manager, and Mayor J. Frank Martin of Oklahoma City.

Wage-Hour Ruling Announced

Announcement of a favorable opinion from Washington on the non-application of the new wages-and-hours law to theatre operation was made at the first business session of the convention by A. Julian Brylawski. (See page 34.)

The association settled down Monday to hearing speeches by leaders in the motion picture industry, with registration at 300 by Monday afternoon and delegates still being added to the list by late arrivals.

Monday's session began at 10:30 a. m. with military assembly followed by the invocation by the Reverend Kelly O'Neal, pastor of the Crown Heights Christian Church, Oklahoma City. The Honorable Frank A. Martin, mayor of Oklahoma City, made the address of welcome. Mr. Brylawski, as vice-president, responded.

Mr. Kuykendall read his annual president's report Monday morning in which he informed delegates of the present status of the trade practice conferences between exhibitors and distributors. He announced that the sessions would be resumed on November 7th in New York.

U. S. SUIT HEARINGS OFF TO NOVEMBER 10

On motion of Assistant U. S. District Attorney John Lane, Federal Judge William Bondy, in New York, on Tuesday, adjourned to November 10th hearings on petitions of major company defendants for bills of particular in the Department of Justice's anti-trust suit. Judge Bondy also postponed to the same date hearings on the majors' petition to have stricken from the suit those parts which charge a producers' monopoly, a talent and filming pool, and unfair trade practices in distribution.

With November 10th set as the date for hearings, after which the government will require some time to write bills of particular, it is not likely that answers of the majors to the original complaint will be made for another 60 days.

Moses H. Lewis, special attorney, will hereafter handle procedure for the Department, receiving and filing papers and arranging court dates.

Broadway heard Wednesday that government attorneys may oppose parts of the distributors' demands for bills of particulars on the ground that some disclosures may reveal the names of witnesses before trial.

New York Independent theatre owners this week pledged "wholehearted support and cooperation to the Department of Justice in the prosecution of its suit includnig the providing of witnesses and furnishing evidences at the trial."

On Monday afternoon, N. D. Golden, chief of the motion picture division of the Department of Commerce, spoke on the importance of the foreign market in maintaining domestic standards of production and urged that the industry begin settling all its inner differences at the conference table.

Harry Sherman, of Hollywood, producer of the "Hopalong Cassidy" pictures, urged that if producers and directors of Hollywood film companies would go out in the smaller towns and learn what the public really wants in its pictures instead of spending their time in Hollywood and New York they could make pictures more to the liking of the general public and more profitable. He urged exhibitors to put forth a greater effort in showmanship to meet the increased cost of producing pictures. Labor costs, he said, have risen 40 per cent due to the talent guild operations.

Other speakers Monday afternoon included M. A. Lightman, Memphis, on the importance of the exhibitors in the industry; Terry Ramsaye, editor of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, reminiscing on the history of the industry; Charles L. Casanave, vice-president and general manager of National Screen Accessories, Inc., and Fred Wehrenberg, St. Louis, chairman of the board of the MPTOA.

Those noted figures who have made history in the industry, and their companies—The Motion Picture Patents Company, Biograph, Mutual Film Company—were presented to his listeners in an intimate fashion by Mr. Ramsaye, who drew his reminiscences from a long and varied background.

Urges Aggressive "Selling"

Motion pictures exhibitors should "sell" the industry in a more aggressive manner, especially the product, Mr. Lightman emphasized in his address. The vast fortune invested in the industry's product should be realized by the public, and it is the job of the exhibitor to tell them, he declared. One way he pointed out, is to impress upon their patrons the "miracle" of the motion picture; how it brings the world to their side for a very small admission price.

Mr. Lightman turned some of his fire on those in the industry who tacitly agreed with the critics of the industry, instead of springing to its defense.

Theatre owners themselves, especially small house operators, must organize themselves, if they do not want the unions, so dominant in large units, to attain a control which will amount to tyranny, warned Mr. Wehrenberg. He also noted the improvement of product in recent years, attributing it to the influence exerted by pressure groups. These groups, he pointed out, were not to be regarded as nuisances, but as allies in selling pictures; for the pictures that they approve, he claimed, they "boost" to their friends, and through the many propaganda media they control.

Stars and players arriving from Hollywood Monday were headed by Mickey Rooney, of M-G-M, with E. B. Coleman, M-G-M publicity director, vieing with Arthur Eddy, of Warner Brothers studio, for "plugs" in local newspapers and on the air for their proteges.

Brian Donlevy and Marjorie Weaver arrived Monday from Hollywood, courtesy of Twentieth Century-Fox. Cicero and Abner, the Weaver brothers and Elviry also arrived Monday.

At 11 a. m. Tuesday a plane containing five Warner Brothers players arrived at the municipal airport. These included Olivia DeHavilland, Margaret Lindsay, John Wayne, Marie Wilson, and Jane Bryan. Wayne functioned as master of ceremonies at the movie ball Tuesday evening in the civic auditorium, when about 20 film players made appearances.

Other stars and players to attend include Gene Autry, Republic Pictures; Gene Austin, Roadshow Attractions; Zasu Pitts, Interstate Theatres; Jack Hoxie, Milt Britton Productions, and Tex Ritter, of Monogram.

Nan Grey, Universal's Hollywood representative at the convention, was presented to the exhibitors by Mr. Kuykendall at the luncheon Wednesday. Miss Grey was accompanied by her father, E. J. Miller.

Omaha made the first bid for the 1939 MPTOA convention, through Dan B. Butler, mayor of Omaha, and Frances B. Mathews, president of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

Committees Named

At Monday morning's session of the convention, E. G. Levy, general counsel, announced appointments to special convention committees. Mr. Levy is chairman of the credentials and rules committee. Members to serve with him are Joseph R. Denniston, Detroit, and Morris

Criticize "Campaign"

The "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" campaign and the "Quiz" contest were attacked by H. A. Harvey, San Francisco exhibitor, just before adjournment Wednesday afternoon.

"The whole thing is all wet" said Mr. Harvey, "and was rammed down our throats. Also, they promised us that this wasn't going to be a 'sandbagging' proposition. The contest started in August when we began buying next year's product and some of us haven't bought the coming season's product even yet."

Thomas James, St. Louis exhibitor, also criticized the campaign, because he felt that the small independent exhibitors would be unable to show very many of the contest pictures. He then moved that the MPTOA go on record asking the contest committee to either extend the "Quiz" beyond January 1st, or cut the number of pictures to 20 from 30.

Fred Wehrenberg, of St. Louis, objected in the discussion that followed and explained why the contest committee had decided not to continue the contest.

Attacks ASCAP

"Washington is the only state which has passed legislation outlawing the payment of charges to ASCAP," L. Lukan, Seattle exhibitor, told the delegates. He said that a liaison between radio and motion picture interests and others in Washington brought this about. ASCAP entered suit to contest constitutionality of the law in state supreme court, in federal district court, and in federal appellate court, and was defeated each time, he declared, in an attack against ASCAP.

"We estimate that Washington exhibitors are saved $60,000 a year by the outlawing of the charge in our state," Mr. Lukan added. He told exhibitors that if they wish copies of the Washington law and of the ruling in the court cases, they could be obtained by writing to J. M. Hone, secretary of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of the Northwest, 2323 Second Avenue, Seattle.

CATHOLIC WOMEN PROTEST BLOCK SALES

Protests against block-booking and blind-selling were voiced and the closing of theatres on Good Friday was urged in resolutions adopted by the National Council of Catholic Women at its annual convention, held in Biloxi, Miss., last week.

The council voted to use its influence toward having theatres closed throughout the country on Good Friday in recognition of it as a holy day. The block-booking practice was declared to be unfair to motion picture patrons as well as theatremen.

Warner Address Applauded

Harry M. Warner's patriotic message on film, "Are You an American?" a recording of his address to the members of the American Legion convention in Los Angeles a month ago, got him impressive attention and approval when screened before the Wednesday session. An especially installed projector also presented the Warner short, "The Declaration of Independence," a romantic story of the birth of the nation, produced in color. The much quoted declaration of Mr. Warner against "isms" and in behalf of Americanism won applause that was much more than the perfunctory "hand of acknowledgement." The convention by vote asked Mr. Kuykendall to wire Mr. Warner its appreciations. Nathan Golden of the motion picture division of the Department of Commerce told the showmen from the floor of the enthusiastic interest of Secretary Roper in Mr. Warner's patriotic expression on the screen.

Introduced at the Wednesday session, by Mr. Kuykendall were Jay Means and Dick Biechele, Kansas City; Ed Fay, Providence; Frank Cassil, St. Joseph, Mo.; Fred Wehrenberg, St. Louis; Joseph Brennan, Boston; Charles Williams, Omaha, and Ted Jacobs, president of the Theatre Owners of Connecticut.

H. V. Harvey, president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Northern California, discussed "The Problem of Delayed Allocation of Film Prices." He told delegates that film exchanges could help exhibitors considerably by making allocations of film prices promptly, within seven days after first runs in each territory. "National allocation is unfair to the exhibitor and should be made only by exchange territories," he added.

Harry Goldberg, of Warner Theatres, spoke about "On the Fence Pictures," making a plea for special promotions for pictures of an appeal that is not obvious.

Twenty-nine manufacturers and others had booths on the convention floor, including: Wagner Sign, Tad Screen Advertising, American Seating, Motiograph, American Desk, RCA, Burch Manufacturing, Kroehler Manufacturing, Govern-Aire, National Carbon, Betz Air Conditioning, Adler Sign, Nap Ads, National Theatre Supply, International Seating, National Screen, Oklahoma Theatre Supply, Tunes, Inc., Consolidated Book Publishers, Sho-Ball, Inc., Magic Eye and Westinghouse Electric.

Kuykendall Cites Industry Problems

Following are excerpts from President Edward Kuykendall's annual report to the MPTOA convention:

"For the first time since I have been in office, I am imbued with optimism as to the future conduct of this business.

"Lawsuits from within the industry are more prevalent than ever before. We are suing each other from all sides. In some instances this seems to be the only answer to the problem, but in most instances it could have been settled without the courts, if the parties concerned had been inclined to do a little giving and taking, both ways.

"The MPTOA committee, who have been in conference with the distributors' committee, are convinced of the sincerity of Mr. Sidney Kent of Fox, and Mr. Ned Depinet of RKO, who are representing the distributors' committee. Every major company, for the first time, is committed to the program.

"Mr. Kent and Mr. Depinet are in accord that we give thought to the matter of non-exclusive runs.

"Much has been said of the Government suit. I regret it can be productive of no good for any of us. It seeks to regulate.

"I am sure that when we are finished with these discussions, particularly as to cancellations, there will be sentiment on the part of distributors to make fewer pictures, and that the cancellation privilege will be productive of encouragement to the independent and smaller producers, because it will give him more playing dates.

"Everyone, even the sponsors, realizes that the motion picture legislation that has been introduced will damage the producers and distributors.

"Radio competition is still a problem. There are many who think it a major problem. There is no doubt that the broadcasting by stars during the peak hour of theatre attendance has seriously affected the box office.

"As for the ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers) I continue to advise the payment of this levy by exhibitors, though they have been legislated out of some states. Exhibitors should protect themselves by paying the music tax, or offering to pay it, until it is worked out by the court, or legislation.

"Double features are still a menace to the industry.

"The Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment Program has undoubtedly been productive of good.

"We look with apprehension upon the newly effective wage-hour law. I am hopeful that it will work out for the good of all."

This elaborate sound truck and trailer is one of the most effective methods used by Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell of the Texas Interstate circuit to exploit the Greatest Year campaign and the Quiz Contest in their widely separated theatre towns. Built at a cost of $6,000 under the direction of Ray Beall the equipment includes a public address system and radio receiving apparatus. It proved a popular attraction at the state fair in Dallas.

Discovery that the 50-word statements required of contestants in the "Movie Quiz" contests are developing into a widespread expression of public taste, has determined campaign officials to make an analysis of those replies so as to conserve their value to the industry.

Thus far, Jack Todd, in charge of mechanical details of the contest, finds that the taste is for action pictures, and for homey American themes.

In order to give the exhibitors first hand information on the attitude of the country's newspapers toward the drive, campaign headquarters are sending to showmen, through the drive's exchanges, a 14-page booklet, prepared by Howard Dietz, giving a complete index of editorial comment. George J. Schaefer, executive chairman of the drive, said "These editorials are the finest institutional copy conceivable for any industry."

That the campaign had brought "lasting good," stilled criticism "within and without" and was mainly responsible for improved business, was the conviction expressed by Spyros Skouras, of National Theatres, in a letter to an associate.

"A general note of true optimism in all branches of the industry has replaced the dire outlook that existed previous to the campaign," Mr. Skouras wrote.

"The campaign has revived in the majority of exhibitors the spark of ingenuity and showmanship so long dormant."

Protest "Contest Service"

Complaints by residents of Richmond, Va., against circulars from a "Contest Service," operating from a postoffice box in Brooklyn, caused Richmond postal authorities to forward copies to postal inspectors in New York, who are investigating possible action for fraud. The circulars purport to give correct answers to the Quiz.

Tipster sheets also have appeared in Canada.

The leading feature of the drive during November will be the all-industry short, "The World Is Ours." One thousand prints are being issued. The subject was reviewed last week in Motion Picture Herald. A four-page pressbook for it is being issued. Practically every first-run house in the New York metropolitan area booked the short for exhibition this week.

Number Eight in the Movie Quiz trailer series is being shipped to exchanges by National Screen Service. Lew Lehr, comedian, does the narration. The script was prepared by Harold B. Franklin and Mr. Lehr. It runs two minutes.

It's "Movie Music Week"

This week is "Movie Music Week" of the drive, with noted band leaders featuring selections from pictures of two decades. In many instances, the programs are made a "guessing game."

The programs are based on the "Cavalcade of Motion Picture Music" series, prepared by the music committee of the drive. The committee sponsoring these programs has the endorsement of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Inquiries regarding the campaign are being received from all parts of the world. In England the industry may launch a similar campaign. Film centers in Australia and New Zealand also have shown interest. Hawaii asked for representation early in the drive.

Individual city campaigns are assuming importance as representative of showmanship that the campaign is encouraging.

In Cincinnati, recent weeks have seen rousing exploitation with the opening of the race tracks and the city's sesquicentennial celebration. At the opening of River Downs, the third and fourth races were named "The Motion Picture's Greatest Year," and "The $250,000 Movie Quiz Contest." Publicity is carried on street cars. A huge illuminated sign over the RKO Albee in Fountain Square carries the campaign message. Ike Libson heads the local committee.

In Salt Lake City, local newspapers estimate more than 47,000 of the residents are participating in the Movie Quiz. They estimate an eight per cent increase in boxoffice receipts.

In Detroit, H. W. Richey estimated that 72 per cent of the 100 houses were participating.

The Omaha, the headquarters reported 131 independent exhibitors in the campaign with $4,007 pledged in addition to the 45 circuit houses. Charles E. Williams. president of the MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa, and D. V. Lucas, campaign supervisor for the Omaha district, publicly thanked the theatremen for their cooperation.

In Los Angeles, the Paramount theatre is running a Movie Quiz contest of its own, with similar questions. The master of ceremonies announces, "This quiz demonstrates how easily you can participate in the National $250,000 Movie Quiz Contest . . ."

Down in Texas, the Interstate and Texas Consolidated Theatres circuits are using sound truck and trailer in a project devised by Raymond Willie, Interstate District manager.

Over 50,000 booklets on the quiz have been requested by theatre patrons of Lowell, Mass., said the Courier-Citizen.

Ad Budgets Are Increased

Paramount, Warner Brothers, United Artists and other majors are increasing budgets in national and local campaigns. Paramount has appropriated $20,000 additional for cooperative newspaper campaigns on three pictures, "If I Were King," "The Arkansas Traveler" and "Men with Wings," while "Thanks for the Memory" and "Say It in French" may also share.

United Artists has tied in on a $500 essay contest on "The Young in Heart" with the New York Journal-American.

Charles Einfeld, of Warners left Hollywood Tuesday for conferences in the East with Major Warner, Grad Sears and Mort Blumenstock for increased appropriations on "Angels with Dirty Faces," "Dawn Patrol," "Wings of the Navy," "Dodge City," "Heart of the North."

A series of ads in Liberty magazine advertises an installment story of Douglas Corrigan's life. RKO's picture on Corrigan, "The Flying Irishman," started production this week.

Twentieth Century-Fox reported that in the 1937-38 season its advertising department turned out 2,600 different ads and the ad sales art division produced 284 posters.

Chicago Depositions Delayed to Wednesday

Judge Wilkerson in federal court in Chicago this week postponed to next Wednesday the taking of depositions in the action of Chicago independent theatre owners against Balaban and Katz and major distributors, charging clearance and zoning privileges favoritism to B & K.

A motion by defendants for a further extension was refused.

THEATRES EXEMPT FROM WAGE ACT; STUDIOS TOLD TO TALK TO UNIONS

Non-Professional Jobs in Hollywood Should Be Agreed Upon Between Producers and Organized Labor, Says Andrews

The federal Fair Labor Standards Act—the new "wages and hours" law—does not apply to motion picture theatres, the United State Government ruled this week, thus definitely determining the position of at least one branch under the law, which became effective at 12:01 a. m. October 21st.

Still to be determined, however, is the extent the law will apply, if at all, to distribution and production. In this connection, Washington last weekend told the industry that the status of studio jobs which are not recognized as professional—professional jobs are exempt from the law—but which call for high ability and involve administrative functions, should be agreed upon between the producers and the unions. However, Pat Casey, labor representative for the producers, said Tuesday there would be no attempt by the producers at this time to meet with the unions pending further clarification of the law.

Distributor home offices reported Wednesday that few adjustments are necessary to conform to the Wages and Hours law, explaining that exchange employees generally receive more than the law's 25 cents per hour minimum and work less than the 44 per week maximum." The law does not apply to salesmen.

Motion picture exhibition will be considered by the wage-hour administration as exempt from the provisions of the act unless and until a different view is taken by the courts.

Pointing out that the administrator is without authority to make final decisions on such questions, Calvin Magruder, general counsel for the Administration, last week advised A. J. Brylawski, vice president of the MPTOA, that no effort would be made to bring exhibition under the act, but warned that, should the matter ever be carried to the courts,. the Administration's interpretation would have no legal standing.

Quotes Andrews

Responding to an official MPTOA inquiry by Mr. Brylawski as to the status of exhibition, Mr. Magruder quoted from a statement issued by Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, in which he said:

"The statute does not confer upon the administrator any general power to issue rulings including industries within the coverage of the act, or excluding them.

"Under the act, employments are included or excluded by the terms of the statute itself as interpreted by the courts, and not by the force of any administrative action. Interpretations announced by the administrator, except in certain specific instances where the statute directs the administrator to make various regulations, definitions and classifications, serve to indicate merely the construction of the law."

However, Mr. Magruder continued, with these reservations, "in our opinion it is very doubtful whether on the basis of the facts submitted orally by you to Mr. Poole, employees of motion picture theatres (not connected with the interstate distribution of films) can be regarded as engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce.

"Even though we were to assume the commerce fact, it is our opinion that such employes are exempt by the provisions of Section 13 (a) (2) as employees engaged in a retail or service establishment the greater part of whose selling or servicing is in intrastate commerce."

The decision that the status of studio jobs which are not recognized as professional but which call for high ability and involve administrative functions, should be agreed upon between the producers and the unions, was announced to representatives of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America by Administrator Elmer F. Andrews after a special meeting at Washington.

Refusing to make any attempt to rule on more than 600 types of studio jobs, such as gaffer, mixer, etc., submitted to him by a MPPDA-Hays group, the administrator pointed out that the easiest solution of the problem lay in an agreement with the unions.

Meeting with Victor H. Clarke, Maurice B. Benjamin, Ross R. Hastings, William S. Holman, T. Keith Glennan, Austin Keough and Pat Casey, Mr. Andrews explained that he would not in any event make a ruling merely on the testimony of one group, and expressed doubt whether he could make a binding decision in any event, in view of the provisions of the Act calling for settlement of such controversies by the courts.

The administrator suggested that the producers take up the question of classification with the unions in an effort to reach an agreement which would preclude later controversies, and informed the group that the best he could do would be to assist in negotiating a settlement on jobs on which the studios and unions could not agree by conferring with representatives of both sides.

The studio representatives brought with them to Washington a list of nearly 650 jobs which they sought to have classified as administrative.

Industry representatives who have so far conferred with wage-hour officials find the latter restricted to the expression of the most general views in advance of definite rulings by the courts. Because the law is so written as to apply to workers in establishments engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods which will move in interstate trade, the actual scope of the act can be defined only by the Supreme Court through a decision as to what constitutes interstate commerce.

While there is no question that distributors are engaged in interstate trade, producers are seen as brought under the law because they produce a commodity which is to move in interstate commerce.

Wage-hour officials took cognizance that the film group asked for rulings to apply until a motion picture committee is appointed by Administrator Andrews to make specific decisions on undecided points, explaining that the industry committees' authority will be confined to the single point of recommending the minimum wages which shall apply until the 40-cents-an-hour minimum becomes effective seven years hence. The committees will have no authority to deal with the question of hours or determine the classes of labor or industry to be exempted from the law, it was declared.

Questions

Coordination of questions on interpretation of the law was accomplished at a meeting at MPPDA headquarters of home office attorneys and a studio delegation. The problems submitted included all major phases of the application of the law to this industry, the types of employees who are exempt and those who come under the law, the branches of the industry which are exempt and branches included, and, in addition, specific questions on overtime pay and extended work shifts in production.

On the eve of the industry meeting, Administrator Andrews issued a statement that employers who fail to abide by the new act, pending rulings, are "leaving themselves open" to suits for double indemnity and to possible fines.

Copyright Meeting Called At Bar Association

The Committee for the Study of Copyright, a branch of the Committee for International Intelligence Cooperation, was to meet Friday at headquarters of the Bar Association in New York, to further discuss the copyright situation as it applies to films, radio and publications. The meeting will be a continuation of those started last July in an effort to bring together conflicting interests within the various industries and provide a basis for suggesting clarifying legislation.

Among those expected to attend were Edwin P. Kilroe, Twentieth Century-Fox counsel and chairman of the copyright committee of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America; Gabriel Hess, MPPDA counsel, and Robert Perkins, Warner Brothers general counsel.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

SOUND STILL THE BIG SUBJECT FOR INDUSTRY'S ENGINEERS, SMPE HEARS

Two Papers on Television Are Read to 250 at Detroit Meeting; Williford of National Carbon Is New President

by GEORGE SCHUTZ

in Detroit

Sound reasserted itself, ten years after its advent, as a predominant technical interest of the film industry, with well over a third of the 32 papers devoted to recording, related sound processing problems, and theatre acoustics, as the Society of Motion Picture Engineers met this week in Detroit for its 43rd semi-annual convention.

However, notable recognizance of a more recent development in the entertainment arts was shown by the reading of two papers on television.

The 1938 Fall convention, held from Monday through Wednesday at the Hotel Statler, was one of the best attended in the SMPE's history, with some 250 members, and others, present during the three days.

Biennial election of officers by mail in recent weeks, resulted in the election of E. Allan Williford, of National Carbon Company, as new president of the Society. Other officials elected were:

Major Nathan Levinson, Warners, executive vice-president; Arthur S. Dickinson, MPPDA, financial vice-president; John I. Crabtree, Eastman Kodak, editorial vice-president; William (Bill) Kunzman, National Carbon, convention vice-president; and J. Frank, Jr., National Theatre Supply, reelected secretary, and L. W. Davee, ERPI, reelected treasurer. Lloyd Jones continues as engineering vice president.

New board members are Max C. Batsel, RCA (reelected); Homer G. Tasker, Paramount; R. E. Farnham, General Electric; A. C. Hardy, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Herbert Griffin, International Projector—the last three also re-elected.

TO INVESTIGATE FILM PROGRAMS

The Utilities and Health Committee of the Common Council of Milwaukee has adopted a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five citizens to investigate local film programs. The resolution was presented by Alderman Samuel Soref.

The committee would check on the effect long programs have on the health of adults and children and the probable effect crime and sex pictures have on children.

The 1938 annual "Progress Award" of the society was presented to Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, head of Technicolor. K. S. Gibson of the United States Bureau of Standards, received the SMPE Journal Award for his paper on "Color Blindness and Anomalies of Vision."

In its citation of Dr. Kalmus, the society said:

"The confidence reposed in Technicolor by the important producers of the motion picture industry is perhaps best exemplified by Technicolor's stewardship of the negative of major productions, in which reside large investments, whose return is dependent upon the rapid and reliable production of high quality prints."

Predicting that within five years all features would be in color, Dr. Kalmus read a paper, "Technicolor Adventures in Cinemaland," in which he traced the development of color in motion pictures, at a technical session, prior to the banquet at which he received the progress award.

In a paper discussing sound's relation to theatre methods, C. C. Potwin, Electrical Research Products acoustics engineer, and Ben Schlanger, New York theatre architect, asserted the feasibility of dealing with acoustics entirely through architectural design. Declaring the adaptation of auditoriums to sound reception has been by methods of correction rather than construction, they proposed planning theatres from the beginning for suitable acoustics, with required control and introduction of necessary forms. The architectural methods, they pointed out, would naturally be confined to new houses, and to those of moderate capacity; in others corrective materials would be required.

Other papers on sound, highly technical, reported developments in studio and laboratory research.

Television images now produced are acceptable to the public, but the problem now is to find some agency to pay for television broadcasting, according to I. J. Kaar, of General Electric.

"The public has been educated to a high degree of excellence in radio programs, and it is doubtful if they will accept mediocre program material in television," he told the convention. "When television is born, it must be born full-fledged, as far as program material is concerned."

He added that "this will mean great expense, which will have to be borne by the pioneers." Mr. Kaar also stated that a 12-inch receiving tube, giving a picture seven-and-a-half by ten inches, is about the largest size practicable for a home radio cabinet.

Television has been made a subject for study by a new committee of the society.

Outstanding in the projection practice committee report was outright recommendation of first row vision in the theatre—a condition approaching the ideal, contrary to accepted practice, which in the past generally has tolerated so-called, "second-row vision"; that is, seeing the screen between heads immediately in front, instead of viewing it normally over heads.

The committee also recommended complete revision of projection room plans.

In a fairly comprehensive discussion of auditorium lighting, Francis M. Falge, theatre illumination specialist of General Electric, described tests which resulted in following conclusions:

1. Motion pictures viewed without any auditorium illumination, are definitely uncomfortable. A certain amount of general illumination is necessary to prevent screen glare.

2. Some illumination is necessary for the screen area. However, it is desirable to control light at the front of the auditorium, so that upper proscenium light and "spilled" light is kept at a prescribed minimum.

3. Concentration of light at front side walls is distracting; in general, side wall bracket fixtures emit a light too bright for comfortable vision.

4. "Downlighting," which has special virtues for the motion picture auditorium because of its directional character, needs to be supplemented by indirect lighting; and a combination of the two affords the best conditions.

Trendle Eulogizes Technicians

The convention officially opened Monday at a luncheon, with George W. Trendle, president of United Detroit Theatres, paying tribute to the technician in making motion pictures a "superior medium of entertainment." Other guest speakers were Mayor Reading of Detroit; Jamison Handy, president of Jam Handy Film Corporation, industrial films. F. J. Herman, of the Jam Handy Corporation, read a paper on 16 mm. industrial films.

Business sessions started immediately afterward, with H. J. Hasbrouck, of RCA, describing a new disc recording mechanism which, he said, will make rehearsing of orchestras and motion picture actors easier.

A new microphone which will act as a "telephoto lens for sound" was described by J. P. Livadary of Columbia Pictures and M. Rettinger, of RCA Photophone.

Witnessing a demonstration of scientific sound control by W. H. Offenhauser and J. J. Israel, the engineers envisioned dramatic situations whereby lions may be made to sound like canaries and canaries sound like lions.

Television again came before the convention when its counterparts in motion picture methods were discussed by G. L. Beers, E. W. Engstrom, and I. G. Maloff, of RCA.

It is now possible to take the "temperature" of color much as they "take the pulse" of sound by measuring its frequency, according to a paper by E. M. Lowry and K. S. Weaver, of Eastman Kodak. By doing this, the engineers asserted, they can control color values in projection and photography, eliminating distortion.

Photographing celestial bodies was compared, as a technical problem, with undersea photography by Professor R. R. McNath, of McNath-Hulbert Observatory at the University of Michigan.

New Type of Film

A new type of film with a base of regenerated cellulose sheetings, "Viscose Ozaphane," was the subject of a paper by A. M. Sookne and C. G. Weber, of the National Bureau of Standards, in Washington. The papers described results of tests to determine the product's stability.

Test specimens too large to be removed from certain archival films were required by former test methods evaluating motion picture film for permanent record, according to J. E. Gibson, and C. G. Weber, of the National Archives and National Bureau of Standards, in Washington, respectively. The two research men described semi-micro methods developed whereby specimens as small as 7 mg. in weight were removed to determine their acidity, viscosity, and residual hypo content.

C. W. Handley, chairman of the studio lighting committee, reported that while papers have been published, describing in detail various light sources and lamps, there has not been one paper which described them comprehensively. The committee, he declared, will correlate the published and unpublished data in such a form that it will be a reference for complete information on the subject.

$135,000,000 WORTH OF SHADOWS

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY will expend $135,000,000 this year to produce nothing but shadows – miraculous shadows cast upon 17,500 silver screens in every corner of our land. A "non-essential" product! Yet 88,000,000 people will demand it every week. To say nothing of the added millions in foreign lands.

Perishable! Yet some of these shadows will live always in millions of minds and hearts.

And it is worth noting that these fleeting shadows will provide a livelihood for 250,000 people . . . flood one city alone with an $85,000,000 payroll . . . and call upon 276 different arts, sciences and industries to supply needed goods and services.

Mighty shadows! They send camera crews to girdle the earth. They summon Shakespeare. They command armies, they cause the curtains of Time itself to roll back, they make men dream dreams.

Unpredictable shadows! One moment they rock you with laughter. Again, they wring tears. They cleanse your heart with tender emotion. They stiffen your courage, they comfort your fears, they befriend you.

For these picture-shadows provide the best entertainment the world has ever known.

Yet the motion picture means far more to America than mere entertainment.

It is a great teacher – giving our generation a broad understanding of the world and its peoples.

It is a great cultural influence – kindling new aspirations toward beauty and higher living standards.

And almost magically the American motion picture has become a world unifying force – leaping frontiers, leveling prejudices, drawing nations and races together in a common meeting place beyond the horizon of struggle and strife.

These are the intangible things that the American motion picture means to our country and to the world – greater by far than the values measured in dollars invested or the thousands of people employed.

The Sun

Here is concrete evidence of some of the goodwill accruing to the motion picture by its Greatest Year Campaign. Taking as its keynote the industry's national institutional campaign, the New York Sun is paying for a series of full page advertisements in other newspapers and in newspaper trade journals in encouragement of various businesses. The motion picture industry benefited from this full-page ad Tuesday. The Sun, with circulation in the upper and middle-class brackets, announces its campaign as intended to "create a broader understanding and appreciation of industrial America's contribution to the advancement of our civilization and our social and economic well-being."

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

18 Start in Week

New production took a big upward swing the last week in October. Eighteen pictures went into work. In the same period eleven pictures were finished.

At Paramount, where things have been rather slow for several weeks, five pictures were launched. Although work started on location, Cecil B. DeMille finally got "Union Pacific" underway. Featured players were Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Robert Preston, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, J. Carroll Naish and Sheila Bromley. Many more assignments will be made as production progresses. Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Ernest Cossart, Paul Harvey, Alan Mowbray and Sig Rumann will be seen in "Never Say Die." Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland will be reunited in "Parents on Probation," which also will present Joyce Matthews, Donald O'Connor, Billie Lee and Hartley Tufts. Harry Sherman started "Arizona Bracelets," a Hopalong Cassidy picture which will feature William Boyd, George Hayes and Russell Hayden. This picture also is on location. For Paramount, Dario Productions started "Radio Troubador," a Spanish production in which will be seen Tito Guizar, Robina Duarte, Tana Paul Ellis, Carlos Villarias, Murline Garralaga and the Mexican Trio.

Warners Launch Four

Four pictures were started at Warners. "Always Leave Them Laughing," a musical romance, will feature Dick Powell, Gail Page, Ronald Reagan and Anne Shirley. The cast for "Nancy Drew, Reporter," second in the series, will feature Bonita Granville, John Litel, Astrid Allwyn, Frankie Thomas and Florence Halop. Jeffrey Linn, Priscilla Lane, Fay Bainter, May Robson, Genevieve Tobin and Roland Young will be seen in "Yes, My Darling Daughter," while "The Adventures of Jane Arden," first of a new series, will present Rosella Towne, William Gargan, James Stephenson, Benny Rubin and Peggy Shannon.

Two productions were given the starting signal at RKO-Radio. More important is "The Castles," biographical screen story of the famous dancing team of Vernon and Irene Castle. It will star Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, with Walter Brennan and Lew Fields heading the support. For RKO-Radio release Sol Lesser started "Fisherman's Wharf." The cast includes Bobby Breen, Henry Armetta, Leo Carrillo and Rosina Galli.

Two pictures were started at Universal. Kent Taylor, Rochelle Hudson, Lucien Littlefield, Marion Martin, Ray Walker, Stanley Andrews, Wade Boteler and Frank Puglia are in the cast of "Plane 66." Bob Baker, Marjorie Bell and Carleton Young are the principals in "The Singing Sheriff."

"The Long Shot" was started by Fine Arts. Marsha Hunt, Gordon Jones, C. Henry Gordon, George E. Stone, Tom Kennedy, George Meeker, Frank Darien and Dorothy Fay are cast members.

THEY'RE ALL GOING IN FOR LOCATION TRIPS

When Twentieth Century-Fox sent the "Jesse James" company to Missouri, it marked the first major location trip the studio had authorized since the "Ramona" troupe went to the site of the story's occurrence. Even the spectacular shots of "In Old Chicago" and "Suez" were made on the lot.

Now practically all studios are going in for location trips in a way never attempted before. RKO-Radio quartered hundreds of players and technicians in California's High Sierras for "Gunga Din." Cecil B. DeMille has a small army about Cedar City, Utah, for "Union Pacific." Harry Sherman has his entire company in Arizona making "Arizona Bracelets." MGM has a crew in the Cascade Mountains for "Stand Up and Fight." Another company is at Lake Arrowhead on "Idiot's Delight." RKO-Radio has moved hundreds to the San Pedro waterfront for "Pacific Liner."

Walter Wanger has a technical staff at Kayenta, Ariz., in the Navajo Indian Reservation to prepare for the company that will make "Stage Coach."

Warner Brothers have several location trips planned for James Cagney's "Oklahoma Kid." Republic, Columbia, Grand National and Monogram all have current films on location from Big Pine to the Painted Desert.

MGM's contribution to the new work is "Honolulu," in which Eleanor Powell, Robert Young, Burns and Allen and Judith Allen will be featured.

The Three Mesquiteers

A Three Mesquiteers feature, "Red River Range," will present Lorna Grey with John Wayne, Max Terhune and Ray Corrigan in the lead roles.

With Anna Sten returning to the screen, Grand National started "Exiled." Alan Marshall, Paul Lukas, Walter Catlett, Jed Prouty, Etienne Girardot, Ruth Donnelly and Edouardo Cianelli also will be seen.

With E. B. Derr producing, Monogram started "I Am a Criminal." It will feature Craig Reynolds, John Carroll and Mary Kornman, feminine lead of the original "Our Gang."

20th-Fox Completes Five

Five of the completed pictures belong to 20th Century-Fox. Heading the list are two productions made in color, "Jesse James" and "Kentucky." In the story of mid-West America's now heroic bandit, will be seen Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Nancy Kelly, Randolph Scott, John Carradine, J. Edward Bromberg, Brian Donlevy, Henry Hull, Jan Darwell, Donald Meek, Ernest Whitman and Erville Alderson. Stars of the race track story are Loretta Young and Richard Greene, with Walter Brennan, Ralph Morgan, Willard Robinson, Douglas Dumbrille, James West and Charles Waldron heading the support. "Tailspin," a story of women aviators, will present Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Nancy Kelly, Joan Davis, Charles Farrell, Edward Noris, J. Anthony Hughes, Robert Lowery, Jane Wyman, John King and Joan Valerie. "Samson and the Ladies," comedy romance, will feature Lynn Bari, June Gale, Michael Whelan, Guinn Williams, Edward Brophy, John Miljan, Theodore von Eltz and Chester Clute. "Everybody's Baby," a "Jones Family" number, will feature Jed Prouty, Shirley Dean, Spring Byington, Russell Gleason, Ken Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts, Billy Mahan and Hattie McDaniel.

Two at Columbia

Two pictures were completed at Columbia. "Wreckage," a Larry Darmour production, will star Jack Holt with Dolores Costello, Addison Richards, Joseph Crehan, Donald Briggs, Pert Kelton, Holmes Herbert, Carol Wayne and Dorothy Granger. Fay Wray, Ralph Bellamy, Warren Hull, Regis Toomey, Walter Kingsford, Lorna Grey, Ann Doran, Paul Whitney, May Wallace, John Tyrrell and Dick Curtis will be seen in "International Spy."

A completed feature on the United Artist release program is David O. Selznick's "Made for Each Other." It will present Carole Lombard and James Stewart in the starring roles supported by Charles Coburn, Lucile Watson, Michey Rentschler, Donald Briggs, Ruth Weston, Harlan Briggs, Arthur Hoyt, Esther Dale and Nella Walker.

One at Republic

Republic finished "Texas Ranger," with Mary Hart, Raymond Hatton, J. Farrell McDonald, Purnell Pratt, Lane Chandler, Lee Bowell, Harry Woods and Bruce McFarlane will be seen.

Warners completed "Crime is a Racket." The cast includes Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Billy Halop, John Litel, Harvey Stephens, Henry Travers, Henry O'Neill, Harold Huber, Joseph Sawyer, Joseph Dowing, William Haade, George E. Stone and Eddie Anderson.

FROM COAST TO COAST THEY CALL

Naval Academy midshipmen cheer "Submarine Patrol" as only middies can! From Washington, Commander James Compton is quoted· "A wow of a picture. True in depicting experiences of splinter boats." While Commander G. B Kelly says: "A thrilling romantic story."

Mr. and Mrs. Don Ameche in famed Chinese Theatre forecourt. In far-off Washington Paul McGahan, Phila. Inquirer, says: "One of the most important pictures of the year." And Robert Henderson, Central Press Association, says: "Hits the mark! Worthwhile in every respect."

Richard Greene is happy. No wonder—for Hollywood Reporter says: "What good news this one is for exhibitors! A honey!" —and Film Daily cheers: "One of the best of new pix crop!"

Attorney-General and Mrs. Homer S. Cumming arrive for screening in nation's capital. Enthuse Mrs. Cummings: "The picture is first rate entertain ment. Nancy Kelly is fine." Mr. Cummings adds "A swell picture—very stirring."

Lieut. Maurice Aroff, Carolyn Ransom, Maj. Victor Bleasdale and Lieut. Comm. Herman Spitzel at Coast preview. Echoing audience cheers, M. P. Daily raves: "A natural!" L. A. Times says: "Comes through with flying colors!"

IT "THE BIG PARADE OF THE NAVY"!

The risk involved in showing a Navy picture to Navy men was bravely taken by 20th Century-Fox when previews were held for audiences including high-ranking Navy officers at Washington's Press Club, the Chinese Theatre in Hollywood and right in the beating heart of the Navy itself, the U. S. Naval Academy's Mahan Hall, Annapolis.

And 20th's faith was justified, when the Navy out-cheered stars, important Government officials, press representatives of national standing and others who called SUBMARINE PATROL "The Big Parade of the Navy."

SUBMARINE PATROL

Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, superintendent of U. S. Naval Academy, and staff discuss the picture. At the same time in Washington Commander Leland P. Lovette remarks: "A first rate picture. The service is proud to have been of help!"

Midshipmen and their dates hurry to Mahan Hall. While at Washington, Mrs. John J. Hughes, wife of commander of U. S. S. Panay, says: "Such a thrilling picture. The romantic interest was beautifully sustained."

Constance Bennett in time-honored Hollywood premiere custom of talking through mike. While 3,000 miles away Earl Godwin, President, White House Correspondents Assoc. says: "A smacking good picture!" and Constantine Brown, Wash. Star Syndicate cheers: "Kept me thoroughly engrossed!"

Jack Benny, one of hundreds of screen favorites at Hollywood premiere. Their reaction is reflected by Daily Variety: "A smash entry in the new b.o. upswing"—and by Boxoffice. "As loaded with boxoffice TNT as a depth bomb!"

Midshipmen serve as ushers at Annapolis. Their enthusiasm is equalled in Washington, where Earl Berkley, A. P., says: "Stands at the top of the list." Seconds George Durno, I.N.S.: "More than swell—it is great!"

FCC IS ABOUT READY TO START RADIO HEARINGS

Networks Up First in Monopoly Study; Expect Ban on "War Scare" Programs

The Federal Communications Commission is about ready for its hearings into charges of monopoly in radio broadcasting. Network representatives will be the first witnesses when the hearings get underway in Washington November 14th, Frank R. McNinch, chairman, said this week.

The national networks will be called first, in the order of the date of their establishment, to be followed by regional networks in similar order. The next group to be heard will be those of persons and organizations who have asked for the opportunity to testify, and the committee then will go into the question of management, contracts, leases, etc., and then will call broadcasters to testify to various phases of the situation. This will be followed by exploration of common ownership of stations, and the hearings will wind up with a study of transcription services.

"Indecent Show" Jurisdiction

A comprehensive study of the Communications Act of 1934, to determine the extent of the authority and jurisdiction of the commission to deal with lottery, obscene, profane and other undesirable programs, has been undertaken by the FCC, which weeks ago cited a number of stations.

Directing the law department to make the study, the commission also instructed the acting general counsel to confer with Department of Justice officials with a view to determining the question of jurisdiction and the possible establishment of appropriate procedure in the case of violations of the law.

Involving the question of censorship, the problem of dealing with undesirable programs has been one of the most difficult the commission has had to face. In such few cases as the commission has formally taken cognizance of complaints, it has "rebuked" the stations but avoided any overt action, as in the case of the Mae West broadcast some months ago.

In ordering a study of the question by its law department, the commission is seen as seeking a basis in the law for the establishment of definite principles of conduct for broadcasters without going to the length of "censoring" programs.

"War Scare" Programs

A definite ban on the broadcasting of "war scare" programs is expected to be imposed soon by the Government as a result of the presentation last Sunday of the H. G. Wells' story, "War of the Worlds," which, revamped to provide a local setting, panicked a large section of the country with its realistic announcements of an invasion from Mars.

A thorough study of the incident will be made by the FCC, which called for submission of a copy of the script and an electrical transcription of the feature within 13 hours of its presentation on the air.

Immediate action was taken by the commission when officials reaching their desks on Monday morning found that a large volume of protests had already arrived and that newspapers from one side of the country to the other had treated the program and its effects as major news.

Orson Welles, director of the Mercury theatre of the air which presented the program over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, changed the locale from England to New Jersey, and then broadcast the story with such thrilling verisimilitude as actually to create a panic in the area in which the invasion was supposed to center.

"Any broadcast that creates such general panic and fear as this one is reported to have done is, to say the least, regrettable," it was declared by Mr. McNinch, in announcing that an investigation would be undertaken.

"The widespread public reaction to this broadcast, as indicated by the press," he continued, "is another demonstration of the power and force of radio and points out again the serious public responsibility of those who are licensed to operate stations."

Other members of the commission agreed that the program was ill-advised, but there were indications that no penalties would be meted out, the general belief being that Mr. Welles and Columbia had made an honest effort to provide only a thrilling entertainment which, unfortunately, had "backfired."

It is generally expected, however, that an agreement will be reached or orders issued prohibiting any programs which might have the same effect upon listeners, as was the case in England a few years ago, when a somewhat similar "invasion" program was broadcast.

From the standpoint of the government, as a whole, the incident was both pleasing and displeasing. As a demonstration of the prompt reaction which might be expected in the event of an announcement of a real invasion, it was most heartening, but it held its implications of uncontrolled panic and, at the same time, demonstrated clearly that a flood of such programs, if permitted, would quickly dull the nerves of the people and might leave them unresponsive to a bona fide appeal in the event of a real emergency.

U.A. Revives Wells Film; Universal Releases "Mars"

Ben Washer, publicity agent at United Artists home office, late Tuesday sent telegrams to the press reading:

"Widespread listener panic last Sunday night, caused by Orson Welles' radio broadcast of an H. G. Wells story, has resulted in renewed interest in and newspaper references to the recent H. G. Wells (United Artists) film "Things to Come," and the picture will be reopened at Sam H. Harris theatre, West 42d street, New York, on Friday, November 4th.

"'Things to Come,' an Alexander Korda production, pictures the destruction of the world by war and pestilence and its rebirth in the year 2036. Starred in it are: Raymond Massey, now on Broadway in 'Abe Lincoln in Illinois'; Sir Cedric Hardwick, lately starred in the play, 'Shadow and Substance'; Ralph Richardson, who reached screen prominence in 'Divorce of Lady X,' and currently in the film 'Citadel.'

"'Things to Come' will play the Harris Theatre for an indefinite time. Other bookings are being arranged for New York and New Jersey and a nationwide revival is in prospect."

Universal also came out with announcements, tying in its product with the Martian "region of terror." The company released on Tuesday its feature length film, "Mars Attacks the World," with Buster Crabbe and Jean Rogers. It depicts an attempt by Martians to destroy the earth.

Bill Chambliss, in charge of trade, radio and syndicated publicity at Twentieth Century-Fox, has been appointed assistant to Marc Lachmann, national director of exploitation for the company.

Variety Clubs Give Banquets

Several hundred industry notables crowded the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh on Sunday night, for the tenth annual Variety Club banquet, honoring the outgoing chief barker, John J. McGreevey, who is succeeded by Ira Cohn.

A feature of the event was the adoption by the club of a 17-months-old orphan, the fourth it has adopted in its twelve year existence. The lad was named George Variety Barker, the Second.

Toastmaster Norman Frescott introduced speakers J. B. Sutherland, Pitt football coach; Jim Crowley, Fordham coach; Marshall Goldberg, Pitt football star; United States senators James J. Davis and Joseph Guffey; Mayor Scully of Pittsburgh; Judge Arthur James, Republican gubernatorial candidate; Babe Ruth; A. K. Rowswell; former governor Harold Hoffman of New Jersey.

Jay C. Flippen managed the show.

John H. Harris was general chairman.

Philadelphia Club Dinner

Led by former Mayor James ("Jimmy") Walker, 250 New Yorkers will journey to Philadelphia December 11, to join 850 local showmen in the fourth annual Philadelphia Variety Club dinner at the Bellevue Stratford. Mr. Walker will be toastmaster.

The newly elected chief barker, William J. Clark, president of the State Motor Truck Association, and treasurer of the Horlacher Delivery Service, will preside. Banquet vice-chairmen will be Dr. Leon Levy and Milton Rogasner. Heading committees are Ben Amsterdam, Ted Schlanger, Lou Krause, Dave Weshner, Earl Sweigert, E. M. Orowitz, Ben Fertel, William Clark, Al Blofson, Paul Greenhalgh, Dr. J. Alex Ritter.

At a recent meeting of the new board, which unanimously chose William Clark for chief barker, other officers elected were: Ted Schlanger, first assistant chief barker; William H. Lee, second assistant chief barker; Al Davis, secretary.

Earl Sweigert was reappointed chairman of membership; and Ben Fertel house chairman.

Detroit Event

Paying tribute to Governor Frank Murphy, the Detroit Variety Club sat down to a dinner Monday night, with many top ranking state officials present. Toastmaster was Edmund Shields, Butterfield circuit vice-president and Democratic National Committeeman.

Saturday is "United Artists Night," with UA district manager Jack Goldhar and branch manager Moe Dudelson as honored guests.

On November 7, the Detroit showmen honor veteran booking agent Gus Sun, on his fiftieth anniversary in the show business.

Hutchinson Completes South American Tour

by L. S. MARINHO

in Rio de Janeiro

Completing a tour of Twentieth Century-Fox offices in South America, Walter J. Hutchinson, director of foreign distribution, arrived in Brazil and after two weeks of the 20th Century-Fox convention sailed on inspection of the company's new offices in South Africa.

While in Brazil, Mr. Hutchinson conferred with Managing Director J. Carlo Bavetta and presided at the convention, to which all the managers and representatives of seven branches were invited. Mr. Hutchinson made a thorough study of South American conditions.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

The Great Man Votes

(RKO-Radio)

Comedy

For name value "The Great Man Votes" will offer John Barrymore, now appearing in "Hold That Coed"; young Miss Virginia Weidler, featured in "Men with Wings" and important in a dozen or more pictures, Peter Holden, a promising boy from the New York stage where his work in "On Borrowed Time" caused critics to acclaim him as one of the most talented discoveries of recent years, and Donald MacBride, who made his screen debut in "Room Service" and later was seen in "Annabel Takes a Tour." Supplementing this group will be Clarence Kolb, Katherine Alexander, Louis Alberni, J. M. Kerrigan, Brandon Tynan, Elizabeth Risdon, Benny Bartlett and Granville Bates.

Although it entails moments of pathos, the story is comedy in premise. It details how the two youngsters, Miss Weidler and Holden, are instrumental in making their shiftless, drink-loving father, played by Barrymore, a great man.

The story satirizes modern political wire pulling and ballyhoo. Set for release at a time when elections are being held all over the country, it should be wide open for topical exploitation.

Based on an original by Gordon Hillman, the screen play is by John Twist, who has done many recent stories for RKO-Radio. It is being directed by Garson Kanin, whose first picture was "A Man to Remember."

Release date: December 17, 1938.

His Exciting Night

(Universal)

Comedy

Charlie Ruggles has won rank as one of the screen's foremost laugh makers. Consequently when his name appears in the billing, the public and exhibitors take it for granted that the vehicle will have a comedy premise. From the comedy of his latest picture, "Service De Luxe," he moves to that of "His Exciting Night."

The story will illustrate the entertainment theory that a man's troubles, no matter how threatening they may be to him, are only fun for those who see him undergoing them. The comedy is based on a topical idea.

The production is based on an original story by Katherine Kavanaugh, magazine writer and creator of the "Jones Family" characters. It is being directed by Gus Meins, long with Hal Roach, and lately director of "The Higgins Family," "Ladies in Distress" and "Romance on the Run" for Republic.

The principal and supporting cast includes a number of wellknown screen names. The role of his bride will be occupied by Ona Munson, absent from pictures for some time but in New York plays for two or three years. The vamp will be played by Marion Martin, who was seen in "Youth Takes a Fling" and "Sinners in Paradise." Her husband will be Maxie Rosenbloom, now in "Submarine Patrol" and remembered for "Nothing Sacred" and "The Amazing Doctor Clitterhouse." Nemesis to the hero's romance is George Caine.

Release date: November 18, 1938.

Love Affair

(RKO-Radio)

Romance

"Love Affair" will tell a love story, the appeal directly to women. A man and woman meet aboard an ocean liner. The man, a fortune hunter, is en route America to marry a society girl. The woman, sketched as a lady of leisure, is practically engaged to a wealthy business man.

The picture will be Leo McCarey's first for RKO-Radio under his new producing-directing contract. Director of "The Awful Truth" and "Make Way for Tomorrow," he also made "The Milky Way" and "Ruggles of Red Gap." McCarey collaborated with Dore Schary on the original story and with Delmer Daves on the screenplay.

"Love Affair" will feature Irene Dunne, recently in "Joy of Living" and directed by McCarey in "The Awful Truth," also Charles Boyer, now in "Algiers" and before that in "Conquest" and "Garden of Allah" as well as "Tovarich." The supporting cast will include Lee Bowman, seen in many RKO-Radio productions, notably "Having Wonderful Time"; Maria Ouspenskaya, who was in "Dodsworth" and "Conquest," and Maurice Moscovich, presently in "Gateway" and earlier in McCarey's "Make Way for Tomorrow."

Release date: To be determined.

Little Tough Guys in Society

(Universal)

Comedy

While producer Max Golden is anticipating much adult interest in "Little Tough Guys in Society," he is planning that the feature will be of more than ordinary attractiveness to juveniles. Though grownup players are important in the general scheme of things, they will be of secondary importance to the several adolescent youths. In the plot, a gang of East Side alley kids, on the advice of a crazy psychiatrist, are brought into an aristocratic Long Island home to cure a rich boy of laziness.

The picture is based on an original screenplay by Edward Eliscu and Mortimer Offner, and is being directed by Erle Kenton.

On the juvenile side, the picture will feature Jackie Searl, Halley Chester and David Gorcey, who were in "Little Tough Guy," and Helen Parrish, who was in that picture as well as "Mad about Music." New recruits to the "Little Tough Guys" mob are Frankie Thomas, lately in "Boys Town" and "Nancy Drew, Detective," Harris Berger, Charles Duncan and William Benedict.

The adult roles will feature a trio of comedians. The psychiatrist will be Mischa Auer, recently in "You Can't Take It with You," "Service De Luxe" and "The Rage of Paris." The Mother of the spoiled boy (Jackie Searl), also seen in "Little Tough Guy," will be played by Mary Boland, now in "Artists and Models Abroad," while Edward Everett Horton will appear as the meticulous butler who nearly suffers nervous prostration when exposed to the antics of the alley boys.

Release date: November 25, 1938.

Ambush

(Paramount)

Melodrama

Despite the fact that Gladys Swarthout was lured to pictures from the operatic stage, and in her previous appearance for Paramount she has sung several classical and topical numbers, this time she will be cast in a straight melodramatic role. She is a secretary who holds the only clue to the whereabouts of a gang which has robbed a bank. Her ne'er-do-well brother has been involved and when she endeavors to cause him to surrender, she is made a hostage by the gang. Compelled to assist them in their getaway, she gets help from an aviator.

Lloyd Nolan, as the aviator, will be featured with Miss Swarthout, whose latest pictures were "Rose of the Rancho" and "Give Us This Night." The role of the brother will be played by William Henry, one of Paramount's most promising younger players. Ernest Truex, Broderick Crawford and Hartley Tufts will be seen as the bank bandits. Supporting players include William Frawley, Raymond Hatton, Polly Moran, John Hart, Rufe Davis, Robert Greigh, Richard Denning and George Melford. Inclusion of such players as Polly Moran and Davis indicates that there will be bits of comedy to contrast the melodramatic suspense.

"Ambush" is being directed by Kurt Neumann, whose latest pictures were "Touchdown Army" and "Wide Open Faces." He has had experience in handling melodramatic material, however, with "Alias Mary Down," "Big Cage," "Secret of the Blue Room" and "Information Kid," all of which were made by Universal.

Release date: January 20, 1939.

Out West with the Hardys

(MGM)

Domestic Comedy

Four previous productions: "A Family Affair," "You're Only Young Once," "Judge Hardy's Children" and "Love Finds Andy Hardy," have established a ready market for the "Judge Hardy" series. The familiar players, Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden and Ann Rutherford, again will be seen. Further name value is represented by Virginia Weidler, Ralph Morgan, Sara Haden, Don Castle, Gordon Jones and Nana Bryant.

George B. Seitz continues as director, from a screen play by Kay Van Riper, Agnes Christine Johnson and William Ludwig.

Comedy that precipitates many diverse involvements will be the essence of the show. The family moves out to the wide open spaces, but finds itself in the dazzling luxury of a dude-type layout. While the Judge tries to save the property for, secretly, an old school day flame, the daughter falls in love with a dogy cow-puncher, while son "Andy" runs into all sorts of trouble trying to demonstrate that he is a real he-man of the West. Miss Weidler will be seen as a pestiferous kid sister.

Story as well as production quality has improved successively.

Release date: December 30, 1938.

BRITISH EXHIBITORS FACE THREAT OF INCREASING MUNICIPAL CONTROL

There's Issue of Film Shows Outside Theatres, Increasing Tax on Sunday Openings and Newsreel Censorship

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

With the pushing into the background of internal trade problems, British exhibitors are facing the prospect, during the next few months of a threatening municipal onslaught on their operations and trading, as foreshadowed in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, with the return to active work of Britain's legislators and municipal administrators.

This month the Home Office Advisory Committee, known as the Stonehaven Committee and designed to examine and advise on administration of the crucial Films Act, goes into action. In many ways the Committee will be the midwife of the future, for upon its decisions any amendment of the Act, or local interpretation, inevitably will hinge.

Scheduled for early judgment are the questions of the control and regulation of "non-flam" film shows, censorship of newsreels, municipal control of management conditions, currently raised by the London County Council's seat price stipulations.

Definition of Powers

With an Advisory Committee whose very personnel has been kept comparatively secret, but composed of representatives of municipal bodies and local government officers of varying types and categories, it is difficult to forecast decisions. Nevertheless, that there will be action towards a sharper definition of "non-flam" powers is almost certain; these possibly will revolve around the inclusion of a standard definition.

An ominous indication of the strength and flavor of the forthcoming municipal onslaught is seen in the decision of the London County Council to call a nine county conference with the ultimate objective of coordinating and unifying administration of the Films Act in the London and Home Counties area. The nine counties are London, Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, Essex, Hertfordshire, Berkshire, Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire. It is the declared objective of the London County Council, not so much to get exclusive unanimity on all points as to provide an exchange of views whereby a certain uniformity of working and policy would be achieved. Periodical conferences would be held.

Fear Limitation Moves

Nevertheless, London and Home Counties exhibitors are an the qui vive against any move which may further limit their trading rights and powers. They see an indication in the action of the London County Council in circularizing its neighboring municipal bodies with memoranda on its actions and policies in regard, not only to the imposition of the seat price rule already discussed at length in these columns, but to the tax increased some time back to 12½ per cent on the Sunday opening of picture houses. The move has been accepted, if not definitely welcomed, by the counties appealed to, but it is significant that two bodies, Kent and Surrey, have decided not to take the London County Council lead, the one on the Sunday opening percentage and the other on the management rule.

UNIVERSAL'S PLACE IN ODEON MERGER

It is probable that the only assured American distribution which would be associated in the contemplated Odeon (Oscar Deutsch) merger with Gaumont British and General Theatres (Lord Portal-Arthur Rank-C. M. Woolf) is the Universal distribution.

If concluded, Universal would get a considerable amount for its end, possibly $1,000,000. J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the Universal board, is now in London looking after the company's interest but whether or not the big merger can have the Universal distribution has not been fully determined.

It is understood in London that the Ostrer brothers would relinquish control under the proposed merger and that under a new concentrated setup of several organizations Philip Hill, head of the investment house bearing his name, would be chairman, controlling the entire group.

Elsewhere, however, the London County Council virus has taken root. At Wrexham in Northumberland the matter of seat price regulation, particularly applicable to Saturday and Sunday prices, has been raised by the local Watch Committee. Although it is the judgment of the appropriate officials that the municipality has not the power to control such management details, the subject is being pursued by the magistrates and exhibitors jointly. Further south the same matter has been considered at Croydon. At Sheffield the municipality has imposed a ban on standing in all cinemas which may be opened from 1940 onwards, an imposition which is to be fought by local exhibitors.

Councils' Association Active

Another coordinating body, the County Councils Association, representative of all the County Councils, major licensing groups, is functioning actively these days, and recently, on the request of the Warwickshire County Council, decided to explore censorship of newsreels.

On the "non-flam" field some impetus is likely to be given by a forthcoming conference of licensing magistrates in the London area. The conference has been impelled by concern at the recent increase of "non-flam" shows on unlicensed premises, and is likely to be swayed by considerations of public safety. In the minds, too, will be the recent decision of the Birmingham Justices to institute immediate control of "non-flam" shows on premises licensed for music, dancing and other entertainment.

One of the most vexed matters is that of Sunday openings. A marked tendency is evident on the part of certain licensing authorities further to harass the exhibitor by increasing the tax to a degree which will make it uneconomic for cinemas to open on a Sunday. London some time back increased its tax demand to 12½ per cent of gross. In Birkenhead the authorities decided to raise the percentage to 20 per cent. Fearing a precedent for a wider field, exhibitors are agreeing among themselves not to open at all unless the figure is left at 10 per cent. Out of the remaining 80 per cent the exhibitor would have to pay 33 1/3 per cent for rentals, and from the rest wages, electricity charges and other overheads.

The Hampshire County Council would impose a 7½ per cent tax for opening on Good Fridays. The Liverpool Justices, while not permitting Sunday opening tolerate film shows by churches and chapels.

The season may see crucial increase of control over theatre operations.

Praise for American Films

Spectacular reconstruction of historic events in American films was praised extensively in the annual reports of the British Film Institute, published last week. Examples of the type of films selected as excellent included "The Texans," "Wells Fargo," and "Buccaneer." The institute also noted the manner in which important sociological problems were treated in "The Life of Emile Zola," "Dead End" and "Penitentiary."

The Institute reported that 690 films were preserved in the National Film Library and that 1,490 British schools were equipped with projectors.

Visit to U. S. Proposed

Two film trade parties may visit the New York World's Fair in 1939. Arthur Taylor who twice before has headed parties of British exhibitors to the United States, has been asked by various groups to organize a visit for next year. He is understood to be favorably disposed if support is promised.

Republic Sets Nov. 7-Dec. 17 For Grainger Sales Drive

At a meeting of district sales managers at the New York Athletic Club Monday, the period November 7th-December 17th was set for a Republic sales drive for James R. Grainger, president of the company.

Among those present at Monday's meeting were Mr. Grainger; H. J. Yates, vice-president of Consolidated Film Industries; Morris Goodman, vice-president in charge of Republic foreign sales; Grover Schaefer, vice-president and treasurer of Republic, and the following Republic district sales managers: Jack Bellman, eastern district; Harry LaVine, central; Heck Everett, southern; Max Roth, midwest, and Grover Parsons, western. Also present was Claire Hilgers, recently appointed special representative in the sales department.

WHITNEY STARTS WORLD FEDERATION TO COOPERATE ON FILMS' ARCHIVES

Signs Charter of International Federation for Preservation of Historical and Educational Pictures for Use by Members

John Hay (Jock) Whitney, president of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, and himself a motion picture producer through his participation in Selznick International Pictures, launched a new international organization this week to effect cooperation among the countries of the world in preserving historical and educational motion pictures, for the use of all in exchange, and to preserve the story of the motion picture as an art.

Mr. Whitney, who with the Rockefellers is financially interested in support of the Museum Library, and its motion picture historical researches, also is important in Technicolor.

Mr. Whitney signed the charter of the International Federation of Film Archives at a meeting held last Thursday at the Museum Library's own screening room in New York. At the meeting, a program of old films was shown, including an example of the work of Max Skladanowsky, an early Lumiere film, and newsreel shots of the funeral of Queen Victoria and an Easter parade on Fifth Avenue. Among those present, in addition to Mr. Whitney, were John E. Abbott, director of the Film Library; Terry Ramsaye, editor of MOTION PICTURE HERALD; Iris Barry, curator of the Library; Paul Gulick, former coordinator of Motion Picture's Greatest Year; Nelson Rockefeller, and A. Conger Goodyear. The old films are in new prints, variously produced by duping and re-photographing.

For International Cooperation

The basic purpose of the International Federation was explained as effecting closer cooperation between the film archives of the member countries in order that the greatest possible use may be made of the historical, educational and artistic films of all countries for non-commercial purposes. The charter members of the organization are the Cinematheque Francaise, Paris; the Reichsfilmarchiv, Berlin; the National Film Library, London, and the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, New York.

The need for such an organization to lessen duplication of effort and increase the results obtained individually had been recognized for some time by the directors of the four signatory institutions, it was said. The directors, Henri Langlois of the Cinematheque Francaise; Frank Hensel of the Reichsfilmarchiv; Miss Olwen Vaughan of the National Film Library, and John Abbott of the Museum had met repeatedly during the summer for the purpose of organizing. The first meeting took place in May at the opening of the Exhibition of Three Centuries of American Art given by the Museum of Modern Art at the invitation of the French Government at the Musee du Jeu de Paume, one section of which was devoted to the motion picture.

Common interests expressed at this first meeting led to a second, upon the occasion of the Gala Soiree of American Films selected by the Cinematheque Francaise from its own archives and given to a distinguished audience in honor of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library. A practical basis for mutual cooperation was reached, despite the difficulties arising through differences of national outlook and of varying legal and other circumstances obtaining in the four countries.

"This International Federation of Film Archives marks a great step forward in the task of preserving the important films of the world," said Mr. Abbott, first president of the Federation. "It is a significant recognition of the international importance of the film as a record of contemporary times. As a result of the close cooperation made possible between the member organizations, the work of preserving for posterity this valuable new type of social and historical document will be assured. It will make possible the easier exchange of books, printed matter, still photographs, scenarios and other material pertinent to the world film, as well as insuring the preservation of the films themselves.

Others Seek to Join

"Film archives of other than the four signatory countries have already indicated their desire to join us as members of the International Federation. In times like these it is most encouraging to realize that nations, through the medium of the film, can get together in a strong cooperative movement that is practical and entirely non-commercial, that has no political motivation, but has for its object the better understanding, in a most enjoyable fashion, of the lives, customs, art and achievements of the citizens of every country."

Central Offices in Paris

The central office of the Federation will be in the Palais Royal in Paris, in quarters made available by the French Government. It will act as a clearing house for the members and will also serve as a source of information for any similar organizations not yet members of the Federation. Georges Franju has been elected executive secretary in charge of the work of the central office, the cost of maintenance of which is divided evenly among the member organizations. Quarterly reports recording the non-commercial developments in the film will be sent in to the central office by each member organization, these reports to be translated and sent out in mimeographed form to each member. These reports also will include news and accounts of the new books on films which otherwise might never be seen outside of their own countries. The members of the Federation will meet annually in an international congress, the first to be in New York City in August, 1939.

Membership in the Federation will be open to national, semi-official and recognized private film archives, provided these organizations have for their prime object the conservation of films, the compilation of national and private film records and, if desired, the projection of films for a non-commercial purpose, either historic, pedagogic, or artistic. Film archive organizations will be admitted only when their own rules are similar to the strict regulations already in force among the four present member-organizations. Italy has made application for membership, which Mr. Abbott sees as a step towards fulfillment of the Federation's goal of eventually having qualified representation from every country.

WPA TO "GLORIFY" FILM INDUSTRY BY SHOWING IT AS "HORSE OPERA"

Theatre Project Play in Chicago Reported Changed to "Skeleton" Hunt When Companies Hesitate to Provide Material

by WILLIAM F. CROUCH
in Chicago

What was intended to be a graceful salute to the motion picture industry during its Golden Jubilee in 1939 may become just the opposite, according to authoritative reports in Chicago.

The WPA's Federal Theatre Project in Chicago had under consideration for some months the production of a stage revue on the order of a glorification of the film industry. This production, planned on an elaborate scale, was to be a sort of musical revue as well as historical drama depicting outstanding events in the history of motion pictures. Then something happened.

Written by Emmett Lavery and based on a play by John McGee, both Federal Theatre officials, the "extravaganza," temporarily titled "The Horse Opera," called for the use of a number of sequences from old-time motion pictures and a few new ones.

Sought Industry's Aid

It was the desire of the Government's WPA officials in charge of the production to get assistance from the film companies in obtaining the necessary films.

A script, in rough form, very rough in fact, according to Chicago film theatre officials, was submitted to the New York offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, for comment. The WPA authors, having created several scenes which burlesqued film executives and stars, felt that naturally some criticism would be voiced regarding these portions but they did not feel they were sufficiently serious to result in rejection of the entire idea. In fact, they felt it was a production that would avoid the intense exposé type of dramatization which has characterized many of the Federal Theatres "living newspaper" shows. Behind it all the WPA authors felt that produced according to their plans the play would be, in reality, a means of showing that "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment."

Instead of getting praise for what they felt, so they said, was an attempt to glorify the history of motion pictures, the federal theatre officials received what they considered a "slap in the face." Unnamed major company officials said they wanted no part of the idea and it is learned that some who read the script in the MPPDA office pointed out various phases they considered extremely harmful to the industry. With this adverse comment the Federal Theatre is going ahead with the idea anyway, but from a different viewpoint.

Turns to Hunt for "Skeletons"

Now, instead of a glorification of the industry, members of the theatre project's research staff are digging into the closets of the film business for skeletons which they plan to rattle on the stage next spring when the production is presented. The corporate structure, and monopolistic tendencies, if any are apparent as a result of the research, will be dramatized. The "insides" of the industry, censorship and similar developments will all be a part of it.

Emphasis will be placed on the effect investigators think pictures have on the youth of the nation and all available facts regarding the influence of gangster and crime pictures will be paraded before the footlights. What influence pictures have on public morals and opinion will also be a part of the production as now planned.

NEW YORK SEEKS TAX PENALTIES

Hearings are now under way on penalties assessed against United Artists for failure to pay New York City's two per cent sales tax from March 31, 1935, to June 15, 1937. Penalties aggregating more than $100,000 are being sought of major distributors by the city comptroller's office. Preliminary hearings involving penalties against Columbia, RKO, Paramount and Warner Brothers have already been held.

The film companies, acting on the assumption that a municipal emergency tax was not applicable to a business in interstate commerce, did not pay the tax from the time of its enactment until June 15, 1937. In the meantime, the state court of appeals held that the tax was collectible on films exhibited in theatres within the city limits. The distributors then paid the tax arrears but the city now is pressing for interest and penalties on those amounts.

Federal theatre officials in Chicago say they had preferred a stage attraction that would show the glory and romance of the film industry, but with the industry itself not willing to cooperate by getting them the necessary bits of film they have only the other choice as announced and have made extensive preparation to produce a show based upon the socalled "history" of motion pictures. That it will be favorable or unfavorable in the final results remains to be seen.

As for the Jubilee—

Reporting on the motion picture industry's own reputed plan to stage an elaborate celebration next year in observance of its "Golden Jubilee," Terry Ramsaye, in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, on September 24th, wrote:

"In the background of the councils of the 'Motion Picture's Greatest Year' campaign there is continued talk, tentative talk, of a project to make next year the occasion of a Golden Jubilee of the industry, a celebration, with the accent on the box office, at the public's expense, of the 'film's fiftieth year.'

"Official announcement is not to be had, despite the gossip, because the plan has not jelled yet. If, especially if, the current campaign should prove of particular success, it is probable that the Fiftieth Anniversary will become a big movement and in time a fact.

"Several reasons apply. This year's drive is 'a New York job,' a distribution project. Hollywood has been covertly not a little critical, making not too subtle, unofficial remarks about 'glamour' and 'showmanship' and in general yearning to paint the sky with some ornate preview colors and arc lights. Hollywood has been thinking about that Fiftieth Anniversary as a Hollywood job, a Production demonstration done in the inimitable super-de luxe orchids and ermine manner of the Dream City.

"Next year has been so tentativelv chosen as the Fiftieth Anniversary principally because Hollywood would like a Golden opportunity."

India Film Industry Mourns Late Leader

by G. A. THAKUR
in Karachi

An urgent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Society of India was held October 20th and the following condolence resolution was passed:

"This meeting of the Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Society of India places on record its deep sense of sorrow at the sudden and untimely death of their worthy president, the Honourable Sir Phiroze Sethna, and offers its sincere and heartfelt sympathy and condolence to Lady Sethna and other members of the family on their bereavement.

"This meeting further places on record the society's debt of gratitude to the late Sir Phiroze for the extraordinary services rendered by him to the Indian motion picture industry during his tenure as president for the years 1936-'38. Sir Phiroze's selfless efforts to advocate the cause of India's motion picture industry in various ways will ever be remembered with respect and by all his untimely death the industry has sustained an irreparable loss."

The Indian Motion Picture Producers Association has decided to sponsor a scheme to produce Indian newsreels. The biggest of stumbling blocks in the way of the project is the question of the language. This will be overcome to a degree, by superimposing titles in the various regional languages.

Lady Lithingow, wife of the Viceroy, has raised the Tuberculosis Fund in India, for which one Lac of Rupees ($44,444.44) has been given to New Theatres, Ltd., Calcutta, to make a picture, "Enemy," dealing with the most dreaded disease in India, tuberculosis. This amount is to be returned to the fund along with the first day box office returns of the picture from exhibitors all over India.

Cohn, McConville Sail for Europe

His annual trip declared necessary at the present time because of the rapidly changing European scene, Columbia Pictures vice-president Jack Cohn sailed Friday on the Queen Mary for England and the Continent. Also on board and for essentially the same reason were general foreign manager J. A. McConville and his assistant, Jack Segal.

Mr. Cohn will confer with Continental managers and also look over the situation at Denham Studios.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Traveling to Annapolis last weekend as the guest of Twentieth Century-Fox Film and the United States Naval Academy, for the exhibition of "Submarine Patrol," for the Midshipmen, we were taken by some "Middies" to the water's edge of Chesapeake Bay to see the last four boats of the socalled "Splinter Fleet," tied up for naval training of the cadets, probably never again to put out to sea. The little wooden sub-chasers came into being in 1917 when the United States Navy found it couldn't turn out enough multi-million-dollar destroyers to chase enemy U-Boats from the sea. Fox in "Submarine Patrol" treats of their exploits during the World War.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Navy, was said to have acted without authority when he ordered construction of the "splinter" boats, socalled because of their wooden construction, running only 110 feet and weighing but 50 tons, but capable of traveling, as they did, 15,000 to 50,000 miles. Under the urgency of the U-Boat menace, Roosevelt built the sub-chasers first and got the appropriations afterwards. In the early days of our participation in the war, some of them even rushed out off-shore without any armaments aboard, to chase invading U-Boats sighted along the Atlantic. Eventually they carried barrels of TNT on deck astern, a veritable powder keg, to toss into the ocean in attacking submarines.

The men who sailed them often couldn't cook or eat because on stormy seas the boats rolled like 10-cent store toys. They would pitch 140 degrees in seven seconds—and that's like trying to stand up while doing the loop-the-loop at Coney Island. And now Fox brings to life the last four boats of the fleet, the rest of them having long since been auctioned off to private citizens, many of them having eventually found their way into the rum fleets of prohibition.

Some months ago these columns reported on Paramount's signing "Sam" and "Sadie," two fleas, who interrupted filming on "Zaza," in which they had parts, while a young flea was born on the set. The fleas, trained ones from Hubert's Museum in New York both died later from the heat generated by the studio lights. Paramount now has engaged two others, both Alaska fleas—they say—who have been snowblinded and are therefore able to withstand the studio kleig lights without being affected. The cast credits adorning the main title of "Zaza," therefore, will, when released, carry the names of "Warp" and "Woof," succeeding "Sam" and "Sadie," who gave their all to Hollywood for their art.

A small neighborhood theatre in Boston has a system of bell ringing from the manager's office to the projection booth. If the bell rings once, it means that the film on the screen needs to be better framed. If it rings twice, it means either that the projectionist is wanted on the telephone or that the house is on fire.

Hudson Strode, in "South by Thunderbird" (Random House), tells how nowhere do theatre managers cater so to the taste of an audience as in Bogota, Colombia, in South America, where the patrons don't leave if displeased—they stay and demand something better, and the management always has to have extra films to substitute. If a picture is slow, the patrons begin to stamp their feet; unless the story picks up quickly the stamping becomes menacing and the audience get out their matchboxes. They stick the ends of the matches under their fingernails, light them and hold up their hands. Soon the darkened theatre is ablaze with little five-branched candelabra. If the management does not soon change the picture, the audience begins to split the chair bottoms into kindling wood.

No loser of good electioneering opportunities is Judge Arthur H. James, now campaigning in Pennsylvania's Gubernatorial battle.

While he was speaking in the Sayre theatre, at Sayre, Pa., the other evening, one of the members of the audience fell asleep. The sleeper was a big, important looking ward worker and he was sitting within a few feet of Judge James. To make matters worse, the sleeper started to snore and the longer he slept the louder he snored. Someone then shouted "Don't pay any attention to him, Mr. James. He's just another Democrat." Quick as a flash Judge James replied, "No. He's no Democrat. He's a very good Republication. Why he's so satisfied and confident that I'm going to be the next Governor, that he doesn't think it necessary to do anything but sleep until election day."

Hugh Herbert, called Hollywood "Screwball" No. 1, has been around Broadway, on a vacation, regaling the lads and lassies with stories that are heaps of fun. On one ocasion, so he told Frederick James Smith, he was appearing in a scene in a comedy in which he appeared to be walking up to a newsstand in Times Square to buy a paper. The New York scenes were authentic, having been filmed in Manhattan without Herbert. Later, by trick process shots, they were projected on a screen in Hollywood and Herbert walked before the gauze with its scenes of Manhattan and was made to appear in the finished picture as if he had actually been on the spot.

When Herbert's folks, living in New York, saw the film they were annoyed. So! Hugh had been in town and hadn't even phoned! Herbert never has been able to explain the thing. The Brooklyn folks merely hiss, "Process shots—baloney! Couldn't spare a nickel for a phone call! High hat!"

Bob Burns thinks the most kindhearted and tactful bunch he ever saw in Hollywood are the motion picture directors. "They've got a way of turning you down for a part and making you feel good about it," says Burns. "They'll tell a man he's too handsome for a part and they'll tell a woman she's too young."

Like the director who was out hunting and mistook a friend for a rabbit and shot him. The director rushed over and took his friend in his arms and said, "I'm terribly sorry—I mistook you for a noble stag or a bull moose."

The "Baby Tarzan," of course, "must have super-strength, be able to perform acrobatic swimming feats and give the famed Tarzan yell." Yi, Ho, Seadler!

Maybe the big fuss over the industry's big million-dollar "Movies' Greatest Year" campaign has nothing to do with it, but the pear industry has appropriated $55,000 to make America pear-conscious, Wilson and Company are out to make American housewives "Certified Tender Made Deviled Ham" conscious, the utilities are spending $400,000 to promote gas ranges, dairy products and lumber are in similar promotional schemes, a "National Dog Week" and "National Noodle Week" are two others, and even the playing card manufacturers have adopted the promotional idea for and in behalf of the feeling one gets with a full house, aces up.

RKO Pathe production personnel were assembled in the studio production room out Hollywood way to see the rushes on "Dude Ranch," in which there are some beautiful scenic shots of roving mountains and yawning canyons. After many "ahs" (advt.) as to the beauty of the scenes, Joe Johnston, script writer, asked his colleagues, "Do you mind if I holler to see if there's an echo?"

Everybody laughed at the quip until Joe did holler and there was a bounding echo.

General confusion reigned thereafter. They never discovered that some member of the sound department was in the recording booth nearby sending the answers through two-way loudspeakers.

The Great Waltz

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Musical Romance

Johann Strauss music, masterpiece waltzes and marches are the feature entertainment and showmanship qualities in "The Great Waltz."

There are other values that establish the film as a fine audience attraction, but wherever beautiful music is understood and appreciated, exploitation of the Strauss compositions should take precedence over every other value.

Magnificently staged, picturesque and artistically wrought backgrounds minutely reflect the splendor and glory of Vienna during the time of Strauss' mature life. As Julien Duvivier's direction follows Continental technique, the auditors are treated to spectacle seldom seen on the screen.

For names the picture presents Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, and the noted European opera singer Miliza Korjus as principals. Their work is supplemented by that of Hugh Herbert, Lionel Atwill, Kurt Bois, Leonid Kinskey, Herman Bing, Alma Kruger, Henry Hull and Christian Rub. Whether known or not to picture audiences, Miss Korjus should make a memorable impression. Her singing is probably the most cultured heard in films.

Grandeur which keynotes the settings also influences the arrangements and orchestrations of the composer's works, in which his most famous efforts, including "Artists Life," "Polka," "Tales from Vienna Woods," "The Blue Danube" and many others are strikingly presented by symphonic orchestra.

A career story, "The Great Waltz" not only details the circumstances and conditions which inspired Strauss' great music but relates a heart-warming love story. Married to Poldi Vogelhuber, Strauss soon finds his own life almost hopelessly tangled in that of operatic star Carla Donner. Loving Poldi, his infatuation for Carla carries him to great heights. The price paid for this is Poldi's sacrifice of her own happiness. While a vocal group presents his famous songs, the dramatic content builds to its tensest moment, at the time of the greatest triumph of Strauss and Carla. Then while his broken hearted wife would take herself out of her husband's life, Carla, the other and more worldly-wise woman, realizing the tragedy such a separation would provoke, exiles herself. Strauss' tribute to her memory is "The Blue Danube" waltz.

Half a century later, Poldi is at Johann's side, when Austria's emperor Franz Josef honors her husband as the country's greatest citizen.

Exceptionally valuable screen merchandise, "The Great Waltz" is not a highbrow screen offering to which only the intelligentsia may be bidden. Packed to the hilt, not only in musical content but in theme, with those simple down-to-earth elements that have wide appeal, it is essentially a mass attraction. Generations still extant thrilled romantically to the Strauss waltzes in earlier years. As the film awakens memories of the long ago for them, it also projects a new significance to old music upon the minds of moderns.

Demanding application of the best exploitation ability of any showman, "The Great Waltz" promises return grosses commensurate with the selling effort.

Previewed at the Village Theatre, Westwood, Cal., the audience, aware that one of the industry's most important pictures was to be shown, was made up half of members of the film colony and half of everyday patronage. Both were enthusiastic.—GUS MCCARTHY.

The Young in Heart

(United Artists-Selznick)

Sentimental Comedy

"Young in Heart" comes as a gentle breeze in the hurricane of hurly burly comedies that have roared across the screens of late. So different, so novel that the fineness of its human, humorous amusement is likely to go unappreciated unless showmen resort to aggressive business building.

There is plenty of material and tools with which to work. David O. Selznick's reputation for turning out worthy entertainment has long been established. Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Roland Young, Billy Burke and Henry Stephenson are outstanding screen names. Two newcomers, old stage favorite Minnie Dupree and young Richard Carlson, also from the stage, make impressive screen debuts. Several important personalities are scattered about in the minor support roles.

As the Selznick production reputation is sound, so is the literary fame of I. A. R. Wylie. The story, "The Gay Banditti," on which the production is based, is one of the writer's best known bits of comedy fiction. In translating the piece to the screen, the screen play by Paul Osborn and the adaptation by Charles Bennett carefully preserves the Continental spirit which is part of all Wylie's writings. In the way Richard Wallace directed, the picture has the feel and appearance of an intelligently constructed stage play.

The "Carleton" family, parents "Anthony" and "Marmy," children "George-Anne" and "Richard," live by their wits. Gentle grafters, they hate work and are never particular about moral involvements. They meet an elderly woman, "Ellen Fortune," who has unexpectedly come into riches.

Previewed at the Village Theatre, Westwood, Cal. The audience as a whole didn't get the swing of the story at first. The change from what they have been getting seemed to puzzle the crowd. Some did not get the picture at all. But enough of them did to indicate that if regular audiences are properly prepared for what is to be served, the novelty of "Young in Heart," which really is a return to earlier entertainment principles, will be understood.

Shirley Temple Picture

This Shirley Temple matter is getting out of hand. All the rules say she's overdue for a flop. It's on the calendar and in the hour glass that she can't keep up forever the process of piling one phenomenal performance upon another. There have been signs, in one or two of her last half dozen films, that old age was getting in its deadly work, freezing her talent. This film proves the signs mean nothing. Here is the original Shirley Temple, in the original Shirley Temple kind of picture, and a better one of its kind than any of her earlier works save possibly "Little Miss Marker," which this one resembles least of all. This is as near an approach to perfect box office as it is reasonable for any showman or customer to expect to lay eye upon.

Miss Temple has a nice collection of competent performers in her supporting cast this time, but it's Miss Temple's performance that makes the picture. It's a more adult performance, histrionically speaking, than more than a few of the best actors in the business know how to give. And she isn't given a monopoly of the lens this time, either, but takes her breaks, or makes them, like a trouper of five times her years. Further, she does this as a younger young lady than she's been made to seem in her last two or three starts, yet manages, also, to achieve a new kind of triumph as heroine of a very juvenile and extraordinarily authentic romance. This adds up to equal artistry of a caliber not previously charged up to even this gentle genius.

Miss Temple is seen here as the motherless daughter of a young man who used to build buildings but doesn't now, and lives in the basement of the New York skyscraper he used to live atop of. Charles Farrell plays her father in a manner to suggest he's been too long overlooked by producers in need of good leading men, and he's tall enough (remember) to make Shirley seem shorter than a tape measure would indicate. Bill Robinson is back again as the doorman, her friend and dancing partner, Bert Lahr is present as a millionaire's chauffeur in gawky love with Joan Davis, Shirley's former maid, now employed as kennel mistress. Franklin Pangborn is even better than usual as the building manager, having more than usual footage to work out in, and Claude Gillingwater is the millionaire who took over the penthouse when Shirley and her father moved into the cellar. Amanda Duff, a newcomer about whom little has been said in the public prints but more will be, is a young woman Shirley's father is to marry after the fadeout.

What goes on between these folk in this setting under these circumstances is about, but not quite, what anyone familiar with the Temple library of pictures would expect to go on. She has two numbers with Bill Robinson, Mr. Lahr and Miss Davis joining them in one of them, and the matchless Mr. Robinson has a tap dance sequence of his own. The second of the Temple-Robinson numbers, spotted near the close, is an imaginative affair staged with trick scenery, moving sidewalk, prop rain, lightning, and so on, somewhat less lavish than the "Alice in Wonderland" number thrown into her last picture but as effective or more so because not forced to carry the whole weight of the production.

For sticking to first principles and thus preserving intact the Temple tradition, director Irving Cummings and associate producer David Hempstead deserve the thanks of several millions of picture fans, and impliedly, some thousands of exhibitors. The screen play is the work of expert J. P. McEvoy in collaboration with Ethel Hill and Darrell Ware, and derives from a story credited to Paul Gerard Smith.

Blondie

(Columbia)

Comedy

The entertainment provided by "Blondie" is all-family comedy that kept a preview audience in spasms of laughter.

"Blondie" is Columbia's initial effort in the field of "family series" production. There is no doubt that the "Jones" and "Judge Hardy" series have created a wide market for similar subjects. In amusement quality, "Blondie" compares favorably with the standards established by the aforementioned pictures, and has exploitation possibilities all its own. Based on the comic cartoon strip created by Chic Young, which is published in hundreds of newspapers, the characters "Blondie," "Dagwood" and "Baby Dumpling," their friends and relatives are well known to millions. Thus there not only is a popular familiarity, but opportunity is made for contacts with the papers publishing the strips.

The picture features Arthur Lake, who, although not very prominent of late years, was quite an important actor several seasons ago; Penny Singleton, Larry Sims, a cute and accomplished tot, Gene Lockhart and Jonathan Hale.

The story, cleverly devised by Richard Flournoy and smartly directed by Frank R. Strayer, concerns itself with the embarrassing troubles that befall "Dagwood" at home and in his office. He's in wrong with boss "Dithers" because he has indorsed a note for a girl who has failed to pay it. He's in wrong with "Blondie" because she thinks he is playing around with a mysterious "Elsie."

The story follows an appealing formula. Generally it is hilariously comic, but it has other moments as black clouds of despair threaten to smother the little family. And there is excitement too. It reaches back into the bag of tricks for many elements of the old Christie family comedies as well as those in which Sidney Drew was starred.

Previewed in Pantages Theatre, Hollywood. The Friday night audience which had been watching "You Can't Take It With You" and consequently was in the mood for domestic comedy, placed its mark of approval on Blondie. —G. M.

The Storm

(Universal)

Sea Melodrama

Action, excitement and spectacle are the principal ingredients of this stormy deep-sea melodrama. Some rough and rugged comedy is included, as is a love story. These facts, plus the name value represented by Charles Bickford, Barton MacLane, Preston Foster, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Andy Devine and Frank Jenks, together with hints that "The Storm" is wild and woolly entertainment, constitute the exploitation assets.

The general background is the Seven Seas. An iceberg crash wrecks a freighter; an explosion destroys a tanker, a surgical operation is directed by radio and terrifying storms rage. All this action spectacle is keyed to sensationalism.

"Bob Roberts" is a rough, tough radio operator, a fighter and a romancing sailor who always can find a sweetheart in any port. That his younger brother may not follow in his footsteps, he is educating "Jim" in an agricultural college. But after pal "Stacey" has been left to die aboard a ship that hit an iceberg, "Bob," who has sworn vengeance on "Captain Cogswell," discovers that "Jim" is determined to become a radio operator. Passing up a land job, "Bob" becomes chief operator on a ship on which "Jim" is second and on which "Peggy" ("Jim's" girl) is nurse.

During a storm, "Jim" is stricken with appendicitis. "Cogswell" refuses to make port. Via radio telephone, "Bob" communicates with a hospital and as he relays a doctor's instructions, "Peggy" accomplishes the life saving surgery. Repentent for mistaking the girl's character, "Bob" squares all accounts with "Cogswell" in a hectic melee during a New Year celebration.

"The Storm" is pointed to entertain those patrons who prefer a lot of wild and frantic excitement, and they demonstrated their approval at the preview. Naturally the more sophisticated, those to whom the old 10, 20 and 30-cent melodrama is old-fashioned, seemed to be of the mind that "The Storm" was pretty lurid.—G. M.

War Picture

What with war on the front pages, in the ether and sprinkled widely over several sections of the globe, there would appear little reason for showmen to mask this blunt admission that the United States took part in a major conflict some 20 years ago and the so known "splinter fleet" took a major part in the winning thereof. Whatever box office poison there may have been in the term "war picture" a while back probably is gone with the winds that blew across Munich. Anyway, this is a war picture, an unusual kind of one, big in the Zanuck sense of the word, and dependent for its power upon the martial urge, upon patriotism, courage and bravery rather than upon the slight romantic story threaded through it.

Ray Milholland's book, on which is based the screen play by Rian James, Darrell Ware and Jack Yellen, drew public attention sharply to the operation of the wooden submarine chasers this nation threw into the 1917 conflict at a time when newspapers were too preoccupied with accounts of what the land and air forces were doing. The story is, therefore, a deal more fresh than most film material emanating from the great war.

The picture picks up one of these boats, docked at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, follows it across sea, witnesses the mid-ocean sinking of an enemy submarine, accompanies it into a foreign port, out again to the hideout of an especially sinister enemy sub, which it destroys, then back to the friendly port and away, at picture's end, to new duty. The story of the boat, the dangers it survives, the manner of its victories and the effect of all this upon its crew make thrilling entertainment.

A large and reasonably nameful cast perform the acting chores adequately. Top billing is given Richard Greene, a young man reported gaining in popularity, and Nancy Kelly, a young woman who's been getting a lot of publicity in the syndicated columns and whose appearance here, therefore, may bring in quite a number of persons interested in seeing newcomers they've read about. As the appended listing reveals, there are many dependables in the cast.

John Ford, whose direction of pictures with martial aspect, is high among the reliable factors of film production, does his usual fine job with the mainly masculine cast involved here. He keeps things moving steadily, the comic as well as the serious, and he is at his best in his handling of the climax wherein the boat sets out with a volunteer crew, duly warned, to find and destroy an enemy submarine hidden in a densely mined recess. This episode is among the best of its kind ever filmed.

Previewed at the Chinese theatre, Hollywood, where the audience reception was such as to argue that war pictures are in again.—W. R. W.

Produced and distributed by Twentieth Century-Fox. Darryl Zanuck in charge of production. Associate producer, Gene Markey. Directed by John Ford. Screen play by Rian James, Darrell Ware and Jack Yellen. Book by Ray Milholland. Photographs by Arthur Miller. Film editor, Robert Simpson. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4503. Release date, November 25, 1938. Running time, when seen in Hollywood, 95 minutes. General audience classification.

Flight into Darkness

(Frank Kassler)

War versus Eternal Triangle

English speaking audiences already have seen the American version of this Gallic rendition of the triangle theme in "The Woman I Love," produced by RKO Radio back in 1937. In point of time and making, the French edition preceded its Anglicized counterpart. Roles which were played by Paul Muni, Miriam Hopkins and Louis Hayward in the Hollywood edition are assumed in the European importation by Charles Vanel, Annabella, and Jean-Pierre Aumont. Anatole Litvak, director of the memorable "Mayerling" and, on the West Coast, "Tovarich," "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" and "The Sisters," did the earlier treatment and its successor.

The story is taken from the novel, "L'Equipage," by Joseph Kessel, and details a marital mixup concerning a lovely woman, her elderly and not so picturesque spouse and the very young and appealing lover. Set against war back grounds of death and destruction, the numerical complication is mathematically solved by the death of the lover in an air encounter.

Despite the polished team playing of the three principals and the pictorial beauty of the camera work, the story is hampered by the thinness of the theme. The unfaithful wife and her ardent lover are shown, in the foreign version, to be entirely blameless and sympathetic characters.

Seen at an afternoon showing at the Belmont Theatre in New York City where a negative audience gave an equally negative reaction.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Produced by Pathe-Natan. Released in the United States by Frank Kassler. Director, Anatole Litvak. Cameraman, Thirard. From the novel "L'Equipage" by Joseph Kessel. Screen adaptation, Anatole Litvak and Joseph Kessel. Edited and English title, Herman G. Weinberg. Seen without a P.C.A. number. Running time, 81 minutes. Release date, October 15, 1938. Lawless Valley

Western

"Lawless Valley" is the second of a new series of George O'Brien westerns. The pace of plot incidents is in step with those of its predecessors.

Paroled from prison after a sentence for stage coach robbery, "Larry" (O'Brien) returns to his home to engage in a fight with the corrupt influences of the country who were responsible for framing him and murdering his father.

Fred Kohler, Sr., and Fred Kohler, Jr., had the roles of the menaces in their first and last film together. The picture was previewed the day the elder Kohler died.

Opposite O'Brien is Kay Sutton. Supporting are Walter Miller, Lew Kelly, George MacQuarrie, Earle Hodgins, Chill Wills, Dot Farley and "The Four Tunes," a Negro singing troupe.

Oliver Drake wrote the screen play from a story by W. C. Tuttle. The producer-director combination of Bert Gilroy and David Howard is retained.

Previewed in a studio projection room.—V. K.

Produced and distributed by RKO. Produced by Bert Gilroy. Directed by David Howard. Screen play by Oliver Drake. Story by W. C. Tuttle. Production executive, Lee Marcus. Musical director, Roy Webb. Photographed by Harry Wald. Art director, Van Nest Polglase. Associate, Lucius Croxton. Edited by Frederic Knudtson. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4730. Running time, 60 minutes. Illegal Traffic

(Paramount)

Crime Melodrama

With Louis King directing and J. Carroll Naish starring as the villain, Paramount has achieved a fast-moving and realistic action picture.

"Lewis Zomar," racketeering executive of immigrant background, is the head of a "transportation" company, transporting criminals out of the country. His organization functions perfectly until the police start closing in. His most trusted man, "Bent Martin" (Robert Preston), is actually a police officer. "Martin" allows Zomar's sweetheart "Marie" (Judith Barrett) to learn he is an officer. "Zomar" takes personal charge of the next job, so that he can supervise a prison break and personally kill a "stool pigeon."

"Martin's" plan boomerangs, and "Zomar" makes him his prisoner. "Martin," wounded, flies a plane, locates the getaway car, radios the information to police cars and bombs "Zomar's" auto.

Previewed in New York projection room—FLOYD E. STONE.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Directed by Louis King. Original story and screenplay by Robert Yost, Lewis Foster, and Stuart Anthony. Assistant director, Harry Scott. Sound mixer, Harold Lewis. Art directors, Hans Dreier, and John Goodman. Photographed by Henry Sharpe, A.S.C. Release date, November 4, 1938. Running time when previewed, 67 minutes. General audience classification.

The March of Time, No. 3, Vol. 5

(RKO Radio)

Democracy on the Defensive

So important and timely is the material documented in its latest edition that the makers of the March of Time have allotted the entire two reel running time to a single subject, the two billion dollar Maginot line of French border defense, which was treated in a five page picture layout by "Life," issue of October 3. Through the cooperation of the French War Ministry, the March of Time's European camera crew have photographed in detail the 125-mile frontier fortress, 200 feet underground, which is a marvel of modern warfare preparation. Interesting are behind-the-scenes shots of the troops. Correlated are sequences on nationalization of munition manufacture and the universal compulsory military training. At an evening performance at the Music Hall in New York, the gathering emphatically applauded.—Running time, two reels.

Raising Canines

(Paramount)

Puppy Pedagogy

Just as important as the rearing of human, two-legged offspring is the proper educative procedure to follow in the teaching of the family four-footed pet. Dog owners and dog lovers should enjoy this instructional brevity with its parade of guinea pig pups and wise words on puppy psychology. The curriculum runs from elementary points of canine conduct to the more advanced course of trick training. —Running time, 10 minutes.

The Spider's Web

(Columbia)

Spun Out Serial

Another colossal character, in the descriptive sobriquet of the "Spider," is drawn in this fifteen episodes chapter portrait, to be hung in the gallery of super human serial heroes along with the picture portraits of Dick Tracy, the Lone Ranger, Buck Rogers and Flash Gordon. The enterprising hero of the story from the magazine fables of the same name is combating almost single handedly the devilish machinations of a band of hooded hoodlums under "The Octopus." Warren Hull in the triple threat role to the underworld reveals himself as a talented straight actor as well as a capable character player. Iris Meredith is a pretty romantic companion for Hull's escapades. Juveniles will relish each installment of the heroic feats of the "Spider," but adults may not unanimously accept the devices by which the hero is rescued from the several death traps. Running time, first chapter, 28 minutes, following episodes 19 minutes each.

Midsummer in Sweden

(Sanders Films)

Travelogue

This travelogue is concerned chiefly with the beautiful countryside of Sweden, the quaint costumes of the people and their social activities. In midsummer they leave the villages and gather into populous little cities to revive the custom of raising the May-pole, which is covered with their blue and yellow national colors and decked with garlands.—Running time, 10 minutes.

FLIGHT INTO NOWHERE: Jack Holt, Jacqueline Wells—Not as good as the other Jack Holt shows. Business fair. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 14-15.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson—Excitement and suspense, ably directed, and very well pleased melodrama.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie, Barbara O'Neil, John Beal—Was this a picture? I am asking you. You cannot go wrong in any way no matter how strong you bill this one. There ought to be a law compelling everyone to see a picture of this type. Do them all good and they will all enjoy it at that. We had one of the best preview turnouts in many a moon on this and all comments were ok.—Ed Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie, Barbara O'Neil, John Beal—Very exciting and interesting. Worth while playing on a good date. We played it Bank Night but would easily have passed O. K. on Sunday. Play it. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. L. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LAW OF THE PLAINS: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—Next to Hopalong, this boy is next. In my opinion, when they added music to these, they spoiled them. Running time, 60 minutes. Played September 30-October 1.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LITTLE MISS ROUGHNECK: Edith Fellows, Leo Carrillo—A few like this and Miss Fellows is done with our audiences. Carrillo gave his usual good performance but we feel that Miss Fellows' singing caused the walkouts. Running time, 64 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

THERE'S ALWAYS A WOMAN: Joan Blondell, Melvyn Douglas, Mary Astor, Frances Drake—This is one of the best comedy hits of the year. My patrons went out of their way to tell me how they enjoyed it! Running time, 80 minutes. Played September 28-29.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore—We do not like to criticize Mr. Capra but there seems to be something lacking somewhere in this picture. It's too long, scenes seem to be too drawn out, dramatic scenes are not what they should be. We've seen Stewart and Miss Arthur do much better acting in the past. Barrymore fine.—Leon C. Bolduc,, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins—An ace high piece of entertainment. Should please any audience immensely. It drew moderately. Just why Robinson fails to go over big is beyond me, for his shows are all swell. Played October 12-13.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins—Many were disappointed in Robinson. Not up to his standard. No business. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

DAREDEVIL DRIVERS, THE: Dick Purcell, Beverly Roberts, Gloria Blondell, Gordon Oliver—Another program from Warner that was about like their others, only fair.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

FOUR DAUGHTERS: Lane Sisters, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains, Gale Page, John Garfield—A highly over-rated picture. Although it is good entertainment, we saw no dynamic personalities in this one. John Garfield speaks his lines well and cleverly suceeds in making himself a monumental example of hard luck and misery, which are items which I think my patrons come to my theatre to forget about and not to be reminded of as nicely as Mr. Garfield does. Besides, the plot seemed to be a reversal of Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat," which was later made into a movie called "A Woman of Affairs." Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 9-10-11.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

FOUR DAUGHTERS: Lane Sisters, John Garfield, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains—Credit is due Warners for this fine picture. Cast excellent. Garfield and Lynn pleased all.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre Conway, N. H. General patronage.

GARDEN OF THE MOON: Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay—A mediocre comedy. Story too improbable. —Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MYSTERY HOUSE: Dick Purcell, Ann Sheridan—Absolutely no reason to make such a picture. Even the acting shows the "hammishness" of such a show. Very poor. Running time, 56 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PATIENT IN ROOM 18, THE: Patric Knowles, Ann Sheridan—Only fair.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

SECRETS OF AN ACTRESS: Kay Francis, George Brent—Pleased those who saw it. Poor title.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

Grand National

BOOTS OF DESTINY: Ken Maynard, Claire Dodd —See report on "Six Shooting Sheriff."—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

SIX SHOOTING SHERIFF: Ken Maynard, Marjorie Reynolds—As good a western as anybody's. You small town exhibitors give the independents a little of your playing time. I'll guarantee that your Saturday night crowds will like them. They are still the bread and butter pictures.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

UTAH TRAIL, THE: Tex Ritter, Adele Pearce—See report on "Six Shooting Sheriff."—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Kansas. General patronage.

UTAH TRAIL, THE: Tex Ritter, Adele Pearce—This is the first Ritter picture I have played in a year due to being unable to get any of his pictures. Ritter is and has been, since his first picture, a top draw for me, and this picture is as good or better than some before. I played Ritter in person and he certainly made a big hit here. In real life he is one swell fellow and the way he mixed with the patrons here certainly has put him on top in preference to any other western star. If you will properly give his pictures a trial he is sure to please. Running time, 58 minutes. Played October 8.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BEG, BORROW OR STEAL: Frank Morgan, Florence Rice, John Beal, Janet Beecher—Another fair comedy. The town south of me used this for a free show. Result no business. Running time, 73 minutes. Played October 4.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert—It is remarkable the thin stories that Metro builds these comedies on and the business that they do. There just doesn't seem to be more than a two-reel comedy material. This one dragged terribly and yet they ate it up.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert—Not a big picture but it pleased those who like this type of broad comedy. Average business. Played October 16.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull—A very good picture, the story of which sets an example which it would be well for others to follow. Running time, 93 minutes. Played October 7-8.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS: Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas—A grand show. The best from Spencer Tracy. Played repeat showing and flopped the second time. No business on Metro shows for me. Running time, 115 minutes. Played September 20.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, Lionel Stander—A good show that failed to draw the women, so business was off. Those who came were well satisfied. Played October 16-17.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—Without a doubt this one can be given class "A" rating on its entertainment merit. There is probably too much prize fighting in it to rate it as "tops" as a family picture, but even the older patrons seemed to be entirely satisfied with it. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 15-16.—G. A. Van Fradenburg, M.D., Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice, Claire Dodd, Nat Pendleton—This Melvyn Douglas surely puts this picture over in grand style. Nat Pendleton is in two scenes and that isn't enough for me. I think he's great in any role. Played October 21-23.—B. A. McConnell, Emerson Theatre, Hartford, Ark. Small town patronage.

HOLD THAT KISS: Maureen O'Sullivan, Mickey Rooney—Good.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—Very good and Metro knows it. Did better than average business. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 12-13.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LORD JEFF: Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney, Charles Coburn, Gale Sondergaard—An excellent show that ought to appeal to the young folks but does not. They have to be more sophisticated to get them in. Made a mistake in playing this on Sunday. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 15-16.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone—Young people will like this.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

LOVE IS A HEADACHE: Mickey Rooney, Gladys George, Franchot Tone, Ted Healy—Fair. Could have been a knockout. This was used for a free show in the town south of me. Result, no business. Running time, 80 minutes. Played September 27.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, Robert Morley, John Barrymore, Anita Louise —Excellent box office material. Miss Shearer tops all her previous performances in this one and the efforts of the entire cast were well appreciated by our audiences. However, Robert Morley walks away with the picture, but then Tyrone Power wasn't given any chance to do any scene stealing in this one. Running time, 157 minutes. Played October 5-6.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Anita Louise, Tyrone Power—A picture like this brings out people who seldom go to the movies. Wonderful acting by all the cast. Miss Shearer and Anita Louise both beautiful. A fine picture but not for the masses.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

NAUGHTY MARIETTA (reissue): Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—This one sure clicked on a return engagement. Played after "The Girl of the Golden West," which also did a nice business. There are only two kinds of pictures, good ones and fair ones. There are only two prices for film rental in small towns, a Sunday price and a week day price. A small town exhibitor cannot stay in business if he buys Class A, Class B, Class C, Class D and balance E of any company when practically all small towns are two priced towns. If producers and distributors would cut out a few letters of the alphabet and just use two letters, A for good and B for fair, it would save everyone a lot of headaches, especially the small town exhibitor.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. (where they dance on plowed ground and shoot from the hip, the largest hay shipping point in the world and the state's largest livestock sales market). General patronage.

PARADISE FOR THREE: Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Florence Rice, Mary Astor—Just a fair comedy drama. If it had been any better, would have been checked. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 5-6.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN: Robert Young—Very good little comedy.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Ruth Hussey, Lew Ayres—One swell comedy drama. It drew very well for midweek and pleased 100 per cent. Running time, 72 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—I would rate this as a three handkerchief picture for the ladies. The men will get theirs from the racehorse angle and the kids will fall for Mickey. What more could you ask for. This will stand all the extra work you can put into it and will pay big dividends in return and no squawks afterwards. We had big business three nights. Played October 16-18.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—Beery scores heavily in this one, which is reminiscent of the great work he did in "The Champ," and with Rooney in the cast you can rely on this picture being a box office bet. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

STABLEMATES: Mickey Rooney, Wallace Beery—Very, very good. Pleased old and young. Mickey and Beery always a good team.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy—I stepped out of my projection booth once to check the sound and saw everyone sitting on the edges of their seats, holding on to the one in front of them. Another time I peeped out to see the women using their handkerchiefs. All in all, this is one that will do those things to an audience and will rank as tops at the box office. Running time, 119 minutes. Played October 20-21.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—Just a programmer that gets by. They will try and sell you the idea of extended runs the same as they did me. It pleased all that saw it but fell hard on the extended run thing. Running time, 70 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—A light farce comedy that seemed to get by for what it was, rather screwball in some places. Then, some bright dialogue that gave it a lift. Have run worse and some a lot better. —A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Franchot Tone, Robert Montgomery—Anyone seeking relaxation will find it here. Gay, sparkling comedy. Excellent cast.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy—Very poor story. Good cast.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

TOY WIFE, THE: Luise Rainer, Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young—This is heavy drama with the usual unpleasant story with an unhappy conclusion. You can probably get in half a house on this one but, though they will see it through, you could not bribe them to see it a second time. And we wonder why MGM has to use an imported star who can not talk clear English to play the part of a Southern girl. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 2-3.—G. A. Van Fradenburg, M.D., Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—A very good comedy drama. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 20.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

DANGERS OF THE ARCTIC (State Rights): This was very good. Had many very good remarks. Running time, 50 minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

WHIRLWIND HORSEMAN (State Rights): Ken Maynard—Not the draw of Cassidys or Autry westerns but has quite a few fans left. Business satisfactory. —Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Monogram

GOD'S COUNTRY AND THE MAN: Tom Keene—This one packed them in on a Friday-Saturday. It's what my patrons want, so why not give them a western every week end.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME: Grant Richards, Evelyn Venable, Hall Johnson Choir—Just a programmer. The colored choir made the picture passable on a double bill. Business normal.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Paramount

BOOLOO: Colin Tapley, Suratna Asmaka—A small town natural. The producers should make more of this type of picture as our audiences go for them in a big way. Nothing to the picture except the animal shots but the audience was pleased and that is what we like. Give us more of this type of show. Running time, 61 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Hank Luisetti, Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney—Nothing big in this picture but it thoroughly pleased. College life as it should be portrayed to the satisfaction of every one. Running time, 65 minutes. Played September 29-30.—B. A. McConnell, Emerson Theatre, Hartford, Ark. Small town patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney, Hank Luisetti—Program basketball college picture which pleased but failed to draw any extra business. No star power. Played October 12-13.—H. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney, Thurston Hall, Hank Luisetti—Not so good. Just program fare and hardly that. Paramount stressed Hank Luisetti in the cast, and who knows him? Plugged in trailer, too. It is the kind that you waste a date on and wish that you hadn't.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

CASSIDY OF BAR 20: William Boyd, Frank Darien —One of the best of the outlaw action type shows. Hopalong is tops with by patrons. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 21-22.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

COCOANUT GROVE: Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis, Yacht Club Boys—Not quite as delicious as Paramount would have you believe, but everyone liked it and it did fair business. Think, perhaps, if times were good, pictures like this would bring many more shekels in the cash drawer. Fred MacMurray and Harriet Hilliard really put out some good acting and the Yacht Club Boys did the rest! Running time, 88 minutes. Played October 17-18.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting—From the laugh this little comedy got at the matinee, we should have a pleased audience for the entire run. Raye's best picture to date. Good music and plenty of comedy. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Betty Grable, Bob Hope, Jack Whiting—Here is a nice program picture. Plenty of comedy. Martha Raye plays a mighty good part. Betty Grable does fine, and the public would like to see her get a more active part. Bob Hope also does fine. The navy scenes are mighty interesting. Played October 21-22.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

HEART OF ARIZONA: William Boyd, Natalie Moorhead—No better and no worse than a hundred other western pictures. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 6 and 8.—G. A. Van Fradenburg, M.D., Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

HER JUNGLE LOVE: Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Lynne Overman, Dorothy Howe.—Not the show we expected. Many kicks. Color saves the show. Will do business. Running time, 80 minutes. Played September 21-22.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

HOPALONG CASSIDY RETURNS: William Boyd, George Hayes—One of the old ones that I picked up. Good print; good picture.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

IN OLD MEXICO: William Boyd, George Hayes—A very good show but if you want a good western, forget it. My patrons want to see "Hopy" in a good brawl or two and, perhaps, have him ride down a few bad men, not women. This was practically devoid of action, which constitutes a good or bad western here. Running time, 67 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Lloyd Nolan, Gail Patrick, J. Carroll Naish—We have been playing quite a few of these type pictures and I believe this one was enjoyed more than any. The audience reaction was splendid and the second night built up quite a bit, so it's bound to be the picture that does that. Running time, 55 minutes. Played October 1-2.—B. A. McConnell, Emerson Theatre, Hartford, Ark. Small town patronage.

NOW AND FOREVER (Reissue): Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard, Shirley Temple—A reissue to the season's low.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PARTNERS OF THE PLAINS: William Boyd, Russell Hayden—All of the western fans and Hopalong enthusiasts liked it. Hoppy and Lucky were their usual selves. Windy was missing in this one but Baldy filled in O. K. This will please any spot where westerns are in demand. Running time, 58 minutes. Played October 15.—J. H. Young, Star Thetare, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

PRISON FARM: Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Ross—This is a fine action program picture of prison farms. I played it on a Saturday with a western and had a swell show, but it will hold up by itself. Played October 15.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—The worst business I have had in a long time and the picture was not liked at all. Harold Lloyd is through as far as I am concerned. His comedy used to go one time but it is out now. And I had a lot to tell me so. Played October 12-14.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—Reports we had prior to playing this one were none to reassuring. The picture is a little slow in starting, but once it gets underway it keeps the audience in one round of laughter. However, Lloyd is not nearly as popular as a few years back. Played October 19-20.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

ROMANCE IN THE DARK: Gladys Swarthout, John Boles, John Barrymore—This picture to my surprise went over fine here. Many favorable comments. Gladys Swarthout very, very good. Can't see why she doesn't make more pictures. Entire cast in this picture were really fine.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

SONS OF THE LEGION: Lynne Overman, Evelyn Keyes, Billy Lee, Billy Cook, Tim Holt, Donald O'Connor, Elizabeth Patterson—A picture strongly endorsed by Legion everywhere and one that should be played. Pleased our people. Outstanding was the work of the younger element, especially that of Tim Holt, Billy Cook and Billy Lee.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

SONS OF THE LEGION: Donald O'Connor, Lynne Overman, Evelyn Keyes, Elizabeth Patterson, Billy Lee, Tim Holt, Billy Cook—A very weak picture to poor business. Propaganda excellent; cast ok, but lacks realism. Just does not click.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SONS OF THE LEGION: Donald O'Connor, Elizabeth Patterson, Lynne Overman, Evelyn Keyes, Billy Lee, Tim Holt, Billy Cook—The thought behind this picture is good in this time of isms. However, unless you can get the support of the Legion and the Junior Organization, it will not appeal to the regular run of patrons. The kids in the cast are good. But, the title indicates that it is a kid picture and that we did not overcome, even in advertising it as not a kid picture but of general interest to both young and old, which it is.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour—Exciting melodrama. Good cast. Clever trained seal.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—One of the finest pictures ever made. Business excellent. Two men fainted on this production and had to be carried out, one on Thursday night and one on Saturday. It's a he-man picture and we so advertised it, but the women came anyway. Running time, 110 minutes. Played September 29-30.—William J. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett, May Robson, Walter Brennan—Not as good as "Wells Fargo," "The Plainsman," etc. However, was interesting and for the action loving fans it had everything.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott—Very good.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

TOUCHDOWN ARMY: Mary Carlisle, John Howard, Robert Cummings—Swell story, plenty of action, and those that love football as it should be played should go for this. It has everything to please any audience. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 19-20.—B. A. McConnell, Emerson Theatre, Hartford, Ark. Small town patronage.

TOUCHDOWN ARMY: John Howard, Mary Carlisle, Robert Cummings—Program picture of college football which pleased average business. Played it on Guest Night, as it has no star power. Played October 17-18.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Republic

BILLY THE KID RETURNS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, Smiley Burnette—Pretty good picture which pleased average business. Roy Rogers will in time develop into a real draw. Played October 14-15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—Autry doesn't bring them in like he used to. Acting very poor. Singing only salvation. Smiley Burnette steals the show. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 7-8.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

PRAIRIE MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Shirley Deane—People say they do not like westerns. Well, in that case, this one is not a western because the people certainly flocked in and left feeling like they had gotten their money's worth. Autry's singing is getting better all the time. Played October 14-15.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

RKO Radio

AFFAIRS OF ANNABEL, THE: Jack Oakie, Lucille Ball, Ruth Donnelly—No star names but a very pleasing comedy if you can get them in. Lucille Ball is good and reminds me of the popular favorite, Jean Harlow. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 8-9.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

BLIND ALIBI: Richard Dix, Whitney Bourne—The essential merit of this one is that it is quite different from the usual pictures. Only small crowds seemed to be satisfied. Running time, 61½ minutes. Played October 9-10.—G. A. Van Fradenburg, M.D., Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

BLIND ALIBI: Richard Dix, Whitney Bourne—Dix has slipped in the last few years. This just fair. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 11.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen, Irene Dare, Charles Ruggles, Dolores Costello—We just can't get business with this kid. Eighty per cent are ladies and the men stay away. The picture is okay but I think his light voice is offensive to the men. He sounds too much like a girl. Anyway, they stay away as if we had a smallpox sign on the door, and no kids to speak of.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—The first by this pair ever to be shown here and so wasn't as good box office as expected. Picture was good in its way and pleased. Miss Rogers giving vent to her suppressed desires while under the hypnotic influence of Astaire was a clever bit of comedy that struck a response in us all here. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GUN LAW: George O'Brien, Rita Oehmen—Good out-of-door picture with more plot than most of the westerns. Pleased.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Very poor story and no entertainment.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

JOY OF LIVING: Irene Dunne, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee—It seemed to me as though RKO has tried to make a high hat comedy that would go over in the small houses, too, but failed both ways. Too much of the songs and music that are not for the small time. To very poor business. Played October 12-13.—Ed Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

KING KONG (Reissue): Fay Wray, Bruce Cabot, Robert Armstrong—We billed this one like a circus and did well on it. Running time, 100 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

KING KONG (Reissue): Fay Wray, Bruce Cabot, Robert Armstrong—Excellent reissue.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Peacook, N. H. General patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart, James Ellison, Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn—By all means pick this one up. It's a dandy. Does business. Running time, 75 minutes. Played September 25-26.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—It has what it takes to a certain extent. Certainly, it did better than average business after it had been milked both first and second-run in a neighboring big city. Who am I to criticize, but I do think that it went high brow the last half and so did the audience. They reacted to this that they would have liked a couple of more skits at the last half as the first half contained. That is where the entertainment was. Even the jitterbugs said so. So, it must be so.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

CHECKERS: Jane Withers, Stuart Erwin, Una Merkel, Marvin Stephens—Excellent Withers picture.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

COUNTY CHAIRMAN, THE (Reissue): Will Rogers, Mickey Rooney, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor—A good show. Rogers still good. Nice business. Many asked when we were to show another. Running time, 70 minutes. Played September 23-24.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

COUNTY CHAIRMAN, THE (Reissue): Will Rogers, Mickey Rooney, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor—One of Rogers' better pictures and yet this drew only a fair house. Played October 7-8.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER: Loretta Young, Richard Greene, George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry—A prayer that wasn't answered.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Joan Davis, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver—Laughable situations. Good acting. Diverting entertainment. Joan Davis steals all the honors.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

HOLD THAT COED: John Barrymore, Joan Davis, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Jack Haley—Here's a good picture; will stand up to extended runs in all spots. Not a cleanup but you cannot refuse to extend the run and you will do all right. Running time, 79 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver, Peter Lorre, Jean Hersholt—A scream from start to finish and will please 100 per cent if comedy is liked. Peter Lorre is swell in the show. Played October 17-18.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple—Good.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MEET THE GIRLS: June Lang—Just a picture.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis. Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—Fox didn't give Sonja much of a scenario. Rather sketchy, but they came to see this winsome little star do her stuff. The high spot was the ballet in color (sepia). I believe I can see the difficulty of fitting a story to a specialist like Sonja. But I don't think that even she can keep out in front if they don't use more care in the material of which her pictures are built.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Bros.—Very good comedy.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver—A very entertaining picture, but lacked the drawing power for some reason. Is Loretta Young dragging a little? We hope not.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

United Artists

BLOCKADE: Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda, Leo Carrillo, John Halliday—A very fine picture that did only normal business. Maybe it was the exhibitor's fault.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

This show pleased all. No kicks. What more can you have? Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 19-20.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GOLDWYN FOLLIES, THE: "Charlie McCarthy," Edgar Bergen, Adolphe Menjou, Ritz Brothers, Andrea Leeds, Zorina, Phil Baker—Beautifully colored and "Charlie" showed up well, but somewhow my people didn't think he was given good enough support. Only did about half of what I usually do on Thursday and Friday pictures. Hear United Artists is going to put out twice as much money on half as many pictures next year. Hope it does some good! Running time, 109 minutes. Played July 21-22.—J H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

Universal

DEVIL'S PARTY, THE: Victor McLaglen, Beatrice Roberts—A good program picture. Played September 27.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," Andrea Leeds, Adolphe Menjou, George Murphy—Below average Sunday business. Running time, 103 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Helen Broderick, Mischa Auer, Louis Hayward—An excellent comedy. Miss Darrieux looks all set for American popularity. Played October 5-6.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SINNERS IN PARADISE: John Boles, Madge Evans, Bruce Cabot—Nothing much. Kind of goofy. Too bad to waste the time of so many fine players. Played October 4.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WIVES UNDER SUSPICION: Warren William, Gail Patrick, Constance Moore, William Lundigan, Ralph Morgan—We immediately recognized this story as the old "Kiss Before the Mirror" and somehow it seemed stale stuff this time. No business to brag about. Played October 11.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

YOUTH TAKES A FLING: Joel McCrea, Andrea Leeds, Dorothea Kent—A very good picture with perhaps a little too much sentiment in spots. The idea on which the picture is based is excellent, but some of the directors ought to wise up and not let Miss Leeds overdo that "suffering" business, which is all she's done in all her pictures. I hope they are not trying to make a Keaton out of her and I don't think it'll hurt to have her appear in a jovial mood now and then. The ending of the picture is too much like O. Henry's style of writing, but it is good entertainment. Running time, 79 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane—Good musical comedy. Pleased. —Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran—Played this picture October 23. Here is one down to earth picture. Just let your people see it the first night and they certainly will talk it for the next ones. Forget all about your socalled specials and take this one. Priscilla Lane is tops in this one, closely followed by Powell and O'Brien. Again it proves comedy and good singing is what the public wants. Best Sunday business in several months. Hats off to Warners.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

DEVIL'S SADDLE LEGION: Dick Foran, Anne Nagel—A good western we used to replace something else. Dick's ballad singing is very helpful to making his westerns out of the ordinary. Played October 14-15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell, Patrick Knowles—Very good comedy.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

RACKET BUSTERS: George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Dickson, Walter Abel—Program action picture which satisfied on Guest Night. Played October 11.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville—Fair picture. Good acting.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville—Let the local school sponsor this and it did outstanding business as well as pleased everyone who saw it. The acting by everyone in it is superb, and it holds the onlooker spellbound until the end. Don't think you can play it up too highly, for it will stand all the buildup you can think of. People here go big for pictures of this type. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 10-11.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

TWO OKLAHOMANS JOIN REPORTERS

Boyd Adkinson of the Lyric theatre at Idabel, Okla., and George Stovall of the Ute theatre, Sayre, Okla., send in their first reports to the department this week.

Harold C. Allison, White Cloud theatre in the city in Michigan of that name, returns to the reportorial corps after a year and a half of absence. He previously was at the Baldwin theatre in Baldwin, Mich.

Read the reports of these showmen in this issue.

Short Features

Columbia

COMMUNITY SING: No. 11—A very good audience reel. Oldtime songs by an excellent quartet.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

DEMONS OF THE DEEP: Special Sport Thrills—A good fishing reel for those that like this sport. Just a filler.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

HOLLYWOOD GRADUATION: Color Rhapsodies—Not up to the average of these colored cartoons.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MIND NEEDER, THE: Broadway Comedy—Fair. Better than most Charley Chase has made of late. Where are the songs, Charley? Running time, 18 minutes.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Educational

ALL'S FAIR: Cabin Kids—Cabin Kids okay. The rest is wasting film.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GOING, GOING, GONE: Buster West, Tom Patricola—Amusing.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GREY OWL'S LITTLE BROTHER, THE: Treasure Chest—Educational and entertaining. Very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

JITTERBUGS: Buster West, Tom Patricola—Okay. —L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LAST INDIAN, THE: Terry-Toons—A good cartoon.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MUSIC FROM THE STARS: Treasure Chest—Pretty good orchestra short.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SONGBIRDS OF THE NORTHWOODS: Treasure Chest—Should please generally. It did here.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

AWFUL TOOTH, THE: Our Gang—Full of fun—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

BEAR FACTS: Our Gang—Quite funny.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

BILLY ROSE'S CASA MANANA REVUE: Musical Comedy—An excellent musical that should have been in color as it really was good. Better than some features we have played this past season. Running time, 21 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CANNED FISHING: Our Gang—If the sound had been good on this print, it would have been swell entertainment, but sounded to me like radio static. Fact is I am asking the exchange to refund my money on the print. Running time, 11 minutes.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

CHILE, LAND OF CHARM: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—This man FitzPatrick makes one very unhappy. Many want to follow his trails.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WHAT DO YOU THINK, NO. 3: MGM Miniatures—"I think" this O. K.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Paramount

BIKE PARADE: Paragraphic—Not up to the usual standard of Husing's stuff, but got by because it was Husing. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HORSESHOES: Grantland Rice Sportlight—A good sport reel for small towns, as horseshoe pitching is quite a sport for us and was appreciated by our audience. Running time, 8 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HUNKY AND SPUNKY: Color Classics—This is a crackerjack and is really different from most cartoons. —L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

I YAM LOVE SICK: Popeye the Sailor—Usual.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PLUMBING IS A PIPE: Popeye Cartoon—Amusing. Running time, 7 minutes.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BRAVE LITTLE TAILOR: Walt Disney—This one is an improvement over its predecessors. Running time, 9 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

DONALD'S BETTER SELF: Walt Disney Cartoons —All of these are knockout. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

STAGE FRIGHT: Leon Errol Comedy—Another good comedy from Leon Errol. It had the audience laughing all through the picture. Running time, 18 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Twentieth Century-Fox

MOVIETONE NEWS: This is the best of them all. Lew Lehr has plenty of laughs. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS, No. 6: Not mentioning Pat O'Brien in the Legion parade might have been an oversight. Being an ex-service man myself, I don't like giving all the rest of the movie stars a sendoff and keeping quiet on a veteran star. When patrons notice it also that makes it worse.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

Vitaphone

ATTIC OF TERROR: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventures"—This is the first of this series we've had here, but people liked it. One of these thrown in occasionally breaks the routine of musicals and comedies and serves the purpose admirably well. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

CLYDE LUCAS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Good.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

FEUD THERE WAS, A: Merrie Melody—Getting better and better all the time.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

VITAPHONE GAMBOLS: Vitaphone Varieties—Here's a dandy vaudeville short. Play it on your best days for an excellent run.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

Serials

Columbia

MYSTERIOUS PILOT, THE: Captain Frank Hawks —Not doing the extra business anticipated. Think we should play it Friday-Saturday instead of Wednesday-Thursday.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND, THE: Don Terry, Gwen Gaze—Just finished this serial and made me a lot of money. They sure went for this one. I hope "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" does as good. Recommend "Treasure Island" serial to everyone.—A. G. Miller, Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, Neb. General patronage.

Republic

SOS COASTGUARD: Ralph Byrd, Maxine Doyle—This is very poor. I am on my eighth chapter now and many have dropped out. Not the serial that the "Lone Ranger" was. Business poor due to this serial. Running time, 18 to 20 minutes each episode.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

OBITUARIES

Fred Kohler Dies; Character Actor

Fred Kohler, screen character actor, died in Hollywood October 28th from heart disease. His son, Fred, Jr., also an actor, said that his father apparently had died in his sleep. He was 59.

Born in Kansas City, the son of an inventor, Mr. Kohler began his theatrical career as a spear carrier in the Willis Wood theatre in his home city. From then on he had a varied career, playing in stock, vaudeville, tent shows and one-night stands.

Twenty-seven years ago he was playing in stock in Los Angeles when he heard that Hobart Bosworth was making a picture, "Code of Honor," a Selig production, and that the people who worked in films could stay in one place and have a home. Mr. Kohler applied for and received a job, and remained in Hollywood after that with the exception of several personal appearance tours.

Mr. Kohler was six feet two inches tall and almost always played "bad man" roles. Two of his more recent pictures were "The Buccaneer" and "Blockade."

Robert Woolsey Dies; Teamed with Wheeler

Robert Woolsey, motion picture comedian, died October 31 at his home in Malibu Beach, Cal., after a long illness. He was 49. Mr. Woolsey had been suffering from a kidney ailment for the last 18 months. The Masons will conduct funeral services Friday at Hollywood's Little Church of the Flowers.

Mr. Woolsey, who was born in Oakland, Cal., had appeared in stock in San Francisco and other cities. He gained national recognition when he teamed with Bert Wheeler in the production "Rio Rita." Their work in the show led to their engagement for the screen presentation of "Rio Rita" by RKO.

Other pictures that Woolsey appeared in were "Dixiana," "The Cockoos," "Half Shot at Sunrise," "Hook, Line and Sinker," "Cracked Nuts," "Everything's Rosie," "Caught Plastered," "Peach o' Reno," "Girl Crazy," "Hold 'Em Jail," "Silly Billies," "Kentucky Kernels," "The Rainmakers" and "On Again-Off Again."

Frank Hatch

Frank Hatch, 74, an actor and stage director who had been associated in both capacities with William A. Brady productions, died October 25th of pneumonia in the Queens General Hospital, Jamaica, L. I.

Mrs. E. L. Robinson

Mrs. Esther Lyons Robinson, former actress and explorer, who was known in the late 1890's as "The Klondyke Girl," died October 26th of a heart ailment in Elizabeth, N. J. She was 74 years old.

Sanford Remington

Sanford S. Remington, 49, operator of Remington Quality Pictures, Inc., an independent exchange in Cincinnati, died there October 29th from a heart attack.

Fred Duprez Dies

Fred Duprez, 54, American comedian who for 30 years had been a headliner in British vaudeville, died aboard the liner President Harding October 29th. Mr. Duprez was hurrying to London to see the first rush sequences of Alexander Korda's film "Four Feathers," in which his daughter, June, is making her film debut. Mr. Duprez was born in Detroit.

C. D. Haug

C. D. Haug, 51, manager of the Empire theatre, Birmingham, Ala., died October 25th after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Haug formerly managed the Strand theatre in Birmingham and also at one time did exploitation work for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer on the road.

T. B. Moreno

Thomas B. Moreno, 48, who was "Skyball" Moreno to friends in the motion picture industry, died October 25th in the National Military Hospital at Sawtelle, Cal. He was a stunt man and "double" in dangerous scenes for many stars.

IN COURTS

Court Allows Warners To Question Chadwick

Application for commissions to issue in Los Angeles to take the testimony of I. E. Chadwick, president of Chadwick Pictures Corporation, and Jerome Storm, director, was granted this week by Philip J. McCook, New York supreme court justice.

The testimony will be taken in behalf of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Warner Brothers Production Corporation and M. Witmark and Sons, Inc., defendants in a suit for $250,000 damages, an injunction and accounting of the profits of "Sweet Adeline," brought by Harvey Armstrong and Richard H. Gerard, who charge copyright infringement.

Defendants will seek to prove that Chadwick Pictures produced a picture of the same title some years back.

Roxy Fee Hearing Set

Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey has set November 18th for a hearing of applications by Barrow, Wade, Guthrie and Company for fees of $2,555 as auditors of the Roxy Theatres Corporation, and the Manufacturers Trust Company for $7,147 as compensation for its services as agents for the distribution of the first mortgage four per cent bonds of Roxy. Howard Cullman, as trustee, will seek a direction from Judge Caffey at the hearing to turn over any balance remaining in his hands to Manufacturers Trust Company for distribution among the first mortgage 6¼ per cent gold bond holders.

Serve Principal Injunction

A temporary injunction issued by Justice Valente in New York supreme court has been served on Principal Film Exchanges, Inc., by Oliphant and Lerman, attorneys for Superior and Stage and Screen Productions. The papers ask the appointment of a receiver to secure an accounting of receipts on and stop further distribution of 12 pictures.

Columbia Application Denied

New York Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin this week denied an application by Columbia Pictures Corporation for dismissal of the suit brought by Betty Davis, holder of 162 shares of voting trust certificates. Judge McLaughlin ruled the plaintiff had a legal right to sue and that her action was not barred by the statute of limitations. The plaintiff, who is asking for an accounting since 1929, charges that the company has paid excessive bonuses to Harry and Jack Cohn and to Joe Brandt and further claims that certain options to purchase stock were illegally transferred.

Injunction Consent Filed

Radio Corporation of America, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Vreeland Apparatus Company, Inc., and General Electric Company won a victory in United States district court in New York this week when Harold Kirschbaum, doing business as Luxor Manufacturing Company, defendant in two suits charging infringement of 17 patents on radio receiving apparatus, filed consent to an injunction restraining him from continued infringement.

• "I consider my trailers the cheapest advertising that I buy—yet I put trailers at the top as being most important in actually selling tickets. . . ."

No truer word was ever spoken than this remark by one of the 12,000 exhibitors who use National Screen Service.

Trailers ARE low in price . . . maybe too low . . . for the job they do. Measure them any way you like – they cost less per reader, per prospective customer, per circulation unit, per results! you KNOW how many ticket-buyers read your trailers—you can only guess when it comes to other advertising media.

Only bad trailers are expensive . . . because they do not sell tickets. Good trailers really cost nothing. They are an investment that return a grand, quick profit.

Ever figure what part of your gross you spend for trailers? Probably just a small fraction of one percent.

Don't waste your screen and money on inferior trailers. The best is always cheapest . . . NATIONAL SCREEN PRE-VUES . . . screen showmanship at its best!

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly
in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor
GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

STILL "BOOM BOOM"

This is a business of bally. The louder the "boom boom", the faster moves the line at the boxoffice. Nothing has ever been found to replace crackling, colorful, punchy exploitation. Nothing ever will. Even Junior knows that.

Putting over the product in the most forceful terms is as important as the picture itself. That should be taken for granted. Unfortunately, it isn't, generally.

Universal puts out a Horror Show. It's a combination revival of "Dracula" and "Frankenstein". The show is sold behind the widest and loudest kind of a bally. The boys trot out the sure-fire gags. They shoot the works. Everything goes. And, more important, everything takes. Patrons batter down the doors to get in.

Then what happens? Dispatches come thundering in. "The Horror Show is reviving showmanship."

In Chicago, for instance, it's contagious. The opposition also breaks out with fancy fronts and other examples of what used to be done. The old-time religion becomes Number One Boy. The town goes dizzy with circus-type exploitation. The same is true in other spots. The industry buzzes excitedly. They talk about bally as if it were something just invented.

Now, there is no doubt that the Horror Show brought 'em in. But it took bally to sell the "horror". It takes bally to sell other pictures. It takes provocative advertising copy. It takes every kind of high-power "boom boom", as it has always. Universal's unique double picture presentation just happens to be an excellent example.

LITTLE BASIS FOR FEAR

The extent of a theatreman's participation in communal activities outside the theatre depends more on the man than the situation. We quote from a previous editorial on the subject and bring it up again because of an excellent example to illustrate.

Louie Charninsky recently returned from attendance at the National Safety Congress, in Chicago, where he represented the Interstate Theatres, by invitation of Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell. Charninsky was selected for this unusual honor because he has been very active in Dallas safety movements. But not at the expense of his theatre duties.

There are many representative Round Tablers who create invaluable prestige for their operations by aiding worthy local projects. Others would were they allowed to by superiors who fear neglect of the job in favor of the outside work. There is little reason for this. Managers invited to take leading parts in civic activities are usually the best type of theatreman.

EXTRA AMMUNITION

There is an out for theatremen in towns where the newspaper situation does not allow for adequate theatre coverage. That out is illustrated currently by Cinemag, a four-page weekly tabloid published in the interests of the Capitol and Majestic Theatres, of Paragould, Ark., and described on a following page. "People clamor for it and advertisers are amazed by the response," writes W. B. Justice, Jr., editor.

The theatre publication is not meant to compete with the regular newspapers. As concerns adequate picture publicity, it aims to continue from where the papers leave off. Round Tablers engaging this medium invariably report a high measure of return at little or no cost to the theatre. That's something for other members to chew upon.

READING BETWEEN THE LINES

The job of work done by Joe Goetz in behalf of the seventh anniversary of the Cincinnati RKO Paramount is told on a following page. In detailing what Ed Mayer has to say about it, one easily reads between the lines to discover that the fine spirit of the occasion was of greater significance than the campaign itself. "It's just like having a birthday in my own family," a guest confided.

Building theatre prestige is here manifested at its best. Having the Mayor on hand to applaud is one thing; but to surround the party with the warmth of a family gathering is showmanship of a species one meets up with rarely and for which Goetz may take a bow as he assumes his well-merited post of assistant to Division Manager Frudenfeld.

Clarence Golder, New Rena Theatre, Kellogg, Idaho, turned ventriloquist for his engagement of "Letter of Introduction." Local midget impersonating Charlie McCarthy was brought up on stage while "Bergen" Golder went into his act. Photo above shows the lad interviewing a patron in lobby. Chap also distributed cards with cut of Bergen with his dummy followed by cast, playdates, title and picture copy.

Tying up with the introduction of Charbert's new "Drums" perfume in New York, United Artists obtained an outstanding window display in Bloomingdale's as part of the campaign for the opening of that picture at the Music Hall. Window was set off by life size cutout of dancing girl in a scene from the picture, while lavish drapes were used to convey thought of the Far East. Dummy samples of the perfume were mounted on large drum and framed photos of Sabu with an announcement card completed the window.

"ROOM SERVICE"

Unique exploitation stunt that proved a crowd-stopper was street bally used by Manager Robert J. Haley, Orpheum, Kansas City, for "Room Service". Papier maché masks of the Marx Brothers were worn by three ushers who covered entire city, much to the amusement of passersby.

Created by Joseph Rubenfeld, Loew's Oriental, Brooklyn, is showcase reproduced at right which was built in five sections, shadow-box form, and measuring 20 feet in height and 40 feet in length. Each shadow-box works on a blinker system and one picture lights as the other goes out. Joe reports it as being a great eye-attractor.

Advance buildup for Stanley Lambert's "horror" show put on at the Lexington Theatre, Chicago, consisted of "mechanical" man dressed in skeleton outfit who attracted plenty of attention by standing motionless and suddenly rocking back and forth with a rattling noise. Picture above shows him in stretcher with usher in interne costume and Lambert standing at right. Ambulance was stationed out front and, at intervals, the usher interne and "mechanical" man would go into their act.

Highly deserving of all the excitement and amusement it was reported to have created was the ingenious street stunt created by R. W. Russell, Palace, Canton, Ohio, for his date on "Five of a Kind", the newest Quints picture. Five local girls attired as nurses pushed five perambulators carrying dolls, each labeled appropriately, the entire convoy held together by title and theatre banner.

During the absence of manager Sam Gilman, his pinch-hitting assistant Carl Rogers, Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa., conceived this street bally for advance on "Crowd Roars." Gal with giant imprinted umbrella covered main thoroughfares. In addition, Rogers pasted 24 sheet carrying title, cast and playdates on sidewalk directly in front of boxoffice.

Election Gag Herald Used on "Co-Ed" Date

What he reports to be creating plenty of word-of-mouth comment is the election herald distributed by O. H. Robeson, exploitation and publicity director of the McCarrell Enterprises, in connection with the opening of "Hold That Co-Ed" at the Indiana Theatre, Bedford, Ind.

Cut of John Barrymore in his role of Governor "Gabby" Harrigan was used, together with gag copy on the star's platform. Dubbing Harrigan as the first party, candidate for joy, banner across bottom of herald called attention to the big public meeting which would be held at the theatre opening day.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

"Boy Meets Girl" Through Lucky Numbered Buttons

Amusing gag which created much comment was arranged by Marcel Brazee, Avalon Theatre, Chicago, Ill., for "Boy Meets Girl." Numbered pin buttons attached to card on which were printed title, cast and playdates were distributed week ahead of opening. Copy on card read "Detach this button and wear in plain sight, then watch for boy or girl wearing same number." Boy or girl had to bring the two buttons of the same number to the theatre to receive tickets for opening of the picture.

Newspaper-Radio Contest Aids "Four Daughters"

As part of his campaign on "Four Daughters" at the Earle Theatre, Washington, Frank La Falce staged a contest tieup with the Washington Daily News and station WRC. Object of the contest was to find four Washington daughters with talents comparable to those of the four girls in the picture. The News ran stories and art on four days and details were broadcast.

Auditions were held at the radio station for talented entrants. Winners were presented in a special 15-minute broadcast by the station's "Man About Hollywood." News ran picture of the broadcast.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Special Phone Call For "Banners"

Ted Crowther, Dixie Theatre, Staunton, Va., for his date on "White Banners" planted a girl at telephone who called each person on the lists of the local free and lending libraries. Conversation was to the effect that since listener was one who was interested in good books, and the pictures were made from these books, the theatre was calling to advise of the opening date, cast, etc. Theatreman also mailed special letters to all ministers, and attractive lobby display was constructed for the engagement.

20th Century-Fox Sets Advance for 'Submarine Patrol'

Getting behind "Submarine Patrol" with a full advertising and exploitation campaign, 20th Century-Fox has arranged an array of events in advance of the opening.

On Navy Day, October 27, at the National Press Club in Washington there was held a preview of the picture for ranking Navy Department officers and members of the Club. The following Saturday, at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, "Submarine Patrol" was screened at a special preview for the Superintendent of the Academy, Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, and his staff of officers. The next day, another screening was held at the Academy for the regiment of Midshipmen and for New York trade paper representatives, who went to Annapolis as guests of 20th Century-Fox.

On November 15th, about two weeks before the national release date, there opens at the Museum of Science and Industry in Radio City, New York, a "Submarine Patrol" exhibit. Occupying the main exhibition floor of the Museum, it will be a display of technical equipment used on subchasers and submarines. Staff lecturers will give talks at intervals throughout the day, and Simon Lake, inventor of the modern submarine, has been signed to give a lecture on the submarine, its uses and its developments.

The exhibit will run a month.

On November 17th, at the home office of 20th Century-Fox, one hundred veterans who served overseas aboard the "Submarine Patrol" will witness a special preview in the screening room as guests of the company.

In addition to the events described, Marc Lachmann, exploitation representative on Charles E. McCarthy's staff, has made tieups with the publishers of "The Splinter Fleet," the book on which the picture is based, and with the publishers of "Submarine," written by Simon Lake. These tieups provide that the jackets of the books will bear a "Submarine Patrol" imprint, and will be accompanied by window displays in bookstores.

On the West Coast, a special preview was also being held Navy Day at the Chinese Theatre.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Warnermen Attend "Brother Rat" Premiere

John J. Payette, General Zone Manager, Frank La Falce, Director of Advertising and Publicity, and Nat Glaser, District Manager for the Virginia Theatres, represented the Washington office at the world premiere of "Brother Rat" at the State, Lexington, Va. Guest of honor was Priscilla Lane.

Miss Lane took part in a coast-to-coast broadcast on the Kate Smith Hour, appearing with V. M. I. Orchestra and Glee Club. After the broadcast, she attended the premiere and later was guest at a reception given by General Kilbourne, Superintendent of the Institute. Miss Lane appeared at the theatre at another showing attended largely by students at the Washington and Lee University, also in Lexington.

THIRD QUARTER CITATION WINNERS SHOW ACE CAMPAIGN COVERAGE

Runners-Up in Third Period of Quigley Awards Report Many Tieins and Contests; Display Consistency in All Entries

Free eats for Washingtonians is one of the newest gags arranged by Ray Bell, publicist, Loew's Capitol, Citation of Merit winner in Class "A." Through tieup effected with nearby restaurant, two dinners and ten guest tickets are offered weekly to persons writing the best ads for the cafe. Most meritorious ads are then published in the Washington Daily News together with the winners' names. Also planted in lobby is easel plugging the contest.

Tieup for "Crowd Roars" was also effected with leading department store which ran large ad carrying cut of Robert Taylor decked out in one of the advertised shirts, together with picture, playdates, etc. Sports editors of local dailies also ran cut of the star together with plug on the fact that Patsy Perroni, heavyweight boxer who went the route with Joe Louis, battles Robert Taylor in the picture showing at the Capitol.

Hardy Clan Invited Guests

"Rooney Limericks" contest was promoted in paper as advance for "Love Finds Andy Hardy." Cash prizes and guest tickets went to those submitting best last lines for jingles published daily, week ahead of opening. Paper came through with series together with winners' names and addresses. Also promoted was a local Hardy club which netted Bell plenty of publicity. All persons belonging to the Hardy clan were invited to the theatre as guests of the management. Identification was required in the form of either driver's license, or social security card.

Promotes Trips to Paris

Candid-cameraman on streets snapped passersby, handing each a numbered card with instructions to watch paper following day. To those holding corresponding numbers listed, guest tickets were awarded. In addition Washington Post ran three column ad with cut of Mickey Rooney in a car, copy over all read "you'll be as popular as Mickey Rooney in a used car."

The engagement of "Marie Antoinette" was ushered in with advance publicity on the nationwide contest sponsored by MGM and The News, for which four free trips were offered to Paris to those submitting best 300-word letters on why they would like to visit the country of Marie Antoinette. Stories and art work were run daily in advance and during engagement. All trucks of the cooperting newspaper were bannered with contest plugs. Bookmarks selling the contest were distributed at public and lending libraries and all newsstands used cards calling attention to the serialization in the News.

Leading department store featured window display or original costumes worn by Miss Shearer in the picture with prominent credit card shown. And various other merchants came through with window displays in the mood of "Marie Antoinette."

SCHINE CIRCUIT CLICKS FOR HIGHER HONORS

Although various of the entrants from the Schine circuit have been represented among the Firsts and Honorables in the Quigley Awards, Seymour Morris takes an extra bow for being the first to be represented in the higher brackets with his Citation of Merit voted him in the Third Quarter. Campaign on "Boys Town", which won the Citation for Ted Emerson and Eddie Forester, was detailed in issue of October 1st.

Holland Promotes Trips For "Holiday" Vote Contest

With "Tropic Holiday" breaking when vacations were uppermost in the public mind, Sid Holland, Elco Theatre, Elkhart, Ind., and Citation of Merit winner in the Class "C" division, promoted two trips with accommodations at a resort in the middle west. Boys distributed 5,000 broadsides in a house-to-house canvass, merchants' ads on reverse side defraying cost of heralds. Winners were decided on a voting basis.

Tying into local water sports carnival, Holland secured cooperation of the Y.M.C.A. and city life guards for reprentative entries for all events in the program. Special two-sheets were spotted all along the river front where the event took place and highlight of the tieup was the bannering of boats entered in the various races, with the names of the different stars in the picture. Guest tickets were awarded winners.

One of the main features of this theatreman's campaign was a bathing beauty contest on stage. At the conclusion of the contest and after the winners were selected from numbered cards in the hands of each girl, the master of ceremonies asked them as a body the title of the picture to be shown the following week. Instead of answering verbally, each girl reversed her numbered card which then automatically spelled out the title.

Links Date to Roxy Showing

It seems that Holland was in New York vacationing while "Alexander's Ragtime Band" was playing at the Roxy Theatre, so the showman conceived the idea of having his picture taken at that theatre with Irving Lesser, standing beside a setpiece with copy to the effect that in 35 days 762,263 persons had seen the film. This picture, together with story was immediately on his return to Elkhart and in advance of his own playdates planted in local papers together with story. For his lobby display Sid utilized the 24-sheet cutout star heads combined with title pages of Irving Berlin's song hits and canopy valances were planted around the entire lobby selling the show. Also planted was a contest in daily, readers invited to send letters in stating some incidant long past, with which they associated Berlin songs. Guest tickets were awarded.

Morris Ties Drive to Local Campaign

In connection with the Cortland, N. Y., "Pageant of Prosperity," Seymour Morris, Schine's State and Citation of Merit winner in the "D" Class, cooperated with the local Chamber of Commerce by supplying trailers, window streamers, special window cards, three-sheets, stickers for packages and mats to be used as slugs in the merchants' ads. The Mayor issued a proclamation endorsing the event, special editorials were run in papers and the theatre managed to get in on all the publicity. Imprinted balloons, some of which contained ducats, were turned loose over the city, in addition, others contained gift certificates good as cooperating merchants' stores. Letters were sent out by the Chamber of Commerce and the local paper ran some kind of reader daily which included theatre mention.

For his advance on "Alexander's Ragtime Band" Morris constructed a special float on which was mounted a miniature piano and eight-piece band and three girls. The latter dressed in tuxedos and high hats plugged the hit tunes. Truck properly bannered toured entire city. Telegrams received from the Coast from each of the stars congratulating the showman on selecting the picture to start his show season, were mounted on lobby easel and put on display with promoted flowers supposedly from the stars. Local bands supplied with orchestrations and every record-playing machine in town carried a card plugging the music and picture.

Caricature Cutout Sells New Star

When Morris played "Garden of the Moon" he devised an ingenious street bally in the form of a cutout three-sheet head of John Payne which was mounted on a cutout caricature of a baby. This was planted in a baby carriage and wheeled about town, copy on parambulator reading "A new star is born, see John Payne in," etc., etc. During the run the carriage was placed in front of theatre.

For his papers Morris sawed a two-column scene mat of Payne in half so that it just showed half his face and smile, he then mortised in the cast with caption "This picture is worth $500,000." He then went on to tell about his million dollar personality and asked readers to watch for the full picture appearing in the next issue. Space was promoted from paper.

Newsboys Aid "Boys Town"

Special screening for ministers, educators, etc., was held for "Boys Town" and one of the highlights of this campaign was an election held in the city schools with the Mayor and his body coming down to the theatre. Subscription contest was held between newspaper carrier boys, with each lad approaching his prospect with the statement "Will you help me get to Boys Town?"

Cincinnati Celebrates RKO Paramount Birthday

Mayor Heads Guests at Seventh Anniversary of Theatre

by ED MAYER
in Cincinnati

The fact that the RKO Paramount, a close-in, deluxe, 2,100-seat suburban theatre in Cincinnati, is seven years old is not in itself significant. However, the birthday celebration, staged annually, is something else again. It is, in fact, a city-wide event which is one of the highlights of the local amusement season. The celebration, staged under the ever-resourceful supervision of Joe Goetz—who has been manager of the house since it originally opened in 1931 and recently was promoted to assistant to Arthur M. Frudenfeld, division manager—is getting bigger and better with the passing of the years. This year it eclipsed all previous efforts.

The theatre is located in a section of the city known as Walnut Hills, a good-sized and influential community, which, although an integral part of Cincinnati, is, in reality a community unto itself, and in a big way, at that. And Goetz is an indispensable part of the scheme of things thereabouts, his constant constructive cooperation having made him most popular with the men who keep the wheels turning in the city government and other projects.

For a period of two or three weeks in advance of the birthday date, the event is advertised extensively through the display of flags and gay-colored streamers on the marquee sign, in the lobby and similar places, whereupon young and old alike keep a weather eye on the calendar in anticipation of the "big day." The weekly newspaper issued in Walnut Hills ran columns of free publicity—emanating from the paper, and not the theatre—with liberal art layouts. City officials, executives of various industries, pastors, school officials, and others voiced through the paper their expressions of goodwill and appreciation of the spirit displayed by Goetz and the good that he is doing for both the community and the city. The daily downtown papers likewise voluntarily ran several editorials in connection with the occasion.

Contests Prove Popular

On the celebration date, the lobby was a veritable greenhouse of flowers sent by admiring and well-wishing friends from all sections of Greater Cincinnati. In the evening everyone entering the lobby was treated to liberal servings of ice cream and cake. People came from hither and yon, some in silk hats and tails, with milady in low-cut gowns, to rub elbows with the man in overalls accompanied by the housewife in the gingham dress. There was a cake-baking contest. The many entries, produced to conform to certain specifications promulgated in advance, were on display in the lobby, where the chef of the nearby Alms Hotel made awards, the entire lot subsequently being sent to the children's hospitals. There were other contests for public participation, such as, for instance, the award of a $50 wrist watch to the person guessing nearest the weight of pearls planted in oysters on the half-shell in a lobby display case. The watch was donated by a neighborhood jeweler. One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of a bottle of champagne to Goetz by Mayor James G. Stewart, of Cincinnati.

The lobby also contained exhibits of neighborhood stores and industries, all properly placarded, and illuminated with spotlights. The lobby, in fact, resembled what might be termed an old-fashioned home-coming where everyone met everyone else and where all met Joe to give him a friendly slap on the back.

"Just Like Birthday"

Characteristic of the prevailing feeling is evidenced by the conversation which this writer had with an elderly woman. "I look forward to this from year to year," she said, "because I am sure to meet many of my old friends here, and everyone is so happy and congenial. Why, it's just like having a birthday in our own family."

Although birthday celebrations are not unusual in theatre routine, it is doubtful if any theatre anywhere goes in for this sort of thing in the same whole-hearted manner as does Joe Goetz, who, through his varied and sundry activities, has made the Paramount a definitely integral part of Walnut Hills, and not "just another theatre." It was at the Paramount, incidentally, that Evelyn Venable, Tyrone Power and other localites who have achieved success on the screen got, at least, a portion of their start, for it was at this very theatre that they appeared in "home theatricals" during the years gone by. In fact, one of the honor guests at the celebration was the aunt of Tyrone Power, who is at the head of a local dramatic school which young Power attended.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Erickson Arranges Day-Night Lobby

For "Dr. Clitterhouse" at the Ogden, Chicago, manager Everett Erickson created an unusual lobby display idea with a showcase divided into two parts. Copy above read "See How the Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse Operates. By day—by night." In the "by day" section were instruments used by the medical profession for compounding prescriptions. In the "by night" sections there were guns, blackjacks, etc. Cashiers were nurses in uniforms, hats, cuffs, etc., and passed out pluggers reading "You have an appointment to see," etc., etc.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Window Gag Aids 'Blockheads'

Forwarded by Manager Eddie Lewis, Bellaire Theatre, Bellaire, L. I., is novel window display idea which he credits to his chief projectionist, Peter De Rosa. For the opening of "Blockheads," four-inch square alphabet building blocks, similar to those available in any five and ten, were used in local merchant's window. Built to stand about 15 inches high, the title and playdates were spelled out in schoolroom fashion.

To build up interest in the opening of "Old Chicago" at the Vic Theatre, Indiana Harbor, Ind., Don Johnson, winner of the Citation of Merit in the "E" Classification, sent two boys out on streets, one leading a cow with copy to the effect that she was the "bossy" that upset the lantern that started the fire. This was followed by lad with similarly bannered lantern.

Two blocks from the theatre Johnson planted a cake of ice on appropriately printed barrel, offering guest tickets to those correctly guessing exact time required for the ice to melt. For his window display, theatremen tacked rave press notices clipped from papers in key cities on boards and placed them in strategic spots about town week ahead of opening.

Merchants Aid Kid Matinees

Various are the activities engaged in for Don and his kid patronage, among which may be listed a tieup with local department store from which school clothing such as sweaters, caps, etc., were promoted for weekly giveway to each kid attending Saturday matinees. Also through the courtesy of nearby restaurant, Don promoted a bicycle for giveaway in connection with a lucky number contest. Both tieins in exchange for program and trailer credit.

Reported as proving highly successful at his house, is a gift and country store night which Johnson says he started on practically a shoestring, having as the nucleus for distribution things that were left over from giveaways in other theatres on his circuit. Now the theatreman promotes a goodly share of his material and says he has built up a definite following for this special event from among the town's merchants.

Heavy Exploitation Given "Carefree"

With the highlight stunt to date a spectacular dance of the "Yam" on a flat car platform to the top of Pikes Peak, Colorado, "Carefree" garnered lots of exploitation attention. Both the Orpheum, Terre Haute, Ind., and the Grand, Evansville, made effective use of "Yam" routines. At Terre Haute, baking company printed thousands for distribution as did soft drink company at Evansville.

The Grand management hooked in with drug company for a "Yam" soda and the Orpheum tied in with another drug outfit for a Ginger Rogers soda and contest in which girls behind counters selling most of the "special" sodas were awarded guest tickets.

In Columbus

Opening was given a regular Hollywood premiere with Mayor Myron B. Gessaman, guest of honor. Mayor was escorted by a bevy of co-eds from Ohio State University, who acted as hostesses for the theatre management. Preview was tied in with the Movie Quiz contest, J. Real Neth, local theatre operator was introduced by the Mayor and explained the contest to the audience.

"Reception Phenomenal, Advertisers Amazed"

So Report Malco-men of Reception Accorded New Weekly Theatre Publication

Added to the expanding list of publications sponsored by local theatres in situations where the newspapers do not give sufficient picture coverage, is Cinemag, published weekly in behalf of the Capitol and and Majestic Theatres, Paragould, Ark., a Malco circuit affiliation. Now in the sixth month of publication, edited by W. B. Justice, Jr., in conjunction with Manager John A. Collins, and Orris F. Collins, assistant manager, Cinemag's distribution, which is free, is within reaching distance of 5,000 copies, 2,500 house-to-house, and over 500 through the increasing mailing list. It is estimated that each issue now has 10,000 readers. The paper comes out on Friday mornings and readers who do not receive their copies promptly are requested to phone Western Union for immediate delivery, without charge.

Though the information is not given, it is assumed that printing is done locally, these charges coming to $28 per issue. Special cuts, pressbook scene and ad mats are additional. Outside advertising takes covers these costs, a late September issue, for instance, carrying 15 display ads, mostly one column. Theatre ads for all following week's attractions are grouped on the back page.

Local Gossip Stressed

Cinemag is four pages, 11 by 14 in size. The masthead is standard and with a portion of front page of a recent issue, illustrated to right. Local gossip and names enliven the pages. Contests cover a variety of heads and subjects, among which featured in recent issues are colmns such as "Incidentally," chatter of some 750 words written by local girl in exchange for passes. "Horsehide Hokum" has to do with local and national baseball, replaced in season with "Sidelines," by Piggy Skin, a football treatise. Entitled "For the Glory" is a series of biographical sketches of local people who have made good elsewhere. Occasionally, a news break drops down about deadline on Thursday night in time for a local "scoop."

Returns Satisfy Advertisers

"Opery Chat" is a personalized re-hash of press notices and reviews having to do with the coming week's pictures at both houses, combined with chatter and whatever Hollywood lowdown is available. Radio is covered with a column headed "Microphobia," broadcasting news from nearby stations and the chains. Stressed also is human-interest stuff such as personal coverage at Pineville, Mo., location setting of Twentieth Century-Fox's "Jessie James," hundreds of miles away, or writes Justice:

"Anything we might find that might amuse or entertain. People, ideas, facts. It is surprising what a litle effort will do here. There's lots of stuff in anybody's town that you never dream is there until you start looking for it. What's more, it's good copy.

Malneck's Decca Band Climbing

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30, (G.V.)—Matty Malneck, famous swing bandmaster, today announced that his newly-formed band would be christened the "St. Louis Blues Orchestra."

The orchestra makes its public debut in the picture, "St. Louis Blues," at Paramount. Previously it had played only as a recording Pineville Piffle...

Watching a movie star in real life is very much like watching a fire cracker that doesn't go off—you expect something that doesn't happen. After reading all the fabulous tales that come out of Hollywood about the "irresistible charm" of this and that "dynamic personality" you naturally get the idea that screen stars are nothing less than real heavenly bodies.

And some of them may be, but

Sonja Henie Surpasses Own Wonders In "My Lucky Star" Co-Starring Richard Greene

SHE'S QUEEN OF A CO-ED CAMPUS

At last the miraculous Sonja Henie appears in a picture as American as an ice cream cone! A dazzling modern girl, having a Glorious time on a college campus, wearing smart clothes, keeping swell dates—that's Sonja, as you'll see her in "My Lucky Star," her new hit for 20th Century-Fox.

REPRESENTATIVE FRONT PAGE AND "CINEMAG" MASTHEAD

Besides what the staff men themselves dig up, cooperation is obtained from the various home offices and the studio publicity departments. Material is also supplied by NBC headquarters and WLW, Cincinnati, branch managers and ad sales managers of the Memphis exchanges.

Results, according to the sponsors, are more than gratifying. Outside advertisers as well as the theatres are profiting, and popularity of the publication is increasing with every issue, they say, in advocating this form of publicity for extra revenues for all concerned.

Aeronautical Lobby Display Helps Sell "Air Devils"

Through tieup with local businessman, Louie Charninsky, Capitol Theatre, Dallas, distributed model airplanes to all kids attending opening of "Air Devils." From department store, Louie promoted palm trees and grass mats for use in lobby to simulate a tropical setting. Lobby display also included a large Curtis whirlwind motor with a cross section cutout showing the pistons moving and a red light showing when the piston fired.

Special kid matinee was held for opening day through the tieup with local dairy, ice cream was provided for each child attending. Cooperating dairy plugged the matinee in his store and ads, as did Charninsky with credit card in lobby. Heralds plugging the picture and playdates were distributed in office buildings, parked autos and throughout suburbs, and Louie also planted window cards in business district of downtown area.

For "Gold Mine in the Sky," Charninsky received daily spot radio announcements in addition to local hillbilly string orchestra plugging hit tunes from the picture. Lobby display was constructed featuring a gigantic blowup of Gene Autry, beneath which were a number of scene stills from the picture together with tiein copy.

Scott Inaugurates "Big Apple Month"

Boyd Scott, Rialto and Rex theatres, New Braunfels, Texas, designated the month of July as the "Big Apple Month," using large cutouts of apples with titles of pictures lettered on them. These were strung in the lobby and foyer ahead and during month and also used as the theme in his newspaper ads, heralds, etc.

For "Gold Is Where You Find It," Scott obtained some new pennies from his bank and placed a vaseful in cooperating jeweler's window. Ducats were given to those coming closest to guessing what the total would be if the pennies were five dollar gold pieces. For his street bally, a bannered covered wagon plied the streets ahead and during run and imprinted bags filled with gold painted rocks were planted on busy street corners. Newspaper story was run inviting all folks born in 1878 to be guests of management opening night. Paper carried reader on the stunt following day.

Artist made huge figure of Santa for lobby and had him holding card reading "I know I'm a little early this year, but I just couldn't wait to bring you these entertainment presents." Around cutout were stacked packages with title of picture on each. This was followed up with a real Santa parading streets with card reading the same.

Stockholm Sells "Music"

Numerous window displays were promoted by Leo Gussen of Stockholm for the opening of "Mad About Music," which included displays of Durbin school clothes, blouses, coats, etc., etc. Music store featured record and sheet music window with giant cutouts of Deanna and Herbert Marshall. Through tieup effected with large bicycle establishment, Gussen also arranged displays in all their branches.

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN UP

owns and manages the Butler Theatre in Butler, Indiana, since 1936. He entered theatre business in 1931, purchasing and managing the Lyric in Waterloo, Ind., where he remained for four years. We look forward to frequent contributions from you, Wayne, so please keep us supplied.

was only 15 when he started in showbusiness, doing doorman duty at the Peoples Theatre, Port Arthur, Texas. Two years later he was transferred to the Texan, in the same city in a like capacity. He returned to the Peoples, this time as assistant manager of the house. The Majestic was his next spot, where he acted as relief manager for two months. He was recalled to the Peoples but shortly afterwards was promoted to a managerial post back at the Majestic, serving there for eight months. Now we find him managing the Rio in Nederland, Texas, of the Jefferson Amusement Co. circuit.

is manager of the Venus Theatre, an independently owned house in Brooklyn, New York. Starting his career in 1936, he was an usher at the Apollo Theatre in the same sector and was duly made chief usher and then assistant manager. He was promoted to manage the Grandart house in 1937, where he stayed for a year and then came on to his present situation.

owns and is general manager of the Griggs Road Shows, with headquarters at Perry, Georgia. His circuit covers 20 small Georgia cities with a population of about a thousand people. First-run pictures, procured from leading exchanges, are exhibited. He previously owned the Star Theatre, which he later sold to Martin Theatres. Please keep us informed of your activities, Harry, for they sound mighty interesting.

was an assistant manager at a house in La Junta, Colorado, in 1936, when he started in theatre business. A few months later he was transferred to Fort Collins in the same state where he again served as an assistant. His latest move was to Las Cruces, New Mexico, where he is now at work at the Rio Grande Theatre, a Fox Inter Mountain house, doing a good job at managing.

entered service as doorman at the Palace Theatre, Athens, Ga., in 1930 and after a year was promoted to manage the Strand house in Athens. He returned to the first spot as assistant and then transferred to the new Georgia Theatre, where he now acts as manager and also handles publicity for this house, as well as for the Palace and Strand.

GEORGE E. KEENAN

began working in showbusiness as an office boy for Warner Brothers publicity department back in 1930. He assisted in this department in the preparation of publicity stories and newspaper contacts. His next job was acting as assistant manager of the Circle Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa., after which he was transferred in turn to the Forum and Savoy Theatres in Philadelphia, coming on to the Ambassador, in the same vicinity.

started in showbusiness fourteen years ago as an usher at the Elite Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., and then was promoted to manage the house. His next spots were the Novelty and Aspin houses, after which he turned to projection. He left for California and was set in as treasurer of Grauman's Chinese for Fox West Coast. We now find him in a managerial post at the Fox Marquis in Los Angeles and he's doing a smart job of work there.

manages the Circuit Theatre in Belle, Missouri, and reports much training and education in visual education and motion pictures at the University of Missouri from 1920-1924. During that time he handled motion picture work, also employing motion pictures in vocational agriculture. As a sideline he had his own shows. We anticipate frequent communication from you, Joel, so please be sure to keep us well informed of your activities.

is the skipper of the Capitol Theatre, Hartland, New Brunswick and has been in this industry since 1924. He began as an operator in a neighborhood theatre. Three months ago his theatre was renovated and is now a modern house with up-to-date projectors. Andy enjoys the Herald, especially the Round Table and we invite him to contribute to its pages.

started his theatre career in 1930 in Willimartic, Connecticut, where he owned the Strand Theatre. The Grand, in Taunton, Massachusetts, was another of his houses. He absented himself from show business for a while, but it wasn't long before he returned and we now find him managing the Rialto in Woonsocket, Rhode Island. We hope to hear from you frequently, Jim.

is the manager of the Rosedale Theatre, Rosedale, Miss. Eight years ago he started as apprentice at the Eupora Theatre in Eupora, Miss., doing the advertising, general show work, acting as chief projectionist and assistant manager. With so fine a background we are sure you are doing a good job and anticipate reports from you, from time to time, for the benefit of our other members.

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 132

Conducted by

F. H. RICHARDSON

Question No. 132 was: (A) How many spare carbons should be carried in stock? Where should they be stored and why? (B) Why is it essential to good results that carbon diameters match amperage recommendations of carbon manufacturers? (C) Name essential reasons for using a negative carbon with a diameter as small as possible.

The following made acceptable answers: S. Evans and C. Rau; G. E. Doe; J. R. Prater; H. Edwards; W. E. Limroth; C. Oldham, just returned from England; R. Faesel; M. and J. Devoy; W. Schoeneman; R. and K. Wells; J. A. Zachritz; G. H. Payne; L. H. Kelley; M. B. Stout; R. W. Groton; G. Burdis; P. E. Shell; L. Johnson; C. H. Lowrie; W. S. Maxwell; C. Hawkins; G. Thompson; D. N. Hennesy; R. Davis and M. F. Brown; P. Slobodny; F. W. Brandenburg; E. J. Brandell.

I have selected the reply of G. Thompson to Section A as best, all things considered. He says, "An ample stock of all sizes and kinds used should be kept in stock, but just how large that stock should be would, it seems to me, depend somewhat on distance of theatre from source of supply. In a large city, since a supply may be secured at any time, there would not be necessity for carrying such an ample supply as might seem advisable where distance is considerable and, possibly, shipment facilities are not too dependable.

"In any event, however, it would seem wise to stock as many carbons of each size and variety used as will last two full months. Then on the first day of each month order enough to bring the stock back to its two-month supply level. There is no possibility of loss through such procedure save through theft, and the stock may be locked up, either in the projection room or manager's office. Carbons do not deteriorate in any degree during any lapse of time, at least up to a period of years.

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 138

(A) Is screen illumination increased by forcing carbons above capacity?

(B) What candlepower are the various diameters of SRA carbons capable of producing?

(C) What will be the result of poor contact between carbon and carbon jaws?

(D) What should be provided by theatre managements for cleaning arc lamp carbon contacts?

"As to storage, it is essential that each carbon be kept in a warm, dry place for a considerable period of time before use. Its stock is very dense, but moisture nevertheless will penetrate, and such moisture is thrown off but slowly by moderate temperature. In my opinion, a supply lasting one week should be kept constantly stored near the projection room ceiling, the same replenished each day. From this stock carbons for each day's run should be placed on top of the lamphouse, where they will be subject to moderately high temperature. A two-day supply would be better.

"Too much bother to do all that, I presume some will say, but that is the way to do it. I do not regard anything within reason as too much bother if it gives promise of improving the excellence of what I am able to supply the audiences I am employed to serve."

Mr. Thompson, a Missouri man, is obviously a real projectionist. He does honor to the title!

(B) The reply of J. R. Prater would be hard to improve upon. He says, "It is essential to good results that carbon diameters match amperage as per recommendations of carbon manufacturers. These recommendations are based on scientific laboratory experiments which determine the point of maximum brilliance and steadiness of the arc much more accurately than it is possible for the projectionist to do.

An oversized positive will result in an unsteady arc, lowered brilliance and poor light quality. Too small a positive will result in spindling, wasted power consumed in overcoming the higher resistance of the spindled portion, an unstable arc, and consequently an unsteady light. An oversized negative burns to a large, blunt tip which obstructs too much of the light and allows the arc to wander or travel on the tip of the positive. Too small a negative will spindle and cause unnecessary waste of power, usually also causing an unsteady arc.

"Proper sizes of carbons are available for almost any desired amperage rating, and since both efficiency and light quality suffer when carbons are either too large or too small, there is no good reason for not burning the correct trim for the amperage employed."

R. K. Wells answers very briefly, but nevertheless correctly: "Because the carbon manufacturer knows more about carbons than any of we poor saps possibly can, and the trim the manufacturer recommends for any certain amperage is the trim that will, if properly handled, give best results."

R. Feasel says, "To secure best results it is advisable to use the carbon trim recommended by the manufacturer of the carbons being used. I say this because carbon diameters, like wire sizes, are designed to give maximum results at certain volume of current flow—certain amperage. They operate best and most efficiently within the recommended range of amperage. Any other amperage, over or under that recommended, will always result in loss of light or loss of wattage per candle power."

(C) W. Schoeneman says, "The smaller the negative carbon diameter the smaller will be the diameter of its tip. The smaller the negative carbon tip the less light it will obstruct. This holds good except that diameter must of course never be reduced to a point where the negative carbon will be overloaded, with resultant spindling."

J. A. Zachritz says, "Remembering to keep within range of current capacity, it stands to reason that the smaller the negative carbon diameter the smaller will be its tip, and the smaller its tip the loss proportion of the light emanating from the crater will be obstructed, hence wasted. Conversely, of course, the larger the tip the greater will be the proportion of light obstructed by it. Moreover, a two-large negative tends to unsteadiness of the arc."

Murphy in New England

William Patrick (Bill) Murphy on Tuesday assumed charge of the Maine, Massachusets and Rhode Island theatres of the Lockwood-Gordon New England circuit, making his headquarters in Boston. Mr. Murphy has been with Electrical Research Products for eight years, and previously was with Loew's and Casey and Wheeler.

TRADEVIEWS

IN THE recent production history of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, they never have been in such an advantageous spot as they are at present. MGM actually has 12 pictures finished and awaiting release—a schedule that takes them through every week, with a release, until the last day of this year. A condition new to MGM and one that certainly will place them in a position of doing even greater pictures than they have in the past, because of a breathing space, in their rush to meet release dates.

- Metro has waiting "Young Dr. Kildare," "Listen Darling," "Citadel," "The Hardys Out West," "The Shining Hour," "Flirtation with Fate," "Dramatic School," "Katharine the Last," "Christmas Carol" and "Sweethearts." And it has, in various forms of shooting, "New York Cinderella" with Tracy and Lamarr; "Honolulu" with Eleanor Powell, Bob Young and Burns and Allen; "Stand Up and Fight" with Bob Taylor and Wallie Beery; "Idiot's Delight," with Shearer and Gable; and "Ice Follies" with Crawford and Jimmie Stewart.

- Consequently, with the releases far ahead, with opportunities to see pictures much in advance of release to scheme better advertising, publicity and exploitation, AND MOST IMPORTANT, to give the producers a "breather," Metro should jump far ahead of itself in making the entertainment that won for it the reputation of "the Tiffany of production."

- Metro's big effort comes at a time when the industry needs it most, because nothing means anything other than good pictures, and good pictures will kill off all the obstacles MGM, and every other production organization and the entire picture industry, has been burdened with for months.

"to fill the heart"

IT is just possible that the motion picture tries too hard.

Arising from a desk amid the striving dins of the distribution center in New York, and laden with the contentions, concerns and projects of production in Hollywood, your editor went out to the mid-continent region a fortnight ago for an interlude of contact with America and its retail showmen.

Reflections on the experience tend to a conviction that it does not take so much to entertain the people.

If there is a formula, it is one of simplification rather than elaboration. Simplification is likely to take the greater daring and the greater skill.

About a quarter of the population of Oklahoma City and its environs out on the Great Plains went into a stampede over sight of a boy player of new fame and continued in a dither for about forty-eight hours with the arrival of a handful of other players. It is true that sector of the public had been given some vigorous preliminary treatments through the ministrations of Mr. E. B. Coleman, promoter of disturbances for M-G-M, and Mr. Arthur Eddy, inciter for Warner Brothers, but the susceptibility of the populace was high. To the Hollywood of ornate previews with bleacher seats and New York with its gilded first nights the manifestation is probably too familiar to be appreciated in its significances.

THE public insists on being entertained, but it can be entertained only in terms of its understanding. There is obviously entertainment for the multitudes in so slight an experience as seeing a player, even one only lightly powdered with the glamorous dust of Hollywood, emerge from a motor car, walk across a hotel lobby. There is thrill in a smile, ecstacy in an autograph.

As long as that interest survives, this is an industry.

There is a probability that some of the more pretentious story-and-production embroidery of the studios confuses the audience.

The market, too obviously to be a subject of argument, is a ham-and-eggs market.

There is a decided limit to any process of seeking ever to deliver bigger and better hams or eggs.

It is difficult to resist the observation that with the swift rise of some of the juveniles and adolescents of starland the demand is more for the fresh than the bigger and better.

The process of the over-elaboration that fails was demonstrated early in modern screen development by Mr. D. W. Griffith. His "Birth of a Nation" at $100,000, a straight line story of simple action and basic emotion, drew the millions. His "Intolerance", at $200,000, pursuing an abstract concept, titled with a word that is not in the speech of the commonalty, went intricately through four stories, magnificently told, and lost the audience between them.

The inevitability of a ceiling for production through which no production budget's millions can break was propounded the other night in Oklahoma City to Mr. George Schaefer, who has newly come to extended responsibilities for entertainment.

"It has been observed," remarked Mr. Schaefer, "that it is easier to fill the eye than the heart."

The cogency of that will be made emphatic by a moment's reflection on what production really buys when it makes a million-dollar picture. "Big" can be confused with "great".

MEETING COMPETITION

SPEAKING of the ingenuity and devices of showmen with Mr. David Palfreyman, the other day, sent him delving into the archives for the copy of a speech that Mr. Nat Williams of Thomasville down in Georgia made at the Lookout Mountain meeting last summer.

"Sometime ago, a Gypsy Smith tent revival hit us, and when he moves in you are really hit. We inserted the following in a small box in the weekly program: 'The revival opens Sunday. Mr. Gypsy Smith has more to offer you than we have. This theatre remains open, but not in a spirit of competition. If you want to see a picture, there will be one here for you, but there will be more for you at the tent. If you can't come to both, go to the revival.'

"I don't believe that this little spread got the revival a single person who would not have gone anyway, but it got us a column editorial in the local paper, Associated Press stories and, best of all, Gypsy Smith read it at a meeting attended by half the population, and spoke well of us from the pulpit. The audience applauded, and it undid the lifetime work of some fire-eating local preachers who had for years been advising their followers that the road to Hell was bordered by picture houses. It got us fifty new patrons, several of them zealots who had never seen a motion picture before."

SELLING MARS

THE radio-inspired Martian war scare appears to have come about mainly because, in mid-program, many listeners, having heard Charlie McCarthy, tuned away and fished into the middle of the excitement, missing the explanatory introduction. And that may be considered a spectacular exemplification of the destructive effect of admitting patrons in mid-picture.

The revival of "Things to Come", the Alexander Korda production of the H. G. Wells story, on the assumption that the Wellsian scientific fantasy has now been rendered more interesting to a larger public, may perhaps be an exploration of what the radio can do for a motion picture. It is not a box-office secret that the picture was no sensation on initial release. The picture, you will be remembering, contained a pictorialized preachment against war, and argument for the beneficence of science, with a deal of action, and a sprinkle of romance. Maybe it might be better to retitle it: "Boy Takes Girl on Space Ship".

This Week

Further Progress

As the weekend approached it was indicated that the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, Allied States Association and Independent theatre owner groups had reached what might be a basis for agreement with the representatives of distributors on a program of trade practice revision and self-regulation. A statement from the national headquarters of Allied in Washington, however, said it would be incorrect to announce that an agreement in principle had been reached because Allied's two main planks, abolition of block booking and theatre divorcement, had not been considered in the negotiations.

The report of the week's developments is on page 12.

Cole Reelected

Associate Theatre Owners of Texas reelected Colonel H. A. Cole president for the 18th time Wednesday at its Dallas convention.

The Texas affiliate in a resolution said Allied was responsible for the federal anti-trust suit against the majors but approved the self-regulation negotiations which, it said, resulted. The convention urged the Government action be pressed so that there may be restored independent production for distribution through independent channels, and that the suit be continued to force the majors from exhibition.

A resolution of thanks was voted Senator Neely and the United States Senate for passing the Neely anti-block booking bill.

Ed A. W. Lilly, Greenville, was elected secretary-treasurer, and Rueben Frels of Victoria, first vice-president.

UA Profit Sharing

Objections by Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin to the United Artists "profit-sharing" plan have made necessary preparation of new plan, which will probably be completed in time for annual meeting of stockholders, postponed from this week to November 29.

Mr. Chaplin and Miss Pickford are understood to have objected to that part of the original plan limiting participation of non-producing owners to $50,000 per year. The new "formula," details of which are not public, is reported to have Miss Pickford's approval, and Mr. Chaplin's is expected shortly.

Regarding present operating arrangement satisfactory, the UA meeting will not elect officers, nor fill the posts of chairman of the board, and president. Maurice Silverstone is chief executive of the company, and no other offices are necessary, United Artists feels.

The board of directors will meet Monday.

Labor Coast Victory

California voters Tuesday defeated by a substantial majority proposition No. 1, initiative referendum, which would have limited powers of all California labor organizations, eliminated secondary boycotts and sympathetic strikes. The law, of course, would have also applied to California studios, distribution and exhibition. The measure was one of the most bitterly fought issues on the lengthy ballot, being supported by chambers of commerce, merchants' and manufacturers' associations, and "big" business. Thousands of dollars were spent in the campaign, with every means of propaganda being utilized. All film labor groups collaborated with other unions in the fight to defeat the measure.

Air Agreement

An agreement under which the use of the "flash bulletin" radio news announcement technique will be abandoned on all but news programs was worked out in Washington Monday. Conferring with Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission were William S. Paley, president Columbia Broadcasting System; Lenox R. Lohr, president National Broadcasting Company, and Alfred J. McCosker, chairman of the board of Mutual Broadcasting System. The conference was an outgrowth of the Columbia network's "War of the World's" broadcast of October 30th, in which the H. G. Wells novel was dramatized so realistically that panic resulted in several localities.

Junior Revolt

The Junior Actors Guild Wednesday filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board asking revocation of the contract between the Screen Actors Guild and the Motion Picture Producers Association on the grounds that the contract deprives Junior Guild members of a voice in the operation of the Guild, the right to fix dues or initiate movements, and gives the Senior Guild domination over them. An early hearing date was promised.

Super-programs

Double bills, styled super-programs in England, are the subject of a dispute between distributors and exhibitors in Great Britain which threatens to become a major point of issue. Difference of opinion on the policy to be followed extends to within the ranks of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, an exhibitor difference not without parallel on this side of the Atlantic. Contributing to the troubled atmosphere is a decline in the amount of product available, September having shown a sharp drop in releases.

Aubrey Flanagan, writing from London, discusses the situation on page 48.

Pathe Liquidation

Liquidation of the company and distribution of its assets will be the subject of a special meeting of Pathe stockholders December 6. The board of directors Tuesday adopted a resolution asking the meeting to approve the plans.

While it has been reported that some of Pathe Film Corporation's principal assets—a 3,500 share block of Dupont stock, 35 per cent of the total Dupont stock outstanding—might be sold, spokesmen for Dupont denied this. Pathe also owns a laboratory for developing and printing at Bound Brook, N. J.

Pathe officials declared the purpose of the liquidation was to permit income from its investment in Dupont Film Manufacturing Corporation to pass directly to stockholders. Chairman Robert R. Young, of the Alleghany Corporation, is one of the largest common stockholders.

Le Baron In Charge

William Le Baron has been placed in charge of all Paramount production facilities. Adolph Zukor, until recently in this post, sails soon for London to assume control of theatre, production, and distribution activities there. Y. Frank Freeman, until recently vice-president in charge of theatre operation, is undertaking new duties as corporation representative on the coast.

Details are on page 26.

Geneva on the Screen

The League of Nations at Geneva, acting on the report of a special committee appointed to study the problem some time ago, will produce and distribute short films in the documentary class explaining its work and advancing its ideals. The films will be made in English and French with dubbed prints added in the languages of the League's 58 members. Theatrical distribution in all countries is hoped for, the example of the United States Government's two recent documentaries and its series on Social Security having been studied.

Details of the plan are explained on page 25.

Abiding by Wage Law

Motion picture employers covered by the federal wage and hour law are abiding by its provisions where union labor is employed, and no complaints of any consequence have so far been received, according to International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees. None of the employers has conferred with the IATSE in New York following the ruling by the office of Elmer Andrews, administrator, in Washington, that they should reach an agreement with the unions on the status of studio workers. The union is standing on the informal ruling of the administrator's counsel that theatres are not affected.

Federal Control of Advertising Is Proposed by Thurman Arnold

The nature of the United States Government's "business control" program was further unfolded this week in Washington by Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, who declared the anti-trust laws should be revised to provide for federal control of advertising. Mr. Arnold, incidentally, is the prosecutor of the Government's trust suit against the motion picture business.

Monopoly is fostered when advertising is used to put competitors at a disadvantage for the sole reason that they do not have resources sufficient to expand equally large sums in advertising particular products or the services of particular companies, Mr. Arnold declared in agreeing to a consent decree in the Government's suit against finance companies owned by the Ford and Chrysler automobile interests, which decree contains restrictions on the advertising of those finance companies.

The conditions which prevailed in the advertising of the Ford and Chrysler finance companies exist also in other fields, Mr. Arnold charged, without specifying the other fields.

"By a variety of modern refinements upon the methods of the circus barker, advertising is used to build up public preference for the products of one producer or manufacturer solely because he has the most advertising money and can make the most noise. To meet the monopoly which this advertising gives, the anti-trust laws by themselves are inadequate.

"Such a method of advertising has never been held to be violative of the anti-trust laws, and the legality of its uses, in the absence of positive fraud, has not been questioned. Nevertheless, the purpose of the anti-trust laws will be furthered if advertising is limited to its proper function of building up consumption, and if restrictions are placed against its use for the purpose of giving a monopoly advantage to the competitor with the largest pocketbook. The result is either a wasteful system of distribution on the one hand, or monopoly on the other," he concluded.

Under the terms of the consent decree, Ford and Chrysler agree not to advertise their own finance companies by name unless they name all competing finance companies in the same field. No restrictions whatever, however, will be imposed upon the advertising of the latter.

Public Relations

Russell Birdwell, publicity agent for Selznick International, addressing the Advertising Club of San Diego Wednesday, suggested "a public relaitons counselor, to be appointed for life, to represent the film industry to the world" and urged a conference of film leaders with Government agencies for the defense of democracy "by telling the world through films that the American way of life is the best. . . ."

Radio Renewal

"Good News of 1939," radio program co-sponsored by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and General Foods Corporation, has been renewed for another 13 weeks, effective at the close of the contract on December 29th.

"Mercury Theatre of the Air" will supplant "Hollywood Hotel," pioneer film program on the air, for Campbell Soup Company, effective December 9th.

No Backing Down

American distributors definitely and unequivocally have been told by the Italian Government of Benito Mussolini that there will be no backing down on the Italian law, becoming effective January 1st, establishing a virtual governmental film monopoly in Italy, placing distribution in the hands of a governmental agency. This became known Monday following "final" conversations in Rome between Fay Allport, of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, for the distributors, and officials of the Italian government.

Universal may continue in the Italian market because of a five year licensing contract for the sale of its product in Italy by a resident agent last summer, prior to the formation of E. N. I. C. The company is understood to have asked for a ruling on the subject from Marchese Paulucci di Calboldi, director of the Italian agency, in London this week.

SUBSTANTIAL AGREEMENT APPEARS REACHED ON SELF-REGULATION

But Myers Says Allied Cannot Enter Pact at Present with Block Sales Ban and Divorcement Not Discussed

Exhibitors of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, Allied States Association and the state organizations which are not affiliated, appear to have reached substantial agreement with distributors on a program of self-regulation, and, as the weekend approaches, pointing toward final conversations, objections came from apparently only one sector, the Washington headquarters of Allied.

Arriving in New York Tuesday morning from his organization's annual convention at Oklahoma City, after a short stopover at his home in Mississippi, Edward Lee Kuykendall, MPTOA president, met Wednesday with Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, acting for the distributors, to arrange for final conferences between the distributors' and the MPTOA negotiating committees.

These will be held next week, when concluding discussions also will be held between the distributors and the lone remaining exhibitor group, representing 1,600 theatres affiliated with neither Allied nor MPTO.

Allied Statements Vary

On the Allied side indications of an accord, at least in principle, came from an Allied directors' meeting in Chicago last Thursday, while Allied headquarters in Washington, focal point of complaints against the industry resulting in the pending Government trust suit, flatly states: "No Agreement Reached."

Following Allied's Chicago meeting last week, Colonel H. A. Cole, Texas, head of the organization's self-regulation negotiating committee, indicated that when the proposals of both sides were put down in writing, Allied and the distributors would reach an understanding, adding that the setting up of machinery for enforcement would be of extreme importance.

At his Texas organization's convention Wednesday Colonel Cole approved the current trade practice negotiations. (See page 8.)

William F. Rodgers, leader of the distributors' negotiating committee, who was on for the Allied Chicago meeting, gave similar indications of an agreement.

Await Final Action

Mr. Cole in Chicago explained the position of the Allied directors with this statement: "All subjects brought forward by both sides have been fully discussed. The Allied committee has received from the distributors' committee the maximum concessions which the distributors feel that they can yield. Publication of the details must await final action by the several interested groups based on a written statement setting forth all the details. There being no occasion for further oral discussion at this time, meetings were suspended to enable a drafting committee to reduce to writing all the matters discussed, including the details of the industry machinery which has been proposed for interpreting and applying the fair trade practices under consideration." (The "machinery" presumably is a network of "conciliation" boards in film exchange centers.)

When and if a satisfactory document has been evolved, "it will, following a resolution of the Allied board of directors, be reported back to the board for final action."

Myers Asks "Correction"

Then, following announcement in the trade press of Allied's "agreement in principle," the Washington Allied headquarters, presided over by Abram F. Myers, issued a statement, on Wednesday, asking the press to publish a denial of any agreement. The impressions gained in Chicago both from Allied's Colonel Cole and from Mr. Rodgers were called "inaccurate" in the statement from the office of Mr. Myers, who asked that they be corrected.

Apparently such a "correction" might assure an Allied agreement, for the statement from Mr. Myers' office added: "Only by keeping the record straight can confidence in the situation be maintained and the proceedings carried to a full development and logical conclusion."

Cites Board's Resolution

After citing Allied board's resolution investing itself with the right finally to approve and ratify any program evolved, the statement from Mr. Myers' office said: "An additional and important reason why Allied's (negotiating) committee could not enter into an agreement at this time is that the two main planks on Allied's (general legislative) program—(a) Abolishment of compulsory block booking and blind selling, and (b) Separation of production and distribution from exhibition (both of which are demanded in the Government's anti-trust suit against majors)—have not been considered in the negotiations. The reason for this is that the distributors' committee announced that it was not authorized to go any further on one (the first) than to offer a small cancellation privilege and was not authorized to deal with the other at all.

"It goes without saying that the Allied board will want to consider with the greatest care any proposed agreement which does not include the two points for which Allied has waged a campaign for many years."

This much is known: A large number of Allied theatre-owning leaders are determined to proceed with negotiations to effect a program, evidently fully aware that distributors have no intention of effecting an industry program which would require them to abolish block booking or divorce their exhibition holdings.

Date and Personnel

Returning to the position of the MPTOA in their trade practice relations with distributors, it is learned that the only differences standing between the two are the date for enacting the program and the personnel of the local "conciliation" boards, MPTOA maintaining that the program should be placed in effect immediately on its formal adoption, while some distributors are inclined to favor a delay until the beginning of the 1939-40 buying season in the summer. The MPTOA also aims to have local exhibitor-exchange personnel on the boards, whereas some distributor sentiment leans toward personnel selection by the combined negotiating committees of the distributors, Allied, MPTOA and unaffiliated exhibitor groups.

In any event, the best opinion on Broadway is that within a few days all hands will be participating in the drafting of a final form for self-regulation, with early completion, and the date of enactment from there depending on the success of bargaining between distributor and exhibitor.

U. S., in Criminal Action, Charges B & K Violated Consent Decree

The United States Government on Wednesday filed criminal contempt proceedings in Chicago against Balaban & Katz, Barney Balaban and all major distributors, except Columbia, charging violation of a consent decree handed down in federal court in Chicago in 1932. The action was filed before Federal Judge Woodward.

With particular reference to monopoly of Chicago first-runs, which, it is alleged, prevents the Oriental, McVicker's, State-Lake, and Woods theatres from getting first-run pictures when subsequent-run B.&K. theatres obtain films, the defendants were asked to show cause by November 28th. This charge is punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Depositions from theatre and exchange officials were taken Thursday in Chicago by Rosenberg & Stein, attorneys for the independent theatremen in their anti-trust suit against B.&K. and the major companies in preparation for the next hearing, late this month.

First open court scrimmage between the Government, plaintiff, and the defendant major distributors, in the Department of Justice anti-trust suit against the eight large companies, was set for 10:30 Thursday morning in the federal court of Judge William A. Bondy, in New York, with all indications pointing to a vigorous stand by the Department against the majors' petitions for bills of particulars, on the grounds that the particulars requested are too voluminous, and, furthermore, that to divulge them would be to disclose the identity of Government witnesses.

Another argument was to be the Government contention that information sought is within the defendants' knowledge.

Original Stories Again Supply Most Sources for Material to Round Out Product for the Current Season

Acquiring new properties in the marked competitive bidding, 16 Hollywood producers, including all the large companies, have obtained 103 stories with which further to round out the 1938-39 feature commitments. Some of the acquisitions have gained marked recognition in their original forms of novel, stage play and magazine story, giving good possibilities for some worthwhile screen entertainment in the remaining months of the season.

The deals were consummated in the past eight weeks, 51 having been closed in September and 52 in October, each month exceeding in total all but three previous months since September of 1937, the past August, with its 93 purchases, topping all.

Original stories, moulded frequently by up-to-the-minute world headlines, continue to supply the bulk of film stories, Hollywood's producers buying 62 originals, 31 books, six magazine yarns and only three plays in the eight weeks surveyed.

Universal was the most active story-buyer, the comparatively new management in that company building up its story reserve with 21 acquisitions. Stage and Screen Productions made the biggest purchase for an independent in years, getting 20 "Bomba" books, of the Roy Rockwood series, in one deal.

MGM Acquires 18 Stories

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, always active in story buying, acquired 18 properties in the eight weeks, followed by the 12 purchased by United Artists, nine by Twentieth Century-Fox, six by Paramount, four by Warners, three each by Republic and Fine Arts, and one each for RKO, Columbia, Monogram, Eddie Le Baron Productions, Roadshow Pictures, Bud Barsky and Charles Rogers.

Some of the highlight purchases in the eight weeks included Sigmund Spaeth's "Gentlemen, Be Seated," by MGM; "I Married an Angel," current Broadway play, also bought by MGM; Evelyn Wells' "Kit Carson, Avenger," by Edward Small; Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "Hound of the Baskervilles," acquired by Twentieth Century-Fox, and Ed Sullivan's "Czar of Broadway," to Universal, to mention a few.

THREE BABIES IN ONE ROLE

Bonnie Belle Baker, ten days old; Sylvia McClure, eight months, and Jackie Taylor, one year, all play the role of John Horace Mason, Jr., in the David O. Selznick picture, "Made for Each Other". In a single day Bonnie Belle became the newly born Junior, Sylvia portrayed the youngster at the age of four months, and Jackie showed how Junior managed his first steps.

Bonnie Belle's earnings for a single day's work brought her parents $75, less $1.50 for old age pension and unemployment insurance. She was permitted to work no more than 20 minutes total time before the cameras. Sylvia earned $15.50, and worked two hours, while Jackie, also working two hours, drew $11.50.

The publicity department of Selznick International Pictures had a few words for it, to wit: "The inexorable march of time had taken its toll."

Maurice Kincler, from Warner Brothers foreign department, has joined the Warner Brothers sales staff in Pittsburgh and will handle the West Virginia territory.

Thousands Watch Rogers Memorial Site Dedication

On what would have been his 59th birthday, thousands of his former neighbors—cattlemen, oil men, country folk, Indians—marched past the site of the new $200,000 Will Rogers Memorial Museum, on November 4, at Claremore, Oklahoma, the beloved actor's birthplace. Occasion was the dedication, and cornerstone laying, of the new edifice, on a 17-acre hilltop site given to the state by his widow.

Cornerstone laying was under the auspices of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Oklahoma. Jesse Jones, treasurer of the Rogers National Memorial Fund, and chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was the chief speaker. The broadcast, carried by the National Broadcasting Company, included "cut-in" tributes from President Roosevelt, Eddie Cantor, Fred Stone, Irwin S. Cobb, George M. Cohan, Amon Carter.

After the ceremonies, a statue by sculptor Joe Davidson, of Will Rogers, was unveiled. Governor Marland, a host of notables, and an estimated 20,000 attended.

Among the film industry's representatives was Harry D. Graham, Universal district manager, who came at the invitation of the Governor.

Paramount is reported dickering with the Rogers family for permission to do a picture on Rogers with Bob Burns in title role.

GN May Produce Films in England

Besides having practically closed a deal for five-year English distribution with an English company, Grand National may even produce pictures there, according to Earl W. Hammons, Grand National Pictures president, who returned last week from London, on the Queen Mary.

If Grand National does produce in England, its domestic players, stories, and other facilities will be used in conjunction with those of the British affiliate, according to Mr. Hammons. The production will be jointly financed, and distributed here as well as in England.

Declaring that financing was completed for Grand National, Mr. Hammons further asserted no English money was involved, and that he had turned down a considerable offer from English financier Louis Jackson, for interest in the company. He revealed, however, that Jackson will distribute 40 Educational shorts reissues.

World-wide distribution for the 44 pictures on its first year's program is assured to Grand National, according to foreign manager J. C. Barnstyn.

ANTI-NAZIS PROTEST RIEFENSTAHL'S VISIT TO CIRCULATE OLYMPIC FILM

League Brands Picture of 1936 Event Hitler Propaganda, as Actress-Dictator of German Industry Arrives in New York

The Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, claiming a membership of 100,000, opened a campaign Monday to enlist the support of the public and the industry to block any efforts of Miss Leni Riefenstahl, now in New York from Berlin, to get nationwide circulation for the Nazi's motion pictures on the 1936 Olympic Games that were held in Germany.

Branding the pictures as out-and-out Nazi propaganda, the League said they are intended to serve as part of the Nazi campaign "to flood the United States with Nazi doctrines" and are "in accord with recent statements by German consuls here and German officials abroad in which they attacked American principles and ethics" and seek "to prove the superiority of Nazism".

Miss Riefenstahl is accompanied on her American visit by Ernst Jaeger, active in motion picture affairs in Berlin. Herr Jaeger this week said that her visit was without motion picture significances, indicating that the product had been delivered to Tobis Films* for distribution. Miss Riefenstahl was here, it was indicated, because of her "interest in America and as a sportswoman."

Miss Riefenstahl, attractive, auburn-haired, actress and socalled "film queen" of Germany, arrived in New York Saturday morning from Germany aboard the North German Lloyd Liner Europa, ostensibly to push the Olympia films. She is anything but the typical sturdy blonde German type, and denied vigorously to ship news reporters that a "romance" existed between her and Der Feuhrer.

Dictator of Nazi Films

Her long association with Hitler, however, beginning in 1932, one year before he became Reichsfuehrer, is generally supposed to have got her the job of virtual dictator over Germany's Nazi operated motion picture industry. And so she stood two years ago, when entrusted with the task of moulding the international Olympic sports games to conform to Nazi "cultural" (propaganda) teachings. Accordingly she decreed that even the American newsreels covering the events must do so in a way to advertise Germany, and on her terms. All else was streng verboten.

This was disclosed by Motion Picture Herald on August 8, 1936 when the official text of the order was published. It reported the extent to which American newsreel cameramen's actions were controlled by the Hitler government during the games, prohibiting their filming of the events except under the instructions and close supervision of Miss Riefenstahl.

Chancellor Hitler took steps to make certain that there would be full compliance by the American newsreels when he compelled them to sign a contract of strong regulatory content governing their coverage of the Olympics.

LENI RIEFENSTAHL

The Nazis even took from the International Olympia committeemen, representing the sports countries of the world, all authority on American and other foreign newsreel activities, and assigned to the Riefenstahl agency "all copyrights" on the filming.

Motion Picture Herald said at the time that "one of the admitted reasons for Hitler's self-acquired control of the coverage of the Olympic Games by American and other foreign newsreels at Berlin is to use the film thus photographed not only in a huge propaganda motion picture, but subsequently in a series of short subjects." The Nazis got some 1,500,000 feet of exposed negative for the purpose.

Now, after apparent lack of success with the anticipated widespread circulation of the films in this country, Miss Riefenstahl, producer of Universal's "S.O.S. Iceberg" and "The Blue Light," is said to have come over personally to see what might be done about it.

Described on her arrival by Associated Press as "a plumber's daughter who became Germany's film queen and who has been considered one of Adolph Hitler's few women friends," Miss Riefenstahl was promised "strong opposition" in her mission to acquire American showings. Claiming the support to "boycott" the "Olympia" film from independent distributors, the Anti-Nazi League on Monday declared it was going after similar support from Hollywood and the New York companies.

Says Athletes Became Chattels

The League reported that Jeremiah T. Mahoney, former Supreme Court justice and described as having been in "vigorous opposition" to participation of American teams in the 1936 German Olympics, has criticized the Hitler-Riefenstahl films on the grounds that the games themselves were merely Nazi propaganda. "The importance of the games from an athletic standpoint was forgotten," said Mr. Mahoney, speaking as former president of the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union. "The games were used for Nazi propaganda." The Olympics' ideal was forgotten, the athletes becoming mere chattels performing for the benefit of the Nazis.

League officials claim the immediate active support of several foreign film importers in New York in the fight against Miss Riefenstahl's efforts to get circulation for her pictures. World Pictures, Atlantic Films, Garrison Films, Franco-American Pictures, Seiden Productions were among those listed.

Irving Shapiro, president of World Pictures, on Monday, predicted that no distributor in America would handle the film, according to the League, which also announced that Thomas J. Brandon, treasurer and general manager of Garrison Films, believed that no newspaper, distributor or film corporation should cooperate with Miss Riefenstahl in any way.

Joseph Seiden, president of Seiden Productions, saw any profits taken from the film in this country as being used "in the furtherance of Nazi propaganda both here and abroad."

League Formed in 1933

The Anti-Nazi League was started in New York in 1933 to establish boycotts of German goods. Since that year imports of German goods have dropped over 50 per cent, they declare.

Headquarters are at 20 West 47th Street, New York, but chapters are being organized all over the country in key cities.

Samuel Untermeyer was president for years but resigned last May due to his age. No new president has been selected as yet. Vice-presidents are Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, New York; John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church, New York; Bishop Francis J. McConnell, presiding Bishop of North Atlantic states of Methodist Episcopal Church; Clarence H. Low, attorney and treasurer of the New York State Democratic Committee; Frank P. Walsh, and Rabbi Leon Fram, of Detroit.

The executive director is Johan Smertenko, author and lecturer.

Louis Meyers, one of the founders of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League and a prominent figure in New York theatre circles, died at his home in New York's Bronx, Tuesday morning.

He was a vice-president of the Order Sons of Zion, acting treasurer of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League and a treasurer of the New York Independent Theatre Owners Association. Until recently, he had been the operator of the Five Boroughs Theatre Circuit.

National Decency Legion Classifies Eleven Productions

Of 11 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week four were approved for general patronage, six were listed as unobjectionable for adults and one was cited as objectionable in part. The pictures and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Hard to Get," "Just Around the Corner," "Prairie Justice," The "Young in Heart." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "The Great Waltz," "Irish and Proud of It," "I Stand Accused," "Tarnished Angel," "Thanks for the Memory," "Under the Big Top." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "This'll Make You Whistle."

It is presumed that Herr Jaeger refers to the German Tobis: Tobis-Europa-Filmverleih, G.m.b.H., Tobis-Melofilm, G.m.b.H., Tobis-Cinema-Film, A.G., or to Tobis-Rota-Film, A.G., all of Berlin; American Tobis went out of business some months ago, and the telephone at its former headquarters,* 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, is reported disconnected.

HEADLINE FLIGHTS AND WORLD'S AIR MINDEDNESS BRING SCORE OF FILMS

New Rush of Aviation Subjects Follows Hughes' Globe-Circling Tour and Corrigan's Drop-In Visit to Ireland

Two of the year's great headlines—the round the world flight of Howard Hughes and the "wrong way" flight of Douglas Corrigan—and the prevailing world air mindedness, militaristically, plus the box-office success of M-G-M's "Test Pilot," have combined to bring to exhibitors at least a score of pictures concerning some phase of airplane activity during the new season.

Leadoff in the surge of aviation pictures is Paramount's "Men with Wings," a picturization in color of the cavalcade of American airmen since the Wright Brothers epochal flight at Kitty Hawk. This is styled as a special release. It was shown in selected spots last month and is now ready for general distribution.

The prize exploitation package of the lot, however, will be RKO's feature starring Corrigan, now tentatively titled "The Flying Irishman", and originally announced as "Born To Fly". Shooting started this week, with Robert Armstrong and Paul Kelly signed to support the young Irishman who "started out for California" and landed in Ireland.

RKO is planning two other air stories, the greater of which will be "Men Against the Sky," a cavalcade of aviation. No definite plans have been announced for the picture beyond the fact that the story will be built against a background of aviation history. Robert Sisk will produce this, as well as the studio's other air story, "Five Who Came Back," which deals with the plight of eight persons marooned in a jungle when their airplane crashes. The melodramatic turning point comes when the plane, repaired, is able to bring only five of them to civilization.

Warners Complete Four

Warners has four air pictures—all already finished. The remake of "The Dawn Patrol," starring Errol Flynn and featuring Basil Rathbone and David Niven, is being released Armistice Day. Set for December 17 release is "Secret Service of the Air," first of a series of Secret Service stories featuring Ronald Reagan. The others in the series necessarily will not be laid in the sky. Ila Rhodes has the lead opposite Reagan in the first subject.

"Wings of the Navy," Warner picturization of the Navy's air fleet and featuring George Brent, Olivia de Havilland and John Payne, will be issued in January. Kay Francis' final picture for the studio, "Women in the Wind," featuring William Gargan and Maxie Rosenbloom, deals with an aviatrix's life.

Monogram Series

Monogram will have a series of air pictures based on Hal Forrest's newspaper cartoon strip, "Tailspin Tommy," John Trent, former transport pilot turned actor, will have the title role. The first will be "Midnight Patrol," and will start shooting November 15, with Paul Malvern producing. There will be four in the series.

Now in production at Universal is "Plane 66," with Kent Taylor, Rochelle Hudson, Marion Martin and Lucien Littlefield in the top roles. The story deals with "sky police."

Twentieth Century-Fox has in work a high budget production, "Tail Spin." Top players to date are Alice Faye, Nancy Kelly, Constance Bennett, Kane Richmond and Jane Wyman.

Howard Hawks, who directed "Ceiling Zero," one of the first pictures of commercial air travel and produced by Warners in 1935, has been signed by Columbia to produce and direct "Plane No. 4," now being written by William Rankin, Elenore Griffin and Jules Furthman.

Republic joins the cycle with the signing of Roscoe Turner, veteran pilot who established several flight records, for a featured role in "Flight at Midnight." Turner enacts the role of a flight inspector, who tests commercial planes before they are put into use by airlines. John H. Auer will produce and direct.

Sol Lesser's Principal Pictures plans "Wings of Tomorrow," whose exploitation possibilities will be aimed at the Junior Birdmen and other organizations of model airplane enthusiasts. Starred will be Tommy Kelly, who first won screen renown in the title role of Selznick's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

Grand National will have two sky pictures. One will be produced by Grand National itself under the supervision of Jack Skirball. The other will be made by Fine Arts Pictures for Grand National release.

The first, "Marine Flight," will deal with an inventor of a robot which automatically pilots airplanes. The other, "Never Mind the Guard," will be a story of an aviatrix-explorer.

MGM, with all its success with "Test Pilot," has no immediate plans for future aviation films.

RETIREMENT FUND FOR GRIFFITH STAFF

The retirement plan for approximately 1,000 male employees of the Griffith Amusement Company has been approved by the directors and partners of the Griffith companies after more than a week of discussions. The plan will allow employees to retire at the age of 65 years on two-thirds of their salaries. Employees will pay in three per cent of their salary, with the Griffith companies contributing the difference necessary for the John Hancock and Phoenix-Mutual insurance companies to guarantee the payments.

The retirement fund is provided for men only, since, the company said, the women employees of the theatres usually work such a short time. An employee may retire at the end of five years of operation of the new system and receive about 17 per cent of his salary, or one-fourth of the accrued benefits. At the end of 20 years' service, the employee would receive the entire accrued benefit.

David Whalen has resigned as publicity representative for Herman Rifkin, Republic franchise holder of Boston.

Warners' British Budget 3½ Million

Warner Brothers' 1939-40 English production plans calls for the making of 16 pictures at Teddington, the company's British studio, with a budget of approximately $3,500,000, according to Sam Morris, foreign head of the company. Some of the films may be distributed in this country, with one of them a triple credit and several double credit pictures for the English quota.

Mr. Morris, who returned from Europe last Friday after attending the opening of the new Warner theatre in London, said that the company's foreign business for the fiscal year ending December 31st would be better than last year's, but denied that there would be any expansion of the company's theatre holdings abroad, as the new theatre in London and the Apollo in Paris serve as first run "show windows," and are considered sufficient for the purpose.

Speaking about the European film situation in general, Mr. Morris said: "Europeans want and need American product, but it must be apparent that merit as a fair trading basis is being stifled by certain countries and the only alternative is to cease operations." With regard to the Italian situation, Mr. Morris said he did not believe a settlement could be reached, and that Warners' was liquidating its holdings and booking no future playdates in that country.

Jack Warner returns to New York on November 24th, on the Normandie. Joseph Hummel, assistant to Mr. Morris, may leave for Europe soon.

Discuss Monogram Foreign Pictures

Possiblity that Monogram may produce four or more pictures a year in England, was seen as the result of this week of talks between William J. Gell, managing director of Pathe Pictures, Ltd., and Arthur Levey, Monogram English representative, on the one hand, and Monogram president W. Ray Johnston and production chief Scott Dunlap.

Mr. Gell arrived last week on the Queen Mary, with Mr. Levey. The understood intention of the two was not only to persuade Monogram to enter British production, but to effect renewal of the present distribution deal on a longer term basis (the present deal has only two years to go); closer co-operation between the two companies; "swapping" of stories and talent.

Pathe is an Associated British Pictures subsidiary. It produces about 12 pictures a year, taking care of quota requirements for Monogram.

On his arrival here Mr. Gell told the press that England might join America in withdrawing from the Italian film field.

The Young In Heart

Commercially as promising as it is artistically eloquent, it has advantages of a capital cast, sound story, excellent direction, topnotch production, but above all a touching human quality which gives it true greatness in its spiritual theme. The fact that the screen play and the creative personnel seem to present this spiritual quality in rather a shamefaced manner, until even the hardest-boiled customer will have been won over, gives it all the more strength and wallop as entertainment.

In the theme of The Young In Heart, translated from I. A. R. Wylie's story, 'The Gay Banditti,' Selznick and his aides have shrewdly calculated the prevailing public mood. It will provoke discussion of the kind that registers at the b.o. Underneath its smart trappings, its flip and blase pretenses, the drama of an old woman's conquest of a family of shrewd renegades throbs with emotion that will touch and exalt any audience. The picture's spell grows irresistibly through amusing and diverting incident and pleasantries of expert characterization into its final phases of reformation of the scalawags.

Brilliant direction by Richard Wallace sustains the fine essence Selznick has put into the picture from every angle of discriminating showmanship and careful preparation. Smooth as is the continuity, so equally smooth is the changing of the characters, of necessity delicate in the handling, which is the very sum and substance of the tale. Wallace elevates himself to the directorial high rank in his taste and craftsmanship.

The playing is of the highest standards. Janet Gaynor has never been seen to better advantage. Roland Young is flawless in his delivery of the cunning faker who is head of the family of gay banditti and sets out to trip a wealthy, lonely old woman whose confidence they have contrived to win. Paulette Goddard is outstanding in charm, poise, persuasiveness and puts herself in line for other roles of first consequence. Fine sincerity is in her level-eyed, direct manner and effective reading of lines.

Two other screen first timers distinguish themselves in the principal bracket, Minnie Dupree, who plays the old lady with heart-tugging sincerity and simplicity, and Richard Carlson, playing the Scot suitor of Miss Gaynor with rugged individuality. Miss Dupree expands her character as a woman of mellow understanding and a faith in the polished larcenists who covet her fortune which works the miracle of their reformation. Character in less expert hands might easily have become a figure of maudlin caricature. Carlson shows a personality and talent which should carry him far.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is the son in the banditti family whose love for a girl without money, Miss Goddard, transforms him from a polished drone to a man of toil. Billie Burke carries her interpretation of the vacant pated, zaney character of the mother to the bright edge of comedy just short of farce with excellent artistry. Henry Stephenson does a fine role as the old lady's lawyer. Contributing solid support in lesser parts are Lawrence Grant, Walter Kingsford, Eily Malyon, Tom Ricketts, Margaret Early and Lucile Watson. Irvin S. Cobb gets a brief flash.

Paul Osborn's screen play has both excellent craftsmanship and rich emotional substance, builds constantly in interest and forcefulness and avoids the perils of over sentimentality in dealing with the relations between the old lady and her crook guests. Dialog is smart but also direct and human. Spiritual implications in story have been beautifully treated. Narrative, briefly, is the dramatic contest between a charming group of confirmed renegades who live by wile and guile, and an elderly woman they befriend for purposes of loot only to fall moral victims, eventually, to her superior influence. The intended sap becomes the savior, and the Carleton family find work isn't so dreadful, love is something that can flourish without extravagant wealth and happiness is a thing not necessarily achieved by trickery. Faith and confidence turn the trick. Charles Bennett adapted the tale.

PARAMOUNT ENTERING TELEVISION; McDONALD HITS MARKETING NOW

Date Is Still To Be Set, Says Griffis; Zenith President Calls Interference by Automobile Sparkplugs Serious Problem

Hollywood's first open bid for participation in television came Monday afternoon with the announcement from Stanton Griffis, banker and chairman of Paramount Pictures' executive committee, that his company will be in on "the new art," as "a leader," no matter what form the new medium assumes, or when and where.

Other than Radio-Keith-Orpheum and its National Broadcasting-RCA radio-television affiliation, Paramount is the only motion picture company to openly and tangibly align itself with telecasting, having now set plans to proceed through the Dumont Laboratories, headed by Allen B. Dumont.

Mr. Griffis admitted that no time has been set for Paramount's active public starting with television, and, apparently anxious to allay any fears that might develop in the film business over television as a film box office competitor, he hastened to explain that telecasting will aid rather than hurt theatres. "We feel it will be an ally to motion pictures," he added.

The announcement that Hollywood is preparing to assume responsibility for participation in the development of the new entertainment field was made by Mr. Griffis before 20 newsmen who had been called to the Paramount studio in Hollywood to a press conference for the purpose.

That television is much closer to becoming an accomplished fact than the public imagines was indicated by Mr. Griffis. Dumont Laboratories has been licensed by the Federal Communications Commission to conduct experimental broadcast television transmission, Mr. Griffis disclosed, and a transmitter located at Montclair, N. J., is expected to be in operation by January.

Mr. Dumont was said by the Paramount announcement to occupy an important position in the television field, having pioneered in the application of the Cathode ray to television." He will supervise the production of television receiver sets that will bring in present broadcasts and will be placed on the market in New York and elsewhere shortly. The sets will cost between $150 and $200 each.

"Favorable Position"

One thing that heretofore has limited commercialization of television is that it consumed such a width that wave bands set aside for it by the FCC afforded only six channels. The Dumont system, however, requires only three megacycles which is just half of the width required by all other television systems, thereby raising the number of available channels to 12, and as a result, Paramount is confident that its contact with Dumont puts it in a favorable position to develop in the television field, Mr. Griffis said.

"Television entertainment may be utilized, of course, not only through the present style of dramatic presentations and specialty programs, in fact almost any type of offering that is primarily narrative in its nature, but it will have a tremendous field in the reporting of important current events, supplementing and coordinating the activities of the present method of newsreel reporting. This is where the motion picture producer becomes involved.

"It is inevitable, however, that television entertainment will be edited so as to give the finest performances possible and this means that much, if not a great majority, of television presentations must be photographed entertainment. Televised movies must excel any performances acted directly for the television transmitter.

FHA PLANS COLOR FILMS

Federal Housing Administration Tuesday became the first federal agency to undertake the production of motion pictures in color, asking for bids November 18th for productions of three color films, sound and silent, in both 35 and 16 mm. widths, depicting the activities and accomplishments of the FHA.

The first picture under the new contract, which will run until June 30th next, will be a film of not more than 2,000 feet, and perhaps followed by pictures as long as 4,000 feet. In the past the average FHA film has been about 700 feet.

"Increase Theatre Attendance"

"Finally, experiments on the controlled transmission of television images by means of coaxial cable have so far indicated a transmission cost rendering this method practically prohibitive in making television programs available to widely scattered local stations. The motion picture industry already has solved this problem of transmission. It simply records these images on film and sends them around in cans."

Pleading deep technological ignorance of the subject of television, Mr. Griffis refrained from the use of exact dates and cost figures.

The popularization of television as home entertainment will by no means curtail but rather increase theatre attendance, he said, because by the time receivers are developed to afford a picture large enough for group observation, engineers will have perfected the means of bringing sports events and others of general interest direct to picture screens in the same form as present newsreels. Indicative of the trend in this direction, he said, is the offer already turned down by him in his capacity as board chairman of Madison Square Garden, New York, for television rights of all boxing matches to be held there over a long period.

"Yes," he replied in answer to an inquiry, "there is little if any doubt that television broadcasts will be sponsored by advertisers in much the same manner as radio broadcasts are now."

He declared that lighting and other television studio problems are of such a nature as to indicate that approximately 98 per cent of televised program material will be from film. There will be a basic difference between televised films and theatre films, in his opinion, due to the size of the image, at first, and in all events due to intimacy of contact with subject matter as received in the home.

Far from affecting picture studios adversely, production costs will be brought down sharply as a result of the increased volume of film product which will have to be turned out to meet this new demand. Mr. Griffis said he feels it would not be found practical, even if it were desirable, to use standard theatrical films for television purposes.

Mr. Griffis sees no likelihood of nationwide television broadcasting in the near future, although he admits his company is negotiating for "Booster" station sites throughout the country in anticipation of technological advances which may make the setting up of chain facilities commercially practicable. At this time, he said, the cost of "Booster" stations is prohibitive beyond reasonable contemplation. He also pointed out that to date no licenses have been issued for television stations in this country except those granted for experimental purposes.

He said west coast televising from Paramount's studio was among the matters thus far in the negotiative stage, but he declined to give particulars.

Asked whether his present visit to Hollywood pertained in any way to television plans of the company, he said: "In no way that I can tell you about at this time. Nothing is that far along." When queried as to whether any other film company was making or planning similar preparations, he said: "None that I know of. They seem to feel that television is going to be in competition with motion pictures. We feel it will be an ally."

McDonald Statement

David Sarnoff's optimistic declaration last month on the immediate future of television, predicting actual operation with the opening of the New York World's Fair, on April 1, 1939 has brought new attention to the medium, both in that field and in its related branches.

Directly and more specifically involved is the potential effect of Mr. Sarnoff's is the statement by E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of Zenith Radio Corporation, who told his stockholders that marketing of television at this time would be "unfair to the public" because it would load them with "undue experimental costs".

A series of announcements on new plans, however, brings to light several new television stations and a possible "invasion" of television here by British interests, headed by Sol Sagall, of British Scophony, London. He already is talking with Eddie Cantor, who weeks ago announced his ambitions to head up a $10,000,000 television network.

Directly answering Mr. Sarnoff's announcement of early television, Mr. McDonald, the Zenith Radio president, in Chicago, said that the "premature" introduction of the medium and the resultant "loading the public with undue experimental replacement cost," will result in retarding, instead of further development and in unprofitable operations for the companies engaging in such a program.

"Your company today holds the only license issued by the Federal Communications Commission for an experimental television station in the Chicago area," Mr. McDonald told his stockholders.

"Zenith will, in a period of weeks, be on the air with experimental television programs. It will also have ready television receivers. It, however, intends to make no sales of these receivers until, in our opinion, television is ready for the public. These receivers will be loaned to a limited group of experienced people and engineers for experimental purposes," he added.

"General use of television in the homes is just around the corner for the stock salesmen only," he continued. "On the other hand, when we have overcome all of our difficulties, and I mean the radio industry, television will no doubt become a new industry. But I cannot agree that television receivers are ready for mass production and country-wide distribution on any such basis as even the first radio broadcast sets that were distributed in the early twenties.

"What the public should know about television is that the receivers must be matched to, synchronized with and built on the same standards as the transmitters. Any major change made in the television transmitter will necessitate a change in the receiver.

"No organization is better informed on television today than the Federal Communications Commission, yet within the past two weeks, the Commission has asked this question: 'Whether or not we believe that the development of television has reached the stage where the Commission might call formal hearings with respect to the adoption of standards.

"Of the experimental transmitting stations constructed under FCC licenses, only a few are of the modern high definition type. Not one permit or license has been issued by the Commission for the construction and operation of a commercial television station.

Spark Plug Interference

"There are many technical problems in television which are still unsolved. Among these is the inability at present to eliminate interference with television reception caused by the operation of automobiles. On the wave lengths now selected for and allocated to television, every spark plug in the 25 million automobiles in the United States operates as a transmitter and creates interference in its immediate vicinity. This interference makes impossible satisfactory television reception below the fourth or fifth floor of most buildings facing a street upon which automobiles are operated.

"Its effect is to put in the picture on the receiver a series of spots having the appearance of a snow storm. This, of course, destroys the picture. The only cure for this condition, at least at present, is to arrange to have all automobile manufacturers shield all new automobiles constructed, and also to have the owners of automobiles now in use do the same. This task, of course, is impossible of achievement. Some other means must be found of removing this difficulty.

"The economic problems which must be settled before the public should be asked to buy television receivers are no less serious than the technical difficulties. In the present state of the art, it is not possible to transmit a television program beyond a radius of from 30 to 50 miles, depending upon the height of the transmitting station above the ground, and even in that area buildings and other structures situated between the transmitter and the receiver make good reception extremely difficult. In other words, in order to furnish television programs to purchasers of television receiving sets throughout the United States, it will be necessary to construct more than 2,000 television transmitting stations. Even though we had this multiplicity of television transmitters, no economical means has yet been discovered to connect these transmitting stations to make possible chain transmitting of television.

"Another of the economic problems presented is the matter of programs. The stupendous cost of transmitting television naturally sets aside the thought that advertisers and sponsors can possibly maintain advertising budgets sufficiently large to pay the cost of such programs. In England, the public has had television for nearly three years. Fortunately, only from 4,000 to 8,000 television receivers have been sold, and these at prices from $200 to $400 each. I say fortunately because only that many persons have been disappointed.

PETTIJOHN QUALIFIES AS FORECASTER

What a help Charles Clyde Pettijohn could have been to the Literary Digest a few years ago. The morning after election, this week, Mr. Pettijohn, in the presence of office witnesses, opened an envelop containing his forecast of a week before as to the outcome of sixteen of the outstanding contests. He scored fifteen hits.

"In the opinion of conservative producers, the cost of a single program of the type now transmitted in England, of one hour's duration for each day from one television transmitter, will be $1,000,000 a year. I feel that this estimated cost is most conservative.

"The motion picture industry expends over $300,000,000 per year to produce approximately three hundred feature pictures, each of which represents a little more than one hour's entertainment. This economic load is paid for through the box offices of the moving picture houses. No source of revenue has yet been provided for the more costly television. Certainly, we cannot expect the advertisers of America to pay this bill.

"Any sales of television receiving sets today will unquestionably react unfavorably on the manufacturer who has put them on the market.

British Interests Here

Spurning the affiliation with any American television companies, on the grounds that "our system is different from any now in use, and we own world-wide patent rights. Our purpose is to establish an entirely independent organization in this country," Solomon S. Sagall, managing director of Scophony, Ltd., a British television organization, stated to reporters on his arrival from London last week that he might establish a $10,000,000 American division of his organization, with the help of comedian Eddie Cantor.

Cantor became interested in the television idea when in Europe this summer. On his return, he publicized the idea of a nationwide television network, with $10,000,000 needed as backing.

Mr. Sagall and Mr. Cantor are conferring with American banking interests. Also reported stimulated by the idea are American film companies. English backers of Scophony are London and Yorkshire Trust, and E.K.C.O. Radio, Ltd.

Demonstrations Planned

Besides the plans for a national network, Scophony intends to market its sets here, according to Mr. Sagall.

The company is also dickering for television demonstrations and possibly a transmitter at the New York World's Fair, in 1939.

If they go through, licensing agreements with the British government will enable the company to equip all theatres in the Odeon circuit with receivers, according to Mr. Sagall.

Televisions applications have been received in greater numbers in the past months, according to the Federal Communications Commission.

The Philco Radio and Television Corporation, Philadelphia, recently asked the FCC for construction license for new television station. Farnsworth Television, Inc., of Springfield, Pa., has asked the Commission to allow a change of frequency band to 6,600-7,200 kilocycles.

Columbia is installing a $500,000 transmitter atop the Chrysler Building. The installation will cost an additional $150,000. Studios in the Grand Central Palace will be linked with the transmitter by coaxial cable, so called "television pipe."

Scheduled to be completed in 1939, no date has been set for start of operations. The station will be known as W2XAX, and will cover a 40 mile area. Images will have 441 line definition. New type antenna will be used.

FCC Examiner R. H. Hyde recently recommended granting of application by General Electric for television stations at Albany, Schenectady, and Bridgeport. The company is already building an experimental station in the Helderberg Mountains, southwest of Albany.

Allen B. Dumont Laboratories, Inc., of Montclair, New Jersey, has obtained permission from the Commission to erect a station.

The Dumont station will be watched with interest by film companies because of the announced intention to experiment with the transmission of color images.

Also granted permission by the FCC to erect a station, recently, was the National Broadcasting Company's station W2XBC, in Washington.

NBC Developments

Recent developments by National Broadcasting Company include consideration of the use of an ultra-high frequency telecast, a telecast of a "man on the street" program, and an attempt to attract commercial sponsors.

If the employment of an ultra-high frequency wave band were carried through, the programs would probably originate with NBC's high frequency station in New Jersey, W2XDG. From there, programs might carry as far west as Chicago.

A new development in department store merchandising, combining television with departmental promotion, has been announced by American Television Corporation, New York. A new device, utilizing "all-electronic television principles," makes it possible for patrons at many points in a store to view a parade of featured merchandise transmitted by television from a central studio in the store.

Samuel H. Saltzman, president of ATC, says he plans to equip store studios with electric cameras of the same type used in public telecasting.

William H. Priess, president of International Television Radio Corporation, has announced that the company has completed a deal with the investment house of Mayhew and Reilly, of New York and Washington, for the distribution of 1,000,000 shares of the television company's one dollar par common capital stock.

The University of Cincinnati is specializing in courses in television and facsimile in its evening classes, with a large and increasing attendance.

Successful television broadcasts by the British Broadcasting Company include a recent description, visually and with narrator Elsa Lanchester, of the opening of "St. Martin's Lane," at the Carlton, in Haymarket, London.

The broadcasting service recently "put on a show" for the Royal Photographic Society, at Dorchester House. Receivers were set up on dinner tables; featured were Gracie Fields, Beverley Nichols.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO USE SCREENS OF WORLD FOR ITS PROPAGANDA

Consultant Hopes to Get Theatre Outlet for Short Subjects on Wide Scope of Activities of Organization

The League of Nations, that "battle-scarred" association for international peace and international justice, is about to turn to the motion picture as the medium of a most ambitious plan to convey its teachings and explain its workings to the peoples of the world—after 18 years of an existence that has been repeatedly marked by utter disregard by some of the biggest League members, of its repeated edicts and resolutions, condemnations and warnings against militory attacks and invasions, unprovoked and otherwise.

Decision to extensively use the film to further its work throughout the world, from Afghanistan to Yugo-Slavia, and on through its 56 other member countries, has been arrived at by a special League Assembly committee, working with secrecy in a little room just off the tan-and-blue golden-glass skylighted main Assembly room in the League's new building overlooking the lake at Geneva in Switzerland.

What will happen if and when the League tries to circulate its films in Japan and Germany and Italy, and other anti-League belligerents, whose governments control virtually every flicker on their screens, is a matter that is not explained.

Out of the annual budget of approximately 30,000,000 Swiss francs (amounting to $8,000,000), which is expended to publicize and otherwise further the cause of the League, will come an undisclosed but reputedly large sum earmarked for the production, distribution and exhibition of short motion pictures, principally of the "documentary," "cultural" or "propaganda" type, for the dissemination of League news and developments.

Word of the plan has just been brought to New York from Geneva by Louis Resnick, consultant to the League's International Labor Office, who discloses that some time ago a special committee was appointed to study the production and exhibition of films as a chief future means of spreading information about the League and its activities. Mr. Resnick, former public information director of the U. S. Social Security Administration, is engaged in public relations work in New York.

Scope of Activities

League activities, it is explained, go a long way from arms and ammunition, military attacks and aggressions, with various League committees being concerned for years with international labor and health problems, world trade, tariffs and commerce, banking, economics, agriculture, social and juvenile welfare.

Mr. Resnick said that while the League prefers to obtain circulation of its films in regular theatres of the world, its committee realizes that this might be difficult, even in the most favorable conditions, particularly in the United States, where the League is desirous of getting distribution. The United States, not a member of the League, is affiliated with the International Labor Office.

Also, the marked existence in the large countries of the world of chains of several hundred theatres controlled by producing-distributing companies and running programs composed basically of films put out by these producers, increases the difficulty of widespread theatrical distribution of an "outside 'documentary' film in the best places," according to the special committee's report to the League Assembly.

12 FOX ENGLISH FILMS TO COST $4,000,000

Under the supervision of Robert T. Kane, in charge of British production, Twentieth Century-Fox will make 12 pictures in England at an estimated cost of $4,000,000. At least five will be made for possible release in the United States. The films scheduled include "Keep Smiling," "Sally of the Shipyards," with Gracie Fields; "Frenchy," with Annabella; another Annabella film, as yet untitled; "So This Is London," "Handley Cross," "Hangman's House," "The Dancers."

The League, therefore, is considering distribution in various countries by other channels, including any distributing companies which will act as the League's agents, and through film libraries, "roadshow" units using portable equipment, and other means. The films will be made in English and French and then dubbed into the languages of the League's members.

Mr. Resnick, however, believes that some theatrical exhibition of the League's films can be accomplished. He bases his belief on the mobilization of the 13,000 theatres in the U. S. which showed the series of governmental "documentary" Social Security films to 50,000,000 persons during 1936. Details of that campaign were given to League leaders and delegates by Mr. Resnick at a meeting of the International Labor Office in Geneva, Mr. Resnick acting as consultant for the group on public relations, and as former director of public information for the Social Security Board, under John G. Winant, former Governor of Connecticut, who now heads the League's International Labor Office.

The five Social Security short films, incidentally, were made by Pathe at a cost of $100,000.

Sees Government Films

Besides its analysis of the success of the United States Government's Social Security pictures, the League committee was influenced in making its decision to use films, through its study of the circulation of the U. S. A.'s "The River" and "The Plough That Broke the Plains," prints of which had been sent to Geneva for screening. The committee voted that these two were the best of the "documentary" films of the international group shown.

The League also took into consideration the widespread use of governmental "documentary" films in England by the General Post Office, which constantly uses pictures to tell about its activities in telephone, radio and television services. The British Post Office also circulates films on England's old age, unemployment and other social welfare subjects, now numbering some 100 films in its catalogue. "Amazing," said Mr. Resnick, "is that English theatres actually pay rentals for these films, considering them as entertainment."

The League's committee, preferring films to other media for spreading League information, rejected a proposal to engage "expert publicists" for "outside" work, and decided not to act now in the matter of a more extensive use of radio and radiotelegraphy.

In its report to the Assembly, the committee disclosed "the rapidly increasing interest now being taken in the possibilities of films for mass education and as a means of influencing public opinion.

"Government departments, great industrial and commercial enterprises, important voluntary organizations, schools and other educational bodies in a number of countries are developing considerable activity in this direction (no less than 600 films of a documentary or propaganda character were shown in 47 centers at the Paris Exhibition in 1937)," the committee's report continued, adding: "There is a widespread and growing consensus of opinion that the film offers one of the biggest immediate possibilities of popular education on international problems and of promoting international understanding.

"It is acknowledged that the film can be used to stimulate the destructive forces in human nature; but it can be used with greater effect to strengthen the conserving and unifying forces in human nature; unlike the printed page and the radio, it is never presented to the individual in isolation, but always socially—to an audience," the committee added. "And, in addition, the film, by its appeal to many senses at once, by its simultaneous use of voice, image and music, is capable of conveying a greater sense of reality than is possible in the case of other means of mass education.

At Low Cost

"It is agreed that first-class documentary films can be produced on the League at a comparatively small cost; and that, if they are produced, it should not be difficult to secure for them a wide field of distribution.

"Whether a documentary film is capable of taking its place in the ordinary cinema program depends primarily on its quality and attractiveness, and the tendency of producers of documentary films to use more and more the whole technique of the cinema is increasing the attractiveness of such films from the point of view of the commercial cinema," said the League committee, which finds that the growth in some countries of new types of theatres, particularly the newsreel type, offers great possibilities for distribution of League films. Cinema clubs, film societies are other possibilities, it was said, both demanding documentary-type pictures.

Excluding Japan and Germany, of course, both of which withdrew from the League in 1935, the following countries are League members: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, China, Columbia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Dominican Rep., Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Great Britain, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, India, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, El Salvador, Siam, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, USSR, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugo-Slavia.

Plans to film a 30 minute picture on the Federal Government's projects in California have been announced by Robert G. K. Smith, head of the San Francisco office of the National Youth Administration.

LEBARON IS STUDIO HEAD, ZUKOR GOES TO BRITAIN

Freeman Takes Over Business Management in Hollywood; Theatre Head To Be Named

Paramount Pictures this week elevated William Le Baron, production executive, to complete charge over all production in Hollywood, and Y. Frank Freeman, theatre executive, to charge of business management of the studio. Adolph Zukor, who has been production general, goes to London to have charge of the corporation's business in England and on the Continent. Reports on the company's financial statements for nine and three months appear on page 34. (Picture in pictorial section.)

The changes were announced from the coast studios by president Barney Balaban.

Mr. Zukor will sail soon to supervise production, theatre, and distribution activities in England. He originally organized the company's operations there. Mr. Zukor remains for the time chairman of the Paramount board.

Succeding the veteran executive, in full charge of all production activities, is William Le Baron, production chief. His contract, it now becomes known, was renewed for three years, some weeks ago.

Representing the corporation at the studios will be vice-president Y. Frank Freeman. A successor to Mr. Freeman, in operation of theatres, will be named soon. For the present, it is expected Mr. Balaban personally will direct theatre operations, in association with Leon Netter.

Follows Hollywood Visit

The changes came after a visit to the coast studios by Mr. Balaban, Stanton Griffis, chairman of Paramount's executive committee, and Russell Holman, production head in New York. The three executives, with Robert Gillham, advertising director, returned to New York Tuesday.

Mr. Balaban emphasized the "good fortune" of the company in Mr. Zukor's "desire" to take over the important job of coordinating and developing Paramount European interests, in the "same way he took over active control of the Hollywood studio at a critical time in the company's history."

Mr. Balaban praised the pictures he had seen at the studio, declaring it was further along in its program than in years. Of the 48 pictures to be made by the studio as its part of this year's 55 picture program, 27 are completed or shooting, and 11 more will start before the end of the year.

The situation in England, which Mr. Zukor will confront, appears somewhat as follows: Production is within quota requirements, with not much expansion contemplated; theatres are valuable, but there has been talk of selling or offering interests in them.

Davis Rose, in charge of production there, took over the post recently. John Cecil Graham, who was in charge of all British affairs, resigned recently, and was succeeded temporarily by John Hicks, vice-president in charge of foreign affairs. Montague Goldman, sales manager in England, and Charles Penley, general manager of Paramount theatres there, have resigned.

Widespread rumors of dissension between Mr. Le Baron, in charge of production at the coast studios since 1936, and Mr. Zukor, with whom he worked, preceded the present changes. Mr. Le Baron is understood to have felt harsh the "limitations" imposed by Mr. Zukor's presence.

Mr. Le Baron's recent productions include, "The General Died at Dawn," "Give Us This Night," "Rose of the Rancho," "Poppy," "Klondike Annie." Prior to 1936, Mr. Le Baron had been a managing editor (of Collier's Weekly); a playwright ("Apple Blossom," "Her Regiment," "Moonlight"); director (General Cosmopolitan Productions); associate producer (Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Long Island studios, in 1924-27); vice-president in charge of RKO studios, in 1929-31.

In 1930, Mr. Le Baron wrote "Lovin' the Ladies" for RKO. He produced from 1930 to 1933, "Cimarron," "Rio Rita," "Street Girl," "Beau Geste," "Humoresque," "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

Other highlights of Mr. Le Barons producing career since then have been: "College Humor," "She Done Him Wrong," "I'm No Angel," "It Ain't No Sin," "All the King's Horses," "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," "Here Comes Cookie." He collaborated on a stage play, "Something to Brag About," and was co-author of the MGM-screened "Baby Face Harrington."

Freeman Started with Lynch

Mr. Freeman, who now represents the corporation on the coast, received his early training as an electrical engineer at the Georgia School of Technology, in Atlanta. He was with the S. A. Lynch Enterprises from 1916 to 1923—when the company sold out to Paramount. Mr. Freeman remained till 1933, then joining Paramount in New York offices. In 1935 he was elected vice-president of Paramount Pictures, Inc., in charge of theatre operations.

The company's earnings for the nine months recently ended are estimated at $1,876,469, including $1,660,000 of undistributed earnings of subsidiaries, and $245,000 profit on purchases of debentures.

Eugene Zukor a Producer

Eugene Zukor, son of Adolph Zukor, was made associate producer in the Harold Hurley unit at Paramount in Hollywood Tuesday. His first picture will be J. Edgar Hoover's "Federal Offense," with Lloyd Nolan and Robert Preston.

Cohan Deal

George M. Cohan told reporters in Pittsburgh last week that, although his proposed picture deal with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer hadn't been signed yet, the money already had been agreed upon but that he wanted to work out other production details in order to forestall a repetition of his coast experiences in 1932 when he made "The Phantom President" for Paramount. If the deal goes through, the story will be written and supervised by Mr. Cohan, and will follow the career of the Four Cohans.

Ross Federal Service has named four new branch managers: F. S. McKeown, Detroit; C. J. Storeim, Cleveland; F. A. Rosevelt, Charlotte; F. B. Gamble, Portland. R. W. Oudersluys, former branch manager of Detroit, has been assigned to the new Credit Promotion Division. Thomas B. Ellsworth has been named assistant in the advertising department of Ross Federal to edit the monthly house organ, Service.

Bernstein, Warner Again Head Drive

For the fifth successive year, Loews' David Bernstein and Warners' Major Albert Warner will head the drive of the film, theatrical and allied divisions, in the annual campaign for the Federation for Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in New York. While the entertainment industries raised $180,000 last year, they expect a higher tally this year.

Members in the various sections and groups of the drive are:

Columbia May Increase Foreign Production

Joining ranks of American companies who view increased production in England as necessary to meet quota requirements and bolster revenue, Columbia may revise upwards its production plans in England, it was revealed by Columbia vice-president Jack Cohn and foreign sales head Joseph McConville before they sailed for Europe last week. (Picture in pictorial section).

A new contract with Irving Asher, who has been producing quota pictures at Denham for Columbia, and survey of facilities for a Columbia production plan, were on the memoranda of the Columbia executives.

Mr. Asher has produced one film, "Q Planes," and is at work on a second, "Spy in Black." There will be a third. Their average cost is $300,000, Denham and Columbia sharing the financing.

Columbia also is considering French production, or the financing of certain French producers, it was said.

Budd Rogers, in foreign film distribution for many years, heads a new Columbia releasing company, formed to distribute selected foreign films, especially French productions.

The appointment, and the facts, were announced by Abe Montague, sales manager, to delegates at the first divisional meeting Sunday at the Blackstone hotel, Chicago.

Acclaimed by reviewers, preview and premiere audiences alike! The picture that climaxes John Ford's award-winning career! One of the most valuable entertainment properties 20th Century-Fox has produced.

85 DIFFERENT GAMES NOW IN USE IN THEATRES COST INDUSTRY MILLIONS

Names Run the Alphabet from Archery to Zippo; and Besides These There Is the Host of "Giveaways"

Chance-games and other forms of games at theatres have reached an all-time high, 85 or more different types now being used by exhibitors to entice patrons to theatres of this country. To the originators, promoters and operators flow a golden stream reputed to run in the millions annually, millions that otherwise would remain in the motion picture business. This money is made up of the royalty, rental and other forms of payments made by exhibitors for rights to the games.

From a mere handful of games that took hold when exhibitors were hard pressed during the leaner days of the depression, when they took on almost anything promoted as box office "stimulant," the practice has grown to the point where today all of the original forms and most of their successors have a wide assortment of derivatives.

Not all the games have been ruled in violation of federal, state or local anti-lottery statutes, although a large number have been prohibited in one place or another. Some, as witness "Bank Night," have been declared by United States Postal or other federal agencies to be in violation of the national anti-lottery laws.

Practically no games are played in every section of the country, their spread depending upon the rigidity of laws in the various territories and on other factors.

Games and "Giveaways"

Nor are the "games" the only form of extra-curricular activity engaged in by exhibitors, for there are almost as many "giveaways," in the form of absolute "hand-outs," as against the lucky-number drawing or other chance factor governing most of the games. "Beautyware," candy, dinnerware, dishes, dresserware, glassware, ovenware, kitchenware, electric apparatus still are being given away besides the countless meat, grocery and other food giveaways.

In the line of socalled chance games, the new and unique forms they are taking range all the way from Bango, Banko, Beano and Bingo, to Dopey, Uproar, Wahoo and Zippo. The following are the names of the games now being played:

U. S. RULES GIVEAWAYS ARE NOT ILLEGAL

Bona fide offers of gifts to buyers fall definitely within the sphere of fair competition, the Federal Trade Commission ruled this week in dismissing its own complaint against Samuel Stores, Inc., New York, operating a chain of retail stores in Eastern and Middle Western states and the District of Columbia.

Apparently involved in the motion picture business are china, dresserware and similar forms of "giveaways" presented by exhibitors to patrons. The ruling has no bearing on chance games or other forms of drawings practiced in some theatres.

Because of the important principle involved, and because of recent decisions which appeared to some to proscribe such offers per se, the commission went into the reasons underlying its exoneration of the chain.

The lawfulness of an offer of "free goods" in connection with a merchandising plan depends on the terms of the offer and the surrounding facts, the commission explained. If the offer is sincere, representing an actual division of normal profits with the buyer, it was held beyond criticism.

Deception, the commission warned, may be present in advertisements which are technically truthful. Giving a "free" offer undue prominence, and burying important conditions which are a corollary, may result in deception to the buyer, and hence outlaw the method.

Most Drive Mail For Quiz Booklets

Three-fourths of the mail received at Movie Quiz headquarters in New York contains requests for Quiz Booklets, indicating many theatres cannot meet the continuing demand, and signifying a general depletion of stock on hand, Harold B. Franklin, campaign administrator, said this week. Mr. Franklin urged theatre operators whose supply of Quiz Booklets was exhausted to reorder immediately.

California is running a close second to New York in number of replies received. Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Ohio, Texas, Connecticut and Missouri follow in close order. Canada is tenth. Replies have been received from Alaska, Hawaii and Mexico.

Jack Todd, of Radio and Publications Contest Company, which is handling the contest, plans to augment his staff soon.

Trailer No. 10 is being prepared and will tie in with the holiday season and Santa Claus. It will emphasize that there is still time to enter the contest. National Screen Service is preparing two special trailers for the industry short subject "The World Is Ours." One, an advance announcement trailer, is now in preparation. A tie-in trailer, with trailerettes series, will follow.

Deanna Durbin, Universal star, is offering a loving cup to the boy or girl nearest her age who wins any of the 5,404 cash prizes.

In the past few weeks more than 50 newspapers in this country and Canada have carried special inserts, complimentary full-page ads, double trucks of cooperative ads, columns of news and feature material.

S. Charles Einfeld, Warner director of advertising and publicity, in New York this week, said the full benefit of the drive would not be felt for six months. He pointed out the value of the good will created by the newspaper advertising.

"The World Is Ours" will be shown at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., on November 22nd, in connection with Professor Chauncey Newell Allen's course in the Psychology of Advertising.

The poster exhibit illustrating the development of the film from peep show to modern features is being shown in schools and libraries throughout Massachusetts, Harry Storin, chairman at Springfield, reported.

U. A. Picks Winners

Winners in the exploitation contest conducted by United Artists for the best campaigns on Samuel Goldwyn's "Adventures of Marco Polo" were chosen Tuesday from 323 entries.

Ed Levin, of Balaban and Katz, Chicago, was awarded first prize; John Hesse, of the Roger Sherman, New Haven, was second; Russell Bovim, Loew's Columbus, third; Marsline K. Moore, Hollywood, Fort Worth, fourth, and Bill Saxton, of the Century, Baltimore, was fifth.

Entries were judged by Samuel Goldwyn, James Mulvey, eastern representative for Mr. Goldwyn; Lynn Farnol, advertising and publicity director of United Artists, and Monroe W. Greenthal, exploitation manager for United Artists.

Paramount Estimated Earnings

Paramount Pictures, Inc., estimates its earnings after interest and all charges for the third quarter ended October 1, 1938 at $650,658. This amount includes $495,000, representing Paramount's direct and indirect net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings for the quarter of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries, also $233,000 profit on purchases of debentures of Paramount Pictures, Inc. Computed on the same basis, the earnings for the nine months ended October 1, 1938, are estimated at $1,876,469, including $1,660,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries and $245,000 profit on purchase of debentures of Paramount Pictures, Inc.

The consolidated earnings for the third quarter ended October 2, 1937, were $1,958,000, while Paramount's share of undistributed earnings of partially owned subsidiaries aggregated $440,000, a combined total of $2,398,000. For the nine months ended October 1, 1937, the consolidated earnings were $5,276,000, and Paramount's share of undistributed earnings of patially owned subsidiaries aggregated $1,420,000, a combined total of $6,696,000. The earnings for the respective periods in 1937 were likewise computed after interest and all charges.

SIX MILLION PATRONS WEEKLY IN LONDON

Six million persons every week dig into their pockets for the price of admission to London motion picture theatres, according to an estimate in the fifth annual report of the London Pasenger Transport Board.

While within recent years the grosses of music halls and socalled legitimate theatres have declined, those of "kinemas" have increased steadily, the report says.

In the "West End" of London, there are 41 picture houses, with 44,000 seats; and outside this section, but still in London County, there are 291 picture houses, their numbers constantly increasing.

The report suggests low admission prices are responsible for the attendance figures.

Universal World Sales

Universal's world film sales passed the $20,000,000 mark during the fiscal year ended October 31st, establishing an eight-year record for the company. The figure represents an increase of approximately $3,000,000 in the company's income from film rentals during recent years.

Universal's operations showed a profit during October, the second consecutive month the company has been in the black. The October profit is estimated at more than double that for September and should put the company in the black for the final quarter of the fiscal year, ended October 31st.

R.C.A. Profit

Radio Corporation of America reports a net profit of $4,141,205.78 for the nine months ending September 30th. After preferred dividends of $2,417,276.80 this leaves $1,723,928.98 or 12 4/10 cents per share on the common.

For the same period the previous year the net was $6,599,111.84, with $2,417,276.80 for preferred dividends and $4,181,835.04 or 30 1/10 cents per share for the common.

Total gross income for the nine months of this year from all sources was $70,878,614.73,

Report for the quarter ended September 30, 1938, shows net profit of $1,616,449 after interest, depreciation, amortization, federal income taxes, etc., equivalent after dividend requirements on $3.50 cumulative convertible first preferred stock, to six cents a share on 13,881,016 shares of common stock. This compares with $1,951,726, or eight cents a share on 13,880,963 common shares in September quarter of previous quarter of previous year and $1,086,955 or two cents a share on 13,881,016 common shares for quarter ended June 30, 1938.

C.B.S. Dividend

Directors of Columbia Broadcasting System have declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share and a special cash dividend of 10 cents per share on the present Class A and Class B stock. The dividend is payable December 9th to stockholders of record on December 1st.

The board also issued a consolidated income statement for the nine months of this year ending October 1st, which showed a net profit for the period of $2,606,200, as compared to a net profit of $3,053,400 for the first nine months of 1937.

Gross income from sale of facilities, talent and wires amounted to $23,958,344 for the nine months ended October 1st, against $24,926,420 for the nine months ended October 2, 1937.

CBS billings for October totaled $2,389,895, 4.6 per cent below the billings for last October, but 49.2 per cent over the September, 1938, billings. Columbia's 10-month total this year is $22,365,777, or 3.9 per cent below the total for the similar period last year of $23,281,027.

The largest single month of business in Mutual Broadcasting System's history was recorded in October, the network doing a total of $347,770. This represents an increase of 45.7 per cent over the October, 1937, billings of $238,682. The cumulative 10-month total is $2,332,026, a gain of 33.8 per cent over the 10-month total of 1937, which was $1,735,255.

A registration statement covering the issuance of 425,000 shares of $1 par common stock has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission by Imperial Pictures, Inc. The statement showed that 1,000 shares have been sold and an additional 425,000 shares are to be offered at a price of $1.50 per share from which the company will secure $637,500. The company's original registration statement became effective April 8th, the new registration being an amendment thereto.

The board of directors of Roxy Theatres, Inc., at its meeting Monday declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents per share on the outstanding preferred stock of the corporation, payable December 1, 1938, to stockholders of record at the close of business on November 17, 1938.

New "Flutter Bridge" To Weigh Nine Pounds

Altec Service Corporation, theatre sound servicing organization made up of former ERPI executives, this week will announce the development of a new apparatus, called a "flutter bridge," which, it is claimed, will make possible the measurement and control of flutter in theatres as a part of regular servicing.

Previous flutter bridges, which Altec says have been restricted to laboratory testing because of their bulk, weighing some 100 pounds, were used only by sound equipment manufacturers and a few of the major producing studios in Hollywood.

The new flutter bridges, scaled down to only nine pounds, will immediately be provided to the servicing men in the field. Special films to be used in theatre testing with the bridges have been produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Culver City, and Fox Movietone and Eastern Service Studios in New York.

The Cowboy and the Lady

(United Artists-Goldwyn)

Comedy

Lanky Gary Cooper's portrayal of the gentleman of the first part of the title is easily the outstanding asset of this deliberate comedy. Merle Oberon plays the lady of the second part.

The funniest sequence is a pantomimic stretch in which Mr. Cooper furnishes an incompleted home on the range in his imagination, with gestures so convincing that half a dozen cowhands come in and sit down on imaginary chairs to drink imaginary drinks from imaginary glasses. His performance is among the best if not indeed at the top of them.

The screen play by S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levien, from a story credited to Leo McCarey and Frank R. Adams, is about a daughter of wealth who masquerades as a lady's maid, meets a simple cowboy, falls in love and marries him without telling him she is the daughter of a candidate for presidential nomination.

When he learns the truth he denounces her father and friends and returns to his ranch. Her father, contrite, relinquishes political ambition and flies her to the cowboy's ranch in advance of his arrival. When he gets there everything is adjusted satisfactorily.

Second best of the humorous passages is one near the start of the film wherein Harry Davenport, as the girl's uncle, delineates the jitterbug phenomenon to "A Tisket, a Tasket," which is used thereafter, mildly symphonized, as basis of the music score.

Patsy Kelly, Walter Brennan, Fuzzy Knight, Mabel Todd and Emma Dunn are others active in the comedy department. Henry Kolker is the serious father and Berton Churchill his political backer.

After a comedy introduction and before the comedy windup which is its strongest point, the story goes somewhat breathlessly romantic and continues in that vein, aboard a fog-ridden gulf steamer, until the captain marries them. In this stanza the technique of emotional suspense is of a kind not commonly employed in recent years.

The picture starts in New York and moves to Palm Beach, Galveston and to Montana. Cooper, Brennan and Knight are cast as members of a rodeo troupe. This permits inclusion of a measure of riding, bulldogging and so on. The production is predominantly, however, a vehicle for Cooper, who stands head and shoulders above anything and everything else in it.

Previewed at the Warner Hollywood theatre to an audience restless during the early reels but manifestly pleased with the last half hour of the picture.—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Hard to Get

(Warner)

Comedy

Comedy of a light, frothy nature, most of it based on the formula-plot of mistaken identity, is the major offering of Warner's "Hard to Get." In it are Dick Powell, as the gasoline station attendant with big business ideas; Olivia de Havilland, as the wealthy girl; Charles Winninger, as her father who is a practical joker; Allen Jenkins, Bonita Granville, Melville Cooper, Isabel Jeans, Grady Sutton, Thurston Hall, John Ridgely, Penny Singleton, Granville Bates and Jack Mower.

The screenplay was written by Jerry Wald, Maurice Leo and Richard Macauley, from an original story by Wally Klein and Joseph Schrank, which in turn was suggested by a story by Stephen Morehouse Avery. Ray Enright directed, with Sam Bischoff associate producer.

Powell sings two songs in the picture, "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby" and "There's a Sunny Side to Every Situation," written by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer. Their placement in the picture is incidental to the plot.

Having been forced to clean out tourist cabins at the service station because she had no cash in her purse to pay for gas, "Margaret" determines to play a practical joke on "Bill." She sends him to her father with his idea of establishing a nationwide chain of tourist cabins. Her father gives him the "run-around" but "Bill's" persistence wins. In the meantime, he wins the love of "Margaret."

Storm Over Bengal

Action Melodrama

Republic's "Storm Over Bengal" justifies its increased budget by its commercial and artistic values. One of the higher outlay pictures of the studio, "Storm Over Bengal" is 65 minutes crammed with fast action, suspense and romance laid in Northwest India during the fictional uprising of a religous fanatic seeking to overthrow British rule.

Generous exploitation campaigns, touching the same ground as Paramount's "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," boxoffice success of several years ago, are indicated.

The cast is headed by Patric Knowles, Richard Cromwell and Rochelle Hudson, supported by Douglas Dumbrille, Colin Tapley, Gilbert Emery, Douglas Watson, Halliwell Hobbes, John Burton, Pedro de Cordoba, Clyde Cook, Claude Allister and Edward van Sloan.

Restrained guidance by Sidney Salkow, virtual newcomer to directorial ranks, makes the most of the opportunities in the original screenplay by Dudley Waters. Armand Schaefer was the associate producer.

The conflict between two brothers, "Jeffrey" and "Neil," over their love for "Joan," betrothed to "Jeffrey," takes a new turn as "Jeffrey" goes on a dangerous mission to negotiate an agreement with a dying native leader. A fanatic, plotting to seize the province, captures "Jeffrey" and prepares to ambush the advancing British regiment. "Neil" crashes his plane nearing the marching column to warn it of the danger, and dies a hero's death.

Penal Comedy

Don't let the title mislead you, or the customers. The film is as full of criminals as the prison in which most of the action takes place, but they are gay, amusing criminals engaged in all sorts of lighthearted enterprises, from amateur theatricals to inter-penitentiary football. While proving, doubly and trebly, that crime does not pay, the players have a swell time and give one. The film is in many respects the most unusual of the year and, by any standard, one of the funniest.

The frolic as draped is Maurine Watkins' once serious story of the same name. This will be remembered as having to do with a pair of confidence men who break out of prison for the purpose of outwitting another pair of confidence men engaged in taking a fellow convict's mother's money away from her. In the original treatment this made somber melodrama. As handled here it is ripping comedy.

Preston Foster and Arthur Treacher turn in tiptop performances as the captive confidence men whose momentary absence from the penal premises embarrasses the prison football team, coached by convict "Slim Nelson" (Slim Summerville) and trained by convict "Memphis Jones" (Bill Robinson). Alan Dinehart is capital as the warden who brings the boys back in time to save the game and his side bet. Sidney Toler as the confidence man at large, Ed Gargan as prison guard and Eddie Collins as master of ceremonies at the prison Follies are immensely effective.

The picture contains two solo tap dances by the incomparable Bill Robinson, one with music and one without, and a vocal solo by Tony Martin, seen also as the heroic young convict in whose behalf the confined confidence men venture out into freedom for a night. Phyllis Brooks is the reformatory graduate waiting for him to complete his sentence.

Two songs by Sidney Clare and Harry Akst are both good, and dances were directed by Nicholas Castle and Geneva Sawyer. Alfred Werker, directing for executive producer Sol Wurtzel, combined speed, coherence and humor with rare success. The picture is packed with laughs and the football finish is no less than classically comic.

Previewed at the Alexander theatre, Glendale, Cal., where it kept a mixed audience in stitches.—W. R. W.

Domestic Comedy

The title of this light comedy is more or less a natural, deriving as it does from the song of the same name, and the top team, Bob Hope and Shirley Ross, look like a definite promise to the customers of precisely the kind of humor the picture offers. It would be a natural next step for showmen to assert that Mr. Hope here establishes himself in the front rank of screen comedians and, if the preview audience reaction is dependable evidence, this assertion can be underscored and written in flaming colors.

The story told this time under the title of the song hit from "The Big Broadcast of 1938" is that of "Up Pops the Devil," the old play by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich, which has been remodeled but not essentially changed by Lynn Starling, who wrote the screen play. It may be recalled that the tale has to do with a struggling novelist whose wife works out as he stays at home to do the housework while completing his first novel. There are another man and another girl in the quadrangular plot, but the whole matter is handled solely for laughs. It is, treated thus, precisely the kind of thing which customers familiar with the Hope-Ross delivery of the song hit for which the picture is named are likely to expect to see them in.

Glib Hope's performance is sparkling. Some of his solo sequences are comic classics. He is aided and abetted, in the comedy department which he easily dominates, by such trusty laugh-producers as Charles Butterworth, Roscoe Karns, Ed Gargan and Eddie Anderson, who is the spectacularly successful "Rochester" of Jack Benny's Jello program. It is in the nature of cinematic expectancy to hazard a guess that Mr. Hope's high achievement in this expert company will entitle him to the top spot in a top budget production about the next time around.

George Archainbaud directed the picture in his usual practical manner and Mel Shauer produced it adequately. Hoagy Carmichael and Frank Loesser wrote the already popular "Two Sleepy People," sung by Mr. Hope and Miss Ross in much the same manner as they sang "Thanks for the Memory," which they use again, with new lines that are part of the narrative dialogue, in this appearance.

Previewed at the Paramount theatre, Los Angeles, where it was received with audible relish.—W.R.W.

The Headleys at Home

(Standard Pictures)

Domestic Comedy

"The Headleys at Home" is the initial production effort of newly formed Standard Pictures. In character it is designed to amuse all-family audiences. Making no pretenses at being unusually important although not an experimental feature, it does give evidence that the company is feeling its way and that the producing company is in search of a formula that will give the planned series a value comparable to others of the type now on the market.

Adapted from a stage play, there naturally is quite a bit of dialogue, but there also is a generous amount of action, both comic and melodramatic. The best known names offered are Evelyn Venable, Grant Mitchell, Vince Barnett, Benny Rubin, Louise Beavers, Kenneth Harlan and Edward Earle. However, the story features Betty Roadman, heretofore seen in supporting roles; Robert Whitney, who was in the first two "Judge Hardy" pictures; and introduces five-year-old Alicia Adams.

"Louisa Headley's" social aspirations are the source of all the fun and excitement. Though her husband barely knew "Schuyler," famous financier, during their college days, "Mrs. Headley" over the years has built him up as a great friend of her small town banker mate. Thereby is set in motion a chain of amusing situations. Not only is "Headley" driven to desperation by his wife's harum scarum tactics, but his bank is robbed and the robber, "Adair," is introduced into his home as "Schuyler." "Mrs. Headley" triumphs anyway, as, while the crook is captured, the real "Schuyler" appears to give her opportuinty to be a social lioness, even though a repentant one.

Previewed in the studio projection room in Hollywood to a press and professional audience. Naturally, some of the features that might prove of special interest to general audiences passed unnoted.—G.M.

Rhythm of the Saddle

(Republic)

Western

The popular singing cowboy Gene Autry and the also popular Smiley Burnette, otherwise known as "Frog," do their best with a story that has nothing new or particularly exciting. It is in fact short on action sequences and long on singing, though the songs are tuneful and Autry puts them across with his usual competence.

In romantic and comedy elements this subject goes a bit farther than usual, for beside the hero's romance with the girl, Peggy Moran, the comedian also is involved in a romance with Pert Kelton, who does things in the comedy line herself.

The setting is a rodeo in a Nevada town and the theme concerns the rivalry of the two largest ranches for the prizes and the contract for staging the following year's spectacle. "Gene," "Frog" and the two girls are on one side of the fence, "Pomeroy" and his crowd on the other. Through "Pomeroy's" machinations "Gene" is accused of a murder. When the stage coach race is ready to be run "Gene" arrives to drive his coach while the sheriff's men are out of town on "Frog's" ruse. "Frog" clears "Gene's" name and catches the killer.

Gangster's Boy

(Monogram)

Social Study

On Wednesday evening, November 2, Monogram Pictures offered the first public preview of "Gangster's Boy." The showing revealed two things. First, audience reaction definitely indicated that the film must be re-edited and irrelevant sequences eliminated. The studio announced Wednesday morning that this will be done. Second, the presentation showed the hazard of not giving a film a secret preview before the press is bidden to inspect and comment on it. The showing also revealed that after the picture has been the subject of further cutting room attention, Monogram will be able to offer an attraction of considerable interest to adult and juvenile audiences.

The basic story is sound and logical. It has a definite appeal. Jackie Cooper gives another convincing performance, fully on a par with his work in "Boy of the Streets" and "That Certain Age," while the acting of the other featured players is of high caliber.

The story is based on a "persecution theme," a subject which, many other pictures have demonstrated, has much commercial value. In expert manner it points to the cruelty that ensues when false conclusions are hastily made.

"Larry Kelly" is the prize student and athlete of his high school. His closest friends are "Bill" and "Julie," children of "Judge Davis." He and "Bill" plan to go to West Point. "Julie" is his girl. "Larry's" world comes tumbling down about when his father, "Tim," a retired racketeer, comes to town. "Judge Davis," aided by the press, heads a drive to run "Tim" out of town. All "Larry's" school mates, especially "Bill" and "Julie," are ordered to shun him. The boy accepts his ostracism manfully. "Bill's" car hits a boy. "Larry" takes the blame. He would sacrifice everything he dreamed of in order that his chums might not have to sacrifice anything. But in a hearing before "Judge Davis," his children come through with the true story.

Previewed in the Warner theatre, Beverly Hills, Cal. The audience verdict of the court sequence was favorable. Its opinion of the balance proved that projection room showings, without the benefit of a preview for executives and others close to the picture, is hazardous in estimating audience reaction.—G. M.

Strange Faces

Comedy-Melodrama

There is plenty of entertainment in the comical vein, and a fast moving story, while Frank Jenks and Dorothea Kent are not top marquee names, they have been seen in support in many Universal pictures. "Denby" and 'Maggie" are rival reporters, he from New York, she on the local newspaper edited by "Hector Hobbs" under editor (Andy Devine). The reporters' rivalry makes her repeatedly return her engagement ring. The big story hinges on suspicion that a gangster is impersonating the local rich man, while "Denby" languishes in jail, the result of "Maggie's" trick, she trails "Evans" and sees him elope with the local heiress. Whereupon "Evans," really the crook, realizes "Maggie" is more than a reporter, he punches her on the jaw, drags her and his fiancee into a car, drives away. "Denby" and "Hobbs" follow, and the crook is killed by "Hobbs" as he tries to escape. "Maggie" decides to give up reporting to marry "Denby."

The Man with 100 Faces

(Gaumont-British)

Mystery Melodrama

While there is a certain amount of suspense, some excitement, and some comedy in the portrayal, by Tom Walls, of a debonair crook, the picture is handicapped by slow tempo, lack of an air of reality, and production shortcomings.

Noel Madison, as an American gangster, is in a role overdrawn, Walls deliberative and with too much to say. Lili Palmer, heroine, is more strange than exotic.

The story has "Drake," a clever and quixotic jewel thief, as well as the author of a book, by "Crackerjack," which is the talk of London. "Sculpie's" American gang gets only the paste gems substituted by "Drake," and the blame. "Drake's" proceeds invariably go to charity. At a masked ball, "Sculpie's" men hold up the guests after "Drake" has taken the real necklace, and "Sculpie" kills a man. The baroness suspects one of the guests, "Drake" in disguise, and links the guest with the "Crackerjack." "Sculpie" also tries to get him. "Drake" turns the tables.

Rose of Tralee

(Dublin Film Co.)

Dublin Drama via London

While the subject matter has its appeal to sons and daughters of St. Patrick, those who have become accustomed to Hollywood cinema craftsmanship may grow uneasy under the stilted acting and direction, and the meagre technical resources.

The bill of players is led by four year old Baby Binkie Stuart, heralded as the "Shirley Temple of Ireland." Little Binkie is an engaging tot until she begins to peek into the lens or goes into a "banshee" treble of "Come Back to Erin." The rest of the cast includes such rich Celtic names as Danny Malone, who sings most of the melodies in a pleasing Irish tenor; Kathleen O'Regan, who bears an amazing resemblance to Paris-born Claudette Colbert, and Fred Conyngham. The title tune, often repeated, and the singing of "Mountains O'Mourne," "Down on Finnegan's Farm," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Charms" and "Did Your Mother Come from Ireland" merit commendation.

Derived from an original Irish story by Kathleen Tyrone, the pace of the plot is pedestrian along the well trodden path for domestic melodrama, with the cliches of a separated married couple, dispossession of the wife, a nightly prayer recital by the child of the pair, a Christmas celebration, an amatory campaign conducted by a "butterfly society daughter madly in love" with the husband, the frantic search of the father for his family, and the reunion to the tune of "Rose of Tralee."

The locale is London, and for all the Celtic atmosphere and elements, the story could have been set up in Oshkosh, Wis., U. S. A. There are some colored postcard shots but the narrative proper is in black and white.

Seen at the Irish Theatre in New York at an afternoon performance at which a handful of hearty Hibernians, who had negotiated the excavations of the Sixth Avenue subway project, sat either exhausted or were wafted away in remembering silence to the land of their birth or their forebears. — JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Distributed in the United States by Dublin Film Co. Based on an original Irish story by Kathleen Tyrone. No. P. C. A. Certificate. Running time, when seen in New York, 71 minutes. Release date, October 15, 1938. General audience classification.

Spring Madness

(MGM)

College Comedy

This is a very different kind of college comedy and a far livelier and funnier one than has come from the cameras in many seasons. Every member of the big cast turns in a sparkling performance, with Maureen O'Sullivan excelling all previous efforts as a college girl in love, Lew Ayres at his best as the unwilling but devoted object of her affections, and Burgess Meredith winning himself a permanent home in Hollywood as his adventurous and sophisticatedly eccentric roommate. The film is a long step upward from the gag school of campus comedy and a picture to make promises to the customers about.

Associate producer Edward Chodorov wrote the screen play from Philip Barry's play, "Spring Dance," and the result argues that more associate producers might do well to write their own scripts. S. Sylvan Simon's direction is a masterly lesson in the fine art of keeping a large number of evenly emphasized characters moving steadily and swiftly from a running start to a photograph finish. His people are college students, but he never lets them become merely collegiate.

"Sam" and "Lippencott," Harvard men, quit school before graduation to take a long planned trip to Russia. "Sam" goes to a New England girls' school to tell "Alexandra" of his going and say goodby. Her classmates manage to delay his departure until a cooperative instructor, admirably played by Truman Bradley, incites the degree of jealousy necessary to change "Sam's" plans.

Similar formulae have served for any number of inane college pictures. This one serves here to reveal the junior generation illuminatingly and charmingly in its reactions, views, objectives, sentiments, ways and means.

Miss O'Sullivan's portrayal of the college senior is a revelation. Her handling of light emotional passages, a great deal more exacting than the more somber type of sobbing she has had to do in weightier films, suggests strongly that this is a vein in which she has belonged from the first.

The film is fresh, clean, modern and essentially human, an all purpose picture for all types of audiences.

(MGM)
Interesting

John Nesbitt, radio commentator, presents three yarns, all authentic, interesting and containing in its unreeling more than ordinary informative value. The first episode deals with unclaimed money in banks and as illustration is depicted the case of a soldier who, before embarking for the war in 1918, banked over $600. He was killed in action and his sister, not knowing of the account, is amazed years later when the bank locates her and turns the money over to her with interest. The second episode traces the life of an automobile from its shiny newness to the time when it becomes scrap iron and is melted for armaments. The third concerns matrimonial agencies, and to that end illustrates the case of two persons brought together.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Timber Toppers
Fine Sport Subject

One of the new series, Ed Thorgersen's Sports Reviews, it is comprehensive, well photographed, and should hold interest of class and mass, especially enthrall those who like horses. It depicts training of "show horses," those who perform in horse shows and steeplechasing. They are shown learning to obey the controlled bit, to trot forwards and backwards, to hurdle fences. Finally is shown the competition at a horse show.—Running time, ten minutes.

Patio Serenade
Spanish Stuff

Hispanic in nature and talent, this Mentone Musical turn should entertain the audiences of the Latin and South Americas as well as those Northern American audiences who like a look at a collection of clever foreign artists. The line of variety displayed in the show ranges from vocal numbers through a rhumba exhibition and a castanet dancer. Tito Coral and Armida are the most widely known of the entertainers.—Running time, 17 minutes.

Playful Polar Bears
(Paramount)
Fair Color Cartoon

The polar bears cavort happily, especially one mother and three cubs. Suddenly come white hunters in their sailing ship; they shoot at the fleeing bears. Mother bear runs back, finding one cub apparently dead. When the hunters leave, the bears attend the "funeral." But the little cub sits up—he's only been knocked unconscious by falling ice. The story is told simply, with little emphasis on "gags," indicating a distinctly juvenile audience for its appreciation.—Running time, eight minutes.

Society Dog Show
(RKO-Disney)
Excellent Mickey Mouse

Of equal importance with Mickey here is Pluto, because it is his noble deed that saves the pair from ignominy when they "crash" the society show. The judges frown upon Pluto's lack of breeding and Mickey's brashness, and guards toss them out. However, fire starts, and Pluto, hearing the shrieks of his sweetheart, a Pekingese, dashes back to rescue her, in breath-grabbing fashion. It is all done with peerless Disney competence, is fast, comical.—Running time, eight minutes.

Champion Airhoppers
Grantland Rice Sportlight

The newest Grantland Rice Sportlight finds wings to soar and follow the topic of the motorless plane, the glider. Done with the rapid fire and informative commentary chatter of Ted Husing, the subject studies the manufacture and the manipulation of the gliding machine. Generously sprinkled with shots of actual flights, the principal point of this one-reeler is the pictorial quality of the work. The scenes are shot with exciting and beautiful effect.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Streamlined Swing
(MGM)
Red, Hot and Black Rhythm

When a passenger, whose kindness is as extravagant as his delusions, bestows a club car on a group of Negro porters, the boys take him at his word and convert the gift into a classy, corner diner. The lads also dish out some novelty musical numbers, swingy in taste but concocted in a style different from the usual run. The distinctive note is in the gathering's talent to imitate various orchestral instruments with vocal chords and impressionable mouths.—Running time, nine minutes.

Fishing in the Fiords
(Sanders Films)
Travelogue

Here is shown the art of fishing for cod in the fiords of Norway, from the oldtime methods of row boat and long line to the modern method of using nets that stretch as far as three miles. The long lines sometimes have as many as 1,000 hooks. The cleaning of the cod and utilization of the various parts of the fish are illustrated and explained.—Running time, 10 minutes.

China Today
(Warner Brothers)
Travelogue

An E. M. Newman travelogue in color, this is concerned with Hong Kong, the gateway to the east, and Macao, oldest European settlement in the far east. Photographed are a Chinese funeral procession, the memorial arch in Hong Kong, the military outpost and gun emplacements there; the grotto of Camoeus, the English chapel, the church of St. Paul's, all in Macao. Narrated by Dwight Weist. Running time, 11 minutes.

Community Sing, No. 2, Series 3
(Columbia)
Hawaiian Ditties

With wintery winds just around the corner, the sponsors of the Community Sing fest have transported their choristers to the warm and pleasant climes of the Hawaiian Isles. The Columbians proceed on their melodic way to the tune of "On the Beach of Bali Bali," "My Tane," "Blue Hawaii," "Ebb Tide," "The Moon of Mankoora" and the famous farewell song "Aloha." Although the tunes of the South Sea Island recital have a repetitive ring, the music and lyrics constitute a soothing and pleasing interlude.—Running time, 10½ minutes.

City of Little Men
(MGM)
Magnificent

The title of this short subject refers to the world famed city-institution, Boys Town, Neb., the exploits of which Metro so tellingly fictionized in a feature account starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney. In this miniature instance there is no fabricated plot but merely the plain pictorial statement of fact detailing the aims and practices of the place with all the drama and human heart interest of real and not scenarioized reel life. As a fitting introduction to the material, the famous founder of the school, Father Flanagan, is introduced to outline in simple and eloquent words the noble philosophy behind the work of the foundation. Scenes show the lads in their daily ritual of living under this benign influence from their early morning rising through their hours of schooling and working. Whether the short precedes the feature in play date time or not, it should be interested.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Educator Hits Kuykendall Talk

Remarks by Ed Kuykendall, president, at last week's Motion Picture Theatre Owners Convention, in Oklahoma, which, it is charged, belittled minority exhibitor interests, principally Allied States Association, were attacked this week by Mrs. Winifred Johnston Perry, of Norma, Okla., in an address before members of the English department of the Oklahoma City district of the Oklahoma Educational Association.

The Allied attacked by Mr. Kuykendall is an organization of independent theatre owners with no producing affiliations, Mrs. Perry said. "They are mainly neighborhood or community theatres, the inexpensive houses that you and your children would attend if the exhibitor could get the pictures you wanted him to show," she contended.

Mrs. Perry urged her listeners to support the Neely bill which, she declared, would make it possible for theatre owners to buy pictures they consider desirable without taking a number of unwanted productions.

"Block booking," she said, "is a discriminatory and obstructive practice which cuts down on the profits of the independent exhibitor and puts money in the pockets of the big producers."

Mrs. Perry, wife of Charles M. Perry, head of the philosophy department of the University of Oklahoma, is the author of two college text books and many articles on the history and literature of the theatre.

Ohio and Carolina Groups To Hold Annual Meetings

The Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio will hold their sixth annual convention Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, Ohio.

Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina will have their annual convention at the Hotel Charlotte, Charlotte, N. C., December 4th and 5th. The committee on arrangements includes Roy Smart, F. H. Beddingfield, George W. Parr, E. L. Hearne, W. T. Culpepper and H. E. Wessinger.

U.A. Signs Loew's

The largest product deal ever made by United Artists was concluded Monday between the distributor and Loew's for the entire circuit, including the metropolitan chain, for two years and covering all of the two seasons' productions from Edward Small, Alexander Korda, Hal Roach, Samuel Goldwyn, Walter Wanger and the yet unreleased U. A. pictures of David Selznick.

United Artists also sold the 1938-39 product to the 450 theatres which are in the five Fox West Coast groups.

Producing Credit to Blanke

Credit as associate producer of Warner Brothers' "Four Daughters" which should have been given to Henry Blanke was incorrectly attributed to Benjamin Glazer in the listing of Box Office Champions for September in the October 22nd issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

In a Quandary

As Hollywood went into November, it also went into a quandary. Here's the production situation at the moment of writing, 12:10 P.M., November 4th. There are 43 pictures shooting. Sixty-eight are in the various stages of editing. Some in the second classification have been given unannounced previews. MGM had three out last night for this purpose. Yet 11 productions were started in the week. Simultaneously eleven joined their mates in the cutting rooms. This manufacturing condition presages two results. First, it hints the possibility of a production shut down coincidental with and after the holiday season. Second, it constitutes a lot of straws in the wind forecasting an avalanche of previews. Depending upon an escheloning of release dates, it also clues a mid-winter glutted distribution market.

Columbia Starts Three

Columbia started three productions. For its distribution Larry Darmour began "California Cavalcade." This endeavor will present Bill Elliott, Luana Alcaniz, Charles Whittaker, Hal Taliaferro, Bud Osborne, Carlos Villarias, Ed Cassidy, Frank Ellis and Al Ferguson. "Rio Grande Round Up" began with Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Bob Nolan, Russell Simpson, Fred Kohler, Jr., Hank Bell and Raphael Bennett. Alan Baxter, Jacqueline Wells, Joseph King and Willard Robertson will be featured in "Racketeers."

Universal launched two pictures. "Swing, Sister, Swing" went into work. Eddie Quillan, Kathryn Kane, Ken Murray, Ernest Truex, Johnny Downs and Ted Weems and his orchestra will be in it. "Lady Luck," for which a new title already is being sought, will feature Robert Wilcox, Helen Mack, Dorothy Vaughn and Irving Pichel.

A long time ago Paramount planned "Hotel Imperial" for Marlene Dietrich. The same title will be used, but a new story version utilized for Ray Milland, Isa Miranda, Rudolph Foster, Curt Bois, Reginald Owen and Gene Lockhart. "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police" will continue the series with John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, Reginald Denny, Elizabeth Patterson, E. E. Clive and Forrester Harvey.

Resuming "Charlie Chans"

Warner Oland died and Key Luke departed elsewhere, but 20th Century-Fox is continuing the series the pair made famous with "Charlie Chan in Honolulu." Sidney Toler will go on with the "Chan" characterization. No son has yet been selected, but Phyllis Brooks and Eddy Collins will have parts in the show. Headliners in "Wife, Husband and Friend" will be Warner Baxter, Loretta Young, Binnie Barnes, George Barbier and Helen Westley.

At Republic work began on "Federal Manhunt." It will present Robert Livingston, June Travis, Jerry Tucker, Ben Welden, Sybil Harris and Horace MacMahon.

"Beauty for the Asking" was the subject of new interest at RKO Radio. Lucille Ball, Donald Woods, Frances Mercer, Inez Courtney and Whitney Bourne represent the immediate name values in the film.

SIX FEATURES FOR A QUARTER

Six features for 25 cents is the latest bargain at R. D. Goldberg's Town theatre in Omaha. The house usually shows triple bills but went to four one day and had two more in a midnight show. That means about seven hours of film for a quarter.

From Universal came word that "Scouts to the Rescue," a serial, had been transported to the cutting rooms to join the two that had arrived at the same destination earlier in the week. Jackie Cooper stars. Mischa Auer, Mary Boland, E. E. Horton, Helen Parish, Jackie Searl, Frankie Thomas, Harris Berger, Hally Chester, Charles Duncan, David Gorcey and William Benedict completed "Little Tough Guys in Society." "The Last Warning," which earlier was known as "The Dead Don't Care," will feature Preston Foster, Frank Jenks and Frances Robinson.

Republic eliminated two productions from its active list. Gene Autry and Jean Rouveral are the stars of "Western Jamboree." Robert Livingston, Tommy Ryan, June Storey, Ralph Morgan, Harry Davenport and Sidney Blackmer will be seen in "Orphans of the Streets."

Monogram wound up "Little Tenderfoot." Tex Ritter is billed in capital letters over Jinx Falkenberg, Tom London, Frank LaRue, Charles King, Bob Terry, Horace Murphy, Snub Pollard, Mary Ruth, Dave O'Brien and Dorothy Fay in this Edward Finney production.

Changing the title from "Life is Cheap" to "North of Shanghai" was only one stage in the goings on that maneuvered this Columbia picture to the cutting room. In the cast are Betty Furness, James Craig, Keye Luke, Dick Curtis, Joseph Downing, Honorable Wu, Cy Kendall, John Tyrrell, Dorothy Gulliver.

Paramount completed "Ambush," in which Gladys Swarthout, Lloyd Nolan, William Henry, Rufe Davis and William Frawley have a lot to do.

"Secret Service of the Air" came off the active list at the Warner Burbank plant. Ronald Reagan, Irene Rhodes, James Stephenson, Rosella Towne, Morgan Conway, Anthony Averill, Joe Cunningham and Robert Strange will reveal all in words and pictures.

"The Long Shot," Fine Arts, hit the finishing wire at Grand National and Twentieth Century-Fox wrote finis to the week with "Thanks for Everything," with Adolphe Menjou, Jackie Oakie, Jack Haley, Arleen Whelan.

Optimism

Consideration of immediate future business conditions may crease furrows in the foreheads of economists, governmental administrators and folk who either work for or worry about a living, but Russell Birdwell reports Henry Ginsberg, vice-president of Selznick International, as saying theatre operators should be blandly optimistic.

"My survey of general business conditions," Mr. Ginsberg is quoted, "indicates an upturn in film box offices by 20 per cent during the next six months."

Mr. Ginsberg pointed to the truce between employers and employees in the railroad industry and the $1,500,000,000 national building program, adding:

"Studios will find relationship between standard business indices and box office returns extremely close. The business curve points upward now. The box office curve will match it."

Oddly, no mention was made in the communication about "The Young in Heart."

Press Coverage

The number of reporters covering Hollywood news this month reached an all-time high as the Motion Picture Producers Association office issued 353 official studio correspondent identification cards. News and trade reporters lead with 180 registrations. Second place is held by fan magazine writers with 72. Of this number, 27 are permanently employed by magazine publishers and 45 are freelance writers who sell four or more stories a month. There are 63 foreign correspondents servicing practically every country. Radio commentators and their studio contact personnel received 38 cards, also a record.

Another record was established when 166 working editors of papers scattered all over the country visited Hollywood personally to gather news and feature story material. A survey of the large studios shows that the annual influx of editors has steadily increased since 1934. In that year only 30 out-of-town editors covered Hollywood. In 1935 the figure increased to 65, in 1936 to 112 and last year to 147.

Studio press departments have increased the amount of wordage forwarded directly to thousands of newspapers by approximately 8 per cent. The bulk of this service has been directed to small town papers, those not affiliated with chains, those who do not have correspondents or are not receiving any of the Hollywood wire services. Likewise the issuance of pictorial material either in still picture or matrix form has been increased.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

The Duke of West Point

(UA-Edward Small)

Career Story

In previous association with United Artists, Edward Small produced such pictures as "I Cover the Water Front," "Palooka" and "The Count of Monte Cristo." His first picture since rejoining the organization will use as background the settings and cadet life of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point. Basically the theme is a career story and will make use of romantic and melodramatic elements common to earlier pictures which had a service locale.

For novelty, however, and looming important as an exploitation feature, the action highlight of the production will be a sensational ice hockey game which capitalizes upon the rivalry between West Point and the Royal Military College of Canada.

Based on an original screen play by George Bruce, who provided the story basis of MGM's "The Crowd Roars" and did the story and screen play for "Navy Blue and Gold," "The Duke of West Point" is being directed by Alfred E. Green, who served long at Warners but made "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" for MGM and several pictures recently for Columbia.

The featured players will be Louis Hayward, who has made several pictures for RKO-Radio and Universal; Joan Fontaine, also starred in many RKO-Radio shows; Tom Brown, Richard Carlson and Alan Curtis. Supplementary names are Donald Barry, Gaylord Pendleton, Charles D. Brown, Jed Prouty, Marjorie Gateson, Emma Dunn, Nick Lukats, Kenneth Harlan, Jonathan Hale, William Bakewell and Mary MacLaren.

Release date: Approximately December 15, 1938.

I'm a Criminal

(Monogram-Crescent)

Melodrama

Action melodrama, growing out of a double-cross in romance, will be the essence of "I Am a Criminal." Seeking to win public favor, a big time racketeer about to be tried for murder hires a press agent to build him up as a humanitarian. The press agent gets him to adopt an orphan newsboy. He also steals the criminal's girl away from him. Following adverse publicity resulting from his treatment of the double crossing pair, and thirsting for revenge, he jumps bail, but when the boy, to whom he has become attached, is in danger of drowning while warning him of the approach of police, he sacrifices his freedom to save the boy's life.

The picture will feature John Carroll, singing hero of "Rose of the Rio Grande," Mary Kornman, the original "Our Gang" lead, with whom the criminal finds real romance, and Martin Spellman, who had an important part in "Boys Town." Craig Reynolds and Kay Linaker will be seen as the pair who add to Carroll's many troubles. Supporting roles have been assigned to Lester Matthews, Mary Beatty and Robert Fiske.

William Nigh, who made "Boy of the Streets," "Rose of the Rio Grande" and the current "Gangster's Boy," is directing.

Release date: December 7, 1938.

There's That Woman Again

(Columbia)

Comedy Mystery

Last spring Columbia turned out "There's Always a Woman," and with its unusual comedy quality it attracted considerable attention. That picture, as will its follow-up, "There's That Woman Again," comically considered the adventures and experiences of "Bill Reardon," private detective, who, in addition to having a tough crime to solve, was burdened with a beautiful, dumb but intuitively smart wife who had delusions of being a detective herself. Yet she rounded up the criminals. The set-up is continued in this forthcoming attraction.

Melvyn Douglas, who created the role of "Reardon," will be seen in it again. Virginia Bruce, last in Hal Roach's "There Goes My Heart," will succeed Joan Blondell as "Sally Reardon." None of the other featured players in this picture, Margaret Lindsay, Marc Lawrence, Gordon Oliver, Paul Harvey, Stanley Ridges, was in its predecessor. Alexander Hall, who directed "There's Always a Woman," is doing the same job again. In the time between the two pictures, he made "I Am the Law," Columbia, which starred Edward G. Robinson.

On this occasion the detective husband and wife become mixed up in a complicated jewel robbery and love tangle.

While there is considerable legitimate mystery in the theme, comedy is the quality stressed, so that sequences of suspense and danger give way to others in which comedy, including slapstick, will be given full swing.

Release date: November 22, 1938.

North of Shanghai

(Columbia)

Melodrama

The locale is North China. The melodramatic action background for the romantic theme will reflect the warfare, slaughter, treason and treachery that for several years have been bleeding China. Considerable topical interest lies in the story of a stricken country where life actually is cheap.

The heroes are two Americans, a daredevil newsreel camera man and a girl reporter. Whirled into romance, they also are flung into an endless round of intrigue and duplicity. Upon them rests the responsibility of ridding China of one band of plotters who are the cause of much of China's tragedy.

As pictures with similar backgrounds are by no means new, the natural question concerns the cast. "Life Is Cheap" will introduce James Craig, a young recruit from the New York stage. It will present Betty Furness as the heroine, and has an important role for Keye Luke, of the "Charlie Chan" series and seen in "The Good Earth" and "Oil for the Lamps of China"; Dick Curtis, Joseph Downing, Honorable Wu, Cy Kendall, John Tyrrell, Ed Laughton and Dorothy Gulliver.

The film is being directed by D. Ross Lederman, a specialist in the handling of melodramatic stories, with such productions as "Juvenile Court," "A Dangerous Adventure," "The Frame Up" and "I Promise To Pay," all Columbias.

Release date: December 7, 1938 (tentative).

Dark Victory

(Warner)

Tragedy

In many pictures from "Seed" down through "Of Human Bondage" and "Dangerous," for which she won the Academy's Best Actress Award, to "Jezebel" and "The Sisters," Bette Davis has demonstrated her abilities as an emotional actress. Now, in "Dark Victory," her third starring picture of the present year, she has been assigned a role that again should prove her one of the screen's foremost artistes.

Although the story, adapted from a stage play, culminates tragically, and definite evidences of impending doom are frequently in evidence, the manner of treatment of the screen play by Casey Robinson holds that quality in abeyance.

The heroine, loving life fully, lives it as she prefers, until, from friends, she accidentally discovers she has only ten months to live. For a time she leads the wildest whirls of the swank Long Island cocktail set.

While Miss Davis will dominate the picture, the supporting cast lists many of Warner's most able players. Included are George Brent as the doctor, Humphrey Bogart, Ronald Reagan, Henry Travers and Virginia Brissac. Geraldine Fitzgerald, a stage recruit, will make her screen debut. Among others of importance are Dorothy Peterson, Cora Witherspoon, Charles Richmond, Lottie Williams, Herbert Rawlinson, Leonard Mudie and Fay Helm.

Edmund Goulding, maker of "White Banners" and "That Certain Woman," is directing the film.

Release date: To be determined.

Oklahoma Kid

(Warner)

Action Adventure

The story which "Oklahoma Kid" will picture and the backgrounds may best be described as typical wild west, thrill action. Its locale is the Indian lands of Oklahoma in 1893 when the Cherokee Strip was opened to the white man. The production won't be a burlesque or a satire. It will be the genuine article.

To be a Sam Bischoff production, the "Oklahoma Kid" is based on an original story by Edward Paramore, whose screen writings include many pictures, from "Portia on Trial" to "The Bitter Tea of General Yen." Preparation of the screen play was assigned to three adept writers: Robert Buckner, associated with "Jezebel" and "Gold Is Where You Find It;" Warren Duff, collaborator on "Angels with Dirty Faces" and "Racket Busters," and Jerome Odlum. Direction is in the hands of Lloyd Baacon, who has been at the helm of many of Warner's most exciting films.

James Cagney will be seen in the title role. Center of all the roaring melodrama he also will share the romantic content with Rosemary Lane. The more important supporting roles will be in the hands of Humphrey Bogart, who is to be as tough a western bad man as he ever was a gangster, Donald Crisp, Hugh Sothern, Ward Bond, Lew Harvey, Harvey Stephens, Trevor Bardette, Robert Strange, Granville Bates and Charles Middleton.

Release date: To be determined.

DOUBLE FEATURE DEBATE HEADING UP AS BIG ISSUE OF BRITISH EXHIBITORS

Two Camps Are Also Sharply Divided on Grading as Availability of Sufficient Product Becomes Another Problem

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Efforts of British exhibitors to solve the riddle of the super-program (double features), direct offshoot of the intensifying conflict between independents and circuits, would seem likely to accentuate the differences of opinion which mark the exhibitor camp.

Following the General Council's recent discussions with the negotiating committee's leisurely and frigid flirtation with the idea of an exhibitor grading plan, members of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association up and down the country once again have been thrashing out the problem. Despite the committee's warning, the idea has gained some backing in local branches. The backing, however, has been distinctive not alone for its support but for the vigorous opposition it has provoked.

In a report to the General Council Wednesday, adopted only after long debate and severe criticism, the committee declared the problem unsolvable. Ken Nyman pointed out that opposition to grading and the substitution of the exhibitors' own system of grading was a contradiction in terms. He added he had no faith in further conversations with renters on barring super-programs while ABPC and GB held the committee power.

Notable among the territorial groups which have debated the matter is the London and Home Counties branch of the CEA, in whose area, as recorded in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, the irregularity is most frequently and most bitterly found. They have suggested that the appropriate committee contact the circuits in order to go into the possibilities of a registration scheme under which would be classified certain films any two of which should not be shown in one program.

Sharp Controversy Seen

There is no doubt that the suggestion will be vigorously opposed and that the fiercest brand of controversy will be precipitated.

Panton Street's own disbelief in the virtues of a registration scheme already has been recorded. Presenting their report on their examination of the problem, the negotiating committee suggested that the exhibitors might be willing to examine the merits of such a scheme, and warned them that it would almost inevitably provoke the rationing of films by renters, the rearrangement of release dates so as to benefit the circuits and an immediate increase in film hire. This backhanded killing of a scheme before it was actually born had an obvious and widespread effect upon exhibitor councils up and down the country.

Despite the apparent indifference of the circuits, an indifference excused by them on the grounds of competitive necessity, major exhibitor groups like that of Manchester are still ready, as they have done, to call upon the circuits to implement the promises made at the time of the K. R. S., grading dispute.

INSTALL SOUND IN LINER'S THEATRES

Engineers of Western Electric Company, Ltd., London, this week began preparations for the installation of two Mirrophonic sound equipments in the two theatres of "Queen Elizabeth," giant new Cunard liner which was launched September 27th.

The two theatres have an aggregate seating capacity of 578. In addition to the installations of motion picture reproducing equipment, a full complement of accessories will complete the sound facilities including non-synchronous music attachments and an elaborate announcing system.

Across the county borders, in Yorkshire, the fiercest fires of debate have blazed, and though the branch decided on support of a grading scheme, the decision was not arrived at without a particularly forthright and exhaustive discussion. The view was expressed, notably by Harry Hopkins, that the grading of films by the CEA, would be nothing if not retrograde. Hopkins, as do many exhibitors in the provinces, and for that matter in the metropolis, reflects the negotiating committee's fears that any scheme which attempted to classify into super and non-super categories, would have the immediate effect of increasing the film hire for those super films. Up to the present, one of the most obvious and major difficulties has been that of arriving at a definition of what constitutes a super film. The London Branch's attempt to secure an agreement with the circuits on a registration panel, is one compromise offered. It is, however, objected by the opposing school of thought, for the most part the more pugnacious independent group, that any such move would pour petrol on the fire, that if anything is calculated more to increase film rentals than a renters' grading scheme, it is a grading scheme arrived at by the exhibitors themselves.

Another exhibitor group in Devonshire threshed the matter out and rejected entirely any idea of a grading scheme. Elsewhere in the West Bristol found themselves so unable to coordinate conflicting points of view that they deferred taking any decision at all.

Two Camps on Grading

Creeping into recent discussions has come the suggestion, made by the more conservative officers, that the CEA does not object to grading on principle and that the grading fight against the Kinematograph Renters Society was based on an objection against films being booked exclusively on percentages. Whether the branches in majority will subscribe to this principle is a dubious point; certain it is that there are two sharply divided camps on the matter, and that forthcoming discussions are in danger of accentuating disunities, rather than providing the answer to an economic riddle.

The matter becomes increasingly urgent greatly as a result of the shortage in product. In the three months ended September 30, only 23 British and 102 foreign features were registered, a definite drop from the previous year, a drop all the more marked in view of the growing increase in theatre totals.

Blowing up in Wardour Street in its municipal and governmental channels is a pretty little storm over the censorship, actual or potential, of newsreels. Following the Paramount incident in which Paramount, after pressure from the Foreign Office via the U. S. Embassy, excised from reel interviews with liberal journalalist E. E. Cummings and ex-Times Editor Wickham Steed, came to BBFC insistence on drastic cutting of the March of Time reel on the Crisis. Trade concern predominantly in exhibitor circles is now fastening on censorship by the Government and by the BBFC and alleged political bias in the newsreels themselves.

The inflexible policy of exhibitor circles has ever been against any politics on the screen, and they are now voicing, locally, emphatic protests against the allegedly changing colors of the newsreel. A recently formed association of newsreel theatre owners likewise have protested against censorship—potential or actual—which might take the form of political bias. Newsreel editors in turn, as represented by the Newsreel Association, have contested charges of bias or censorship and will probably meet the CEA in the near future to make their apologies.

The March of Time incident, although a matter of trade censorship and not of outside interference, is thought by many to reflect an unfortunate bias in favor of one political school of thought. The Paramount case, on the other hand, has caused greater concern on the question of constitutional principle, a concern voiced firmly by LCC chiefs, Herbert Morrison and Reginald Stamp. It is further suggested that newsreel commentators are exercising bias in governmental favor and coloring the news with one political view.

At the CEA General Council meeting Wednesday complaint was voiced to representatives of the Newsreel Association against alleged political flavor, particularly in the recent "highly colored" pro-Chamberlain sequences. They were warned of the dangers of censorship and told that if they were consored the theatres would cut them. The newsreels denied tendency toward bias but promised more caution.

Shorts Producers Organize

British short subject producers have formed a new association divorced from the Federated British Industries and affiliated with the Sub-Standard Cinematograph Association. H. Bruce Woolf of Gaumont British Instructional is chairman of the group. About seven companies are at present associated with it. The association aims to develop the position gained under the Quota Act and "correlate their problems to those of the feature film section of the industry."

Receivers Named

Two receivers have been appointed to take over the affairs of British Independent Exhibitors, Ltd., collective distribution group in which a number of independent exhibitors have holdings. It was formed with the idea of obtaining product, perhaps by sponsoring production, and distributing it primarily to the group's members, but also to the trade generally. Linked with it in turn have been the Rock Studios, Elstree.

Off to Khartoum

One hundred and forty packing cases accompanied Zoltan Korda's "Four Feathers" unit when it left Denham for the Sudan last week.

London Films will make their headquarters in a mountain gorge forty miles from Khartoum, where the capture of Omdurman and other incidents from the Sudan War are to be filmed. Korda also plans to show on the screen the hauling of the British Army in boats over the Nile cataracts, one of the outstanding feats in British military history.

A full Technicolor camera unit goes with Korda.

Six officers and 250 lower rank men of the East Surrey Regiment are to proceed to the Sabaloka Gorge to help in adding authenticity to the military scenes. They will be followed by a detachment of engineers with lorries from the Sudan Defence Force, who will provide a water supply and fixtures.

Among the other troops taking part in the film will be 500 members of the Camel Corps and 4,000 native soldiers.

Listed with the weapons used as props in the film—some of them real, some of them imitation—are the Long Lee Metford rifles, captured from the Boers in the war which marked the confluence of the centuries. Among the other props carried are "smoke puffs" and "smoke pots," visiting cards, ostrich feathers, a torn Union Jack and twelve pawn tickets.

From the Fire Lads

An ARP unit, complete with fire-engine, ambulance and decontamination equipment, was lent recently by the Walton and Weybridge Urban District Council to the Walton on Thames studios for the Butcher-Rembrandt spy drama, "Anything to Declare."

Scenes were shot showing an ARP outfit carrying on their work with gas-masks, decontamination costumes and chemical sprays, while airplanes collaborated in a vigorous bomb dropping episode.

Blore Film

Final sequences already have gone into the box on the Warner-First National "A Gentleman's Gentleman," in which Eric Blore, perfect butler of the screen, plays his first English film lead. Blore worked on the film almost every full shooting day, called something of a record.

Featured as one of the settings in "A Gentleman's Gentleman" is "Ensign," huge air liner, lent by Imperial Airways.

ABP Active

No cessation of activities can be noticed at the Elstree studios of Associated British under the production aegis of Walter Mycroft; no less than three pictures are on the floor. Despite the severe snub which is marking British production at present, Associated British Pictures continues its work with unabated vigor.

Top of the bill is Paul Stein's "The Outsider," in which George Sanders is appearing as Racatzy, the charlatan surgeon who, in the face of medical opposition, cures the young cripple girl—Mary Maguire.

Elsewhere work has been going on around a night club set, designed for the Jack LaRue film "Murder in Soho," in which LaRue has the role of a recketeering boss of a night spot.

In the seat of honor is Sandra Storme, the night club hostess, while Googie Withers as a dumb blonde actress, Arthur O'Connell and Edmond Ryan are others featured in this sequence. Norman Lee directs.

Work has started on a new Otto Kruger film, "Black Eyes," the play for which Kruger, distinguished in British film circles for his superlative work in "Housemaster," has been brought back from the United States. He plays the part of a Russian waiter who masquerades as a wealthy business man. His daughter in the film will be played by Mary Maguire, fresh from her work in "The Outsider." Herbert Brenon directs.

The Lorry Road

The Great North Road, England's number one artery, and its night working lorry drivers, are the film background and inspiration for two British film productions, one of which has been started, the other due to commence immediately.

Already on the floor at Tiddington under the Warner-First National banner, is "They Drive by Night," adapted from a novel by James Curtis, with Emlyn Williams, actor-playwright, in a leading role.

Also due to take the floor at Walton-on-Thames is British National's "Night Journey," to be co-directed by Oswald Mitchell and Bernard Willis. The story tells of two drivers who incidentally discover a car thieving racket.

Itemized

London Films have appointed a press representative exclusively to cover the activities of the "Four Feathers" unit during their stay in the Sudan. He is W. A. O'Donnell, London journalist and writer of radio plays.

Recently completed at Welwyn for release by Pathe is "Dead Men Are Dangerous," adapted from H. C. Armstrong's thriller.

Appointed by Erich Pommer to take over as production manager of "Jamaica Inn" and succeeding Roland Gillett—recently switched to Twentieth Century-Fox—is Hugh Perceval, previously associated with Phoenix Films. Casting is in progress, and scenario work has been completed. Alfred Hitchcock will direct.

The making of semi-documentary shorts in full color is the objective of World Windows, Ltd., leading figures of which are R. S. and F. W. Keller, with Hans Nieter as director.

Documentary

A drive to present to the British Empire, the United States and other nations, a complete feature picture of the social and industrial life of this country is to be launched by independent producer Paul Rotha, who has joined John Grierson at Film Centre, advisory to the documentary film movement. Rotha has set up a new section whose object is the making of a series of films to show at the New York World's Fair.

It is Mr. Rotha's belief that although England is well stocked with films dealing with re-housing, nutrition and social services, there is still a lack of films concerning shipping, marine engineering and the steel industries, etc., and so far there is no film dealing with medicine, scientific research and women's activities.

Columbia Plans

Columbia's next picture, following "Q Planes," under producer Irving Asher at Denham, is "Spy in Black," Conrad Veidt and Vivien Leigh—"Dark Journey" team—coming back jointly to the screen.

Directing "Spy in Black" is Michael Powell, responsible for "Edge of the World." He already is at Scapa Flow to arrange locations.

Powell's next film will also be made at Denham, but this time for London Films, and is called "Burmese Silver."

"Me and My Girl," in work under the title "The Lambeth Walk," for screen purposes, is a screen adaptation of the show in which the popular "Lambeth Walk" is featured, and Lupino Lane, star of the stage show, heads the cast in the film. Albert de Courville is directing at the Pinewood Studios, and release will be through General Film Distributors.

Plans have been matured by Alexander Korda for a new London Film production in color, "The Thief of Bagdad," in which Vivien Leigh, Contrad Veidt, Sabu and Jon Hall will appear.

Playwright James Bridie has prepared the script, based on a story from "The Arabian Nights." Frenchman Marc Allegret will be responsible for direction.

Sets have been erected at the Denham studios, and large wooden huts with concrete foundations have been built to accommodate the hundreds of native extras.

Most popular of Britain's broadcasters, bar one, Mr. C. H. Middleton, the B. B. C.'s gardening commentator to whom hundreds and thousands—with no interest in gardening—listen every Sunday, is making a series of films entitled "Over the Garden Wall."

Production Team

A new production team, sponsored by brothers Roy and John Boulting, who aim to make sizeable productions at a minimum cost, has gone to work at the "pocket" Highbury Studios with a screen version of Laurence Housman's "Consider Your Verdict." The film is, as might be imagined, devised around court procedure.

The entertainment which brings patrons to your theater night after night is, in the last analysis, just a rapidly changing pattern of light and shadow. The film which provides the shadow pattern is rented, but YOU provide the light. The quality and quantity of that light determines the effectiveness with which the picture is presented. The finest story and the most beautiful photography will often fail to please if poorly projected.

Simplified High Intensity projection provides the best projection light available to the average theater today. Yet the required investment is only 2⅓ per cent of the total investment in the average theater and the operating cost only 2⅕ per cent of total operating expense.

It provides the screen brightness and sharp definition desired by that large percentage of your patrons not blessed with perfect vision. It gives the most realistic reproduction of the increasingly popular color features. It permits a comfortable and safe level of general illumination. Ask your dealer to show you the economy of Simplified High Intensity projection.

Hollywood's Opportunity and The South American Market

Demand for Increasing Domestic Output Called Factor to be Considered

by CHARLES LIGHT

The rapidly increasing demand in Latin America for Spanish-spoken films and the beginnings of local production showing greater box office returns than Hollywood's superior product, are emphasizing developments in Hispano-America of which a reputed few have long been aware but which American companies only recently have acknowledged.

Hollywood has considered the Spanish market. As early as 1929, serious endeavors were made by Hollywood to supply Spanish-spoken films. However, lack of study of the market, besides a continual underestimation of the Hispano-American's intelligence, brought quick failure and an erroneous conclusion that Spanish films could not be produced satisfactorily in California.

The first Latin America country to recognize native production possibilities was Mexico, followed by Argentina, and in both governmental sponsorship was responsible. Mexico became production-conscious in 1930. It since has maintained its lead. And other republics are joining the trend.

However, until recently, marketing of local production was confined to the country of origin. Now the number of pictures is growing and despite inferior quality, the low cost features have, within their own borders, surpassed in returns some of the costliest Hollywood features.

Too, they have brought back to local theatres much of the population to which Hollywood films, since introduction of sound, no longer meant entertainment.

At first, neither Mexican nor Argentinian product could obtain a foothold in Latin American countries. Chief reasons were the antagonisms between countries, and lack of distribution facilities and experience. Overnight, a change came when United Artists took on world distribution of "Alla en el Rancho Grande," Mexican-produced by Bustamante y De Fuentes for $20,000. Up to June the picture reputedly had grossed $175,000 in first-runs alone, excluding Mexico.

This definitely established the Mexican film throughout Hispano-America and the other markets opened wide to their pictures, which, though Hollywood's view finds them poorly produced, are understandable to the masses. And a number of similar Mexican successes elsewhere in Latin America have followed.

Gradual Technical Improvement

The gradual technical improvements by Mexico and Argentina will further develop these markets for both.

Progress of South American product has been under government sponsorship, without restrictive laws on American product for the reason that there have not been sufficient local pictures. Argentina is the only place where an efficient official agency regulates local production and distribution.

For the best films, Argentina's governmental film agency gives cash awards, from 37½ per cent of the cash that goes to the producer, down to a split for assistants and talent. The decree also provides for refunds to exhibitors on theatre taxes, from a 100 per cent refund to the house presenting the premiere of the first-prize film down to 20 per cent for each week's showing of native educational, newsreel and travelogue films.

Charles Light, author of the accompanying article, for years has been a student of exportation of American films, particularly to the republics south of the Rio Grande.

As general foreign sales manager of Alexander Film, Mr. Light has collected data on film production and distribution in the South American countries, spending considerable time in Central and South America and on the Spanish peninsula, specific observations on which are contained in this article.

Before entering motion pictures, Mr. Light visited virtually all the South American countries for and in behalf of the organization of local offices for American manufacturers.

Teatro al Día once said that the author, for an American, was generally recognized in the Latin countries as having a rare knowledge of Spanish life, its music, literature, and languages, speaking eight languages. For years he has been advising American producers on the Hispano market.

The governmental sponsorship aims to keep monies within the country and to create international distribution, which, in turn, brings national prestige and needed foreign exchange. The economic or political factors show that local manufacture, regardless of character, eventually displaces imports in that particular line. And it already has begun to point to curtailment in Latin America of certain types of Hollywood product.

More Markets Seen

Should Mexico and Argentina, naming only two, increase and improve their production, and the tendency points in that direction, they are almost certain to find in other republics ready markets—markets which embrace 72 million persons in the 19 Latin American countries speaking Spanish. Brazil is excluded, Portuguese being the native language there.

Obviously there is virtually no market in U. S. A. for Spanish films produced in Latin America. Therefore the Latin American producing countries, as they grow, will have to look to each other for sustenance, and this cannot help but lead to reciprocal agreements and contingent laws.

The argument has been advanced that in the final analysis it rests with the exhibitor to decide whether he wants to run a particular film or how he should operate his theatre. However, considerations of personal friendship and the exhibitor's artistic preference for the fine Hollywood pictures will, even in South America, soon give way to the so much more potent appeal of the box-office.

On the other hand, any attempt by an American distributor to hold Hispano-American exhibitors to existing Hollywood film contractual commitments by legal recourse, or otherwise, not only would be a useless effort, but would lead to public protest.

Instead of encouraging production in South American countries, the American companies should determine to supply Spanish films produced in the United States as part of a coordinated program.

Once the Latin American film industries reach a really important stage, their exhibitors no longer will tolerate distribution of a selected number of domestic films with the product of American companies to "sweeten up" the Americans' block programs. They probably will even set up their own distributing companies, with govermental aid.

It behooves the American companies, therefore, to inaugurate a comprehensive program of Spanish film production that will take precedence over the films now being made available by Latin America studios.

Tentative Efforts Undertaken

In recent months some of the major American distributors have initiated moves to make Spanish films a part of their general distribution program for Latin America by acquiring two or three Spanish films or by sponsoring production by independent producers with a guarantee to release. These efforts, however, are admittedly only tentative and the procedure so far indicates that the American companies are approaching the problem without the necessary study which would provide a comprehensive picture of the situation in its broad aspects or the analysis which would provide details.

The solution is for the American companies to regard the development of Spanish spoken films as permanent, and to apply the same principles to them as they do to their films in Hollywood.

It should be remembered that rhumbas, tangos, castanets and bull fights do not make a Spanish film, just as a barn dance and corn husking would not make a Hollywood film.

Mexican films are to get a bigger exhibition break this fall in the Federal District, which includes Mexico City, as a result of the municipal government's agreement to the suggestion of the producers and exhibitors that its custom of taking cinema receipts for October, November and December as a gauge for taxes during the coming year, be abolished. The civic fathers were told that exhibitors do not rush pictures in the fall, because of the figuring of their box office the government then is performing. This holding back, it was said, blocked exhibition of Mexican pictures which now are bringing in the customers.

Abolition of the fall tax tabulation assures wide showings for at least 20 domestic pictures.

Browne-Equity Issuing First

With advance dates set in Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and elsewhere, in the East, "Prison Train," with Fred Keating and Linda Winters, the first production under the new Malcolm Browne-Equity Pictures setup, was scheduled to arrive in New York laboratories this week. (Picture in pictorial section.)

The company, of which John Browne is president, and which is composed of Malcolm Browne Pictures, distributors in New York, and Equity Pictures, producer, on the coast, was formed "to fill the gap in the independent picture market made by the collapse in recent years of many small coast producing units."

A majority of the independent exchanges in "15 focal points" are said to have signed agreements with Malcolm Browne for the new product. Recently signed up were Majestic Distributing Corporation, in Los Angeles, headed by Sam Decker, former president of the Monogram exchange in Detroit; and the All Star Pictures, Inc., exchange, in San Francisco, headed by Armand Cohen.

Also claimed to be novel procedure are terms under which coast studios deliver product to the distributing company. "One hundred per cent cash pickup," it is called, with Malcolm Browne paying entire costs of production, on delivery of the negative.

Under B. F. Zeidman, in charge of production, Equity Pictures has completed "The Masked Phantom," second in the series of 20 or more scheduled for this year.

Distribution by Malcolm Browne Pictures of a $200,000 commercial feature, sponsored by a cigaret company, was declared a possibility. The picture, with a minimum of advertising, which will appear only in credits, is still a matter of conversation. If made, it will be made by a large producing unit.

Chinese Film for Metropolitan

For the first time in its history, the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, will be wired for motion picture sound apparatus so that on November 18th the premiere of "Sable Cicada," a Chinese film, may be shown. The showing of the picture will launch a national campaign for funds to relieve distress in China. The booking was arranged by Modern Film Corporation, owners of the American rights to the film.

New Theatre for Broadway Area

A motion picture theatre is planned by Freya, Inc., at 43rd Street off Broadway. The house will seat 862. Alexander S. Andrews is president of Freya and C. Z. Christopher is secretary.

Pollack in Trinidad

David Pollack, of Western Electric Company of Cuba, has succeeded R. R. Abarbanell as representative in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. Pollack was formerly with the service division of Western Electric Company, Ltd., in England, and an ERPI representative in South Africa, in 1932 and 1933.

E. W. (Ted) Butcher, production manager at Selznick International Pictures, resigned this week. He plans a vacation before announcing a new affiliation.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Chesterfield

PORT OF LOST DREAMS, THE: Bill Boyd, Lola Lane—A dandy second half of the Ritter ("Starlight over Texas") program and seemingly well received by the audiences. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 15.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

Columbia

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown, June Travis—This is Joe's best effort since "Fit for a King," and his adherents in these parts were well pleased with it. If times were better in these parts or had the picture been better advertised, it would have drawn much better. Running time, 72 minutes. Played October 24-25.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown, June Travis—This is Joe E. Brown's best picture in several years. Very satisfactory business. Running time, 72 minutes. Played October 5-6.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

ONE MAN JUSTICE: Charles Starrett, Barbara Weeks—Another good western from Columbia. This boy Starrett is getting popular with each feature. Played October 7-8.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PENITENTIARY: Walter Connolly, John Howard, Jean Parker—A very good prison story, but there have been too many of these this year and, consequently, they are no draw any more. This was no exception in that respect. Lowest midweek gross for some time.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage

REFORMATORY: Jack Holt, Bobby Jordan, Charlotte Wynters—Bobby Jordan as usual steals the show. Play Bobby up as one of the "Dead End" Kids and the results should be good. Running time, 61 minutes. Played October 12-13.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

START CHEERING: Jimmy Durante, Joan Perry, Three Stooges—Played on my weekly 11c bargain night and drew as well as any ordinary picture would have. However, though the picture pleased all in all, it was generally agreed that several spots in it could have been eliminated and made for a better picture. Jimmy Durante holds the spotlight here and the small parts given the Three Stooges are well taken care of. Good for a double bill or bargain night attraction. Running time, 79 minutes. Played October 26-27.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

THERE'S ALWAYS A WOMAN: Joan Blondell, Melvyn Douglas—A "Thin Man" type of picture that went over very well but we didn't have too much business and Columbia put it in a high allocation, so our run wasn't a success. The picture is worth a playdate even at this late time, and our advice is to play it, if they'll let you have it at a reasonable rental.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

WEST OF CHEYENNE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—These stories with the Sons of the Pioneers have been gaining in popularity with each release and they are well mounted, with not much gun play, and are doing average or better business.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

WEST OF SANTA FE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—A very good western. You won't go wrong on this one. Running time, 57 minutes.—A. F. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart—Used this for a Hallowe'en prevue. Fair business and everyone pleased. It is a good crook drama. Played October 31.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BROADWAY MUSKETEERS: Ann Sheridan, Margaret Lindsay, Marie Wilson, John Litel, Janet Chapman—A program that seemed to be the tops here. Played this feature on Saturday and all who saw it seemed to be well pleased. I have been keeping up with Ann Sheridan from feature to feature, and in every one I think she is getting better. I believe she deserves better parts. She has a voice to be proud of and would go good in any musical. She can take any part and be good in it. She had good supporting cast in this, such as Marie Wilson, Margaret Lindsay. This would have been an excellent picture for any theatre on a Sunday and Monday date. I see Ann Sheridan is being starred in the picture "Angels with Dirty Faces." I guess this will go over with a bang. Played October 29.—Paul T. Mitchell, Mitchell Theatre, Barbourville, Ky. Small town patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

CRIME SCHOOL: "Dead End Kids," Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page—Just what the public likes. It has a high moral, plenty of comedy, swiftly paced, some emoting, and an all around fine picture.—Irma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

EMPTY HOLSTERS: Dick Foran, Patricia Walthall—As good a western as could be desired. Dick Foran sings well and packs a punch that takes well with "shoot-'em-up" fans. Running time, 59 minutes. Played October 1.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

GARDEN OF THE MOON: Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay, John Payne—Pat O'Brien plays a tough role right up to the hilt in this one. With the help of a good supporting cast which included Jimmie Fidler, O'Brien turns out a swell performance, which was greatly reflected at the box office. Running time, 94 minutes. Played October 14-15.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT: George Brent, Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, Margaret Lindsay—First First National picture on my screen and it served admirably well to introduce a new brand of pictures to the public here. Some of the most beautiful color shots I've seen, especially where the gold is being washed out of the hillsides. The problems confronted in the picture are such that will interest anyone familiar with farming. Running time, 97 minutes. Played July 25-26.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

MY BILL: Kay Francis, Dickie Moore, Anita Louise, John Litel, Bonita Granville—A good little program picture that pleased. Dickie Moore played his part in fine shape. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MYSTERY HOUSE: Dick Purcell, Ann Sheridan—Another one of the Clue Club series that held up OK on Cash Night. Running time, 56 minutes. Played October 25.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

OVER THE GOAL: William Hopper, June Travis, Johnnie Davis, Mable Todd—Good on a double bill. Don't try playing it single as it won't click. Played October 5-6.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia. General patronage.

PATIENT IN ROOM 18, THE: Patric Knowles, Ann Sheridan—Played this on a double and couldn't find a better picture to bill as feature number two. Play it as such and you will get many comments. Give us more like it.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre. Whitney Pier, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch—Good picture. Just the type for family night. All of these pictures are good. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SH! THE OCTOPUS: Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Marcia Ralston—Ran this on the weekend with a western and it clicked 100 per cent. Jenkins and Herbert are laugh riots here and we can't get enough of their pictures. Rather weak for a single but a knockout with double bills.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Gaumont British

SAILING ALONG: Jessie Matthews—A mighty good picture but a positive flop at the box office. Bring Miss Matthews to this country, place her under some major producer, surround her with a good supporting cast, give her a good director, and Jessie will go places. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 16.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

SAILING ALONG: Jessie Matthews—About the best that GB has turned out to date. English pictures don't go over here, but this proved to be an exception.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

Grand National

LOVE TAKES FLIGHT: Bruce Cabot, Beatrice Roberts—A nice picture, yet no drawing power. Good for double bill. Get something with known stars if you want to get a crowd. Played October 12-13.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

MR. BOGGS STEPS OUT: Stuart Erwin, Helen Chandler—Nothing to rave about. Be sure you get a good feature to play with this. Otherwise pay for it and let the exchange use the print themselves.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

RENFREW ON THE GREAT WHITE TRAIL: James Newill, Terry Walker—OK in every respect, and a whole lot better than we often get from the major producers. The male star (I don't recall his name) has a fine voice and can really act. He should be given more attention. I would say he has the best "smile" in Hollywood.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

RENFREW OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED: James Newill, Carol Hughes—A dandy single and was well received. Should draw good in any spot. Thanks to Grand National for this one. Played October 5-6.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

SPIRIT OF YOUTH: Joe Louis, Edna Mae Harris—Just fair for drawing.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

TEX RIDES WITH THE BOY SCOUTS: Tex Ritter, Boy Scouts—Although we did not do unusual business, I felt, on questioning our weekend customers that much satisfaction was derived from this picture.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert—Dandy Laurel and Hardy. Will make a big live man laugh. The best I have seen them in in a long while. No matter what they say, here's a good one, and McPhee knows. Running time, 57 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Henry Hull—This is an exceptionally fine picture which will do good to yourself, your community and your box office. Let all the schools and churches know you are playing it.—J. O. Guthrie, Karolyn Theatre, New London, Ohio. Small town patronage.

CHASER, THE: Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morriss, Lewis Stone—An excellent little drama with enough comedy in it to make it enjoyable to all audiences. Will stand alone on a short run. Miss Morriss has

CHASER, THE: Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morriss, Lewis Stone—Pretty good little picture to better than average business, and while I think of it, why, oh why, do producers take up the first 400 or 500 feet of a feature with all the varied and various film credits? They list everything from the producer down to the star's official dogcatcher on the screen, and as far as I can see, it serves absolutely no purpose except to inflate the ego of the Hollywood workers who are in any way, however remotely, connected with the production of the film. I know from many complaints I have heard that the average theatregoer is in no way concerned as to who is connected with the production of the film. The cash customers pay their hard-earned nickels for entertainment and not to read four or five minutes of titles, sub-titles, producers, assistant producers, yes men, stars, photographers, writers, assistant writers, assistants to the assistant writers, etc., etc., ad infinitum. A single panel giving the stars, featured players and director, all in small type, would be plenty. Played October 2.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—It didn't do it for me and it was a pretty good prize-fight picture. Guess the ladies don't want Robert in that kind of a role, and the men won't have him in anything. It looks like curtains for Robert, but I guess we'll have to play Leo's experiments. I'd play it if the price was right, but don't pay very much.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—Swell entertainment and MGM's second highest grosser for the 1937-38 product. The second half of MGM's 1937-38 lineup has certainly been "tops."—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

DAVID COPPERFIELD (Reissue): Freddie Bartholomew, W. C. Fields, Edna Mae Oliver, Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Madge Evans—We hadn't played this before and it did a nice business which justified our playing the reissue. Played October 12-13. —Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice —A sleeper. Didn't gross much with this but it drew extra business and proved highly entertaining. Running time, 74 minutes. Played October 7-8.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. Neighborhood patronage.

FIRST HUNDRED YEARS, THE: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Warren William, Binnie Barnes—Seemed to please.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon—The trailer did not do this picture justice. It was really a swell down to earth story well acted with the additional charm of MacDonald's and Nelson's wonderful ringing voices, but according to the trailer many expected something odd. MacDonald's southwestern twang was rather appealing in the feature, and the trailer emphasized the worst of it and also happened to pick on her most ungraceful cowboy walk that really was not so bad in the picture.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

LORD JEFF: Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney —This picture did the biggest nose dive of the whole bunch and we don't know why, unless it was the English accent, or the title. We lost plenty on it and wouldn't advise anyone to run it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Lana Turner—And what a grand small town picture it is. Patrons say, "Why don't you get more pictures like that?" And we can only answer that we certainly would if we could. It's swell Judy Garland was a fine addition, guest artist, so to speak. And let's not forget little Ann Rutherford or even Lana Turner. Who can blame Andy for falling for these swell gals? Played October 21-22.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—This will easily rank among the ten best of 1938. Business was up enough on this to give it third place for the year on MGM product.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—If you haven't run it, you are in for a big surprise. It will do business and plenty of it and Leo will have one of his special representatives on the door with his clock.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Lana Turner—One of the prize pictures of the year. Mickey Rooney an absolute riot. Good any place, any time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MANNEQUIN: Joan Crawford, Spencer Tracy, Alan Curtis, Ralph Morgan—Here is a perfectly fine picture. Crawford redeems herself many times over in my mind. And the direction is masterly. This is so fascinating that it will always linger in my mind. It has everything, a splendid moral lesson, magnificent acting, a story unforgettable and not a dull moment.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

MAN-PROOF: Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell, Walter Pidgeon—Was most agreeably surprised at the interest this picture created even with the men customers who came to see the western that accompanied his picture. There were no walkouts and we were all pleased.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power—A fine production that didn't pay expenses in this small town. Norma Shearer was never better, but we just can't sell costume and if you have a small town clientele you haven't a chance. It's a shame to waste $2,000,000 on this type when it could have been spent on some of the lower classifications. I'd use my cancellation on this one if I had it to do over. Played October 23-25.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, John Barrymore, Robert Morley—What a picture. Words cannot describe the lavishness and the acting of Miss Shearer and Robert Morley. So far as Tyrone Power is concerned, MGM has several men who could have taken the role and done as much with it as Power did. In fact, Tone would have done much better in the part. The picture is excellent, Miss Shearer and Mr. Morley the stars that they are. Miss Shearer surpasses any of her former roles. After all this is said, we are finished, as the picture is a terrible flop at the box office. Sunday night was the lowest draw we have had this fall. In other words, our audience does not like costume pictures and when Hollywood gets this into its vast void of the skull, we will all be better satisfied. We no sooner get through with "Antoinette" than along comes "The Great Waltz," another headache. To sum it up briefly, a great picture but not box office. Running time, 149 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—Excellent! Personally liked this the best of all 1938 pictures I have seen. Morgan should be given the Academy Award for this performance. Beery also at his best. Draw was not so good, as a lot of people thought it was a sea picture and don't care for that type.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Ruth Hussey, Robert Young, Lew Ayres, Guy Kibbee—Now here's one from Metro that should not be overlooked. It shows the possibilities of a new and better type of star in Ruth Hussey. It also digs up a really talented young movie actor in Lew Ayres who seems to have been in semi-oblivion since the days of "State Fair" and "O. K., America." Lots of very favorable comments. Played October 10.—J. O. Guthrie, Karolyn Theatre, New London, Ohio. Small town patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Walter Pidgeon, Alan Curtis—Hollywood has dozens of stars and featured players who have carved a place for their own particular type of characteristics and abilities. James Stewart is one of them. Like Rogers, no one could ever fill his shoes. He has a way all his own that can't ever be duplicated. Margaret Sullavan and Walter Pidgeon had grand parts also and together it was a swell picture. Played October 1617.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart—A very poor draw, but a very fine picture and drew many fine comments.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—A swell picture that did plenty of business because we went after it knowing that whatever it did was all ours. Beery did his usual fine job of acting and Mickey Rooney didn't lose any of his prestige. A lot of acting, action and marvelous photography, then printed on tinted film. Very good and play it as soon as you can.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind—Went over big on a midweek showing. Best midweek business for months. It is a shame they are breaking up this great box office combination. Read a few rather unfavorable comments on this in these columns, but we had not the slightest squawk.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—A good little picture that did a very nice business on our best days. We had a hot date on it and that helps more than you think. I would say run it and you will do business.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—With a goofy story and an excellent cast, this proves to be one of the most hilarious comedies of the year. Glad to see Janet Gaynor back. Bob Montgomery and Franchot Tone are tops, while Charley Grapewin gives the class "A" performance we always expect from him. Supporting cast all good. No complaint about this one. Running time, 69 minutes. Played October 28-30.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—Delightful comedy fashioned from ordinary story, but smartly produced and perfectly cast. Dialogue sparkles. Robert Montgomery again cast in a role that fits him like a glove. Played November 23-25.—G. E. Lancaster, Huntington Theatre, Huntington, Ind. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly, Leo Carrillo—Very fine picture and very good business. Pleased all. Played October 26-27.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

YELLOWJACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Lewis Stone, Henry Hull, Buddy Ebsen, Andy Devine—Our people liked this picture, especially the men. It had plenty of humor with Andy Devine and Buddy Ebsen, an interesting story and some interesting characterizations, especially of the Irish disposition played by Robert Montgomery.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

MEET THE MAYOR: Frank Fay—It is a fair little picture that will be okay for a double. Small town atmosphere and a few scattered laughs. More of a monologue for the star, though. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 19.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO: Not much Valentino. Mostly funeral. No extra business. Not worth extra money.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Monogram

STARLIGHT OVER TEXAS: Tex Ritter, Carmen LaRoux, The Northwesterners—I don't think I could praise the work of Ritter too highly in this one or over-rate the music played by the Northwesterns. "A Garden in Granada" was liked by everyone and enough comedy interspersed to keep the large crowd in an uproar. Running time, 59 minutes. Played October 28.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

STARLIGHT OVER TEXAS: Tex Ritter—Swell title and swell business. Ritter has quite a following in this city and under the Monogram brand his productions already begin to show a sparkling improvement. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 15.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM: Tex Ritter, Dorothy Short—We got a new print on this one that had never been run and the sound was plenty good; also the print was good and clear. The barn dance in this one was too drawn out,, but all in all it was a fair western that drawed good. But I believe my serial ("The Painted Stallion") helped to hold this western up. Without it things would have been different. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 21-22.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and rural patronage.

Paramount

BAR 20 JUSTICE: William Boyd, Russell Hayden—Very disappointed in this one as too many scenes under the ground and too much dark print; also ran into very bad weather. My patrons were looking for more horse play. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 14.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

BULLDOG DRUMMOND IN AFRICA: John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner—The best "Bulldog Drummond to date. This is not saying a lot as the entire series has been very poor. Entirely too much dark sequences for the audience to see. Good for the lower half of a double bill. Running time, 60 minutes. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Eleanor Whitney, Betty Grable, Hank Luisetti—A nice college picture that pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CASSIDY OF BAR 20: William Boyd—Hopalong Cassidy series. We always like to run a western with merit and these have it. Not the draw that they were once, but our farmers don't have the cash, and weekends are not the bet they once were. Worth a date on your Friday and Saturday change.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

COCOANUT GROVE: Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, Yacht Club Boys, Ben Blue—I don't know why I ever set this picture out, but I did and I found it to be one of the most entertaining pictures of the year. I can't see much difference between it and "Alexander," except a lot of ballyhoo. If you haven't set this picture, get it and step on it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

COCOANUT GROVE: Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, Yacht Club Boys—This picture had that indefinable thing that it takes to make a hit. Pleased well and business above expectations. Played August 15-17.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

DOCTOR RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle, Beatrice Lillie, Andy Devine—While this picture drew much better than average, due to the extensive advertisement on the part of myself and Paramount's ballyhoo in magazines, it did not please the majority of people. Seems like Paramount builds up a picture like this so highly that when it gets around to us everyone expects too much of it to come out satisfied with what they thought they would see. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 4-5.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patpatronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable—This is a good show, but priced so far out of line that it is just a headache because you lose all of your enthusiasm when you get the invoice. It did well enough on our weekend double bill. There is plenty of entertainment embedded in the picture.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

HEART OF ARIZONA: William Boyd—These Hopalong Cassidy westerns are good enough and used to draw extra business, but lately they are just another western as far as business is concerned.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princes Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

IN OLD MEXICO: William Boyd, George Hayes—Hopalong Cassidy passable. OK if your town likes them. Mine does. Coupled with a woman's picture makes a good show. Running time, 62 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Lloyd Nolan, Gail Patrick, J. Carroll Naish—Good enough gangster picture. Pleased all. Running time, 54 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd—We tried to give this one away on bargain night, but we couldn't even do that. Harold, why don't you give up?—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

PROFESSOR, BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—This one might hold up on bargain night or double bill. Lloyd brought a few laughs from the audience. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Louise Platt, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman—A very fine picture which proves that Dorothy Lamour can do more than show her legs. Business above average.—J. O. Guthrie, Karolyn Theatre, New London, Ohio. Small town pictures.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: Dorothy Lamour, Henry Fonda, George Raft, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—Another one of those rough sea pictures, well produced and well acted, but too rough for the ladies. I have yet to play a sea picture that did any outstanding business at the box office. Why make them? Running time, 113 minutes. —P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff—Just missed being a big picture. Too long and draggy. Business very disappointing. Played October 13-15.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett—What's wrong with this picture? It looked like it had everything and then it did a fadeout. Outdoor pictures were naturals for us once, but we didn't do enough business on this picture to pay the overhead. Maybe Paramount thinks they are better than they really are. It worked out that way in this spot, so we're laying off this year.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett—First class picture which did not gross what it deserved by a long ways. Played September 22-24.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

THUNDER TRAIL: Charles Bickford, Gilbert Roland, Marsha Hunt—This is a "better-than-average" western. Usually that isn't saying any too much. This really had a good story and was not filled with such impossible happenings. Played October 14-15.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

TIP-OFF GIRLS: Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle—Enough action for the other half of your weekend double bill and will please that type of audience.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

TIP-OFF GIRLS: Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle—Pretty good picture. Nothing extraordinary. Running time, 67 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

TROPIC HOLIDAY: Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Doroty Lamour, Ray Milland—Really expected quite a picture with this cast, but were we disappointed? We always know when the audience is "fed up" because when the picture shows signs of closing a general exodus starts, and half of our patrons were out of their seats long before the show was over. Nothing to it. Just stuff! Played October 23-24.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

YOU AND ME: Sylvia Sidney, George Raft, Harry Carey, Barton MacLane—Was agreeably surprised with this one. From reviews and reports, expected to see many depressing sequences. Instead there was considerable comedy. Pleased very well. Played October 19-20.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Republic

BILLY THE KID RETURNS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, Smiley Burnette—This second picture of Roy Rogers done good business here in spite of a county fair and big carnival. If he can pull them in over a big carnival here, he is bound to do big business elsewhere. Don't pass this one up. Running time, 56 minutes. Played October 7-8.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and country patronage.

CIRCUS GIRL: June Travis, Bob Livingston—Here is one circus picture any exhibitor will be proud to show. Grab it quick and play up the circus end of it and you will be surprised at the receipts. This is what we call a real sneaker. Played October 14-15.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage

DOWN IN "ARKANSAW": Weaver Bros., Elviry—Good picture, good business. Don't pass this up if your town likes hillbilly comedy. Played October 24-25. E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—Autry still one of our best mortgage lifters. We have done real well on other Republic pictures also. Running time, 58 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

HEROES OF THE HILLS: Three Mesquiteers (Robert Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Priscilla Lawson—Average western drama which pleased the action fans. Fair business. Played October 28-29.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

JOIN THE MARINES: Paul Kelly, June Travis—A darn good picture in any man's language. Used this on a double bill and was more than satisfied. Played October 19-20.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

LADY BEHAVE! Sally Eilers, Neil Hamilton, Joseph Schildkraut, Marcia Mae Jones, George Ernest —Here is a fine comedy that everyone liked. It has two children in the picture, well known, who are especially pleasing to small town folks.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

MAN FROM MUSIC MOUNTAIN: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Average Gene Autry which did good business and pleased all. Played October 21-22.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PALS OF THE SADDLE: Three Mesquiteers—The Mesquiteers always draw good here and business was above average. Some of my customers didn't seem to take to the idea of Republic's change in the Three Mesquiteers' lineup, but there was some that was glad to see John Wayne back again. Sound good, print extra good. It is sure to click anywhere. Running time, 55 minutes. Played October 14-15.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and country patronage.

PRAIRIE MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Typical Autry to good business. Pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

RIDERS OF THE BLACK HILLS: Three Mesquiteers, Ann Evers—This series of westerns are becoming more and more popular with our patrons. Republic is always springing something new in the plot to take out the humdrum of the usual western and have again scored in this picture. Very good. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RIDERS OF THE WHISTLING SKULL: Three Mesquiteers (Robert Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune)—Our people are well sold on these westerns. There is always a good dash of humor with each of these, and Elmer adds to the fun.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

SHIEK STEPS OUT, THE: Ramon Novarro, Lola Lane—Something different and pleased 100 percent. Used this as feature number one on a double and heard many comments. Play it. Republic deserves credit for this picture. To stop and consider what they went through to make this and "Circus Girl" would make any exhibitor lean a little more to Republic. Played October 14-15.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—This picture is the one that really won a warm place in the hearts of local fans for Gene Autry. Did better than ordinary business on it on my bargain night and am at liberty to show any of the Autrys from now on out and be assured of a packed house. One old timer asked why I didn't have one of Gene's pictures every night. Would be O.K. with me if I could get 'em. Running time, 60 minutes. Played August 3.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

UNDER WESTERN STARS: Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette—Fairly good western that played to average business. Played October 17.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BLIND ALIBI: Richard Dix, Whitney Bourne—With the story opening in the Paris artists' colony, we all settled back in our chairs for another one of those pictures with "furrin" atmosphere. But we were agreeably surprised when the story swung to this country and then the interest began to pick up. It is all right for one-half of a double program. But Richard Dix simply cannot get away from that mushy tone of voice. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 19.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen, Charles Ruggles, Dolores Costello, Irene Dare—Excellent in any spot and will stand alone in any spot. Pleased all, even McPhee, and that's something. A dandy-dandy show. Running time, 80 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers—Continued absence from the screen of a team like Rogers and Astaire only serves to reduce their box office lure. Sixteen months off the screen is too long and that was reflected in our grosses. Story was no great shakes; in fact, it was positively silly in spots. Isn't there some way to get away from that "I chase you, you run from me" theme? Running time, 83 minutes. Played October 23.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

GO CHASE YOURSELF: Joe Penner, Lucille Ball—Used this as the top half of a double bill, and had more than the usual Friday-Saturday business. Drew plenty of noisy laughs, but doesn't compare to a Joe E. Brown comedy.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Very entertaining. Enjoyed by all who attended. No box office hit. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 2-3.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. Neighborhood patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Lucille Ball, Peggy Conklin, Lee Bowman—Did I have a wonderful time hiding from my patrons and explaining to them. Just the worst entertainment for a rural crowd you could show. Running time, eight reels. Played October 20.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

I'M FROM THE CITY: Joe Penner, Kay Sutton—For a family night or for the kids,, just the berries.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

I'M FROM THE CITY: Joe Penner, Kay Sutton—Wasn't near as bad as I thought it would be after reading so many bad reviews on it. This little show pulled them in and sent them out smiling, and they evidently liked it, as their friends came back the next night. Joe Penner was the only RKO star who made us money on the '37-38 deal. Running time, 71 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LAW OF THE UNDERWORLD: Chester Morris, Anne Shirley—May do on a double feature, as people who want doubles seem to be able to take most anything. Running time, 61 minutes. Played October 6 and 8.—G. A. Van Fradenburg, M.D., Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

LITTLE WOMEN (Reissue): Katharine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Jean Parker—All the reissues we have played so far have never failed to click to above average business. Running time, 107 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

MAID'S NIGHT OUT: Joan Fontaine, Allan Lane—A dandy comedy enjoyed very much by our Friday-Saturday crowd. Running time, 71 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MAD MISS MANTON: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Frances Mercer, Whitney Bourne, Sam Levene—I ran this one day after release date and it seemed to please the young folks, who make up ninety per cent of my patronage. I do not think Henry Fonda especially good, but Barbara and her pals put plenty of pep and fun as well as thrills and chills in a somewhat goofy but interesting story. Sam Levene deserves a great deal of credit. A very satisfactory production. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 22-23.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MAN TO REMEMBER, A: Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis, Lee Bowman—Swell. Couldn't get them in on it. A perfect one if you use the gag to pay if you like it. Will please 100 per cent. Running time, 70 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME: Nos. 8 and 9—My patrons look forward to this reel every time I play one.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Anne Shirley, Ruby Keeler, Fay Bainter, James Ellison, Ralph Morgan—Very delightful to a large audience. Occasioned by a benefit for a local health committee. Played October 13-14.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Anne Shirley, Ruby Keeler—Very, very good family picture.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Fay Bainter, Anne Shirley, James Ellison, Ruby Keeler, Ralph Morgan—Rather long drawn out. Somehow it lacks the proper mood to make it stand out as a hit picture. Cast tries hard but things lag, somehow, nevertheless. Played September 30-October 1.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner, June Travis—Penner is consistent in turning out a better performance with each picture he makes. The gags and comedy are very timely and there were quite a few belly laughs in this one. Played it as a single and did a good business on it. Running time, 76 minutes. Played October 18-19.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers, Lucille Ball, Ann Miller—This picture looks like it was shot in 25 minutes instead of 25 days. This picture and the Marx Brothers are okay, but after hearing that RKO allegedly paid plenty of money for the rights to this we expected to see something in the way of a picture, but frankly we see nothing new in having the Marx group appear in a comedy based on situations which were just as good when they were by Percy and Ferdie when they made the old Hallroom Boys short comedies 20 years ago. In short, there's nothing new in a group of comedians trying to outsmart their landlord on their rent bill. The oldtimers wore out this gag when Hollywood was a cowpath. However, it did well at the box office. Running time, 78 minutes. Played October 2-3-4.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers—Very mild compared to other Marx Brothers pictures. Comedy is wide spaced.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers, Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson—Poorest kind of entertainment I have ever shown in my theatre since being in business. Absolutely poison for a small town. A few more like this and we will need a Quiz contest with cash prizes every night we play. Pass it up. Running time, eight reels. Played October 27.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers, Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson—A picture that seemed to please all. If you want to laugh and your crowds to laugh, well here the picture is. Just as good as any Marx Brothers picture ever, if not better than last few. This is a honey of a picture for a small town. This is one of the best RKO pictures made this year. Running time, 78 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Paul T. Mitchell, Mitchell Theatre, Barbourville, Ky. Small town patronage.

SAINT IN NEW YORK, THE: Louis Hayward, Kay Sutton—Make a hit with any bargain night crowd. Let's have another of the "Saint." Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 18.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—This is a wonderful production but considering the rental, etc., I don't think I am so glad that I played it. If Disney makes another feature length he need not expect the same terms, at least not from me.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

Special

BIRTH OF A BABY, THE: Richard Gordon, Eleanor King—This is the first picture of a sex nature that had the proper dignity to make you satisfied you had given your patrons something well worth while. It is presented in such a high class way that no one can take the least offense. All other sex pictures are a "jip."—L. V. Bergtold, Wetby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche—A swell picture that didn't do the business that was expected. I had to wait for a playdate until after every account in this territory was served with a print and that may account for the lack of business. It seems that the old tunes just naturally get under the patrons' hide and they like them. A real bet, if you can get a decent date on it. I couldn't. Played October 26-29.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche—The perfect trio. This was one of the best all-around pictures I have ever seen. It is a picture for everyone, as it was full of entertainment of every phase, lovely music, patriotic and touching scenes. It was liked by all and the comments on this were a pleasure to the exhibitor.—Mrs. E. L. Derrick, Chadbourn Theatre, Chadbourn, N. C. General patronage.

BATTLE OF BROADWAY, THE: Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy—About the worst thing Fox wished off on us and to make it worse, put it in a high allocation. It wasn't worth a nickel and if I had that much I would be plenty ahead. Lost plenty and I'd say lay off; you'll never miss this one.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT MONTE CARLO: Warner Oland, Keye Luke—Just another picture which did normal weekend business. I do not believe these Chan series are as strong as they used to be.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER: Loretta Young, Richard Greene—Interesting picture which failed to either please or do business. Many walkouts. Played September 1-3.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

HEIDI: Shirley Temple, Jean Hersholt, Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley—Pleased my patrons 100 per cent. Can't say any more than that. Running time, eight reels. Played October 1.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy, Joan David, Jack Haley—An excellent comedy that pleased all. Joan Davis was well liked here. Business fair. Played in first snow storm.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy, Joan Davis, Jack Haley—which did good business and pleased all. Played October 23.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver—Another Zanuck mistake and it just didn't jell. Baxter is usually a draw, but he was a washout in this as far as business was concerned.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver—Pleased but did not draw them in at the box office. Running time, 76 minutes. Played October 16-17.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. Neighborhood patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver, Jean Hersholt, Peter Lorre—Not a big show but pleased all. Not a Sunday show. Fair business. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver, Jean Hersholt, Peter Lorre—This is a nice program picture but it would be much better if it would be shortened about one reel, as it gets a little dry in places. Marjorie Weaver again plays a wonderful part. Here is a young star that is going places. Played on a Sunday date. Fair draw.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENT: Dolores Del Rio, George Sanders, June Lang, Dick Baldwin—Quite dull and uninteresting. No draw. Played September 30-October 1.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley—One of the best of the Jane Withers.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxson, Helen Westley—Not quite up to Jane Withers' past pictures, but pleased my patrons 100 per cent. Running time, 77 minutes. Played October 10.—Floyd Faubion, Lang's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart—Seemed to me to lack the usual Withers' pep and did not consider the picture quite up to standard. Business on it also a little disappointing. Played September 5-7.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Marjorie Weaver, Tony Martin, Slim Summerville—Awfully silly but it does business. My patrons like this hokum. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 2-3.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Marjorie Weaver, Tony Martin, Slim Summerville—We ran into rain and business was light. There was a difference of opinion as to the merits of this attraction. The low comedy fans thought it was one hundred per cent; others did not care a hoot for it. Player October 19-20.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

KIDNAPPED: Warner Baxter, Freddie Bartholomew, Arleen Whelan, C. Aubrey Smith—A beautiful production in sepia, well performed by a competent cast. Pleased all except the dyed-in-the-wool Saturday night fans. Played October 22.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LIFE BEGINS IN COLLEGE: Ritz Brothers, Joan Davis, Tony Martin—Despite the fact we get a little too much of the Ritz Brothers in this "picture of nonsense," it does have a "sufficiency" of laugh-provoking situations to give "Mr. and Mrs. Conservative Theatre-Goer" a pleasant afternoon or evening of entertainment. Thought Joan Davis was very good (except for her closing scene) and Nat Pendleton excellent, even though he did forget to put on his Indian accent occasionally. Those patrons of yours who like the Ritz Brothers and Joan Davis will say "Swell Picture," while the more conservative persons will no doubt say, "Entertaining," so why not make everybody happy and play "the nuttiest of nutty pictures." Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 22.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante, George Murphy, Edna Mae Oliver—This in a class with Shirley's first picture and by that we mean production values are definitely missing. Story is as well known as the heading of your daily paper. There sure is a gosh awful lot of orphans to scribble about. If Shirley does a story about each and every one of them, folks sure will get mighty sick of this type of story and most of our patrons are feeling that way about this routine plot already. Why do we think so? Well, they are staying at home where they once felt duty bound to see the current Temple picture. That so many still come is a fitting tribute to this lovely little star's personality. We understand her producers plan a color feature for Shirley. This will add great zest to her personality. Now, if only the story is something new and refreshing, we look forward to a very satisfactory audience response. Nothing 20th Century-Fox can do will be of more real value to box office the world over than that they give their number one star every possible backing in all her pictures. We've never seen Shirley when she wasn't tops in every way and we've got every reason to believe she'll stay that way for a long time to come, excepting only her studio falls down on the job. Played October 2-3.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante—A good enough picture but the little lady is losing ground fast and Mr. Zanuck better go on a talent hunt for someone to take her place and climb back up to the top. We ran it late. In fact, we run all of the Fox product late.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante, George Murphy, Edna Mae Oliver—Lowest gross on a Shirley Temple picture yet. It is her best for some time but they just don't come. Those who came praised it highly. Good cast and good story. George Murphy is good. Running time, 71 minutes. Played October 19-20.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MEET THE GIRLS: June Lang, Lynn Bari, Robert Allen—Did nothing. Pleased no one. Answer nothing plus. Running time, 65 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen—Didn't think it as good as her previous pictures, but nevertheless the public went for it in a big way and business greatly exceeded expectations. Played October 17-19.—B. R. Jonhon, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—A nice little feature that made a little money for us. It drew in quite a few Norskas who hadn't been here before. I don't believe this Greene has what it takes to make the hearts of the country lasses skip a beat or two, though would say rest of cast was fine. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—What a cast, what a show. Sonja Henie, Richard Greene and an all star cast. It had the stars; it had the songs, and I guess you should say just another grand old Fox picture. This feature pleased 100 per cent. All of Sonja Henie pictures click 100 per cent. Richard Greene, a newcomer, seems to go great. Have had several ask when he is on again. One of the best pictures played here in several weeks. Running time, 84 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Paul T. Mitchell, Mitchell Theatre, Barbourville, Ky. Small town patronage.

PANAMINT'S BAD MAN: Smith Ballew, Evelyn Daw—The best of the Ballew series. This being a western mad town, this picture pleased most everyone on the action and story. You can play it and be assured it is far better than any of the others. Played October 15.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

PASSPORT HUSBAND: Stuart Erwin, Pauline Moore, Joan Woodbury—This is a fairly good program picture and will get plenty of laughs, that is, if Erwin is liked. Played this on a double bill and it pleased very well. Played October 12.—Cecil Ward, Stone Theatre, Bassetts, Va. Factory and rural patronage.

RASCALS: Jane Withers—The least draw from a Withers in some time, but pleased about as much as any she has made. Borrah Minevitch and his Gang really went to town in this and brought the house down every time they were on. At that, the gross was above the average for a midweek showing.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Gloria Stuart, Jack Haley, Phyllis Brooks, Helen Westley, Slim Summerville—What I think is Shirley's best. Temple does not draw here. Running time, 85 minutes. Played September 18-19.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ROAD DEMONS: Henry Arthur, Joan Valerie—By all means play this one, especially if you are small town. I made the mistake of wasting it on a double bill. I should think it would make more money alone if properly advertised.—J. O. Guthrie, Karolyn Theatre, New London, Ohio. Small town patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—The usual Jones family fare.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

SALLY, IRENE AND MARY: Alice Faye, Fred Allen, Tony Martin, Jimmy Durante, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis—For some unknown reason, we did not do business on this picture, which is worthy of patronage.—Harland Ranklin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SECOND HONEYMOON: Loretta Young, Tyrone Power, Claire Trevor, Llyle Talbot—Pleasing entertainment for a small town audience.. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 8.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Michael Whalen—Just fair.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Michael Whalen, Lynn Bari—No big names to bring them in but a very satisfactory feature. Some excellent race track shots and a good story. Running time, 62 minutes. Played October 5-6.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Michael Whalen, Lynn Bari—Nothing to get excited about but was OK. Double featured it. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

> "I am a constant reader of your column, 'What the Picture Did for Me.'
> "I have found it an excellent guide for choosing pictures."
> —ANN STONE, Star Theatre,
> Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada.
> Rural and small town patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Bros, Richard Arlen, Ethel Merman, Phyllis Brooks—Here is a good B picture which they will demand top money and extended runs for. Lay off it. Will please all who see it but it's far from extended run picture.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Bros, Richard Arlen, Ethel Merman, Phyllis Brooks—Good as far as the Ritz Bros. go, but don't let them tell you it will go over on a Sunday opening. It didn't here anyway, and gross went to zero on Tuesday. Didn't even have to run second show. Pleased a few but not too many. Play it midweek. Running time, 65 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

STRAIGHT PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Brothers, Ethel Merman—This picture flopped for me. It has a poor title and the Ritz Brothers are too, too silly. Played October 19-20.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STRAIGHT PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Brothers, Richard Arlen, Ethel Merman, Phyllis Brooks—The best the Ritz Brothers have made. Very entertaining and pleased 100 per cent. You can play this and not go wrong. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 22.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

TARZAN'S REVENGE: Glenn Morris, Eleanor Holm—The title is misleading; it should have been "Fox's Revenue." If they ever had anything against me, this ought to even the score. Don't run it at any price because it will ruin all of your Tarzan pictures from now on.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Neb. Small town patronage.

TARZAN'S REVENGE: Glenn Morris, Eleanor Holm—This was much better than I expected. Played on Saturday to average business.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Weaver, David Niven, Stuart Erwin—This is a fine picture. However, it cannot be classed as a special. Played on Sunday and audience was well pleased. Marjorie Weaver plays a fine part and Loretta Young is a close second. Played September 25-27.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Weaver—After refusing to run this in their top allocation, I finally dated it in, then the exchange forgot to ship it and in two days that I ran it I didn't gross expenses, but it was a good picture. There are a lot worse pictures than this one.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCreat, Marjorie Weaver—Played this with the Walt Disney's "Academy Award Revue," but the combination still wasn't strong enough to do anywhere near average Sunday business| I thought the picture was a shade above average entertainment, but the comments were not especially satisfactory.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver—Clever comedy drama that pleased our patrons.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

TIME OUT FOR MURDER: Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen—A fair little programmer that went well with our Bargain Night patrons. A mystery thriller, well produced in every way. Should go well on the duals. Played October 14.—Ed Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

WE'RE GOING TO BE RICH: Gracie Fields, Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy—While this was no box office hit, it did please very well. Gracie Fields was liked, we believe. McLaglen perfectly cast and Brian Donlevy always is good. Music was different and good. Played September 28-29.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WILD AND WOOLLY: Jane Withers, Carl "Alfalfa" Switzer, Walter Brennan, Pauline Moore—Played on my 11c Bargain Night and was naturally attended by large crowds. And even though this was Jane's first appearance on my screen, she "sacked 'em up bodaciously" and walked off with 'em as gallantly as a lady might. The general comment, as soon as they could stop laughing, was that Jane had Shirley beat by a country mile. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 19.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

United Artists

ALGIERS: Charles Boyer, Sigrid Gurie, Hedy Lamarr—Too much brogue and of course the title didn't mean a thing. A cast of unknown stars, as far as my patrons are concerned, and they really stayed away from this one. Not a bad picture, but why don't they let the stars and support talk plan American or quit making these foreign locales.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Neb. Small town patronage.

DIVORCE OF LADY X, THE: Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier, Binnie Barnes—Entirely too long and slow moving. The story idea is good but, oh my, how these English producers can mess up a picture. Played October 12.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

DRUMS: Sabu, Raymond Massey, Roger Livesey, Valerie Hobson—One of the best adventure stories in many a day. The color is beautiful. Step on this. A dandy for school tieup. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 23-24.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

FAREWELL AGAIN: Flora Robson, Leslie Banks, Sebastian Shaw, Patricia Hilliard—This was "Farewell Again" to business on this one. We are proud of England, but when it comes to her pictures we cannot say we are loyal subjects. Her picture venture is her greatest blunder.—Harland Ranklin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Universal

ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT (RE-Issue): Lew Ayres—This picture had never played this territory and I figured it would be good for at least average business, as there are many "old sweats" in the district. It opened up on a Monday to an all time opening day record, not excluding "Snow White" and other epics. Business excellent, which proves my contention that a good picture is always a good picture, even if it has whiskers. Played October 24-26.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

BORDER WOLVES: Bob Baker, Constance Moore—The second Bob Baker we have played. Our fans are beginning to like him. The usual western production. Played October 15.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

FRESHMAN YEAR: Dixie Dunbar, Ernest Truex, William Lunigan, Constance Moore—A nice little show. Seemed to please and even heard a few complimentary remarks concerning it. We double featured it. Running time, 68 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FRESHMAN YEAR: Dixie Dunbar, William Lundigan, Ernest Truex, Constance Moore—Neat little college programmer. But why permit National Screen trailer to answer the Movie Quiz question in their prevue? No need to see the picture if they see the trailer. Running time, 67 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

IDOL OF THE CROWDS: John Wayne, Sheila Bromley—Played this with Warners' "Three Men on a Horse" and both made a splendid program. Wayne is well liked here. Played September 30-October 1.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

LADY IN THE MORGUE: Preston Foster, Patricia Ellis—A good enough murder mystery that is just right for the second half of the double bill.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds, Edgar Bergen and "Charlie McCarthy"—A swell picture that was sold at a decent rental and we did a mightly nice business on it. This "Mortimer Snerd" is some actor, and with "Charlie McCarthy" to bill, you can really do some business.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End" Kids—Maybe a good enough picture, but people don't seem to care so much for these and parents will criticize the picture on account of the influence it has on their children. Didn't do any business and lost plenty on the run. Lay off.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

OH, DOCTOR: Edward Everett Horton—Very good and funny. Used it as feature when one on a double and it pleased. None too strong for a single. Played September 29-30.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

ONE HUNDRED MEN AND A GIRL: Deanna Durbin, Adolphe Menjou, Mischa Auer—Really one of the best ever made and everyone that came was delighted. However, singing stars do not draw here and the business on this was very jolting, as I fully expected to make some real money on it. Played October 10-12.—B. R. Johnson, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Saskatchewan, Can. Small town patronage.

ROAD TO RENO: Randolph Scott, Hope Hampton, Glenda Farrell, Helen Broderick, Alan Marshal—Was a little hard to find out about the reaction toward this. It drew nothing here, but that was to be expeced in a Catholic community. Personally, I thought that it was a nice little comedy spoiled by putting in Miss Hampton. She added nothing to the show, but rather distracted from it with every appearance on the screen. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SINGING OUTLAW, THE: Bob Baker, Joan Barclay—Our first Bob Baker and he looks like a good bet. Have dated two more to follow this and feel safe in using all we can get our hands on.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

WE HAVE OUR MOMENTS: Sally Eilers, James Dunn—Very good and pleased. Used on a double and it made a wonderful show. Sally Eilers and James Dunn are tops. Played October 19-20.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

WESTERN TRAILS: Bob Baker—A fair western but this cowboy is much too small for such heavy work, and my chewers and spitters just don't go for them unless they are big and tough.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

YOUTH TAKES A FLING: Joel McCrea, Andrea Leeds, Dorothea Kent, Helen Parrish—Pleased about 80-20 per cent. I thought it was unusually good, but some kicks came in. I fail to see why this should be classed for adults only. It's pretty clean. A very poor National Screen prevue on this. It would help drive patrons away from it. Running time, 80 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN: Ronald Reagan, Gloria Blondell, Sheila Bromley—Used this with a western for the weekend and it pleased. Something about Warner features we can't understand: they seem to always please.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson—We pulled it after our first night's audience chose their nearest exit before it was hardly started.—G. E. Lancaster, Huntington Theatre, Huntington, Ind. General patronage.

BOY MEETS GIRL: Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Marie Wilson, Ralph Bellamy—Had more walkouts on this picture than any this year. Here's hoping Warner Bros won't waste O'Brien in another picture of this kind. Use this on double bill or check it out. Running time, 86 minutes. Played October 26-27.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane—Hardly fair; just a filler. Running time, 76 minutes. Played October 4-6.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. Neighborhood patronage.

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane—Excellent. We did a fine business on this and the customers just ate it up. Played October 14.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran—This is everything for a small town. How our folks laughed and applauded! I hope they will try some more outdoor pictures with plenty of comedy and swell music like this.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

DEVIL'S SADDLE LEGION: Dick Foran, Ann Nagle—Played "Over the Wall' on Monday and Tuesday and followed it on Friday and Saturday with "Devil's Saddle Legion" and had one of the biggest weekends in months. Is he popular, we'll say so. Played October 21-22.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosaline Russell, Patric Knowles, Hugh Herbert, Walter Connolly—This farce comedy is just a program picture in spite of its strong cast. Some liked it; some did not. Light business. Played October 30-31.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell, Patric Knowles—A some-will-like-and-some-won't picture. All work overtime to be amusing, but the story is somewhat screwballish. Played October 14-15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GOLD DIGGERS IN PARIS: Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins—This seemed to us quite good entertainment. Our patrons enjoyed it and turned out as well as we expected to see it. Better than lots of shows have been recently. Played October 9-10.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General partonage.

KID COMES BACK, THE: Wayne Morris, June Travis, Barton MacLane, Maxie Rosenbloom—Wayne Morris made a good beginning in "Submarine D-1" and came back to strengthen his cause in this one. He fights with a punch as well as Barton MacLane, and most folks thought Wayne should have ended up as champion. At any rate, Bargain Night crowds liked it and want some more of this caliber. It will stand by itself or top off a double feature. Running time, 59 minutes. Played September 28.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

LITTLE MISS THOROUGHBRED: Ann Sheridan, John Litel, Janet Chapman, Frank McHugh—Was surprised at the good attendance and the reaction of the audience. The kids came en masse and with the mothers and fathers. One lady took the court scene so to heart that it was long after the show was over before she could dry her tears.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Humphrey Bogart, Hugh Herbert—Very good picture and drew quite well at the box office. Running time, 71 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Hugh Herbert, Humphrey Bogart—Very nice and pleased. Has a good cast and with four of the best stars in the game it can't help but draw.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

OVER THE WALL: Dick Foran, June Travis—Played this on a Monday and Tuesday and wasn't one bit afraid of its drawing power, which was as good as the average special. Among western stars our box office reports show Dick Foran well above all other stars. We have even asked Warner to gather up all the old prints they can, that we may be able to use them and make money. You can't show enough of Dick Foran features, westerns or action pictures. Played October 17-18.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PENROD AND HIS TWIN BROTHER: Billy and Bobby Mauch, Frank Craven, Spring Byington—The Mauch twins perform well here and it will be good entertainment for small towns or juvenile audiences. There is a bit of comedy naturally in the mixup of the twins and quite a few thrills when they break up the gang of crooks. Running time, 63 minutes. Played September 15-16.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

RACKET BUSTERS: George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Dickson, Walter Abel—Interesting and provides an insight into recent criminal current events. Played October 7-9.—L. I. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

RACKET BUSTERS: George Brent, Gloria Dickson, Humphrey Bogart—As the title indicates, another gangster picture. Plenty of action in this, but for some reason or other it was a complete flop at the box office. Played October 21.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Louise Fazenda, Nat Pendleton, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins, Penny Singleton, Daniel Boone Savage—This one will go over big anywhere. No kidding! Especially in places where people like hillbilly music. Did better than average business on it and sent people away well pleased. Leo Daniel Boone Savage did some nice acting in it, too. Running time, 79 minutes. Played September 22-23.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General and small town patronage.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Louise Fazenda, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins, Nat Pendleton, Penny Singleton—I am a constant reader of your column "What the Picture Did for Me." I have found it an excellent guide for choosing pictures. But I'd like to get a hold of the exhibitor that recommended "Swing Your Lady" so highly. I really thought I had something there but, oh, what a headache it turned out to be. They didn't roll out of their seats laughing but sure rolled out of the theatre in a hurry. I sure couldn't show my face for a few days. Running time, 80 minutes.—Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

THEY WON'T FORGET: Claude Rains, Otto Kruger, Gloria Dickson—Another surprise feature from Warner. Saw this before playing and went after it big, and it sure brought new faces to the box office. Two weeks ago Warner gave us "Crime School," another smash. Boy, wait till we play "Swing Your Lady." It's box office plus.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

THREE MEN ON A HORSE: Joan Blondell, Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee, Carol Hughes, Allen Jenkins—Used this on a double and it made a hit. These comedies of Warners are well liked here and we don't hesitate to run any of their features with said stars. Played September 30-October 1.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage..

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor—A very pretty picture and most enjoyable. We did a very nice weekend business with this action picture that was photographed in beautiful color, and would advise anyone in a small town to get it set soon and on your best time; it will stand up.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

VARSITY SHOW: Dick Powell and Fred Waring and His Orchestra—Very good and Powell well liked. Can't understand these musical pictures won't draw. Nevertheless, playing "Gold Diggers in Paris." Maybe the fans are waiting for cold nights before taking in such pictures. Played October 3-4.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

EARLY BIRD, THE: Scrappy Cartoons—A very good cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PLAY BALL: Special Sport Thrills—Interesting short on the New York Yankees and their training period. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

PLAYING THE PONIES: Three Stooges—An excellent slapstick Stooge comedy.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

OLD RAID MULE, THE: Broadway Comedies—A fine Andy Clyde. These reels are all too scarce now days.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SAD LITTLE GUINEA PIGS: Krazy Kat Cartoons—Not so good. Skip it if possible. Running time, 7 minutes.—A. J, Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Educational

MUSIC FROM THE STARS: Treasure Chest—An entertaining short subject with a swell rendition of the number "Old Man Mose Is Dead." Good program filler. Running time, 11 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ALADDIN'S LANTERN: Our Gang—A very good Gang.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

AWFUL TOOTH, THE: Our Gang—Another laugh reel from Our Gang. Running time, 1 reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

BRAVEST OF THE BRAVE, THE: Historical Mysteries—One of the best we have run to date. Played it just ahead of "Marie Antoinette," and helped to build up the latter, if possible. Running time, 11 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Thatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S TREASURE: Historical Mysteries—Instructive.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

CITY OF LITTLE MEN, THE: MGM Miniatures—A good build-up for "Boys Town," and, if you are running this picture, get this reel. It shows the everyday life of the inhabitants of Father Flanagan's boys' home.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

COURTSHIP OF A NEWT, THE: Robert Benchley—These have all been fine, but this one didn't earn any praise.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

CRIMINAL IS BORN, A: Crime Doesn't Pay series—Another good one in the "Crime Doesn't Pay" series.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA ON PARADE: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Another excellent Travel Talk by James FitzPatrick. In my opinion, these Travel Talks are the best shorts ever filmed. Coloring beautiful. One patron who has visited this country said it was a wonderful picture and description. Running time, 1 reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

DAY AT THE BEACH, A: Captain and the Kids—There are many better cartoons than these.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

EVENING ALONE, AN: Robert Benchley—Quite humorous. Nothing was overlooked.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FACE BEHIND THE MASK, THE: Historical Mysteries—Very good. Got the audience to wondering.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FOLLOW THE ARROW: Pete Smith Specialties—A fair sport reel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

GLIMPSES OF NEW BRUNSWICK: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Very beautiful in color.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GRID RULES: Pete Smith Specialties—A very good Pete Smith football reel. Showing the advance in the game through the years. Excellent.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General partonage.

HIDE AND SHRIEK: Our Gang Comedy—I thought this was a little better than the rest. Running time, 11 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

HOW TO RAISE A BABY: Robert Benchley—A very good Benchley that pleases.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

LA SAVATE: Pete Smith Specialties—Good old Pete Smith. Always looking up the novelties for the screen.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LITTLE RANGER: Our Gang Comedy—A very good one from the gang. Running time, 11 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

LITTLE RANGER, THE: Our Gang Comedy—Not so good as the Gang has made and with Spanky missing there just isn't that something that made them click in days gone by.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

NEW AUDIOSCOPIKS, THE: Special—A novelty that is all right, but it didn't bring in an extra dime. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

PARTY FEVER: Our Gang Comedy—A good kid comedy. Running time, 10 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

RURAL SWEDEN: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Superb coloring makes this very acceptable.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

STREAMLINED SWING: MGM Miniatures—Very good musical short.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THAT MOTHERS MIGHT LIVE: MGM Miniatures—Fine.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THEY'RE ALWAYS CAUGHT: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—This series of "Crime Doesn't Pay" is pleasing more people than any short subjects that we run with the possible exception of Pete Smith shorts.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

WHAT A LION: Captain and the Kids—The best cartoon that Leo has given us this season. Very good. Running time, 9 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligoner, Ind. Small town partonage.

Miscellaneous

IDOL OF MILLIONS: Jack Dempsey—A review of all of Dempsey's fights. Swell for the fight fans. Running time, 18 minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Paramount

ALL'S FAIR AT THE FAIR: Color Classics—This is a clever little cartoon from Fleischer. Color is very good.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BIKE PARADE: Paragraphics—Fair. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MEXICO: Color Cruises—Dull and very uninteresting. Did have nice color in parts. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MILDEWED MELODRAMAS: Paragraphics—The old folks will like these cuts from early day pictures, showing King Baggot, D. W. Griffith, etc. They are ridiculous compared to present day pictures, but it's worthwhile.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MILDEWED MELODRAMAS: Paragraphics—Scenes from old time reels. Our audience loved it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MOMENTS OF CHARM: Phil Spitalny and His All Girl Orchestra—This is an excellent musical short in color. Play it soon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE: No. 6—A very fine colored reel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PUDGY THE WATCHMAN: Betty Boop Cartoon—Average cartoon which pleased.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SILVER MILLIONS: Paragraphics—If you like fishing, then you will enjoy this one and it is a welcome addition to your weekend program.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

TANNHAUSER: Paragraphics—This playing of an operatic overture by a big symphony orchestra is swell stuff, if your audience is high hat enough to understand it. More than a reel in length. We used half of it.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

CLOCK CLEANERS, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Clever cartoon but not worth the extra film rental. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DONALD'S NEPHEWS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Hilarious.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

INTERNATIONAL RHYTHM: Nu-Atlas Production—Excellent. A well diversified musical, showing the music of different countries that was very, very good. Do not pass this one up. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MAIDS AND MUSIC: Nu-Atlas—An excellent all-girl orchestra is hereby cheapened by their leader, who is evidently trying to out-burlesque a better known female orchestra leader. Not a bid matinee short. Running time, 10 minutes.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MICKEY'S TRAILER: Walt Disney Cartoons—Lots of fun here.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MOTH AND THE FLAME, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Outstanding.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

PATHE NEWS: An excellent news. Horse racing sequences in nearly every reel should be replaced in this territory with football.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

POLAR TRAPPERS: Walt Disney Cartoon—Extra good. Enjoyed by all. Running time, 8 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RUSSIAN DRESSING: Nu-Atlas—A good musical which fitted in very nicely with a comedy feature.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

SELF CONTROL: Walt Disney Cartoons—These reels too expensive for the entertainment value for me in a small town. Good enough entertainment but too expensive.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

STAGE FRIGHT: Leon Errol Comedies—Very good. Comedies such as this are scarce. Running time, 19 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

WHALERS, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Just a fair Disney.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

FASHION FORECASTS: Autumn Styles—A dandy color fashion reel. Well liked and very high class.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

GOOSE FLIES HIGH, THE: Terry-Toons—Pretty good cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NEW COMER, THE: Terry-Toons—Not any too good. OK for kids. Running time, eight minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

STRING BEAN JACK: Terry-Toons—One of the new color cartoons and OK in every respect.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Universal

CAT AND THE BELL, THE: Lantz Cartunes—Very nice little cartoon. Drew its share of laughs. Running time, eight minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GOING PLACES WITH LOWELL THOMAS SERIES: No. 53—Very interesting. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

STRANGER THAN FICTION SERIES: No. 54—Very interesting. Seemed to hold interest of all. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Vitaphone

DOCTOR CUPID: Ken Murray—Very funny two-reeler which brought gales of laughter.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FIGHTING JUDGE, THE: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure"—As good as most in this series but lacks the dynamic punch of the best. "Playing with Danger" still ranks as the best in my opinion.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HERE'S YOUR HAT: Broadway Brevities—A very good two-reel musical.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

I WANNA BE A SAILOR: Merrie Melody—These are very good. They certainly help round out a program.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

LITTLE RED WALKING HOOD: Merrie Melodies—An excellent colored cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

LOVE AND CURSES: Merrie Melodies—A cartoon on the old melodramas of yesterday. Have seen better. No comedy to speak of. Running time, 8 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MILT BRITTON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Good slapstick. Play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MURDER WITH RESERVATIONS: Broadway Brevities—A very good short off the beaten path with Campo doing an act which is funnier than the stuff we get from the feature comedians. Running time, 18 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

SKI FLIGHT: Vitaphone Varieties—Fair. Too much educational. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SONS OF THE PLAINS: Broadway Brevities—A very fine colored two-reel subject. Beautiful scenery, excellent story, good cast and exciting Indian sequences. Should have preferred time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SONS OF THE PLAINS: Billy and Bobby Mauch—Excellent. Nice to use on a comedy bill.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

ZERO GIRL: Evelyn Chandler—Here is a skating review that is really good and the acts they stage are keen for lovers of the sport. The funny man could really skate, and how my folks did enjoy it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

ZERO GIRL: Broadway Brevities—This two-reeler showing an ice skater contains a lot of comedy and some good music. Pleased all.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Serials

Columbia

SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND, THE: Don Terry, Gwen Gaze—We have just finished this serial and certainly can't recommend it as my patrons just wouldn't look at it and we finished it just to please some kids that had started on it. It is amateurish stuff and just a waste of time.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

Republic

LONE RANGER, THE: Lee Powell, Herman Brix—Not the best serial but the greatest box office serial ever made. If you have not bought it, get busy, for it has real draw and they like it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

ZORRO RIDES AGAIN: John Carroll, Helen Christian—To date, this is the best serial I've played, and both kids and grownups are interested in it. I feel certain that this attracts many people to come, especially to keep up with it. Plenty of action and interest. Running time, 20 minutes per episode.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. Small town patronage.

IN COURTS

Hart Wins $276,965 in Action Against U.A.

William S. and Mary Hart were awarded a verdict which with interest, amounted to $276,965 against United Artists Corporation by a jury in New York supreme court last Friday after a one-week trial before Justice Bernard L. Shientag. The jury's verdict was for $190,484.

The suit was filed by the plaintiffs, in which they sought $500,000, charging the defendant with breach of a contract for the distribution of Mr. Hart's "Tumbleweeds," produced in 1925. The plaintiffs asserted that United Artists sold "Tumbleweeds" with "Wild Justice," in violation of the contract.

United Artists gave notice of appeal and were allowed a 60-day stay for that purpose.

Selwyn Files Answer in "Stella Dallas" Suit

Selwyn and Company, Inc., filed its answer this week in United States district court in New York in the suit brought against it, Air Features, Inc., Olive Higgins Prouty, author of "Stella Dallas," and Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., by National Broadcasting Company, Blackett-Sample-Hummert, Inc., and the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company.

Superior Seeks Injunction

Contending that Superior and Stage and Screen Productions had failed to deliver 13 of a promised 25 pictures on their contract, and are therefore not entitled to an accounting, nor to "proper" distribution, as asked by the complainants, Principal Film Exchanges this week awaited a ruling by New York Supreme Court on application by Superior for injunction to prevent Principal from distributing their pictures.

Depositions To Be Taken In Consolidated Action

Depositions of Herbert J. Yates, Herbert J. Yates, Jr., Ralph I. Poucher, Nat K. Loder, and H. M. Lavenstein will be taken Tuesday in United States district court in New York by Du Art Film Laboratories, Inc., and Arthur Gottlieb, plaintiffs, in latters' suit for $500,000 each, against Consolidated Film Industries, Inc.

The depositions are sought by the plaintiffs for the purpose of supporting their claim that they had a contract with Universal to do that company's laboratory work, but Consolidated loaned to Universal the sum of $1,000,000, and incident to the loan induced Universal to break the contract with the plaintiffs.

Chicago Circuits Agree

A meeting between executives of Balaban and Katz and Jones, Linick and Schaefer, in Chicago Wednesday morning, resulted in B. and K. taking over the State-Lake theatre, effective November 18th, according to John Balaban, who said the house will open Christmas Day, after extensive remodeling, with a stage and screen policy probably in effect. The Oriental reopens November 18.

Warner Executives Confer with Wallis

Changes in foreign markets may influence next season's production, it was hinted, as Hal B. Wallis, production head, arrived in New York this week to hold conferences with Warner home office executives on next season's sales policies and production.

Mr. Wallis will be here about a week, and will look at several Broadway productions. Accompanying him is Casey Robinson. Warner contract writer.

Legion To Honor Warner

At a mass meeting of American Legionnaires, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and the American Educational League, to be held in Hollywood November 20th, Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, will be awarded a Legion citation for his contributions to Americanism. About 2,500 Legion officials and members as well as civic notables, will attend.

Texas Consolidated's Appeal Dismissed

Advised that the issue had been settled in the federal district court, the United States supreme court on November 7 dismissed the appeal of Texas Consolidated Theatres from a judgment in favor of S. H. Pittman affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Copyright Suit on Film Device Is Dismissed

Judge William P. James of the U. S. district court, in Southern California, has dismissed the copyright infringement suit for $3,500,000 brought by Adelaide Halpern against Hearst Publications, Pepsodent, and Lord and Thomas. The suit was based on a newspaper advertisement offering a "moving picture machine with two sets of colored movies featuring Walt Disney's 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.' "

The claimant alleged it was an infringement of her copyright on the device, obtained in 1930, and asserted that Disney was employed by the defendants to draw pictures for use in the cardboard construction, peepshow type viewing device. Judge James held that the idea was in the field of common knowledge.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Maggie Fisher

Mrs. Maggie Holloway Fisher, 84, who appeared in films in 1916, died November 4th in New York. In that year she played with Pauline Frederick in "Ashes of Embers" and "The Victim," both made by Famous Players. She went to Hollywood in 1919 and retired from the screen in 1922. She also appeared on the stage as leading lady for Nat Goodwn, Henry Miller and William Faversham.

Warners Win Point

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., First National Pictures, Inc., and M. Witmark and Sons, Inc., defendants in a plagiarism suit to recover $1,500,000 damages, an injunction and an accounting, were successful this week in an application to Federal Judge Edward A. Conger for an order directing Irving Gielow, the plaintiff, to produce for their inspection the original manuscript of his dramatic work, "Give Me This Night," or "Flirtation Walk," and the songs "I Can't Believe" and "Mr. and Mrs. Is the Name." The defendants claimed that the songs and dramatic compositions had been written by other persons prior to the date that Gielow said he had written them. Plagiarism was charged in the motion picture "Flirtation Walk," produced in 1934.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly
in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor

GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

SNEERING WON'T DO IT

The quickest way for showmanship to gain the top recognition it rates is for theatremen to rally 'round the lads who do the best job oftenest. No one ever claimed every manager everywhere was the last word in showmanship. That's not to be expected. It should be expected that managers everywhere emphasize the necessity of showmanship unanimously by pointing with pride to those lads who prove it.

At no time in the history of the industry has there been such a to-do in favor of showmanship, especially in the theatre. The recent M.P.T.O.A convention featured talks by men in the field, among them Harry Goldberg, Quigley Grand Award winner. The Warner Theatres ad head pointed out instances where extra profits were had by seeking out new showmanship sources. Leaders in every branch listened carefully. All gave full approval. The subject received wide discussion. But that's only a beginning.

The man on the firing line can best carry on from there. He may do so by sweeping aside petty jealousy, by praising the efforts of the lads who deliver, by trying to emulate their good works, by working with the more talented fellow to better his own grosses. In so doing, he builds up a new respect for showmanship in the eyes of the bossman, and thus builds up his own job and the reason for it.

The bird who sneers at another's accomplishments, who alibis by crediting these efforts to luck and influence, is doing nothing less than scuttling showmanship, the theatreman's most tangible asset. For how can exhibitors be expected to become enthusiastic over showmanship when managers themselves foul their own nests by stabbing it in the back?

Management and showmanship do not necessarily go together. The conscientious manager without the other talent encourages every flash of it, the nearer the better, and breaks a leg trying to learn how. It's only the lads who don't think straight who hiss it down.

SO VERY MUCH "VELVET"

"Boys Town" is a picture endowed with virtues to raise the prestige of the industry in new directions. Most gratifying is that theatremen in varied situations have done so magnificent a job of reaching rarely scaled heights of public opinion with campaigns that have dented many a boxoffice record. It appears these promotions have been effected with an appreciative measure of enthusiasm. A representative expression may be gathered from Earle H. Bailey's letter on the subject. The manager of the Harris-Warren, in Warren, Ohio, writes about it in this way:

"As much as we consider the theatres a civic institution comparable to schools, churches and libraries, it isn't every picture that is 'dumped into our laps' that will lend itself to building up the prestige that every showman hopes his theatre will be blessed with in the community. But, 'Boys Town' is one of these pictures. If you have waited for a picture that you wanted to be able to take to the churches, the women's clubs, the mayor and city council — the kind of entertainment that a judge of the courts will endorse by 'passing sentence' to see it—get behind this picture and go to town. Here's the picture you can put on your best campaign for and then put on your best 'bib-and-tucker' and be at that front door when the people leave, 'cause they are going to want to tell you about it."

Highlights of other campaigns aimed as directly appear elsewhere in this section. There are many others as potent to indicate how thoroughly the picture backed up the high-geared promotions arranged generally. Suffice to say that highly placed churchmen, civic officials, educators, and others in important spots where opinion counts heavily cooperated eagerly, in many instances voluntarily.

The primary function of the motion picture is to entertain. Any additional advantage gained is so much velvet. In the case of "Boys Town", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has provided an attraction through which theatremen have been able to weave a "velvet" of enduring boxoffice quality.

KEEPS ON HAPPENING

If you work hard enough, stay with it long enough, produce often enough, sooner or later they ring the bell and up you go. That happens quite often, currently to Round Tabler Doug George, from the Philadelphia Warner Theatres zone to the Midwest circuit of Oklahoma City, under "Dinty" Moore.

George is one of this department's favorite hard workers. He has been doing a good job right along. He will continue to do a sound, conscientious job in the future.

H. C. BENNIE, ROBOURN THEATRE, ALMENA, KANSAS, SETS DOWN A FEW OBSERVATIONS ON THE STATUS OF SHOWBUSINESS.

"Tough Guy" Cracks Safe for Borrensen

Far be it from us to be suspicious of our Round Tablers, but it seems mighty queer that burglars should "crack" the safe of the Winona Theatre, Winona, Wis., a couple of days ahead of opening of "Little Tough Guy" which afforded Manager H. F. Borrensen the opportunity to lead all his ads off with "What little tough guy cracked the safe at the," etc., etc. Local dailies all carried stories on the holdup and the theatre rode along on the crest of the publicity wave.

For "Tropic Holiday" radio tieup included local station plug of Dorothy Lamour sending "Bird of Paradise" flower to local radio talent winner; presentation of flower taking place over air week ahead of playdates. "Kiss booth" was erected in lobby with attractive girl distributing confection kisses from Dorothy Lamour. Also in connection with this gag, Borrensen addressed 500 government postcards to as many men with copy headed "red hot news" and inviting recipients to come to the theatre to receive their kisses.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Giant Arlen Birthday Card

When Richard Arlen, reported friend of "Dock" Twedt, Lido Theatre, Manly, Iowa, recently celebrated his birthday, the theatreman decided that he and his patrons would send their messages of congratulations to the star. Giant postcard addressed to Arlen at Hollywood was stationed in front of theatre two weeks ahead and patrons invited to sign their names below greeting on reverse side.

Loew's Inaugurates Cleveland Library Bookjacket Tiein

The Cleveland Public Library and Loew's Cleveland Theatres, initiated last week a new form of film cooperation linking more closely books and their relation to motion pictures.

Through the medium of a paper bookjacket placed around various books in the library, the public is kept informed of current motion pictures and related books. One side of the jacket bears a printed list of suggested reading matter that will enlarge more fully the time, place and period of the picture. On the reverse side of the jacket may be found the playdate and theatre location of the picture. The jacket protects the book while in transit from library to home and at the same time people who have a book with this particular colored jacket will know instinctively when they see it in their home that it is a library book which must be returned in order to avoid the payment of a fine.

Service Started on "Citadel"

With the aid of posters on the bulletin boards of all branches of the Cleveland Public Library, patrons interested in selected reading matter in connection with current motion pictures are urged to look for a book with a jacket on it the next time they visit their favorite library branch.

The first screen attraction in Cleveland to be exploited through this novel method is MGM's "The Citadel" at Loew's State, making the initial appearance of this traveling advertisement a reported "first time" for this manner of tiein in the history of the Cleveland Library.

The jacket was designed by Milt Harris, director of publicity for Loew's Cleveland theatres with the aid of ad artist Ed Huegle and placed in the Cleveland Public Library with the cooperation of librarian Charles E. Rush and Fred Myers, library publicity representative. Entire campaign was executed under supervision of division manager Colonel Harry E. Long.

Guessing Contest Held For "Too Hot to Handle"

Effective tieup was arranged by Melvin Grundy, Rivoli, Muncie, Ind., and sponsored by local photographic supply store in connection with the opening of "Too Hot to Handle." Contest was held with promoted prizes going to those submitting correct list on the number of individual scenes in which Clark Gable used his Bell and Howell movie camera in the picture. Answers were turned into the store and entire cost to theatre was three pairs of passes to runners up. Store giving major prize.

For lobby display, artist Luther Miller created a setpiece especially designed to show the effect of flames. The figures of Loy and Gable were cut out of a 24-sheet and used on the background. Suspended on fine wire in front were the names and title, entire display was lighted from the back with flashers in varied colorings.

TORONTO INAUGURATES 'MOVIE WEEK' WITH ALL-INDUSTRY STREET PARADE

ONE OF THE FLOATS IN THE TORONTO STREET PARADE

Ordinances Set Aside by City on Behalf of Local Showmen; Newspapers Break Rules to Publicize "Drive" Activities

All branches of the motion picture industry—theatres, exchanges, union and supply houses—united in staging Toronto's first all-industry street parade recently, to inaugurate "Movie Week in Toronto," officially launched with a proclamation by His Worship, Mayor Ralph C. Day. Reported as one of the greatest ballyhoo stunts Toronto has ever seen, elaborately decorated floats and hundreds of bannered cars passed in parade before thousands who lined the city streets to watch the colorful spectacle.

The good-will of the City Fathers (and the showmanship of the men who put the idea over) was demonstrated by the fact that the Board of Control kicked over several important taboos to help the theatres in their campaign. First, a street parade is almost out of the question in Toronto. The theatres were not only granted a parade permit but every assistance was rendered by the authorities, who allowed them a route through the main parts of the city. Another rare privilege was the permit to place banners across the city streets. Even "drives" sponsored by the city have encountered difficulty in getting banner permits in the past. Three were placed across the main streets in Toronto reading: "Toronto Welcomes Motion Pictures' Greatest Year—Let's Go!" Another stunt that hasn't been seen in Toronto in 20 years was the stencilling of the main streets with giant lettered footprints.

Governor-General's Horse Guards Aid

The parade, completely motorized, took a lengthy, zig-zagged course through the principal streets and districts where thousands lined the route. On the bandwagons were the 49th Highlanders' band, the band of the Governor-General's Horse Guards, besides two comedy bands of clowns and cowboys.

Floats represented the Motion Picture Industry, Famous Players Suburban theatres, Loew's, Imperial, Shea's, Uptown theatres, Independent Theatres association, Bloom and Fine theatres, Premier Theatres, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Columbia, Empire-Universal Films, United Artists, General Theatre Supply Co., Paramount, 20th-Century-Fox, Associated Screen News and RKO Radio Pictures in addition to Photoplay and Movie Mirror, Dominion Sound, Mavety Film Delivery and the Globe and Mail newspaper floats. Heading the parade in the official car was Charlie Querrie, manager of the Palace theatre, Toronto, in a bannered car lavishly decorated with chrysanthemums.

Leading Newspapers Cooperate

The press of Toronto cooperated generously, the two evening papers, Star and Telegram, breaking iron-clad rules to give the theatres eight-column banners calling attention to the parade the day previous. The movie critics, Helen Allen of the Telegram and Roly Young of the Globe and Mail opened their columns to the publicity committee and the Globe and Mail's float was built around their movie column.

The Projectionists' Union was represented by 50 members. Miss Billie Hallam (Miss Toronto 1937) and Miss Diana Perkins (Miss Toronto 1938) were in the parade as movie queens on the M-G-M and Loew floats. A sound truck sent up from Montreal by Associated Screen News prepared a special reel for showing at the Toronto theatres.

The parade marshal was Frank O'Byrne, assisted by Walter Kennedy, Charles Murphy, Harold Kay, Morris Rittenberg, Art Knowlton, N. L. Jackson and Jack Chisholm and others. The parade committee: Jack Arthur, Harold Kay, Frank O'Byrne and James R. Nairn. The publicity committee: Dewey Bloom, Tom Daley and James Cameron. The Toronto Film Board of Trade was represented by Lt. Col. John L. Cooper.

The parade grew out of an idea suggested by Morris Stein, Famous Players supervisor, who originally planned a Famous Players' parade which was expanded into the showing on Saturday by inviting all the independent theatres and exchanges to participate. Theatres participating contributed on the basis of two cents per seat to pay the cost of the parade and other extensive Movie Week activities which covered every possible angle of publicity and advertising.

Antique Engine Aids "Chicago"

Resurrected by A. R. Clausen, Waupaca Theatre, Waupaca, Wis., was old fire engine located in the City Hall and brought out of the moth balls to help exploit "In Old Chicago." Driven about town by firemen, truck was bannered with title, playdates and theatre. After run from one end of town to the other, it was stationed in front of house.

Siegel Arranges Local "Algiers" Handicap Race

An exploitation tieup that was a "win, place and show" winner was effected by Sammy Siegel, exploiteer, for the engagement of "Algiers" at the Liberty Theatre, Seattle, when he arranged for all of the eight races at Longacre Park to be named after the picture, its stars and the theatre.

Heading the day's card was "The Algiers" seventh race handicap. Other events were the first race, "The Liberty Theatre"; second race, "The Walter Wanger"; third race, "The Hedy Lamarr"; fourth race, "The Charles Boyer"; fifth race, "The Sigrid Gurie"; sixth race, "The United Artists," and the eighth race, "The Joseph Calleia."

These listings were carried in all local newspapers as well as in the racing charts of all papers throughout the country.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Early Bird Matinee Held For "Garden of the Moon"

Reported as creating plenty of comment is stunt inaugurated at the Avon Theatre, Utica, N. Y., by Murray Lafayette for the opening of "Garden of the Moon." Two weeks ahead, the theatre began to build up interest in a breakfast show at the house starting at 6:30 A. M. with the theatre serving tomato juice, doughnuts, coffee, gum, mints and cigarettes to the early birds. This was announced each day over the local radio station without any cost to the house.

Four days ahead ads were taken in local papers announcing the show. Stores throughout town plugged the stunt with announcements and tieup with local bakery netted signs on all their trucks. Picture went on early enough to permit those reporting for work to get there on time.

To fit in with spiral staircase to mezzanine, alongside of which it was placed, Homer H. Harman, New York Roxy ad head, conceived animated spiral setpiece herewith explained and executed by George Hirsch. Spirals were constructed of corrugated cardboard, in center of which three-sided upright was mounted on small turntable.

Kriegsman Promotes Local Newspaper

Recently completed by Harry Kriegsman, Claridge Theatre, Brooklyn, is a tieup with local newspaper, having circulation of 20,000, for free space devoted to theatre's programs, picture contests and reviews. Harry also receives 2,000 copies of each issue for gratis distribution to patrons.

On "In Old Chicago," Harry promoted use of old-fashioned bicycle which he stationed in front of the theatre two weeks ahead. Copy on bike read: "This is a relic of the days of Old Chicago." Easel was also planted out front with scene stills, playdates, cast and titles.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Creates Atmospheric Lobby

Outstanding feature of William Sosna's "Having Wonderful Time" campaign at the Sosna Theatre, Manhattan, Kan., was his lobby display depicting a beach resort. Included was giant post card with title, also used was sand, beach chairs, umbrellas, tennis rackets, robes, coffee table with water jugs, etc. In addition, two girls in bathing suits lounged around the display two weeks ahead.

Two-Page Double Truck Promoted for Anniversary

An eight-page supplement in the Niles Daily Star was promoted by R. W. Eberhard, Ready Theatre, Niles, Mich., in honor of the theatre's eleventh anniversary, tops of which were two double truck co-op pages of various merchants, each ad containing congratulatory copy. Balance of pages were devoted to current and coming attractions in addition to cut and editorial on E. C. Beatty, president and general manager of the Butterfield circuit and biography on Eberhard, who also celebrated his seventh anniversary at the house.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Two-Color Newspaper Ad Sells "Valley of Giants"

Lou Metzger of the New Spreckles Theatre, San Diego recently used an unusual and highly effective ad to sell "Valley of the Giants." To stress the technicolor production, he arranged with the Evening Tribune to run the ad in two colors, four columns wide and a page deep. Ad was a natural attention-getter.

'Boys Town' Gains Civic Approval

The Evening Telegram of Superior, Wis., ran a "Why is your son your best pal" contest as advance buildup for Gus Carlson's "Boys Town" date at the Palace Theatre. Contest ran three days ahead, winding up with story of the winners and the essays themselves for which guest tickets were awarded.

Through cooperation of the Mayor, civic offices were turned over to honor boys chosen by Boy Scout and school officials. Ctories, editorials and art work ran in local dailies. Electrical transcription of voices of Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney and Father Flanagan himself were used over WEBC and local probation officer and juvenile court judges were entertained at a special performance together with all boys then on probation. Cost of showing was met by police fund.

Out in Los Angeles

Tieup which he reports as creating plenty of good will for his theatre was effected by Tom Soriero, United Artists Theatre, who contacted local institutions in connection with a special show. Prominent citizens donated their cars and street car lines furnished bannered busses to transport the children to and from the theatre. Arrangements were also made for police protection to guard the children against accidents while downtown.

Head of the Juvenile Welfare Committee of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce cooperated by announcing through direct mail, opening date of picture and urging all to see it. Local papers came through with stories

And at Syracuse

Frank Murphy at Loew's State, converted his city into "Boys Town" for two hours on the Saturday morning of playdate as a result of an election in high school of all city officials. City Hall and Mayor Marvin cooperated in making the occasion a success. Idea was covered by newspapers; elected officials were entertained at luncheon in downtown restaurant, after which they repaired to the theatre and a review of the picture written by boy critic appeared in Journal as part of the festivities.

Educational study guides were supplied to English teachers who acquainted pupils with playdates, special letters were mailed to all clergy in the city advising of the high calibre of the picture and daily street quiz over WSYR in front of theatre plugged the picture three days in advance.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Ad Contest Aids "Army Girl"

Tying in with his local daily, Dave Jones, Senate Theatre, Springfield, Ill., for "Army Girl," offered guest tickets to the show to the first six people placing want ads. Cooperating paper ran ad plugging the gag, picture, playdates, etc. Jones also placed an ad in the program for the motorcycle races at the State Fair which drew some 36,000 and reports he distributed heralds plugging the attraction. Special front was constructed for the engagement, 24-sheet was pasted to sidewalk in front of house and theatre's daily organ radio broadcast was dedicated to the picture ahead and during run.

Band Concerts Aid "Alexander"

Quite a few Round Tablers got out the band in advance of "Alexander," Famous-Players Canadian members especially reporting a lot of boxoffice attention from this exploitation. Up in Guelph, Ontario, Russ McKibbin, promoted a bannered truck for his date at the Royal, which carried the local band around town, stopping at the weekly market in front of the city hall for a concert. The same procedure was followed by John V. Ward, at the Capitol, Niagara Falls, Ont., who arranged band concerts at two-hour intervals the Saturday before opening. Banner on truck was constructed so that it could serve also as frontpiece for the marquee during run.

In Windsor, Ont., the local Canadian Legion post bears the name of the Mayor, which allowed J. J. LeFave the opportunity to invite His Worship to greet the Legion band at the Tivoli, on opening night of the picture. Carrying banners, band paraded to the theatre and brought backstage by LeFave, surprised the audience by a concert between features. Photo of the Mayor with Legion leaders and story in the local dailies plus effect of the band exploitation resulted in one of the biggest campaigns put on recently, reports LeFave.

Street stunt of motion picture camera and operator proved helpful to Chris Holmes' "Alexander" date at the Avalon, Ottawa. Stopping at prominent corners, cameraman would go through the motions of setting-up, and grind. When crowds collected, he dropped theatre banner attached to front of the machine.

Ben Cohen Reports Calcutta Activities

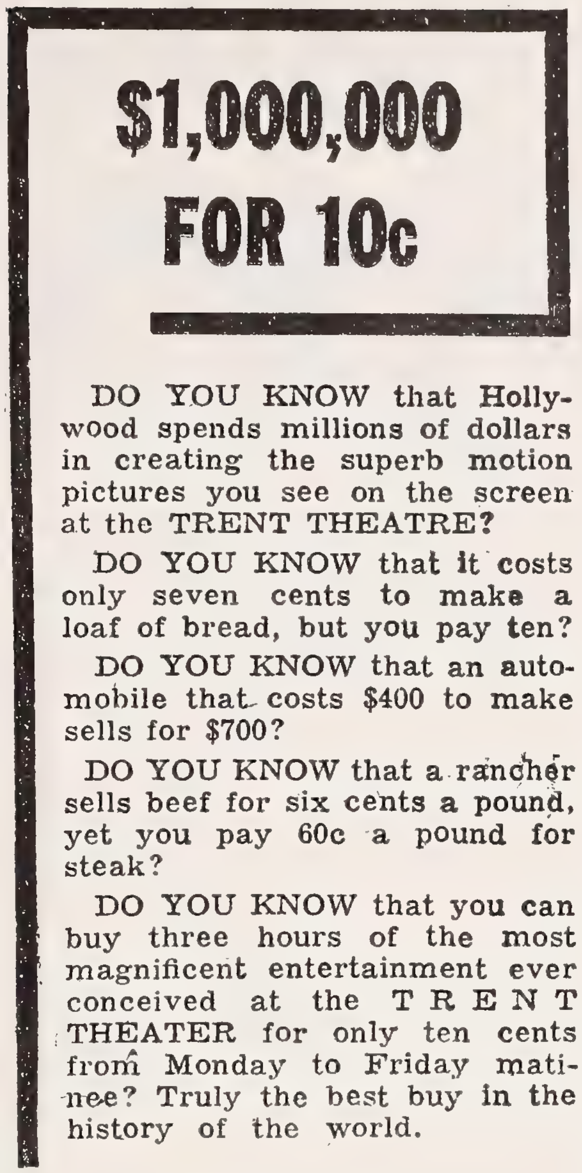
In the interests of MGM stars and pictures, Ben has been able to plant a lot of feature stories from his pen in various local publications. The most recent have appeared in the pouplar Children's Mail, Movie Mirror and advance Puja Special, stressing particularly the coming "Marie Antoinette" and including interview with director Van Dyke.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Holds "Bowl of Rice" Party

In keeping with his extra-curricular activities at the Opera House, Millinocket, Maine, Bill Johnson recently cooperated with local committees in connection with a "Bowl of Rice" party held at his theatre, proceeds of which went to the sufferers in war-torn China. Weeks ahead, newspapers cooperated with stories, in each of which the theatre received prominent mention. Opening night local fife and drum corps of the American Legion paraded the streets in uniform carrying signs with proper credits.



$1,000,000 FOR 10c

DO YOU KNOW that Hollywood spends millions of dollars in creating the superb motion pictures you see on the screen at the TRENT THEATRE?

DO YOU KNOW that it costs only seven cents to make a loaf of bread, but you pay ten?

DO YOU KNOW that an automobile that costs $400 to make sells for $700?

DO YOU KNOW that a rancher sells beef for six cents a pound, yet you pay 60c a pound for steak?

DO YOU KNOW that you can buy three hours of the most magnificent entertainment ever conceived at the TRENT THEATER for only ten cents from Monday to Friday matinee? Truly the best buy in the history of the world.

A bow in the direction of Bill Johnson is offered by Ed Siegal of the Trent, New Rochelle who used some of the institutional copy by the Millinocket, Maine member carried in a recent Round Table editorial. Siegal used postcard mailing piece for his message, as illustrated above.

"Great Waltz" Dance Contest Held by Hunt

The first eliminations in The Courier-Journal and M-G-M "Great Waltz" contest were held at night club in Louisville, Ky. All dancers, sixteen years old or older and not professionals, were allowed to enter the competition. The waltz contest began at 11 p. m. Judges were Mary Jane Mercer, dancer; Nedra Gordinier, W.H.A.S. artist, and George N. Hunt, Jr., manager of Loew's Theatre. Contestants received points on grace, rhythm, personality, dance deportments and general appearance.

The champions will meet winners of three other elimination contests, to be held during the next three weeks, on November 23, for the city championship. The city champions and winners from other towns in Kentucky will dance for the State championship on November 30.

The best waltz couple in the State will represent Kentucky in the regional finals at Cleveland early in December. Regional finalist will win an all expense trip to New York's Madison Square Garden, where they will compete for the national prize of a three month movie contract.

Wartha Promotes New Traffic Court

Born out of conversation held by Art Wartha with the Mayor of La Porte, Ind., regarding cooperation with the theatre in putting over a safety week, this theatreman inaugurated a Juvenile Court which was tied into his publicity on "Man at the Wheel" at the Roxy Theatre.

The City of La Porte has over 2,500 bikes on its streets, and the problem of directing that traffic has become acute. Wartha therefore struck on the idea to try in the Juvenile Court any boy or girl arrested for a traffic infraction. The young man selected for the job of judge was a boy scout of high rank and the defendant's attorney was also a boy scout.

Art tied directly into the plan by having judge sentence violators to witness the film and also return a stamped ticket from cashier at theatre to prove they had been there. Wartha reports that the tiein proved so tremendous that United Press and Associated Press sent the stunt over their wires in addition to many magazines sending their staff photographers down to shoot the court proceedings. Local papers, of course, carried plenty of publicity, including editorials. Leading merchants assisted with full page co-op ad on the Safety Week, copy also tying into the juvenile court, picture and playdates.

Numerous Windows Aid on "Algiers"

Large French Line window was secured for "Algiers" date by Wally Caldwell, Loew's Valentine, Toledo. Display consisted of star blowups, stills, one-sheet picture and playdate copy with large card in center carrying copy "Off to Algiers? Travel via," etc., etc. Elaborate cosmetic window with seven-foot by 18-inch upright compo display containing eight star stills bordering both ends of window was planted in five and ten, as were a Charles Boyer and Hedy Lamarr fashion window in leading department store.

For his Movie Quiz campaign, heralds were inserted in mailing lists of department stores, Auto Club, Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs, Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce. Street cars were bannered, taxi fleet carried streamers, theatre float was entered in local parade and through tieup effected with local department store window was promoted in which was planted large piece of film on which were stills of various producing companies coming attractions plus movie quiz copy.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Street Bally Sells "Booloo"

Street bally which he reports as attracting attention was that used by Jack Campbell, Capitol, Brampton, Ontario, for advance on "Booloo." Cage was built, painted white and planted on wagon. Two white rabbits were placed in cage, which was plastered with signs such as "Beware, wild animals, do not touch." Two kids dressed in scout pants, Frank Buck hats and carrying rifles and back banners with appropriate credits, paraded down main stem, winding up in front of theatre, where the lads stood guard during show.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 133

F. H. RICHARDSON

Question No. 133 was: (A) What is meant by a carbon spindling? What is its cause and may it occur to both carbons simultaneously? (B) If the carbons, or either of them, spindle, what should have your first attention? (C) What is the effect of positive carbon spindling, of negative carbon spindling? (D) Does spindling tend to injure metal parts of high intensity lamps?

(A) Regarding this, R. and K. Wells say: "The term 'spindling' or 'needling' when applied to carbons means that they burn to an abnormally long, tapering point, which means that excess temperature causes the carbon particles and their binder to be partly volatilized and partly to fall away. Personally I am of the opinion that the binder, being perhaps somewhat lower in volatization temperature than the material it holds together, is all consumed, leaving the said material to disintegrate and fall away. This view seems borne out by the dust I have collected for observation while by overload purposely causing my own carbons to spindle. (That's a new one so far as I know, but worthy of consideration.—F. H. R.)

"This condition is caused by abnormal temperature in the body of the carbon just back of the crater. It may be caused by overloading the carbon; by poor contact between carbon and carbon jaws (dirty or roughened jaw surfaces); an overheated lamphouse interior, or anything else that will set up abnormal carbon temperature. It may of course be induced by a combination of several faults, each one serving to increase carbon temperature. Either carbon may spindle, or both may do so simultaneously. The remedy is to do whatever is necessary to reduce carbon temperature to normal."

(B) J. A. Zachritz says: "First, see to it that the lamphouse has proper, continuous ventilation and that carbons are not above rated amperage. Second, check the carbon jaws for (1) Cleanliness; (2) Smoothness (not pitted) and (3) that clamps contact carbons firmly through the entire gripping surface."

W. D. Limmroth says: "If either or both carbons are inclined to spindle when operating within their recommended current range, first make sure the lamphouse has adequate ventilation (Seems to me manufacturers might equip lamphouse with a suitable thermometer registering interior temperature. Would not add appeciably to cost and would aid projectionists.—F. H. R.), and that the ventilation be continuous rather than fluctuating. Second, carefully examine carbon jaws, which must grip the carbons perfectly throughout the entire contact area. However, do not overlook the 'within their recommended current range.' Overloaded carbons almost certainly will tend to spindle."

(C) J. R. Prater replies as follows: "The effect of positive carbon spindling is to reduce the light source (crater) area by the premature falling away of the carbon particles. Current flow is also reduced by the added resistance offered by the smaller penciled portion of the carbon. Both of these factors reduce the amount of light produced by the arc.

"The effect of negative spindling is to reduce the current flow by increasing the resistance, and consequently to reduce the light. In addition, penciling of either carbon may cause an unsteady or erratically burning arc."

Mr. Marion B. Stout, Petersburg, Alaska, says: "Positive carbon spindling means the breaking up of a portion of the crater floor, which is the light source. This of course results in decreased light available to the screen. It also means increased resistance, hence decrease of current flow, therefore decreased screen illumination, this and the other items being of course interlocking.

"Negative carbon spindling also means increased resistance, hence decrease of current. This in turn causes decrease of light available to the screen."

Only one mentioned the fact that spindling adds largely, and in some cases very largely, to the white hot carbon surface, hence to temperature inside the lamphouse. That one was P. Slobodny, a Texas projectionist.

(D) P. E. Shell says: "High intensity lamps are so constructed that some important metallic parts are situated in close proximity to the arc, hence spindling, with its very largely increased heating area, may and often does damage those parts."

J. R. Prater says: "Yes, spindling tends to injure certain metallic parts where high intensity is used, because those parts are located very near to the extremely hot light source. In severe cases of spindling the carbon particles may crumble away clear back to, or even slightly within, the contact jaws, thus working severe injury."

MUSCLING IN"

UNDER the title of "Films for Democracy" a name-laden movement addresses itself at invasion of the people's theatre of the amusement screen to propagandize social and political doctrines.

This project announces a program which will tend to become importantly a new problem of the motion picture exhibitor.

Superimposed upon the many commercial and policy problems of today's theatre operation, the showman will find himself presently required to take a position, or exercise judgment, with reference to sides of many or all of the issues of the day—on some of which he may not be an expert, and concerning matters that can in no event contribute to his gross revenue or net profit.

Up to this time the motion picture has been, mainly, a business. It has grown great, important and at times prosperous by reason of a service of divertissement to the many. It is in truth a creation of its customers.

Under fifteen or sixteen thousand marquees in these United States has stood a door which opened into a world of charm, beauty, fantasy, romance and vicarious adventures—escape if you please from the drang and sturm, the monotony and malaise, the hates, hurts and fears of the world-as-it-is.

The current figures are in the vicinity of 80,000,000 attendances a week from a total population of about 135,000,000. If that is a vote it means something about the public state of mind and the status quo of the motion picture.

NOW an assortment of New Dealers, Misdealers and intellectual shell-and-pea pitchmen want to unfold their keesters on the motion picture stage to hold forth on the merits of their assorted brands of social gamble, rattlesnake oil and panaceas for the sure relief of the economic and social chilblains, rheumatism, fallen arches and brick dust in the urine that they and the likes of them have been creating for us.

That is what they would substitute for entertainment.

This is said to be a land of free speech and expression.

It is a land of a free screen.

Under that presumption it is proper to contend that the sponsors of "Films for Democracy" have a perfect right to get into production and purvey their wares.

They have.

But also they insist by the primary announcement that they have decided to do it on the existing amusement screen. They do not announce that they are founding an activity, but rather unconsciously declare that they are going to seek to break into and declare themselves into an existing business and institution. It's a muscle-in program.

The project is for the plain larceny of the audience and to hell with the consequences to it or the business which assembled it.

The real project is to make sixteen thousand Cameo theatres, dedicated to pictures of Leftist purpose, out of the American exhibition institution. The assumption is that the United States is a Union Square. There are many, and painful, manifestations in the world scene today which make flamingly conspicuous that this can lead nowhere but to trouble and potential disaster for the national screen.

THE directness of the address to a program of invasion of the amusement screen is proclaimed. "We expect to have the advice and the services of some of the most progressive people in Hollywood," says Mr. Samuel Rodman, executive secretary of "Films for Democracy." "The productions, according to Mr. Rodman," reports the New York Times, "will use the familiar forms of the regular Hollywood films." The same paper reports also that: "Distribution will be sought through regular commercial channels" and records that "if theatres in any locality" should not choose to show "Films for Democracy" they will "show under the sponsorship of some local organization or trade union."

That is known in the parlance of Broadway as "the slug."

Dr. Ned H. Dearborn of New York University, a leader of the movement, is recorded as remarking that they did not "intend to promote the doctrines of any particular political party, except as these doctrines might coincide with the viewpoint of progressives all over the country."

JUST what "all-over-the-country" means may be a bit hazy, but among the sponsors the names seem to be more accurately all-over Leftist New York and to include, for the window dressing of diversity, such names as Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas and Will Rogers, Jr. If Senator Capper's Jayhawker constituency ever finds out about this gang he goes with he will have more time to attend to his business in Topeka, and as for young Mr. Rogers, it's too bad his father is not about to attend to the matter in the manner of the Cherokee tradition.

The movement includes quite a mess of Hollywood names, mainly actors, seeking the limelight as ever with lines and ideas that have been written for them.

Among the endeavours at Hollywood borrowings for box office approach is the name of Mr. Walter Wanger, who had such a devil of a time about "Blockade" and who was probably basically considerably more commercially hopeful than politically concerned. Also listed are Dudley Nichols and Fredric March, not what you would say "red" but possibly appleblossom pink in a delicately scented way. Then for academic color they have Dr. Mary E. Woolley, onetime president of Mount Holyoke college, who is not there any more because she found so many causes elsewhere. Mr. Heywood Broun is presumably in on his merits, while such names as Mr. Abraham Flexner, Dr. A. A. Brill and Mr. Walter Prichard Eaton are distinctly scenic.

The prospectus of "Films for Democracy" contemplates that "habitual movie-goers . . . will . . . welcome new films which

Politics, Propaganda

The inviolability of the theatrical screen as a medium solely for entertainment faced threats this week from diverse quarters and many countries. At home in the United States long agitation for expression on the screen of the ideas of champions of the near and far left crystallized in the formation in New York of Films for Democracy, Inc., supported by a group of legislators, writers, economists and a few motion picture personalities, and intended to sponsor the production of films based on "vital issues" from the "progressive viewpoint." Details of the plan are explained in a general story surveying motion picture propaganda developments over the world on pages 12 and 13, and it is discussed by Martin Quigley on page 13 and by Terry Ramsaye on page 7.

Germany and the Nazis loom large in the discussion of the motion picture in world politics which starts on page 12. The persecution of "non-Aryans" launched in all its intensity this week affected many theatre owners in Germany, Austria and Sudetenland and complete Nazi control of the industry already in force in Germany and Austria was reported being strictly imposed not only in the newly acquired territories but also in the Czechoslovakian area which nominally remained independent but which is now under the economic domination of the Reich. Nazi influence, filmwise, also was reported gaining in South America.

The Franco Government of nationalist Spain announced the formation of a Department of Motion Pictures in complete charge of the industry. The department, it is reported in an interview with Manuel Augusto, its chief, quoted on page 24, at present is concerned with the production of pictures to "combat Loyalist Red screen propaganda" and "control interpretations of the war and of Spanish life in motion pictures of foreign countries."

After the war the department expects to reestablish relations with American companies whose funds have been "frozen".

interpret current reality and point out constructive solutions."

The habitual movie goers have recently expressed their demand for "current reality" and for "constructive solutions" by a magnificent vote for "Snow White" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

The exhibitor, so the new movement assumes, will be glad to cast his business in such attractions aside, so he can devote his efforts and investment to the exploitation of movements.

—TERRY RAMSAYE

Goldwyn-Roosevelt

Last Tuesday night James Roosevelt, recuperating after a stomach operation, and who has just resigned as a member of the White House secretariat, had dinner in Hollywood with Samuel Goldwyn. Those at Hollywood began to toy with guesses that young Mr. Roosevelt was to "take an executive position with a Hollywood studio."

It is to be remembered that somewhat over a year ago Mr. Goldwyn presented some screen advertising using the name of Mrs. Roosevelt, mother of James, and got into a considerable pother, with public apologies which practically doubled the publicity attentions for the picture and its producer.

James, interviewed in western Hearst papers a fortnight ago, said: "The film industry has a great responsibility in seeing that pictures which go abroad do not give the wrong impression. It might be a good idea to have a closer relationship between the State Department and the producers."

Facing New Tax

Exhibitors in Ontario are facing the possibility of resumption of amusement taxes following the action of Premier Helburn in abolishing the 10 per cent amusement tax, in June, 1937. The University of Toronto, the most influential school in the Dominion, has suggested that needed financial support might be derived from a tax of one cent on every theatre ticket sold in Toronto.

Hays Sees Roosevelt

Will H. Hays called at the White House on Wednesday, in the midst of a week when Washington has been most acutely and poignantly concerned with world affairs, and also, possibly only incidentally, just on the eve of the closing of a trade treaty with Great Britain, a document in which the screen has a large interest.

It was given out that Mr. Hays had outlined to the President progress on the film entitled "Cavalcade of America," now under production by members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, to depict American history, by excerpts from dramatic archives.

Mr. Hays said that the President evinced deep interest in historical films and "wished we had such pictures from other nations."

Washington knows that the motion picture has more intricate, and immediate, involvement in world affairs and the changing international map than any other American industry. Meanwhile it has domestic problems, also centered in Washington and the Administration.

That "Cavalcade"

A panel of leading American educators, by agreement made several weeks ago, submitted to the organized industry, via the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, a list of leading events in American history, with the idea of matching them with corresponding picturizations from motion pictures, to be incorporated in the "Cavalcade of America" as the industry's contribution to the New York and San Francisco 1939 World's Fairs.

The MPPDA inspected hundreds of feature pictures, old and new, in the vaults of member companies, from which they extracted sequences corresponding with virtually all the events listed by the educators. With the selection completed, and many thousands of feet of film on hand, the entire batch will now be sent to Hollywood, where another panel of educators, sitting with producers and directors, will pick the best of the material for "Cavalcade."

ASCAP Appeal

The United States supreme court is slated to hear American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers appeals, involving anti-ASCAP legislation enacted by Florida and Washington, in the first week of January. The appeals will provide the first tests of the constitutionality of legislation to bar the music licensing society from operating within individual states. The outcome of the two appeals will probably determine, likewise, constitutionality of the only other existing anti-ASCAP legislation, that of Montana, Nebraska and Tennessee.

Urged to Advertise

"Do what the motion picture industry has done in creating good will for itself through its drive" was the gist of the message delivered to the Life Advertisers Association in Atlantic City this week by Clinton Davidson of New York, vice-president of Fiduciary Council, Inc.

Mr. Davidson advised insurance companies to advertise their agents in the same way motion picture companies advertise their stars; he urged retaining publicity men from the motion picture field to build good will with the public, and a vigorous institutional newspaper advertising campaign.

Sargoy Appointed

The appointment of Edward A. Sargoy, of the large distributors' Copyright Protection Bureau in New York, to the chairmanship of the committee on copyright of the section of patent, trade mark and copyright law of the American Bar Association, was announced Tuesday by Thomas B. Robertson of Maryland, chairman of the section.

For the last nine years Mr. Sargoy has been active in copyright matters, with regard to motion pictures. In 1936 Mr. Sargoy wrote a review of the copyright situation for Motion Picture Herald. It appeared in the issue of May 23, 1936.

One Big Union

Consolidation of all actors and entertainers' guilds and unions, one of the original purposes of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, was urged in two addresses this week. Frank Gillmore, international president of the Four A's, told representatives of the stage, screen and radio groups in San Francisco that a movement is underway to include all groups in one union for the entertainment field.

A similar plan was urged by Mrs. Emily Holt, executive secretary of the American Federation of Radio Artists, at the annual convention of that group in St. Louis.

Mr. Gillmore also announced he would organize a committee to seek revision of income tax laws so that the surtax on incomes of entertainers would be based on a three year average instead of one year. He said this system has been adopted in England.

Screen Actors' Guild officials, questioned this week on the importance or probable results of the filing of an NLRB petition last week by a lawyer claiming to represent 3,000 extra player members of a new organization calling itself Cinema Players, Inc., pointed out that under Guild by-laws any minority group as strong as that claimed would be able to force an election within the Guild itself to gain its desired ends.

Trade Agreements

The long pending reciprocal trade agreement with the United Kingdom, possibly involving concessions on American films in the English market, was to be signed Thursday by representatives of the United States and British governments, simultaneously with the signing by Canadian officials of a new agreement with the Dominion.

Details of the two pacts will not be made public until Friday morning.

The Canadian treaty is an extension and expansion of the existing agreement, which expires January 1st, but the British pact is an entirely new document, in the negotiation of which the situation facing American films in England was a subject of discussion.

Fewer Censor Cuts

Sharp decrease in scene elimination, despite a rise in number of pictures reviewed, number of foreign films submitted, and receipts for this year compared with last year, were salient facts in the annual report made this week by the New York censor board, covering the year 1937-38.

Pictures rejected, a total of 23, included "Ecstasy," "Tomorrow's Children," "Birth of a Baby," "Animated Diagrams of the Human Body" and "Whirlpool." Court decisions on appeals for the last three films are pending.

The story and table are on page 26.

Arnold "Explains"

Apparently concerned over the effect on general business of statements he made last week, interpreted as a call for governmental regulation of advertising, Assistant U. S. Attorney General Thurman Arnold, in charge of anti-trust actions, on Tuesday "modified" his earlier remarks, in an open letter to R. I. Elliott, associate editor of Advertising and Selling. Only cases in which advertising is fraudulent concern the Government, he wrote, adding that "the anti-trust division has neither the intention nor the desire" to regulate advertising.

In the consent decrees in the Ford and Chrysler automobile trust cases, the two companies agreed to the stipulation not to advertise their own finance companies by name unless they name all competing finance companies, with no restrictions whatever being imposed upon advertising of the competitors.

"It is one thing to recognize that advertising may be so used as to be economically harmful," Mr. Arnold now explains. "It is quite another to jump to the conclusion that governmental restriction is the appropriate means for curtailing this sort of advertising."

Premiere

Details of RKO's distribution plans for his latest production, "Sixty Glorious Years"; attendance at the American premiere in the Radio City Music Hall, New York, Thursday; arranging of personal appearance tours for Anna Neagle, star of the picture and additional product—these problems occupied Mr. Herbert Wilcox, British producer, associated with RKO, immediately upon his arrival last week aboard the Normandie.

Mr. Wilcox recalled that in "Victoria the Great," he had only been able to film the Jubilee ceremonies in color—and it was the tremendous response to these scenes, and their remarkable contrast to the rest of the picture, which inspired him to make its successor entirely in color.

Americans' Problem

American distributors in China are having a difficult time of it, what with the Japanese military successes practically limiting business to four key cities, Shanghai, Hongkong, Tientsin and Peiping, and receipts of 20 per cent in these, with the exception of Hongkong, where the influx of refugees has brought income 25 per cent above normal. Coupled with this situation are increases in taxes, new censorship regulations and custom laws being invoked.

Anna Neagle, star, and Herbert Wilcox, producer, of "Sixty Glorious Years," arrive in New York for the opening of the film at the Music Hall this week. The picture was the second based on the life of Queen Victoria to play the Rockefeller Center theatre within a year, the first, "Victoria the Great," also having been produced by Mr. Wilcox for RKO.

Richard de Rochemont, managing director and editorial representative in Europe for March of Time, arrives with Mrs. de Rochemont in New York from Paris to consult with Louis de Rochemont, March of Time producer, on story schedule for foreign editions.

FILMS IN NEW POLITICAL MOVES IN U.S., GERMANY, SPAIN, JAPAN, ITALY, CHINA

Films for Democracy, Formed in New York, Says It's Not to Promote Doctrines of Any One Party "Except"—

The motion picture figured prominently this week in the changing complexion of international politics, in the "totalitarian" states, in the Democracies, in war-torn Spain and China, and in the United States.

American democracy is to be "revitalized" and "safeguarded", say the sponsors of the new Films for Democracy, announced in New York as having the endorsement of educators, writers, politicians and persons of the stage and screen, for the dramatization in motion pictures of "vital issues" from the "progressive viewpoint".

"Non-Aryans" have been eliminated completely from motion pictures in Germany, both as spectators and in business, and "Aryans" permitting Jews in their theatres were made subject to heavy fines, as a result of the new Nazi riots aimed at all Germany's 500,000 Jews. New York stage, screen and radio personalities telegraphed President Roosevelt to effect an official boycott against Germany for last week's riots.

Nazis were starting to "grind their heels" into Czechoslovakia's film industry, to impress her "ideologies," following the Munich pact. American product stands to suffer, as it did in Germany to the point of its virtual nonexistence.

Reich Films in South America

Reich propaganda films are reported to be gaining ground in South America, where American companies have been looking for increased markets. They are being shown by invitation to Nazi members of German colonies under the auspices of diplomatic and consular representatives of Germany.

It is reported the films show German penetration of and influence in Latin America and the large German populations in Chile, Argentina and Brazil and how they control commerce and industry in certain regions.

Salvador has joined other South American countries in adopting motion pictures as a medium for self-advancement.

Its Ministry of Education has appointed a Board of Educational Motion Pictures, which will maintain relations with the International Institute of Educational Motion Pictures, in Rome, to get ideas for propaganda films.

The decree issued by President Maximiliano Martinez instructs the board to promote motion pictures as a sane instructive diversion for students, to improve the atmosphere of schools and stimulate both teachers and students.

In Spain, Manuel Augusto, for General Francisco Franco, announced plans for a motion picture industry that has already been established by the Nationalists, to combat propaganda of the Loyalist Reds, and, after the war, to reestablish relations with American and other foreign producers. (Story is on page 24.)

Fearing that Hollywood might produce anti-Japanese films, the government there is reported increasing the number of annual feature permits allotted American companies for distributing in Japan from 90 to 250. (Story on page 30.)

Japan's military advancements in China have cut into the distribution of American pictures to the point where their showing now is limited to practically four centers: Tientsin, Hong Kong, Peiping and Shanghai, with the interior virtually shut off entirely. (Story is on page 28.)

Universal still has hopes of maintaining a market in Italy, where the government has decreed a distribution monopoly, effective January 1st, on which date American distributors are expected to withdraw completely, the decree prohibiting them, along with other foreign companies, from operating on their own in the country. Universal questions its position, however, in view of a five-year distribution contract made by "U" last summer in Italy and approved officially by the government.

"Democracy" Films in U. S.

The new organization known as Films for Democracy, in New York, which proposes the non-profit-making production and distribution of motion pictures designed "to safeguard and extend American democracy," has been in formation for several months, it was disclosed Tuesday in the New York Times.

Headed by Dr. Ned H. Dearborn, dean of the Division of General Education of New York University, the organization committee of the group will hold its first conference at a dinner at the Town Hall Club, New York, on Friday.

Listed among the sponsors of the project are United States Senator Arthur Capper, Rexford G. Tugwell, Thomas Mann, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, Henry Pratt Fairchild, Abraham Flexner, Dr. A. A. Brill, Heywood Broun, Irene Lewisohn, Robert K. Straus, Philip Merivale, Sherwood Anderson, Herman Shumlin, Clyde R. Miller, Walter Prichard Eaton, Marc Connelly, Rex Ingram, George Seldes, Will Rogers, Jr., and Fredic March.

Screen "Must Be Used"

As outlined the viewpoints of the organization are:

"Progressive Americans in every field now recognize the urgent necessity for a new kind of motion picture which will dramatize from the progressive viewpoint the timely and vital issues of today. To safeguard and extend American democracy is the paramount issue of the post-Munich period.

"The motion picture screen, with its daily audience of many millions, must now be used to reaffirm and popularize in dramatic form the principles of democratic government and thereby to combat the sinister spread of intolerance and reaction.

"Contemporary social problems, if treated to suggest a practical solution, are taboo in Hollywood scripts. As historical dramas grow grander, the films' retreat from present day reality becomes a rout. Yet those who know this country's moral climate are firmly convinced that in cities and small towns all over these United States there are significant masses of habitual movie-goers who will, because of the

'Non-Aryan' Theatre Owners in Germany and Austria Ask Help

Appeals for help in finding "a way out" are being received here direct from German and Austrian exhibitors and others in the film business over there who are being persecuted by the Nazis in their purging of "Non-Aryans." Typical is the following letter received this week by this publication from a theatre owner. (All names are deleted, for obvious reasons.)

"Dear Sir,

"For five years I had subscribed, together with my brother, —— ————, to your journal, the 'Motion Picture Herald,' as we were the owners and directors of one of ———— cinemas.

"In March, 1938, we lost our income and even the right to dispose of our property. It is not allowed for us to work anything, so we are without means, so that my brother, his wife and his three-year-old little son and I have nothing to live.

"Therefore, we beg you most cordially to help us in any way which is possible for you to procure us an affidavit. I think as all our colleagues are reading your journal one or the other may be ready to help us, as all of them will know that it is not our fault to be in such distress but as a Jew we are the victims of the extraordinary circumstances in our country.

"—— ———— managed, before we bought the ———— (theatre), an auto garage, as he is an auto mechanic by trade. He knows all works, autogen-welding and so on. His wife has learned nursing babies and children and has worked for several years in different houses.

"I am unmarried and I was working for many years in the cinema branch. I am ready to do every hard work as well as that of a businessman.

"We are all healthy.

"We hope with all our hearts you will find a way to help us and we shall forever be grateful to you for so great a help, and once more we assure you we shall never have another request to you.

"Most sincerely yours,

NEW PROPAGANDA FILM SOCIETY

changing spirit of the times, welcome new films which interpret current reality and point out constructive solutions."

No One Party "Except" . . .

Dr. Dearborn said that Films for Democracy did not intend to promote the doctrines of any particular political party except as these doctrines might coincide with the viewpoint of progressives all over the country.

"A number of things come creeping into our social life," he said, "that are a menace. Take what is happening right across the river in Jersey City, or what has happened in Louisiana. What we intend to do is promote the cause of democracy through the medium of the screen."

To convey a social message in terms that would be both understandable and entertaining to the general public, the producers will use the familiar forms of the regular Hollywood film, according to Samuel J. Rowman, executive secretary of the organization.

"We expect to have the advice and services of some of the most progressive people in Hollywood," Mr. Rodman said. "Already we have on our advisory committee such persons as Walter F. Wanger, the producer; Dudley Nichols, scenarist; Frederic March and Fritz Lang. Naturally we will be guided by the advice of experienced people in the selection of our scenarios and the production of our pictures."

$100,000 Budget "Limit"

Mr. Rodman said the organization expects to limit the budget on each of its productions to $100,000. This will be possible, he said, through the cooperation of well known actors, directors, writer, and technicians who will contribute their services for much less salary than they are accustomed to receive.

Funds to start production will be sought through donations by sponsors and others. Distribution will be sought through regular channels. If the theatres in any locality might not wish to show its product, the organization would show its films under sponsorship of local organizations.

No Theatres for "Non-Aryans"

Last week's sweeping attacks against the remaining 500,000 Jews in Germany, in revenge for the fatal shooting of a German under-secretary at the Nazi diplomatic office in Paris, will have effects on Jews in the country's motion picture business, and all other lines, even more pronounced than heretofore, forcing them to refrain from attending theatres, to give up their jobs and their properties.

Admittedly setting out to destroy "once and for all" what is left of the economic position of Jewry in Germany, the Hitlerites, besides imposing a blanket fine of $400,000,000 on the Non-Aryans, and additionally levying fines up to $60,000 each on 100 Berlin Jews to pay for the riot damages, have issued a batch of new decree as "racial punishment."

These included Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' order that henceforth no Jews in the Nazi countries—Germany, Austria and Sudeten Czechoslovakia, will be permitted to attend any motion picture theatre, concert or other public exhibition. Violators of the order were threatened with "severe" punishment, and any "Aryans" permitting attendance of "Non-Aryans" will be heavily fined.

Other legal measures provide:

From January 1, 1939, a Jew may not own or operate a retail establishment or export firm; and, from the same date, any Jew occupying an important position in any firm may be dismissed on six weeks' notice—both orders presumably including theatres and other motion picture enterprises.

Also applicable to theatres and other film projects, it is presumed, is the Nazi's action forcing the transfer into "Aryan" hands of all Jewish commercial enterprises—a process that is expected to be completed even before January 1st. The press wires report, these "transfers" are being effected at ridiculously low purchase prices.

Joining worldwide protest against the Nazis' latest and severest attack, some 60 theatrical leaders and stars of stage, screen and radio in New York sent a telegraphic appeal to President Roosevelt to effect an official U. S. boycott against all trade with Germany. Louis Nizer, an attorney for motion picture companies, was among the signers. Actors' Equity acting officially for its actor members sent a similarly worded telegram.

Wednesday evening a number of theatrical lights equally as large performed at Madison Square benefit in "A Night of Stars" for the benefit of Jewish refugees.

Again—The Propagandists

by MARTIN QUIGLEY

From an Editorial in Motion Picture Daily

THE latest effort to capture the theatre screen for purposes of radical political propaganda has come to the surface in an organization styling itself, "Films for Democracy."

Its sponsors repeat the familiar patter in a recitation of the purposes in view. It would have to do with the production and distribution of motion pictures designed, as they put it, "to safeguard and extend American democracy." The kinship of its real policies with what the American continent understands as democracy may impress many as being decidedly remote.

Among the names mentioned which individually and collectively contribute a graphic indication of the brand of political and social philosophy which may be expected are the following: Rexford G. Tugwell, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, Heywood Broun, Walter Wanger, Dudley Nichols, Fredric March and Fritz Lang.

No question is raised as to the right of the persons associated in this venture to produce and distribute motion pictures of any kind they may see fit. The democratic principle of free speech insures this right even—unfortunately it seems—to those whose ideas if carried into effect would allow freedom of expression to no one but themselves. But emphatic protest is raised against the attempt to pervert the entertainment screen from its avowed purposes of entertainment and into the devious channels of social, political and economic propaganda.

The spirit of aggression toward the entertainment screen which imbues these propagandists is not a new manifestation confronting the motion picture industry. It has made an appearance before and will be heard from again. The vastness of the theatre audiences, coupled with the emotional potentialities of the film, represent a means of unparalleled effectiveness in influencing the public mind. It is inevitable that the screen should find itself the object of these attentions.

In Russia, in Germany, in Italy and in Red Spain the entertainment screen as such has vanished. Under the power of the political group in the ascendency the screen is no longer the "escapist" medium which Messrs. Tugwell, Broun, Wanger, Nichols et al so tearfully deplore. Its entertainment character is subordinate to its propaganda uses. It deals—as they would have the American picture deal—with "the timely and vital issues of the day."

It is of course true that dependent upon the particular country one note and one note alone is sounded. But in all of the countries named the entertainment screen is no longer allowed to be a medium wholly dedicated to the enjoyment of the public. And this latter condition is the one which these American propagandists are seeking to achieve, ignoring entirely the clear record of what the American public has made plain at the box-office as to what it wants to see. Political medicine men of whatever nationality are like that. And ignoring also the inevitable threat to the orderly operation of motion picture theatres which would result from the exposition of themes of bitter controversial aspect.

Any such effort as this "Films for Democracy" constitutes a real threat to the integrity of the American motion picture, to the theatre's position of trust with its public and—very definitely—to the continued prosperity of the business.

Every propagandist, Left, Right or Center, should be given clearly to understand that it will be agreeable to the motion picture industry to have him hire a hall and leave the entertainment screen alone. There might also be a message for collaborators on such ventures who enjoy a handsome income from the industry.

ARYAN ISSUE UPSETS CZECH MARKET

try, was disclosed this week in a first-hand report from Prague. Starting with the outright banning of Charles Chaplin's "Modern Times" (United Artists) by the Government censor from the entire Slovakian country, a campaign has now been started to eliminate from films all titles of foreign origin. This means also that names such as Broadway, Milwaukee, Chicago, London or Paris would have to be removed from films.

Hitherto the Czech film business was a prosperous industry under democratic rule. Today it is in an uproar since the Munich agreement. Germany's propaganda effect is seen in the sudden action of the Union of Actors, which issued a proclamation against "elements which do not belong to the Czechoslovakian film." This is the usual German procedure of attacking personalities by reckless libel, in the controlled press. A similar proclamation followed from the exhibitors' and producers' organization, also from the directors. Later, however, the Czech Ministry of Commerce compelled retraction of these proclamations and declared them invalid.

Czechs Bar Protest Meeting

The Czech authorities are trying to be circumspect in the face of tremendous Nazi pressure, as is seen in the Czech police ban of a socalled protest meeting called by the Film Union to start an anti-Jewish boycott. The campaign apparently is directed against Aryan as well as against socalled non-Aryans. Even a picture produced by a patriotic Aryan Czech, Milos Havel, owner of the Barrandovhill company, was banned by the Ministry of the Interior on nationalistic grounds. Attacks have appeared against "The White Sickness," an anti-dictator film by the famous Czech author, Karel Capek, an Aryan. There are other pictures on the unofficial blacklist.

The Filmovy Kuryr, official organ of the Czech Motion Picture Theatre Owners, is conducting a campaign against non-Aryan film producers. The first on the proscribed list was Josef Auerbach, who has done much for the national film industry over many years, during which he built up two of the biggest distribution organizations, Elektra and Slavia Film.

These attacks extend to representatives of American companies, men who have been in Prague for years, who have done much for Czechoslovakia.

The Filmovy Kuryr's attack on one American representative was so scurrilous and violent that the Government pre-censor had to act against the paper.

Similar attacks have appeared in the exhibitors' paper against Otto Sonnenfeld, representative of RKO, and United Artists sales representatives. Sonnenfeld joined the colors when Czechoslovakia was in danger, but he continued his job from the front by means of correspondence and twice-weekly conferences with his secretary. The commercial attache of the American Embassy here is watching the situation closely. Harold Smith, representative in London of the Hays office, has been informed of the situation, and he has been expected here. Reginald Armour, RKO's European manager, has left Prague for Paris with a report on the situation.

Numerous Problems

Where this uproar will end nobody can tell. There are numerous problems to be solved first concerning the internal political problems of the nation which now has three Governments—Moravian, Slovakian and Carpatho-Russian, instead of the previous single, unified control. Each has its say on films as well.

It is understood that Slovakia, for instance, has prohibited Czech films which are allowed in other parts of the Republic. Meanwhile, it seems certain that Ufa, German film trust, will reopen its local branch. The commercial film treaty with Germany is to be signed by Christmas.

Officials hope that the showing of Nazi films will not lead to disturbances, and intimations are that the authorities are taking precautions in this respect. However, German newspapers, which were banned here for years, are now circulated, thus securing for the Nazis an avenue of uninterrupted propaganda.

ITALY GRANTS STAY TO MICKEY, POPEYE

Further to protect Italian youth from the ideas of Western democracies, the Italian government has barred comic strips of foreign origin from Italian newspapers. But Walt Disney's "Mickey Mouse" and Max Fleischer's "Popeye" have been granted a stay of execution as meriting special consideration because of their originality. It is expected that in line with general policy towards American films, and the recent decision that the Marx Brothers and the Ritz Brothers were "a menace to public safety," that the ban will extend to the characters in the motion pictures of the same titles.

The announcement of the original intention was revealed in a speech by Dr. Gherardo Casini, director general of the Italian press department of the Ministry of Popular Culture, who told the National Conference of Juvenile Literature that Italian children's minds must be "steeled through the medium of juvenile papers to the imperial spirit of the Fascist Revolution."

Eastman Employees Share Earnings

Employees of Eastman Kodak Company, one of the largest manufacturers of motion picture and other film stock, will share importantly in the 27th annual wage dividend since the company started the plan in 1912. Directors of the company voted last week that $2,200,000 be paid as dividend March 27, 1939. Rate for the dividend was fixed by a simultaneous declaration of common stock dividends, bringing the year's total declarations to $6 a share.

All regular employees who are working on March 27, or who have worked all or part of 26 weeks in 1938, will be eligible. Those who have completed five years of service will receive checks for over three times their average weekly wage during the five years. Those with less than five years, but more than six months' service in 1938, will share in proportion to their tenure.

Performing Right Society Opposes Higher Seat Tax

The Canadian Performing Right Society, Ltd., has made application to the Dominion Government for approval of its schedule of "fees, charges or royalties," for public performance of music, including theatres, which it proposes to impost during the 12 months commencing January 1st. It does not include any increase in the seat tax from that which was collected by the Performing Right Society in 1938.

At the same time the society has declared its intention of collecting an entirely new fee against every radio receiving set, privately owned or otherwise, through which it expects to collect an additional $190,978. This is at the rate of 14 cents against every domestic or private owner of a radio, of which there were 1,104,207 at the end of the last fiscal year, March 31, 1938, and a flat $10 fee against every radio receiver commercially used, of which there were 3,639, according to the records kept by the society.

The society has not made known how it proposes to collect this extra royalty on home-owned radios, on which the householder already pays an annual license fee of $2.50 to the Canadian Government. Broadcasting stations will be assessed by the Performing Right Society as before.

The annual fee for theatres, payable to the society in advance, is scaled as follows: theatres of 1,600 seats or over, 15 cents per seat per annum; 801 to 1,599 seats, 12 cents; 800 and under, 10 cents; 800 and under, operating three days or less per week, five cents. The minimum annual fee in any case is fixed at $10.

The amended Canadian Copyright Act compels the society to file a statement of listed fees to be collected during the ensuing calendar year and the public is given until November 30th to enter any objections to the proposed schedule with the Copyright Appeal Board, the latter to issue approval of all rates before the end of December.

Pearl Buck Awarded 1938 Nobel Prize

Pearl S. Buck, former American missionary in China and author of the best selling novel, "The Good Earth," has been awarded the 1938 Nobel Prize. The announcement of the award, worth approximately $40,000 this year, did not mention specifically any of the author's works, but it was "The Good Earth," a distinguished novel of Chinese life, which elevated her to literary prominence and won the Pulitzer Prize in 1931.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer produced a film of the novel in 1936 which co-starred Luise Rainer and Paul Muni. Miss Rainer won the Academy Award on the strength of her performance in the picture.

PERMANENT PRESS BUREAU ASKED BY DIETZ, SCHAEFER AND BIRDWELL

Organization Proposed, with Paid Staff, as Clearing House for Industry and Personal Contact with Newspapers

A move is on to establish a permanent press relations bureau to represent the motion picture industry.

A proposal for such a bureau was made Thursday by Howard Dietz, MGM, chairman of the advertising committee of the industry's "Greatest Year" campaign, in a report to George J. Schaefer, RKO, executive chairman of the campaign, in which he cited field experiences and press reactions obtained in the course of the campaign, in support of the recommendation for a bureau.

Mr. Schaefer, while a guest of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, at New York's Astor Hotel, last Thursday, made a similar proposal, urging that steps for formation of a permanent bureau be taken at an early date.

From California came still another expression of like nature, from Russell Birdwell, press agent for Selznick International Pictures, who, in a talk to the Advertising Club of San Diego, suggested "a public relations counselor, to be appointed for life, to represent the film industry of the world."

Elaborating on the idea, Mr. Birdwell urged a conference of film leaders with the Government on the subject of "the defense of demonracy," his plan being to "tell the world through films that the American way of life is the best . . ."

Goodwill and the Campaign

Mr. Dietz's report observed that the "Greatest Year" campaign "steered a course which has resulted in the creation of goodwill for the industry" which "did not exist before this campaign," adding: "It can easily be destroyed unless we make an effort to preserve it."

Emphasis on the necessity for the organization of a press bureau to carry on the work is contained in a passage of the report in which Mr. Dietz, remarking upon the high tension overtime labors of the committee in preparing the current campaign, said: ". . . it is impractical for these very members to undertake in the future the tasks that were so hurriedly assigned to them in this present emergency."

"We must continually present the press with the story of motion pictures in the best light," he declared. "We must not allow this story to be impaired by temporary competitive gains. When there is a dispute and when there are disagreements with the press, it is essential for the industry to open discussion and represent the best traditions of the screen to the best traditions of journalism.

Continuing Organization Proposed

"I propose a continuing organization be provided. This organization should have a paid staff which is a clearing house for the country and which is ready to visit papers and other concerned organizations. Best would be an organization of publicity and advertising men . . . a motion picture press club that would thoroughly function and have an objective. I believe that newspapers would react most favorably.

JUDGES NAMED FOR THE MOVIE QUIZ

Five nationally known persons, Congressman Bruce Barton, Mrs. Ogden Reid, vice-president and publisher of the New York Herald Tribune; Dr. James E. West, chief Boy Scout executive; Hendrik Willem van Loon, historian and writer, and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, tennis star, will serve as the judges in the Movie Quiz contest.

These judges will meet soon with George J. Schaefer, executive chairman of the industry drive, to discuss procedure. The contest ends at midnight, December 31st. Winners will be announced in January.

"There are many views of what the function of this group should be. This committee feels that one of them should certainly be continuance of the personal contact work which has been established during the campaign.

"In approving this report every member of the committee expressed the opinion that a permanent organization for the proper handling of the newspaper relations of this industry should by all means be established and that it be organized in such a way that constant personal contact with daily newspapers would be one of its most important functions.

Continuing Ad Drive Asked

"The chairman is also of the opinion that the idea of a continuing advertising campaign for the industry be considered. It would be unwise to do this again without preparation. At least six months' research should be done with a view toward establishing a psychological basis for a continuous goodwill campaign somewhat in the manner of the utility industries.

"It is my firm belief that for the future success of our industry we should be organized to present the aims and aspirations of the industry through the years. There is a great deal more to this than meets the eye and in the long pull the industry will have made a wise investment if it goes about this most important proposition in a thorough manner. I would feel remiss in my duty if I did not strongly impress upon you the urgency of such consideration.

Critics of Drive Converted

"I do not discuss media, as it is possible that all types of publications and air waves would be used. I am not even making a specific recommendation of the type of advertising. I am recommending primarily, research, house to house canvasses, polls, continuous exhibitor and patron interviews . . . a real effort to find out the subjects the public is interested in . . . what they think about motion pictures . . . why they go and why they don't go.

"If we approach the future without snap judgments, but resolve that we will be scientific and check up their opinions, I think then will come the real fruit of this campaign which has been barely started, I trust," said Mr. Dietz.

Further on in his report, Mr. Dietz told of reaction in the press to the advertising accompanying the launching of the "Greatest Year." As expected, he said reactions were divided. But all those who were quick to voice objection were convinced otherwise with further discussion, he explained, citing the committee's experience with the Associated Press, which at the outset said "we had appropriated our money to pat ourselves on the back," finding later "it was entirely mistaken."

"We had stressed those things about the motion picture which were truly worthwhile and had thus secured in print a counteraction to the too numerous statements about motion pictures in their worst phases."

The committee, according to the report, "found that the box office success of the campaign has been in direct ratio to the activities of the local committees of individual exhibitors.

"Business has increased," he added, "due mainly to the improvement in the quality of the releases. But a substantial measure of this success must be attributed to the atmosphere that was created as a stage setting for the new season. In general there were three branches of activities:

" 1: The preparation of the advertising campaign.

"2: The dissemination of publicity and direct contacts with publishers.

"3: The promotion of the 'Quiz' contest.

"To date 30,000,000 'Quiz' booklets have been sold, included in an approximate total of $185,000 in accessories. This activity has been managed with complete solvency," Mr. Dietz explained.

Say Contests Aid Box Office

A survey of the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign committee indicates a continued rise in the box office returns through the nation, with business reported particularly good in Chicago, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Denver, New Orleans and Charlotte. In New York, Broadway grosses have been rising, with many holdovers. Leo Spitz, former president of RKO, and the company's counsel, leaving for the coast this week gave credit to the campaign for much of the rise in business,

Also given credit for stimulating interest are the many local additions to the quiz contest, with their own sets of prizes. The largest to date is the $2,500 in extra cash prizes offered by the Chicago Herald and Examiner to local winners. In Fort Pierce, Fla., in cooperation with the local newspaper, a hunt was started for local residents who never had seen a talking picture, while the Winnipeg Tribune instituted screen tests, with the winner featured in a 1,000-foot film shown at local theatres. The Cleveland Press offered cash prizes for the best answer to the question "What would you do with the $50,000 first prize?" and weekly contests with cash prizes, were inaugurated at the Paramount theatre in Los Angeles.

Radio and Publications Contest, which is doing the judging of the answers, has hired a special staff of translaters to put into English the foreign language replies. There have been entries in Arabic, Chinese, Japanese and Hindustani, as well as many French replies from Canada.

The all industry short subject, "The World is Ours" will be made available in 16 mm. film for clubs and schools following its run throughout the United States and Canada, the committee has announced.

If you've heard anything at all about "Big Business" pictures—you've heard about this pair of horror babies. They work automatically. You play them together. You dare people to see them. Anywhere, any type of theatre, any day of the week—THEY HIT!

U.S. CONTEMPT REPLY DUE NOV. 28; NEW DELAY ON SELF-REGULATION

U. S., in Criminal Action, Says B. & K. and Majors Have Violated Practically Every Provision of 1932 Consent Decree

Balaban and Katz and the major companies must show cause on November 28th before Charles E. Woodward, federal judge in Chicago, why they should not be held in contempt, in the new criminal action brought by the Department of Justice.

Immediately after filing last week's criminal information, charging Balaban & Katz and the majors with conspiracy to restrain and monopolize interstate trade and commerce, the United States Government, through Robert L. Wright, special assistant U. S. attorney general, and Warren Canaday, assistant U. S. district attorney, went before Judge Woodward and asked for the ruling directing the defendants to show cause.

The suit, filed Wednesday afternoon without any previous indication, was based on a consent decree agreed to by the defendants in April, 1932. In this decree they promised to engage in no more unfair practices in connection with the distribution and display of first-run motion pictures in the Chicago territory. The charges against them had been brought under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Violation of Decree Charged

In the new information, the Government charges that the defendants have violated practically every provision of the consent decree. It accuses them of restricting and monopolizing the distribution and exhibition of first-run pictures in the Chicago area, which includes Cook, Lake and DuPage counties in Illinois and Lake county in Indiana.

First class pictures thus are kept away from unaffiliated theatres, the action charges. The defendants, through the national release date system maintained by them, are able to maintain the 75-cent admission price charged by several "Loop" theatres, the Government charges.

In addition, at least two Loop theatres have been brought to grief, it is alleged. The two mentioned are the McVickers and the $2,678,500 Oriental theatre. If these and other theatres were permitted to play the first class pictures to which they are entitled through their location, size, and equipment, prices would be forced down, it is asserted.

The nine defendants, besides Barney Balaban and the B. & K. Corporation, are the Balaban & Katz Management Corporation, Paramount Pictures, Loew's, RKO-Radio, Twentieth Century-Fox Films, United Artists, Universal Film, Vitagraph, Inc., and Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.

If held in contempt on the Government's charges, Mr. Balaban would face a possible jail sentence and the corporations named would be liable to fines.

Answers Also Due in Another Chicago Action

Charges similar to the Government's were made in a federal court suit filed recently in Chicago in behalf of 89 independent theatres in Chicago and its suburbs. This action, in which the independents seek to have the court outlaw various practices, contracts and booking methods of the defendants, is pending before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

In this case, likewise naming B. & K. and the majors, the defendants are scheduled on Friday either to present answers or ask for additional time to file them. It is expected that additional time will be granted.

No depositions were taken last week. The attorneys for the independent plaintiffs, Rosenberg & Stein, advised the court they would not seek them if they could have copies of all contracts between B. & K. and the major companies for the last five years. The court ordered this.

Judge Wilkerson in federal court is anxious to expedite the handling of the independent-B. & K. suit and is cutting all the "red tape" possible. He even offered to turn the case over to Federal Judge Woodward, before whom the Government last week filed the criminal petition regarding the violation of the consent decree. Neither party cared to have this done.

The filing of the Government case has dimmed the independent-B. & K. suit.

Decision Deferred on Washington Case

Decision whether the Government should be compelled to provide bills of particulars in the Department of Justice anti-trust action against the majors and their affiliates, was deferred pending submission of briefs to Federal Judge Bondy this week, in New York City.

Defendants last week had contended in Judge Bondy's chambers in federal court that the Government should supplement its present complaint, which they declared a "mass of ambiguities and generalities." They also asked for 60 days in which to answer the complaint, whether or not the bill of particulars is ordered.

Paul Williams, special assistant attorney general, said the defendants should know details of the charges, inasmuch as most of the Government's evidence came from their files, and that a delay of 60 days would be too long.

Encouraged by the Government's tacit admission that it had little or no evidence against United Artists, attorneys for that company, Columbia and Universal are planning to move for a dismissal of the complaint against them.

The Government has rejected several proposals by the circuit defendants to maintain the status quo on circuit expansion as demanded by the Department pending trial.

This week, more executives on the Coast were served, in the Government's action. They were: Joseph Schenck, Harry Cohn, Walter B. Cokell, Harry M. Warner, Samuel Goldwyn, Sam Katz, Lloyd Wright, Edward A. Schiller.

Depositions Ordered

In connection with a suit for $225,000 under the Sherman anti-trust Act, Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and counsel, and N. S. Cassel, managing agent, of Paramount; Sidney R. Kent, president, and William Sussman of Twentieth Century-Fox; George Walsh, individually and as president of Netco Theatres Corporation, and others have been ordered to submit to an examination before trial by Federal Judge Edward A. Conger at the request of Orange County Theatres, Inc. Orange, operating the Academy in Newburgh, N. Y., has charged conspiracy.

Paramount Granted Time

Paramount has been granted a second extension of time for filing its appeal to the U. S. supreme court from the federal statutory court decision confirming the legality of the North Dakota law to divorce theatres from producer-distributors. The new extension gives the company until December 15th to perfect its appeal.

Distributors Disagree Over Several Phases of Industry's Trade Practice Program; Myers Prefers Sliding Scale Cancellations

"Final" action on the industry's plan for self-regulation has been put off again, until December 8th or 9th, because now the distributors are not in agreement on some of the issues.

Following the inferences given last week that the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, as one of the three national exhibitor groups (Allied States Association and unaffiliated units are the others), would hold "final" conferences with distributors this week, Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, issued a statement Tuesday afternoon announcing that "it becomes necessary to defer the final meeting between my committee and the distributors' committee until they (the distributors) can reach an agreement among themselves."

He ventured the opinion that the distributors "in all probability" will get together in the next few days, and with that expectation, S. R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, as chairman of the distributors' committee, and Mr. Kuykendall this week agreed that the two, together with Ned Depinet, of RKO, and additional MPTOA representatives, on December 8th or 9th will "discuss final details." Thereafter Mr. Kuykendall will submit to his board the proposals presented, with expectations that "it will only take a few more days after this meeting to make them effective."

Messrs. Kent and Kuykendall in their discussions this week talked about the "language and details" of the program. "There are many little details yet to be cleared as well as accord to be reached on some of the larger issues," Mr. Kuykendall said. "I feel that there should not be too much hurry in this work but at the same time these trade practice adjustments are so important and are so badly needed by theatre owners everywhere that I would be negligent in my duty if I did not do all possible to bring these agreements to a conclusion at the earliest possible time.

"I have every assurance that out of the meetings on December 8th will come something definitely good for all of us."

Meanwhile it appeared that certain distributors were still holding out for a delay, hoping to make the program effective for next season, whereas the MPTOA wanted it enforced immediately on its formulation.

Still to be set are the dates for the meetings continuing the discussions between distributors and Allied and unaffiliated state units, each of the two exhibitor groups meeting with the majors separately.

Abram F. Myers, national Allied chairman, addressing the Ohio Independent Theatre Owners convention at Columbus this week, said Allied looks favorably toward local boards of conciliation as the machinery for operating self-regulation, but that instead of a flat cancellation privilege, cancellation on a sliding scale basis would be more in order from Allied's viewpoint. (See page 34, column 3.)

All sides continued to maintain strict silence on the form self-regulation will take and on the "concessions" which the distributors stand ready to give exhibitors.

You dared them to see "Dracula" and "Frankenstein"... now defy them to see "Drac and Frank's" sister team... The answer is the same... the grosses are the same... the appeal is there!

Educators Praise Screen and Radio

Reaffirming their belief in the "abiding value of the results from using radio and screen in the classroom," nearly one thousand audio-visual education enthusiasts on Saturday closed the second annual Southern Conference on Audio-Visual Education and immediately starting looking toward the 1939 session, with J. C. Wardlaw, director of the extension division of the University System of Georgia, renamed chairman.

Numerous speakers dwelt upon new phases of educational use of films and radio, and said this new approach was growing rapidly throughout the South.

Fanning Hearon, executive director, Association of School Film Libraries, told the delegates "motion pictures have no instructional equal." He explained the work of the association, pointing out that it is a non-profit organization, supported by a Rockefeller Foundation grant, to develop use of pictures in education.

Dr. M. D. Collins, Georgia state superintendent of schools, said Georgia is planning to spend $250,000 to carry audio-visual education into every city of the state.

Dr. James Rowland Angell, educational counsellor of National Broadcasting Company, told the delegates that "radio is the most powerul agent for the formation of public opinion and creation of mass action man has yet devised."

Dr. V. C. Arnspiger, vice-president of Erpi Classroom Films, Inc., pointed out that through films certain social concepts now are conveyed to children in the first and second grades before they even can read.

Mrs. J. K. Pettengill, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, raised the point that the task of the conference and all educators is to insure that the screen provides adequately the "human and social values unescapably tied up in our social order."

Walter Bell, secretary of the Southern Conference and head of the audio-visual department of the Atlanta School Department, told the group that "Atlanta is the hotbed of audio-visual education and last year more than three-quarters of a million students attended 10,000 film exhibitions on educational subjects."

"Pygmalion" at Astor

The first "authorized" full length motion picture made from a play by Bernard Shaw, "Pygmalion," opened at the Astor theatre in New York on Wednesday. It will be played continuously at prices ranging from 25 cents in the mornings to 65 cents during weekend and holiday evenings. The film was made by Gabriel Pascal at the Pinewood Studios, England, and is being distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Olajos Succeeds Foster

Succeeding F. B. Foster, who resigned October 30th to become comptroller, Charles Olajos, formerly assistant treasurer of Electrical Research Products, Inc., was elected treasurer of the company last week. Before associating with ERPI, Mr. Olajos was with Western Electric. He assumes his new post December 1.

Extra Loew's Dividend

Loew's directors on Monday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock in addition to the regular dividend of 50 cents. The dividend is payable December 31st to holders of record December 13th. Also Tuesday the company paid a regular dividend of $1.62½ on the $6.50 cumulative preferred stock.

NAVY FILM IS STOLEN

A motion picture of United States navy construction and battle maneuvers secrets was stolen from a recruiting officer's automobile, the officer reported to police this week.

Some Germans are now on trial in New York for alleged spy activities in the United States.

Four cans, holding 1,600 feet of film, were taken. Three cans contained travelogue films while the fourth, according to the officer, was "confidential." The film was shown only before army and navy officers and certain Reserve Officers Training Corps units.

Jules Levy Weeks; Reisman Drive

RKO Radio district managers have designated a series of Jules Levy Weeks in his honor. Walter Branson's mid-western territory conducted the first week which ended November 4th. The western district under H. C. Cohen, celebrated the Levy drive last week from Saturday to Friday; H. M. Lyon's southeastern district, November 12-18; Sol M. Sach's southwestern, December 3-9; Herb MacIntyre's northeastern 10-16. The series will conclude with the east central district, headed by Nat Levy, December 10-16.

RKO's Switzerland branch is leading in the company's Phil Reisman Flight to New York Drive. The branch is headed by Armand Palivoda. The United Kingdom, under Ralph Hanbury, is in second place, and Bert Reisman's Peru branch is third. Other branches above the hundred percent mark are France, Brazil, Sweden and Belgium. The drive ends December 31st.

Another Columbia Meeting

The second of a series of divisional sales meetings is being held by Columbia Saturday and Sunday at the Roosevelt hotel, New Orleans. Among those attending are A. Montague, sales manager; Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager, and Max Weisfeldt, short subjects sales supervisor.

Hold Benefit Performance

The annual "Night of Stars" benefit performance was held Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden, New York, with screen, stage and radio notables performing. The money raised will be used for the settlement in Palestine of Jewish refugees from German persecution or persecution in other lands.

Vassiliev Heads Amkino

M. Vassiliev, who arrived from Russia last week, has assumed the presidency of Amkino, distributors of Russian made films. The former Amkino executive, Samson Kritzberg, is expected to return to the Intourist Agency.

Principal Film Exchange was restrained from distributing films produced by Superior Talking Pictures, Inc., and Screen Productions, Inc., pending trial, by decision of the New York supreme court Tuesday.

Fox To Book Gaumont Films

Making the changes as rapidly and as "soon as it is convenient to do so," Gaumont British Corporation of America is allowing Twentieth Century-Fox, whose exchanges have always handled physical distribution of its films, to book their product as well. This will leave only a Gaumont selling staff.

The change took effect this week in New York, with booker Sol Kravitz becoming a salesman, and assistant Anne Newman going to the home office.

Ohio Cooperative Elects Directors

Members of Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, formed by Milton A. Mooney of Cleveland, have elected the following directors: Paul Gusdanovic, James E. Scoville, Frank Porozynski, Albert E. Ptak, all of Cleveland; F. E. Price, Newark, and W. A. Smith, Akron.

New members of the cooperative group include the Union, Cleveland; Lincoln, Dennison, and Ohio and State, Uhrichsville, bringing the total to 35 theatres.

Uniting West Coast Offices

The J. Walter Thompson agency will combine its Hollywood and Los Angeles offices in its own building, a new $250,000 structure opposite Hollywood Radio City, January 10th. All operations under the new setup will be unified under the direction of Danny Danker, vice-president in charge of the Hollywood office.

Donate Educational Films

The educational committee of the New Orleans Young Men's Business Club has presented 20 reels of sound films of historical and travel interest to the Orleans parish school board as an aid in visual education of high school students. The films were collected from travel agencies and will be used in the nine high schools equipped with sound projection.

Brin Buys Theatre

L. K. Brin, former manager of the Grand National exchange in Seattle, has bought the Mission theatre in Mount Vernon, Wash., from Dennis Murphy. Mr. Brin will operate the house as the first unit in a suburban circuit that he expects to establish in the Seattle territory.

Unique Lobby Display

The Radio City Music Hall, New York, is using direct color photographs of a stage performance for lobby displays. The photographs are being taken by Jimmy Sileo, staff photographer, who developed the idea. They are being displayed on a lobby board with light from a specially constructed light-box.

650 Reservations

Some 650 reservations have been received for the 19th annual dinner dance of the Motion Picture Associates of New York, to be held November 26th at the Hotel Astor, according to Jack Ellis, president. Ben A. Boyar of the Max Gordon office will handle the entertainment.

An irresistible combination, tested in a dozen key spots and smashing in top returns! Double appeal! One picture in the topical mood—The other a masterpiece of romance and youth!

SARNOFF ASKS FOR SELF-REGULATION AT OPENING OF U.S. RADIO HEARING

RCA President Warns of Governmental Conversion of Broadcasting to Instrument of Dictatorship in Old World

by FRANCIS L. BURT in Washington

Faced with what promises to be one of the longest Governmental investigations into "big business," radio went to the United States Government this week with the flat proposal that the broadcasting business adopt voluntary self-regulation.

The proposal was carried to Washington, in the form of a "suggestion," by David Sarnoff, on Monday morning, at the very outset of the Federal Communications Commission's long-planned probing of radio "monopolies." Mr. Sarnoff took the stand as the first witness, in his capacity of president of Radio Corporation of America, owner of National Broadcasting Company, largest network in the world.

The self-regulation, with a "code of ethics," a system of "trade practices," and such, would, in effect, be laid down somewhat along the lines of the effort at self-regulation now being worked out by the motion picture industry. The films and radio are America's chief sources of entertainment for the masses.

Like the motion picture, with two sweeping Governmental anti-trust suits pending, radio also appears to be turning to the business of self-regulation with real seriousness under federal "pressure," although in neither field will anyone in official capacity be so outspoken as to admit that such is the case.

In both amusement branches the subject of self-regulation had been talked about for years before the Government officially started to look into practice and procedure.

Protests Federal Censorship

Radio's No. 1 witness, Mr. Sarnoff, for the broadcasters, expressed another sentiment that is kin to that in motion pictures, that is vigorous opposition to federal censorship, on the grounds that the country has "legitimate censorship by public opinion." Mr. Sarnoff could have cited real proof of the efficacy of this by merely referring to Mae West's "cum-up-'n-see-me-sometime" burlesque of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, as broadcast over his own NBC networks of a Sunday evening last winter on the Chase and Sanborn coffee hour. As a matter of record, it was that very Westian broadcast and the resultant storm of protests from American familyhood that hastened the present investigation.

McNinch Presides

Mr. Sarnoff, in his opening testimony, hit upon a most opportune argument when he warned the Governmental probers of the "evils" of federal radio control by reminding them of "the effect of undemocratic controls over broadcasting by the autocracies of the Old World, where broadcasting has been converted into the most powerful instrument of dictatorship."

Presiding as chairman at the FCC hearings is Commissioner Frank R. McNinch, President Roosevelt's "clean-up" appointee from the Federal Power Commission. Also present are Commissioners Thad H. Brown and Eugene O. Sykes who, with Commissioner Paul A. Walker, temporarily absent from Washington, comprise the special committee.

ASKS FOR "REVIEW," NOT A "GRILLING"

When the National Broadcasting Company was formed in 1926, Owen D. Young remarked that "in this country we must learn by experiment the best way of handling this important agency."

On the opening of the FCC probe into radio "monopoly," on Monday, the New York Times, commented editorially: "We have had over ten years of experimenting—time enough, it would seem, for a review of experiences and practices and a determination of trends. It is such a review and not a mere grilling of business executives that we expect from the Federal Communications Commission."

First witnesses to appear, besides Mr. Sarnoff, are officials of RCA and officials of RCA's NBC—16 of them, whose direct testimony, it was estimated by Philip J. Hennessy, Jr., NBC counsel, will require more than two weeks. The NBC group will be followed by representatives of Columbia Broadcasting System and then by officers of Mutual Broadcasting System. More than a month is expected to be devoted to the questioning of the national network representatives alone.

Reading from a statement later criticized by the committee as failing to meet FCC requirements for a "factual" presentation, Mr. Sarnoff declared a self-imposed code was the "democratic solution."

Says Many Stations Have Codes

"In writing this code, the industry should gather the views of broadcasters, of groups representative of public opinion, and of this Commission. After the code is formulated the public should be made thoroughly familiar with it. All broadcasting networks and stations should be invited and encouraged to adopt it. The code should be subject to periodic review by the industry, and kept up to date. It should be administered by a suitable agency representative of the entire industry."

At the same time, Mr. Sarnoff pointed out, the NBC and many stations already have their own codes, and the National Association of Broadcasters adopted a code in 1935. However, he said, "the time has come for more positive action."

Prior to Mr. Sarnoff's testimony, Charles P. Sisson, former Assistant Attorney General, attempted in vain to obtain consideration of an appeal of Royal Moulding Company, Providence, manufacturers of radio tube bases, for a broadening of the investigation to revoke the broadcasting licenses now held by NBC and Westinghouse Electric, charging the petitioner has been deprived of a market by the unfair practices of Westinghouse and RCA Victor, an RCA subsidiary.

Testimony of Frank E. Mason, one of a number of NBC vice presidents, covered the organization of NBC, which, he said, has 2,273 employees, 1,666 men, 607 women. The network company, besides stations, owns Civic Concert Service, Artists Service of Massachusetts and Artists Service of Pennsylvania. All are artists' bureaus. Three other subsidiaries have been dissolved and another, Radio Music Co., Inc., is inactive, he testified.

$6,032,274 Talent Sales

Resuming Tuesday morning, the FCC delved immediately into income and the business structure of NBC. William J. Dempsey, Jr., opened with an examination of Daniel S. Tuthill, assistant manager of NBC's Artists Service, who testified that NBC's talent sales in 1937 amounted to $6,032,274. The bulk of these sales, he said, amounting to $4,028,187, were to radio advertisers. Motion picture producers bought $189,230 of NBC's talent. Of the total amount in sales, the talent itself received $5,757,382. The NBC Artists Service received as commissions on these sales of talent $674,891. The net profit to the NBC Artists Service out of this was $286,882. The average commission to the Artists Service on this talent was slightly over eight per cent and commissions on the talent sold to film producers was $25,476.

Mr. Dempsey vainly tried to learn from Mr. Tuthill how many of the 300 artists now represented by NBC's artists bureaus formerly were under CBS management.

Charges against NBC and CBS of having mutually acquired a monopolistic "stranglehold on the services of concert and opera stars" have been filed with the commission by the American Guild of Musical Artists, Inc.

New "Purge" by McNinch

FCC Chairman McNinch this week continued his "purge" of the commission by obtaining a majority vote for abolition of the Information and Examining Divisions and the discharge of C. Frank Wisner, who has handled the commission's publicity for a dozen years; Davis G. Arnold, chief examiner, and Melvin H. Dalberg, an examiner. All other examiners were transferred to the legal division.

Indications are that the commission may find itself involved in controversy with the Civil Service Commission. Application for approval of the discharges was filed with the Civil Service Commission Tuesday by Mr. McNinch.

Mr. McNinch in a radio address Saturday night said government censorship of radio was "impracticable and definitely objectionable."

Monogram-Pathe Distribution Set

Monogram will continue distributing in England through Pathe Pictures, Ltd., according to an agreement reached last week between W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president, and William J. Gell, managing director of Pathe.

Monogram is still considering the production of four or more pictures yearly in England, and also the stepping up of its 1939-40 schedule to 32 pictures. Pathe produces about 10 pictures yearly in England.

Mr. Gell sailed for London last Saturday. Arthur Levey, Monogram British representative, with whom Mr. Gell came to this country, stayed over.

Monogram is assured of distribution in all South and Central America except Peru, according to its foreign department. The deals include the West Indian islands. The Peruvian agreement is expected soon.

FRANCO LEADER EXPLAINS PLAN FOR NEW NATIONALIST FILM INDUSTRY

Aim to Combat Loyalist Propaganda and "Control Interpretations of War and Spanish Life" in Foreign Films

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Nationalists in Spain appear to be on their way to a motion picture industry, with which they admittedly hope to "combat Loyalist Red screen propaganda" and "control interpretations of the war and of Spanish life in motion pictures of foreign countries."

After the war, they expect to turn to the matters of reestablishing relations between Spain and American companies and of "de-freezing" the funds of foreign film companies which have been tied up in that country since the outbreak of the civil conflict. However, in these instances, the Nationalists will proceed "according to the manner in which each company conducted itself during the war" — the Nationalists presumably referring to the leanings of sympathies.

Policies and planned procedure of the new Franco film industry were explained this week in an interview from Spain with Manuel Augusto, head of the new project, as published in Spain, semi-monthly English-language magazine of Spanish Civil War events, which lists Peninsular News Service, Inc., as publisher, and Francis Xavier Connolly, Ph.D., as editor-in-chief, with headquarters at Two East 34th Street, New York.

Franco at Screening

The new "industry" was actually born some few months ago, but apparently got its official start the other week at a showing of some of its first pictures, at the Avenida theatre, in Burgos, seat of the Franco Government. At the screening were Generalissimo Franco, his wife and family, members of his Government, the National Council of the Spanish Traditionalist Phalanx, the General Staff, sub-secretaries and officials of the Ministries and other Franco figures. Afterward Franco pinned the Cross of the Grand Order of Red Flechas on the tunic of Senor Augusto.

The publication Spain, through an unnamed correspondent who obtained the interview, explains that the Nationalist Department of Motion Pictures was first conceived when the Central Administration of the Spanish State was reorganized by Franco with the law of January 30th, this year. A motion picture section was placed in the Propaganda Department under the direction of Dionisio Ridruejo, and both the film section and Propaganda Department, in turn, were made part of the Ministry of the Interior, of which Serrano Suner is in charge.

"Necessary Elements" Established

Senor Augusto is called new to Government circles, a university man and a soldier. He is assisted by Antonio de Obregon, writer, who is in charge of the Secretariat; by Jose M. Goyanes, in charge of equipment and operators, and by Carlos Salazar, in charge of foreign relations.

MANY LOYALIST FILMS IN U. S.

Manuel Augusto, in Spain, explaining why Generalissimo Franco has started a Nationlist motion picture industry, cited, as one cause, the necessity for combating screen propaganda put out by Loyalist Reds. He did not mention titles.

However, several Loyalist pictures have appeared in the United States, some of them purportedly emanating from Loyalist Spain. "Spanish Earth" and "Spain in Flames" are probably the two outstanding productions shown here. They frequently ran into opposition, official and otherwise, which prevented their screening, principally in Pennsylvania, where State Censors banned them in their entirety.

The only Hollywood motion picture that brought up the Spanish Civil War issue was Walter Wanger's "Blockade," which caused much "pro" and "con" argument.

"We began our propaganda late because we thought we didn't need it," said Senor Augusto, starting the interview, citing two basic problems which he faced at the outset: (1) Meeting the existing problem of informing the world of our activities; and, (2) Establishing general plans for the future of Spanish motion pictures.

"All the laboratories and motion picture centers were in Red Spain," he continued. "In our zone there was not even the most elemental means of production; we didn't even have cameras and there was hardly any of the specialized technical personnel available." Since then, he added, the Nationalists have created "the necessary elements."

"We edit Nationalist newsreels. In short documentary films we have sought to catch the different themes of the day. Thus we have prepared 'Prisoners of War,' 'Oviedo,' 'The 18th of July,' and in the laboratory we have 'University City,' 'The Madrid Front,' 'Social Help,' 'The War in the Gardens of La Granja,' 'Official War Bulletin' and still others barely started, such as the film dedicated to the Spanish children carried off by Russia."

Senor Augusto said that "Red" films found in cities captured by Franco's forces will be edited by Spanish writers.

Film History of the War

"One of our most important tasks," he continued, "will be the compilation of a motion picture history of the war, for which we are using all the documentary films available," aided and advised by "military technicians, historians, men of letters, politicians and film technicians."

"But our work has more universal aim. We are also at the present time, and absolutely independent of the lines that regulate Spanish motion pictures, engaged in another task . . . to watch over the interpretation of the war and Spanish life made by foreign companies."

Franco's film leader said that some films against Nationalist Spain—"not more than half a dozen all told"—have been circulated. "Sometimes they are made by companies of Communist origin. But other times they have been produced in complete ignorance of what Nationalist Spain signifies."

In this connection, he continued, "we do not consider the offense according to the damage the blow has done us, but rather by the intentions and motives with which it was done." For this reason, he declared, "we will not tolerate the slightest expression against us by the firms that intend to do business here after the war."

Won't Tolerate "Unfavorable" Films

Before any foreign film companies, or others, produce any film with a Spanish theme about Spain, they are "invited" by Senor Augusto "to inform themselves of the conditions, advising their directors to get acquainted with life in Nationalist Spain.

"We have never asked for productions favoring us, but we are also determined not to tolerate unfavorable films. The future business of foreign motion picture companies in Spain will depend on their conduct during the war."

In explaining further the Nationalists' position as regards foreign companies, Senor Augusto announced, "Some American companies have addressed us and I trust that shortly their relationship with the Spanish market will be taken care of." He said the Nationalists are "well acquainted with all the details of the relations that each foreign company has maintained and maintains with the Red Government, and we will not forget them."

"It is possible," he added, "that in some cases the good faith of artists and firms was abused by the audacity of our enemies, and that they were induced at first to misrepresent us." But, he is "pleased to state that several companies and quite a few artists who rushed to aid the Reds have now changed their minds."

As for "Frozen" Money—

Referring to "frozen" capital belonging to foreign film companies, Senor Augusto said he is "sure that we will find a formula that will solve its retention." He conceded that "there are firms which have their income accumulated here and almost non-productive," adding, "We shall proceed progressively according to the conduct of each company. And I expect to see all this capital completely free."

American distributors have considerable money "frozen" in Spain, although no estimate of the amount ever has been made public, either in this country or in Spain.

Franco's new Nationalist Department of Motion Pictures has definite aims for "a future" industry, planning to aid private production "with decision and interest."

"We will create, among other things, a Motion Picture Academy for the proper training of technical personnel," announced Senor Augusto.

"Spiritual Link"

He explained that he does not "consider the production of argumentative films a mission of the State, but neither do I believe that a national production can be effected that is foreign to the basic principles of a nation. This participation should not be interpreted as an obstacle placed in the way of private enterprise but, on the contrary, as an aid to its own effort.

"We also want the motion picture to cooperate as a spiritual link in our communications with other peoples and especially with the Spanish American countries, which speak our language. To give them the Spain of folklore is not enough. We also want our productions to be an authentic manifestation of the national essence. The documentary films and newsreels to which I have referred are produced with the subconscious thought they will also be shown in South America."

N.Y. CENSORS REPORT FEWEST CUTS IN 16 YEARS; DROP 200% IN FIVE YEARS

Number of Pictures Reviewed, 1,955, Is Largest in Six Years; However, 23 "Sex Films" Are Rejected in Season

Fewer censorship eliminations were made in the last year than in any of the previous 16 years of the New York censor board's existence, according to the annual report, submitted Tuesday, to Dr. Frank Graves, State Commission of Education, by Irwin Esmond, censor chief.

In a state which represents by far the largest motion picture market in the country, censorship figures show a decline of 200 per cent in five years in the number of pictures in which eliminations were ordered and in the number of scenes ordered eliminated.

In a year when elimination were lowest, the number of films reviewed, 1,955, was the highest in the last six years. Reels reviewed totaled 10,042, compared with the previous year's 9,784.

23 "Sex" Films Rejected

The comparison is accentuated by the sharp drop in eliminations: of the 1,955 films licensed in 1937-38, eliminations were ordered only in 772 scenes in 110 films, whereas the year before witnessed 1,291 scenes eliminated in 162 films, out of 1,924 reviewed. How far this trend has gone is illustrated by 1932-33 figures, which show 3,035 scenes eliminated in 328 pictures, of only 1,762 films reviewed.

In the socalled "sex" and "hygiene" film categories, however, in which virtually all the complete rejections occur, the board's current report shows a total of 23 rejected, compared with 24 the year before. This figure has been rising since 1932-33, when only ten pictures were rejected.

FILMS STOLEN FROM EXCHANGES

Theatre supply houses in Cincinnati are taking extra precautions to protect their projectors, screens and other appurtenances from illegal annexation by unknown parties who may be contemplating a career in the film business. The reason is that a print of "I Met My Love Again" was stolen from the United Artists branch, and three films were taken from a truck in front of the Chase Pictures Corporation office.

Appeals were taken on 12 of those rejected in 1937-38, four to the Commissioner, and eight to the Board of Regents, which now screens on re-submission after rejection. During the year, the state Court of Appeals upheld Mr. Esmond and Commissioner Graves by refusing to license "Ecstasy," and "Tomorrow's Children." Pending are decisions on "Birth Of A Baby," "Animated Diagrams of The Human Body," and "Whirlpool."

Eliminations Made

Of eliminations made upon statutory grounds, those based upon "immorality" and "inhumanity" show sharp decrease. There were 265 eliminations for "immorality" the past year, and 343 the previous year. In 1932-33, there were 1,124 eliminations on the same grounds. There were 28 eliminations for "inhumanity," in 1937-38, compared with 360 in 1932-33.

Other 1937-38 eliminations were as follows: for "indecency," 364; for "tending to incite to crime," 60; for "sacrilegiousness," 55, all fewer than previous years.

The Board's 1937-38 receipts from reviewing fees rose $11,638 over the previous year—caused by 31 more pictures reviewed, the report stated. The board's receipts have risen, from the $226,834 of 1932-33 to the $292,435 of 1936-37, and the $304,073 of the past vear.

Expenses have averaged about $63,000 yearly, a total for the 16 years of the board's existence of about $1,008,000. Using these approximate figures, added to an announced net profit of $2,537,322 since its inception, the motion picture industry has contributed some $3,545,322 for a censor board in a single state—and there are five other states with similar divisions.

Continued increase in number of foreign films submitted is noted. Number submitted this year were 455, from 19 countries, including Great Britain and Dominions, France, Sweden, Germany, China, Poland, Mexico, Hungary, Italy, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Argentina, Spain, Egypt, Arabia, Denmark, Greece, Borneo, and Java.

More staff members were asked, in Mr. Esmond's report. New reviewer and inspector were recently added, but are not thought sufficient.

Theatres are under close superivsion by board inspectors, Mr. Esmond stated; they watch whether film license leaders are displayed and eliminations made according to the board's rulings.

The motion picture censorship law of Atlanta, Ga., has been amended to include all professional theatrical performances.

DISTRIBUTOR PROBLEMS IN CHINA GROW ACUTE

Japanese Successes Restrict Business to Four Key Centers; Taxes, Censorship Increase

American distributors are having a difficult time of it in China, according to the following communication to Motion Picture Herald from Shanghai. The article, approved by all members of the Film Board of Trade of China, shows a picture different from that at the time of writing of the one which appeared in the issue of August 12th. In the shifting scene, Canton and Hankow have both fallen to the Japanese since the following letter was dispatched October 17th.

To the Editor of the Herald

It is far from correct to believe that the American distributing companies in China are enjoying a prosperous time. The film business at present is concentrated in four key situations, Shanghai, Hongkong, Tientsin and Peiping. During the last few months the little business that could be obtained by sending pictures to Hankow and other interior cities has ceased completely with the invasion of South China by the Japanese army. All communications with the interior have been cut off as a result, and the majority of the film companies find that many of their programs are in various interior cities with the problem of getting them to Hongkong or some other place of safety before Canton or Hankow fall into the hands of the Japanese.

Normally, these key situations represented about 50 per cent of the total business for the whole of China, but even in these situations box-office receipts are off 20 per cent of their normal business, with the exception of Hongkong where, owing to the influx of refugees, business today is about 25 per cent better than its normal amount. Apart from the four key cities, there are not more than two other places, Tsingtao and Yunnanfu, where any business at all can be obtained, and these situations give the distributors negligible revenue.

With the above explanation it is easy to understand that the American distributors have anything but an easy task to face. The Chinese distributors are likewise having to face the same difficulties, but a few Chinese studios are still turning out pictures, and after playing them in the key cities they are exported to the Malay Straits, Java and the Philippine Islands where there is a market for them.

Taxes, Censors, Regulations

There is also the matter of additional taxes, censor and custom regulations being imposed, which the distributors have to bear or fight against. In this connection credit should be given to the American Consulate and the American Chamber of Commerce, who do their best to assist American business in China.

Last month the Chinese censors for the National Government established their headquarters at Canton (formerly it was at Nanking) and issued a notice to the distributing companies that all films must now be censored by them in Canton. Censoring in Canton would be done at the rate of Mex. $5.00 per 500 meters or fraction thereof, plus the cost of censor certificates at Mex. $3.00 each. They also stated that they have the right to refuse to issue certificates and may call in for censoring any picture imported since the conflict started if they should so deem necessary.

The government in Canton also notified all businesses that a tax would be imposed which would come into effect August 1st. This would apply on any picture imported via Canton. But for the invasion of South China by the Japanese which has now eliminated this obstacle for the time being, the film distributors would have had another problem to face.

Protested by Distributors

Both of the above problems are under protest by the distributors, and with the help of the American Consulate a hope is cherished that the distributors will not have to bear these extra burdens.

Another major problem to confront the American distributors as far as Shanghai is concerned was the amalgamation into Asia Theatres, Inc., on August first, of the four first-run theatres in Shanghai and one second-run house, the Grand, Cathay, Nanking, Metropol and Rialto theatres. The combine was formed with a plan to reduce expenses and establish a situation more favorable to the exhibitors than heretofore. What the outcome of this combine will be is yet too early to say, but it is safe to point out that it certainly will not improve the situation for the film companies. There are rumors that Shanghai may soon have a new first and second run house which will of course improve things somewhat if these plans materialize.

Summarizing the situation in China, with the exchange problem facing the American film distributors and the distinct falling off of box-office receipts and the present hostilities, which have cut off all the interior business, all go to make it a most difficult time for the distributors. Despite the above hardships the representation of the American film companies in China is an important factor to consider, for undoubtedly as soon as the "war" is over, business will improve, and it is therefore the reason all the companies now operating under the difficulties shown above are carrying on to the best of their ability with an eye to the future and the hope that the time is not far off for better things to come.—B. W. Palmertz, manager of Shanghai office of Universal Pictures Corporation.

Audio Completes WE Film

The first of a series of pictures depicting Western Electric production activities has been completed by Audio Productions at Eastern Service Studio, Astoria, Long Island. Audio is completing arrangements for production of three films in color at Astoria which will be exhibited at the New York World's Fair.

Jack Warner Arriving

Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production for Warner Brothers, arrives Saturday on the Normandie. S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity, now in New York, will accompany Mr. Warner to the coast.

Griffis Says Zukor Will Supervise All European Activity

Adolph Zukor probably will be given supervision over Paramount's entire European distribution and theatre operations in addition to heading the company's British activities, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, said Monday on his arrival in New York from his recent coast visit. Mr. Zukor took on the foreign assignment two weeks ago and was succeeded at the studio by William Le Baron, in charge of production, and Y. Frank Freeman, representing the management at the studio.

Barney Balaban, president, who arrived in New York over the weekend, said that the recent administrative shifts in studio and theatre departments presage no changes in company policies.

Mr. Freeman, who returned to New York from Hollywood with Mr. Balaban, will wind up his affairs in New York and then assume his post at the studio in the next two weeks. Mr. Zukor is expected to arrive in New York by the end of the week and will sail for London about December 2nd.

John W. Hicks, Paramount vice-president and foreign head, who is now in London, will be back in New York for the Christmas holidays. Indications are that before leaving London Mr. Hicks will appoint a successor to John Cecil Graham, who resigned recently as managing director for the United Kingdom.

CEA Is Warned On Seat Acceptance

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

The London Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, awaiting the issuance of the first 1939 theatre licenses, has been advised by its attorneys that acceptance of the licenses, embodying the new seat regulations, will create a bad precedent.

The new Home Office Advisory Committeen on films will hold its initial meeting November 30th, and it is unofficially understood it will consider the decrease in domestic production and lower quota cost films. It is reported that producers have indicated to the board that in six months of the new quota act less than 50 films have been made, with a probable total for the year of less than 100, indicating a 50 per cent decrease.

The condition in production is considered grave. Likewise brought to the attention of the committee, it is understood, was the decrease in "B" film production, and the shrinkage in the importation of American "B" product.

American and British producers on the invitation of Captain Richard Norton attended a dinner Tuesday of the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries to discuss the future course of the organization.

It's mad and gay . . . . and dynamic at the box-office! 1938's "My Man Godfrey"! With an all-fun, all-romance cast of glamorous stars!

JAPAN GETS U.S. FILMS BUT NUMBER IS LIMITED

Financial and Quota Restrictions Will Prevent Resumption of Full Shipments, Distributors Say

Although the Japanese market once again is open to American films, their position will not be as favorable as prior to the ban, which was imposed by the Japanese government 14 months ago. This is indicated by reactions of foreign department distribution heads in New York after a study of the new conditions. They feel that full resumption of product shipment will not be possible, because of financial and quota restrictions. Paramount, for instance, which prior to the ban shipped about 80 per cent of its product there, estimates the total under the new arrangement will be considerably less.

A note of optimism, however, was expressed over the fact that the Japanese had made some concessions. While negotiations between the U. S. distributors and the Japanese for a long time did not point to a successful conclusion, foreign distribution heads in New York always felt that the Japanese, hard pressed for money to continue their war in China, and inclined to keep favorable relations with the American people, from whom they hope to obtain loans, would let down the bars at least part way.

Permits have been granted to the eight major American film companies to import 90 features before the end of 1938 and it is believed probable that the Government will approve the import of about 160 additional features for which licenses are sought. Tightening of censorship rules is foreseen however.

The situation has sent Japanese film exchanges of American companies into action with a substantial supply of product. Part of the product is from last season, but most are 1938-39 releases. This is because the new restrictions demand that any 1939 releases in Japan be titled and censored before the turn of the year. The problem is accentuated for those companies with color product, which must be processed in certain localities.

Evidence of the importance which some companies attach to the Japanese attitude was the recent action of Paramount in importing a translator from Japan. Titled, and otherwise "proofed" by him, Paramount's "Men with Wings" will be able to enter Japan before the end of the year.

Three-Year Notes

While the Japanese originally permitted no currency to leave the country, the new arrangement is reported to be a slow moving arrangement which will protect Japan from abrupt withdrawals while enabling American companies to make the transactions worth while.

Specific details are reported as follows: Currency "frozen" in Japan, together with three-year notes for new shipments, which draw no interest, will be turned over by Japanese customers to their government, which will guarantee the notes, place them with the Yokohama Specie Bank, in San Francisco, where they will remain until maturity.

J. W. Piper, manager for Paramount in Japan, who recently returned to that country after a two-months stay, is credited by his home office for much of the good work accomplished by the distributors in their negotiations with Japan. Mr. Piper acted in advisory capacity to the negotiators.

Mr. Piper, before sailing, explained that, while Japanese studios are turning out much product, it is still vastly inferior to foreign imports, and the people are demanding genuinely entertaining film fare. Italy and particularly Germany are being preferentially treated, he said, in line with the reputed Italo-German-Japan film "axis."

Optimism over the situation was expressed in the foreign sales departments of Warners and Twentieth Century-Fox. Warners never has made any serious attempt to release its product 100 per cent in Japan, it was claimed, the average being about 26 pictures a year. Warners expected the new agreement to allow the same number of entries.

At Twentieth Century-Fox the opinion was expressed that the company will be able to maintain the position it had under the various pro-rata agreements which obtained before the ban; namely, about 30 pictures a year.

United Artists, with fewer pictures and formerly releasing all its product in Japan, has been awaiting cable advice on its situation.

Universal, whose shipments approximated 23 pictures, or two-thirds of its average yearly releases, also is waiting for quota information, but expects to release less under a pro-rata agreement, which would favor those companies who push their entire product.

The present restrictions are for the calendar year 1938. Distributors hope for a further easing of restrictions next year.

TAC Sponsors "Ballerina"

Sponsored by the dance division of the Theatre Arts Committee, a special midnight showing of Jean Benoit-Levy's French film, "Ballerina," was held Monday night at the Little Carnegie Playhouse in New York.

In short addresses, Virginia Stevens and Jane Dudley explained that the Theatre Arts Committee stood for the preservation of democratic rights, and told of the work being done along those lines, which recently included the sending of a telegram signed by its members and other important figures in the dance, dramatic, film, radio and music worlds to President Roosevelt denouncing Germany's latest excesses. Agnes deMille, niece of Cecil B. DeMille, also gave an address on the ballet as the only art form with a long historical continuity, dating from the time of Louis XIV.

Photos of the McCormicks

Mr. and Mrs. B. P. McCormick were the subjects of a photo from the tumultuous hall of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, in the page of pictures which appeared in MOTION PICTURE HERALD issue of November 5th. Mr. McCormick operates the Jones, Canon and Rex theatres in Canon City, Col., the Rialto and the Liberty in Florence, Col., and the El Cortez in Hot Springs, N. M. The caption inadvertently bore the names of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Walker of Lampasas, Texas. Mr. Walker is president of the MPTO of Texas.

Harry Gibbs has been appointed New Haven branch manager of Grand National.

Silverstone Plans Trip to Europe; 3 from Fairbanks

A contemplated early visit to London by Murray Silverstone, operating head of United Artists, and the announcement that Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., will make three pictures for United Artists release, highlighted United Artists developments of the week.

Mr. Silverstone may make his departure early in December, and stay abroad for about two weeks on company business. This will have been the second trip abroad for Mr. Silverstone since he became operating head of the company. It is expected that he will make a general survey of United Artists business abroad.

The announcement that Mr. Fairbanks will make three pictures for the company came from Montague Marks, general manager of Albion Films, Ltd., of London, who arrived on the Normandie this week. The company was formed recently by Mr. Marks, Mr. Fairbanks and Sir Adrian Baille. Mr. Marks described it as the holding company for Douglas Fairbanks Productions, and while for the present it will limit itself to financing Mr. Fairbanks it will later include other producers.

Mr. Fairbanks will produce in Hollywood and at Denham Studio, London, Mr. Marks said. Seven story properties have been lined up, from which three will be selected for the first year's program. The films are intended to be completed in time for release on United Artists' 1939-40 schedule.

Alexander Korda is expected in Hollywood within a month to confer with Samuel Goldwyn over "housing arrangements" for "Colonel Rowan of Scotland Yard," which the Hollywood producer will make in England. Indications are that Mr. Goldwyn and Mr. Korda may reach an accord under which Mr. Goldwyn would produce two or more pictures in England in the coming season.

Meeting of the UA board of directors scheduled for Monday was postponed until Friday.

It was reported this week that Myron Selznick's plans to produce films on a profit-sharing basis with producers, directors and players handled by his agency are to be abandoned.

Symposium Held on Motion Picture Criticism

As material for one of its weekly sessions on the course of "The Motion Picture: Its Artistic, Educational and Social Aspects" as conducted by Professor Fredric M. Thrasher of New York University in cooperation with the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, a symposium on the subject of motion picture criticism was held last week in the University's School of Education Building at Washington Square. Participating in the discussion were Maxine Block, editor of Motion Picture Review Digest; Frank S. Nugent, motion picture critic, The New York Times; Jean Lenauer, manager of the Filmarte theatre in New York City, and David Golding, staff reporter of Box Office.

20th-Fox and UA Join In South Africa House

United Artists has become associated with Twentieth Century-Fox in the construction of a first run theatre in Johannesburg, South Africa, to cost more than $1,000,000. The investment by Twentieth Century-Fox is $200,000, and it is reported that United Artists' participation is 40 per cent. The amount will be used to purchase the site from the Katz and Lourie interests, and 75 per cent of the purchase price will be reinvested in the property.

The Johannesburg theatre will be the main house of a circuit of 40 or 50 theatres in South Africa under independent auspices. Twentieth Century-Fox is sponsoring the move in opposition to the Schlesinger interests from whom distribution of Twentieth Century-Fox films was withdrawn. The company has guaranteed all theatres in the circuit 15-year franchises, and United Artists' participation in the Johannesburg house indicates that that company will also provide product.

Dreifuss Forming New Company

Arthur Dreifuss resigned recently as vice-president and production head of Coronado Films to devote all of his time to Arthur Dreifuss Productions, Inc., now in formation for the production of 19 musical short subjects for Columbia release. Roy Wolf, president; Perry Burch, secretary and William Kent, assistant secretary, also left Coronado Films to join Dreifuss. Daniel L. Liberman will continue production of eight Coronado westerns for Grand National release.

Higgins with WOR

Harold C. Higgins has been appointed manager of radio station WOR's western office at Chicago. He formerly was western manager for Paul H. Raymer and Company, station representatives. Previous to that he reorganized the sales staffs at WBAL, Baltimore and WEEI, Boston, and from 1926 to 1931 served as sales manager and later station manager of WBZ, Boston.

Claire Hilgers Quits Universal

Claire E. Hilgers, Universal branch manager in Oklahoma City, has resigned, and will be succeeded by James Hobbs, branch manager at Charlotte. W. M. Richardson, Atlanta salesman, has been named to succeed Mr. Hobbs in Charlotte.

Sturges Signed by Paramount

Paramount has signed a one year contract with Preston Sturges for his services as a writer and director. The contract will mark Mr. Sturges' debut in the directorial field. He recently wrote the screenplay for Frank Lloyd's "If I Were King."

Burt Ofstie, former Balaban and Katz advertising and publicity man, has bought Midwest Trailer Company, Chicago, from Bob Hartman.

W. L. Norris has sold his interest in American Film Distributors, Inc., Kansas City, independent exchange, to Paul Humston.

Herman G. Weinberg, publicity man at World Pictures, has been elected to the Authors' League of America.

Standard Forms Releasing Unit

Under the name Standard Distributing Corporation, the recently formed Standard Pictures producing company has set up its own releasing organization. The plan embodies the establishment of 31 exchanges in key cities. While contracts have been made with representatives on straight five-year deals with option for a further three-year renewal, the exchanges will become exclusive Standard distribution centers upon the delivery of the third picture.

Another new company, Cinema Arts Productions, has been formed in Hollywood by Phil Krasne, former vice-president of the old Grand National organization. The company will make a series of musical westerns starring Arthur Jarrett, singer and band leader, for Grand National release. The films will be known as the "Trigger Pals" series.

Standard is negotiating to acquire 15 of the exchanges immediately and in conjunction with its own product will also distribute specially selected independently produced pictures, under its plan of owner operation.

Standard's product for the new season includes 12 pictures, six of the "Headley" series and six "Radio Reporters" with the possibility that two specials will be made. Officers of the corporation are B. W. Richards, president; George E. Trainer, secretary and general manager; H. C. Levitt, vice-president, and George Laganas, treasurer.

Finish Ukrainian Film

Shooting on "Cossacks Beyond the Danube," Ukrainian film, has been completed in New York under the direction of Edgar G. Ulmer. Michael J. Gann was associate producer. The film will be released early in November by Avramenko Films.

Consolidated Buys Two

Consolidated Amusement Company, affiliate of the Griffith circuit, has purchased the Strand and Ritz in Uvalde, Texas, from Uvalde Theatres, Inc., of which H. W. Little is president. The two theatres will be jointly operated by Jack Pickens Theatres, Inc., and Consolidated.

Finish Quebec Picture

Associated Screen News has completed shooting on "Treasure Hunt," Quebec Department of Mines feature. The film will be released shortly for theatre, school and trade screenings. Lucio Agostini, young Montreal arranger-conductor, who handled the recording work, will start on another film this week.

S. Ernest Pelson, formerly Edward Alperson's personal assistant at Grand National, and secretary-treasurer of the company's Canadian affiliate, is now office manager and city salesman in Boston, for Imperial Pictures.

George Converse has formed Filmex, Inc., and has taken over the distribution of the Gevaert 35 mm. motion picture film. Jack Guerin, formerly of International Cinema Laboratory, is Mr. Converse's technical aide.

Color Process to Be Known as Warnercolor

George Hurrell, Warner portrait photographer in the publicity department, is completing developments on a still color process which will be known as Warnercolor. It is being used for the first time on "Juarez," starring Paul Muni and Bette Davis.

The process is said to involve a camera which shoots three plates simultaneously, registering yellow, red and blue. A special color-corrected lens is employed and special color plates are required.

Flexibility of lighting is said to be effected through special flashlight equipment synchronized with the camera itself. "This permits use of light from four or five different sources," Warners say, adding, "pictures may also be made with incandescent light and sunlight."

Hoffberg Closes Deal

J. H. Hoffberg, president of the J. H. Hoffberg Company, has closed a deal for the distribution of the 1938 line-up of the company in the Minnesota and North Dakota territory, including "Forbidden Territory," "Crimson Circle," "Secret of Stamboul," "School for Husbands" and "Talking Feet." The deal was signed with York Elliott of the Elliott Film Exchange in Mnineapolis.

Opening Canadian Houses

Two new theatres will be opened by Famous Players Canadian in western Canada this month, bringing the total of theatres operated by the circuit in Canada over the 175 mark. The company operates a total of 260 houses under direct and indirect control. The new theatres are the Capitol at Vernon, B. C., and the Capitol at Red Deer, Alta.

Werner Joins Small

David C. Werner has been signed by Edward Small Productions as casting director. His first assignment is "King of the Turf," which will star Adolphe Menjou and which goes into production upon completion of "The Duke of West Point." Jack Merton will be assistant casting director.

Universal Promotes Mantzke

Frank Mantzke, who has been Universal's branch manager in Minneapolis for several years, has been appointed branch manager in Milwaukee. He succeeds the late John F. Camp.

Deanna Durbin Dolls

Deanna Durbin dolls will be merchandised throughout the country under arrangements completed recently by Universal with the Ideal Novelty and Toy Company of New York. Bernard Lipfert, sculptor, designed the model.

Signs Office Lease

The Association of School Film Libraries, Inc., distributors of educational films, has leased headquarters in the Time and Life Building in Rockefeller Center, N. Y.

'VODE-VISION' TURNS TO U. S. WITH AFM ATTACK

Opposition to Stage Acts with Film Backgrounds Brings Plea to Thurman Arnold

Stymied by opposition from the American Federation of Musicians, Vode-Vision, involving the use of acts in film theatres, with filmed backgrounds and music, is awaiting results of a brief filed with Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general in charge of anti-trust proceedings. The brief, filed by Irving Rosman, counsel, charges the musicians union with exceeding its constitutional rights in refusing to permit its members to make recordings for Vode-Vision.

Dave Blythe and J. E. Horn, of 1560 Broadway, New York City, sponsors of the project, say the unit they had on the road the last few weeks had experienced favorable reception, but that they voluntarily have withdrawn the unit and plans for further productions, in deference to the musicians' wishes. It was emphasized that Vode-Vision never would proceed with non-union employment.

The first unit, with a B. A. Rolfe recording, and talent including Bobby Pincus, The Three Dancells, Blue Belles, Ruth Foster, and others, played houses in Middletown, N. Y.; Norristown, Pottstown, Lewistown, Kittanning, and Bristol, Pa.; and in Washington, N. J. Front page space was given in local newspapers.

Rolfe Withdraws

Notified on the musicians union opposition, Mr. Rolfe withdrew his support, and Vode-Vision was left to conferences with the musicians, and its appeal to the Department of Justice.

In the Vode-Vision offices at 1560 Broadway, New York, emphasis was given that the musicians' reasoning was erroneous, that far from reducing the number of musicians employed, or impairing their opportunities to get back into band pits now vacant, the new idea would be a benefit to them.

"We know that vaudeville can't come back in its old form," it was stated. "We know that the public wants something different. They want stage acts but they want them in a new form. And that is what we want to give them.

"So far as the musicians are concerned, our policy of allowing only one house in a town to play our unit would mean that opposition houses would have to install stage shows to meet our competition. Installing stage shows would mean rehiring pit orchestras. It is as simple, and true, as all that."

Actors generally, it was indicated, are favorable to the idea. Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the American Federation of Actors, is understood to have conferred with Joseph Weber, president of the AFM, at the recent convention in Tampa.

How It Works

The Vode-Vision project, as now constituted, consists of a trailer naming the band being used in recorded form; appearance of the talent against a background of screened scenery, with spotlights illuminating the performers against the filmed background. The music comes from pit horns to create the illusion of a pit orchestra.

Each unit carries silver screen, 54 by 24 feet, three foot microphones and a standing microphone. A skeleton stage crew, spotlight operator and a projectionist are required. Each unit will have a manager, and its own press agent. Its advance publicity will include a trailer announcing it as a four-reel film, with personal appearances of its principals.

Pathe Holding Unit Will Be Dissolved

Pathe Film Corporation will be dissolved as a holding company in December, but will continue to function as a laboratory and printing concern, probably headed by the same principals. Details of the plan of dissolution will be given to the stockholders this Thursday, and will be voted on by the stockholders December sixth. It is in line with provisions of the 1938 revenue act which encouraged the dissolution of holding companies by the end of this year. The act provides that holding companies liquidating by December 31st may avoid paying undistributed profits taxes. Under the plan the stockholders would be able to receive their share of the dividends of Pathe's 35 percent interest in DuPont Film Manufacturing Company directly and without an extra tax on the company.

It has been reported that the offer of approximately $3,000 a share has been made for the DuPont shares by E. I. duPont de Nemours & Company, and that the alleged offer is being considered by Pathe, which has earned $545 a share on its 3,500 shares of DuPont Film since 1932.

Pathe's main laboratory is at Bound Brook, New Jersey, with an auxiliary plant in the Pathe News building on West 45th Street. Pathe does the printing for the newsreel, with, otherwise, no connection between the two. Pathe News is a subsidiary of RKO, while Pathe Film is an RKO creditor.

DuPont Film Manufacturing Corporation earned $929,388 in the first nine months of this year, $270,530 less than the $1,149,918 of the same period last year.

National Decency Legion Classifies 11 Pictures

Of 11 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week, eight were approved for general patronage, two were listed as unobjectionable for adults and one was cited as objectionable in part. The pictures and their classifications follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Exposed," "Frontier Scout," "Gangster's Boy," "Lawless Valley," "Law of the Texan," "Spring Madness," "Torchy Gets Her Man," "West of Santa Fe." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Artists and Models Abroad," "Secrets of a Nurse." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "Angels with Dirty Faces."

Allied Negotiations On Trade Practice Revealed by Myers

Allied States' negotiations with distributors on self-regulation persist in the elimination of block-booking and favor local "arbitration" boards with a central organization to attempt adjustment of distributor-exhibitor differences before submission to local arbitration.

These disclosures of negotiations between Allied and the distributor trade practice committee were made by Abram F. Myers, Allied's general counsel, at the two-day convention of Ohio's Independent Theatre Owners, which ended Wednesday at Columbus.

Mr. Myers told the 50 exhibitor delegates that he felt he should breach the agreement made with the distributors' committee to maintain silence on the negotiations because an unnamed outsider had appropriated from Allied quarters a memorandum containing notes on the discussions with the distributors in Chicago two weeks ago.

All sides—Allied, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, unaffiliated independent units and the distributors—have been working under voluntary agreements not to disclose the nature of self-regulation conversations until their crystallization.

Mr. Myers told the convention that Allied's committee proposed certain cancellation privileges in pictures that are identified in contracts and a higher cancellation running up to 30 per cent on pictures unidentified. He said that distributors had agreed to eliminate the score charge on flat rental pictures or else combine with the rental but that no decision had been made on percentage pictures. Allied still insists on the "exhibitor right to buy" and on clearance concessions, but admitted that both are problems to be adjusted by the Allied-proposed local "arbitration" boards.

The convention reelected all officers and directors, headed by Martin Smith, president; M. B. Horwitz, treasurer, and P. J. Wood, secretary.

Other speakers included Harold Rodner, executive vice-president of the Will Rogers Memorial Foundation; H. M. Richey, former Allied leader, now director of exhibitor relations for RKO; Harry Goldberg, director of advertising and publicity for the Warner circuit. Edward Golden of Monogram was a guest.

Arkansas Independent Theatre Owners will meet in Little Rock Sunday and Monday with J. F. Norman, president, presiding. Invited as speakers are Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, and Terry Ramsaye, editor of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Oklahoma will hold their annual convention in Oklahoma City in early December.

C. H. Olive has been elected president of Allied Theatre Owners of the District of Columbia for the fifth term. He represents the unit on the natoinal Allied board. Others elected are: Ashley Abendschein, vice-president; John H. Hiser, treasurer; Benjamin Tendler, chairman of the board of directors; W. R. Gingall, secretary.

The girl who made the world sit up and take box-office notice is back with her second sensational success!

SAGALL TALKS TELEVISION FINANCES; 19 STATIONS ARE NOW IN OPERATION

The Managing Director of the British Scophony, in New York, Says Company Would Make Sets, Start Theatre Service

Solomon Sagall, managing director of Scophony, Ltd., British television company, now in New York from London, declared this week that he had already started discussions with financial interests here, for the establishment of a Scophony Television Corporation of America, and that Eddie Cantor, the comedian, had been helping him to meet "the proper people."

Conferences so far "are pleasing," he said. Eddie Cantor, with whom Mr. Sagall conferred on Cantor's visit to Europe last year, is "enthusiastic" over the Scophony system.

If Scophony should establish in America, it would manufacture sets, Mr. Sagall said, and it would also grant manufacturing licenses, establish a television service for motion picture theatres, equip theatres with television sets, and investigate immediately the possibilities in commercial television broadcasts.

"I have found that I came at the right psychological moment," he exclaimed. "Let me tell you that when television starts in this country, it will start on a scale that will leave England far, far behind."

Answers Critics

Criticisms by proponents of American receiving sets, which use the cathode tube and give a smaller image, were flung back at their authors by Mr. Sagall, who pointed out his company "could make a smaller image, but we just don't think it practical."

"The small pictures that you see in this country, about eight by 10 inches, made by the cathode tube, are fine pictures for their size," he said, "but we have been accustomed for so many years to the picture standards set by home movies that we are used to them. The Scophony contention is that nothing smaller than pictures approximating home movies will be acceptable to home audiences."

His organization, Mr. Sagall claimed, was "quite capable" of putting on the market smaller receiving sets using the cathode ray tube. While employing a comparatively small number of persons—about 100—they number "among their ranks technicians second to none in the world."

Plans Larger Sets

Instead of building smaller sets, Scophony will build larger ones, he asserted, noting that plans for exhibition of the company's product at the New York World's Fair 1939 include a two foot picture receiving set.

"The cathode tube method has been known for the past 30 years, and the Scophony patents are only a few years old," he said. "Scophony has to overcome, therefore, a great deal of prejudice. However, all criticisms are of minor importance—it is the public which will decide."

The scanning system of the Scophony receiving set is as capable as the electronic systems in favor here, Mr. Sagall asserted. The Scophony system was described by him as an "optical scanning system, which has as much in common with the old style mechanical system as a horse with a modern motor car."

"The basic feature of our scanning system is the 'Supersonic Light Control,'" he declared.

FILM BOOKERS CLUB TO BE NATIONAL

Plans for making the Film Bookers Club of America a national organization have been completed by the Chicago officers. The club was started in Chicago six months ago, and has almost 70 members, among theatre and exchange bookers and their assistants. Clubrooms in the Crillon hotel are open every day.

Heading the organization as president is Max Factor, booker for the Great States circuit. Stanley Butte of the Schoenstadt circuit is vice-president; Harry James of United Artists, treasurer; Charles Davidson, of B. & K., secretary, and Joe Stout of B. & K., corresponding secretary.

The Chicago club has the sanction and endorsement of the film and theatre executives.

"This enables Scophony to have 200 picture elements at any one moment instead of one element, as in the case of a cathode tube. Our Supersonic Light Control is entirely 'electro-optical.'"

While there have been charges that American transmitting stations would have to undergo extensive design alterations in order to make reception by Scophony receiving sets possible, Mr. Sagall branded such charges exaggerations.

Calls Cost Negligible

"We are convinced that RCA will have no difficulty putting in equipment which will enable our sets to receive signals," he said. "The cost is negligible; it should amount to no more than a few thousand dollars on the transmitting end. We also feel that the Federal Communications Commission, in its desire to see advanced the art of television, will insist on accurate transmission synchronization standards, so that any genuine method of television can be used in this country."

Mr. Sagall oulined the reason for the required changes. In England, he asserted, it was found that the BBC synchronizing signal was erratic, not suitable for scanning systems, possessing "inertia," such as Scophony. On the company's advice, he said, the BBC made the required changes, achieving a stable signal. which, besides allowing Scophony to function, would allow any other method of television to function. In addition, Mr. Sagall pointed out that this improved synchronization, which will be asked of American stations, was "found beneficial to cathode tube reception."

Read Television Papers

Television's relation to the motion pictures, and its probable path, were discussed by engineers at meeting Friday of the Atlantic Coast section of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, in the Hotel New Yorker. Papers read were "The Road Ahead for Television," by I. J. Karr, of the General Electric Company, and "Some Television Problems from the Motion Picture Standpoint," by G. L. Beers, E. W. Engstrom, and I. G. Mallof, of RCA.

Radio Manufacturers Protest Sarnoff Statement on Television Sets in Spring; Declare Christmas Sales Are Impaired

Hoping that television will soon be a commercial reality, that they will have as many as possible experimental licenses and stations, and that they will be able to convert these immediately to commercial use, the big units of the radio industry have set up a network of transmitters covering the country, a survey shows. There are 19 authorized stations, and new licenses, all "experimental," are being granted by the The Federal Communications Commission.

The television stations at present operating under FCC authority are, as compiled by National Union Radio Corporation:

Columbia Broadcasting System, New York, W2XAX.

Don Lee Broadcasting System, Los Angeles, W6XAO.

Farnsworth Television, Inc., Springfield, Pa., W3XPF.

First National Television, Inc., Kansas City, W9XAL.

General Television Corporation, Boston, W1XG.

The Journal Company, Milwaukee, W9XD.

Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, Manhattan, Kansas, W9XAK.

National Broadcasting Company, New York, W2XBS.

National Broadcasting Company, Portable (Camden, N. J. and New York), W2XBT.

Philco Radio and Television Corporation, Philadelphia, W3XE.

Philco Radio and Television Corporation, Philadelphia, W3XP.

Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana, W9XG.

Radio Pictures, Inc., Long Island City, New York, W2XDR.

RCA Manufacturing Company, Inc., Camden, N. J., W3XEP.

RCA Manufacturing Company, Inc., Portable-Mobile, W1OXX.

The Sparks-Withington Company, Jackson, Michigan, W8XAN.

University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, W9XK.

University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, W9XUY.

Dr. George W. Young, Minneapolis, Minn., W9XAT.

Columbia Broadcasting System is reported spending $500,000 for a transmitter atop the Chrysler Building, exclusive of the cost of other CBS television experimentation.

Radio Corporation of America and National Broadcasting Company are understood to have spent about $15,000,000. In California, Don Lee Broadcasting System has laid out $1,000,000. Other companies which have depleted their surpluses in the quest for practical television are Farnsworth, Zenith, Philco.

Reputedly the most powerful present transmitter is RCA's W3XEP, with "30,000 visual power." Others with the same range are NBC's XBS, with 12,000 watts; Don Lee's W6XAD, with 1,000 and Philco's W3XP, 15,000 and W3XE, 10,000.

Philo T. Farnsworth, at the convention this week of the Institute of Radio Engineers and the Radio Manufacturers Association, in Rochester, N, Y., said his company would have a fleet of trucks for news coverage. He also displayed a new vacuum tube for portable transmission.

The picture that will prove too tempting for 60 million radio fans and 120 million movie fans to resist . . . !

New Schedule Set By World Pictures

Headed by "Grand Illusion," for release December 25 and which has already been pre-released in 15 key spots, the 1938-39 schedule of World Pictures was announced this week by Archie Mayers, sales manager.

Next on the schedule is Jean Renoir's "Marseillaise," in an English adaptation prepared by Mr. Renoir and Arthur Arent, the author of "One-Third of a Nation."

Subsequent releases will be "Hatred," featuring Harry Baur; "Witch Night," starring Gesta Ekman and Signo Hasso, Swedish actress; "Street Without a Name," a Pierre Chenal production; "Unsolved Crime," starring Eric von Stroheim; "Ninety Degrees South," a record of Scott Antarctic Expedition; "Annie Laurie," filmed in Scotland, with Will Fyffe; "Valse Drillante," with Alexander Brailowsky, pianist; "The Children's Corner," with the French pianist, Alfred Cortot; "Andante and Rondo," featuring the Russian cellist, Gregor Piatagorsky; "Ave Marie," with Elizabeth Schumann, and "Malaguena," with the French violinist, Jacques Thibaud.

North American Travelogue Series from FitzPatrick

James A. FitzPatrick, producer of the Travelogues released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, left New York for Florida last week to start filming a series of reels on North America, in line with a plan to produce 12 travelogues a year for the next two years on North and South America. Several on South America have been completed, according to Mr. FitzPatrick, who recently returned from Venezuela and Colombia. The basic idea back of the new series is not only to provide new material, Mr. FitzPatrick pointed out, but to further efforts for a close relationship between the two continents.

Action on a proposed air show, reported sponsored by Buick, will be deferred until Mr. Fitzpatrick has conferred with MGM officials on the coast, and may take the form of a coast to coast broadcast, using Nathaniel Schilkret's Travelogue orchestra.

Orton Hicks Joins Gutlohn

Orton Hicks, former president of Films, Inc., has become associated with Walter O. Gutlohn, Inc., as chairman of the board. The Gutlohn Company is contemplating an expansion program in line with the rapid growth of the 16 mm. sound film field. Mr. Hicks is also president of the Seven Seas Film Corp., specializing in motion picture service to railroad and steamship lines.

Warners Operate Orange House

The Warner Brothers circuit, through Stanley Company of America, has taken over operation of the Palace, an independent theatre in Orange, N. J., in a buying and booking deal similar to the arrangement the circuit has with several other New Jersey operations. Buying and booking for the Palace formerly was done by Moe Kridel, who remains the nominal operator.

Drew Joins Monogram

Robert Drew has resigned from Big Feature Rights, Cleveland, to join Monogram there as salesman in Kentucky and West Virginia.

Pathe News and Music Company Sign Contract

A deal has been completed recently between Sam Fox Publishing Company and Pathe News, which will give Pathe the use of all Fox music catalogues for five years in RKO Pathe newsreels and short subjects. Frederic Ullman, Jr., vice-president of Pathe, also has announced the signing of a contract between the newsreel firm and Trans-Radio Press, which gives Pathe an immediate nationwide news coverage, and will enable it to check news rumors and develop feature newsreel stories.

Paramount, through Lou Diamond, president of the company's subsidiary, Famous Music Corporation, has relinquished its option on Joe Morris Music Corporation.

Actors' Group Studies Plans for Cooperation

Plans for closer cooperation between member units of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America were presented for consideration to the association's board of directors this week by Frank Gillmore, president. The first moves to be considered will be the establishment of one office for all branches in cities where none has sufficient membership to warrant the expenditure for an exclusive office. Another proposal is a monthly bulletin to advise locals of the activities of other branches. Consideration also was given to the problem of a joint dues system.

Fadiman Launches Importing Company

National Pictures Corporation, which will import and exploit foreign films in this country and Latin America, has been formed by Edwin Fadiman, brother of Clifton Fadiman, book reviewer of "The New Yorker" and master of ceremonies of the "Information Please" radio program, and of William James Fadiman, fiction editor of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The first six of the new company's French releases are now being edited and sub-titled in English, and will include "Legion of Honor," this year's French first prize winner, on which the New York first run will shortly be announced.

Buy Monogram Branch Interest

Monogram Film Distributors, Inc., Des Moines, has bought the interest of L. O. Ringler in that corporation and has sold to him the Omaha Monogram exchange. Mr. Ringler will form a new corporation to handle the Nebraska franchise and the two offices will operate as separate units. The deal was ratified at a meeting of the Monogram stockholders and F. E. Judd was elected head of the Des Moines company.

Lewis To Become Actor

Sinclair Lewis, novelist and Nobel Prize winner, who for several years has been developing an increasing interest in the theatre, will become a professional actor soon when he assumes a leading role in a play he has just completed, "Angela Is Twenty-Two." Fay Wray, Hollywood film actress, will share star billing.

Burns' Contract Extended

Bob Burns' contract with Paramount has been extended for another year. Four pictures are scheduled for the comedian.

Shine Adds Four in Delaware, Maryland

Four more theatres in lower Delaware and on the eastern shore of Maryland have been added to the Shine Circuit, Inc. The company now controls 10 houses on the Delaware - Maryland - Virginia Peninsula. The theatres added are the $50,000 Federal at Federalsburg, Md.; Avalon, Easton, Md.; Arcade, Stalisbury, Md., and Plaza, Milford, Del.

Newman To Direct Shorts for MGM

Joe Newman, who started in as an office boy for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Culver City nine years ago, and successively went into the property and script departments, from which he became an assistant director, has been promoted to a short subjects director. His first assignment will be Pete Smith's latest release, "A Man's Greatest Friend."

Rockefeller Center Building Another

Rockefeller Center, Inc., has announced plans to erect an office building in its midtown New York development, which will mark the completion of the project. The new skyscraper will be equal in height to the 31 story RKO building, but will be architectually similar to the Time and Life building.

The new structure will be constructed partly on top of the Center Theatre at 49th Street and Sixth Avenue, putting to rest rumors that the theatre would be razed.

Columbia To Release French Films

Columbia has closed a deal with Paul Graetz, head of Paris Exchange Film Company, to take over eight films which Mr. Graetz previously had arranged to distribute in America through Empress Pictures. B. S. Moss organized Empress to act as the American distribution outlet for the Graetz organization, which arranges French film world release.

Paul Hunter Named Publisher

Paul C. Hunter has been named publisher and vice-president of Screenland and Silver Screen by Victor G. Heimbucher, president. Robert L. Johnson of R. L. Johnson, Inc., former vice-president and advertising director of Time, has been retained by Screenland and Silver Screen in an advisory capacity.

Church Accepts Reel

A film biography of Cardinal Hayes compiled from Movietone News has been presented by Twentieth Century-Fox to the Catholic Church. Two prints have been accepted by Bishop Stephen Donahue, one to remain in the Archdiocese of New York, and the other to be included in the archives of the Vatican.

Bergen in New Short

Edgar Bergen and his two dummies, Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Sneed, will appear in color, with the release of one of Paramount's "Unusual Occupations" series, now in production. The short features the occupation of Virginia Grey, of New York—the construction of dummies for ventriloquists.

Timed perfectly for a public that is giving tremendous response to productions with this wonderful appeal!

Secrets of a Nurse

(Universal)

Metropolitan Melodrama

Rolled together here and tied with an elastic thread are just about all the orthodox ingredients of metropolitan melodrama plus a faint touch of occultism. Three murders and an execution take place, a courtroom sequence comes out a little differently than expected and a nurse extracts a deathbed confession from a gangster some minutes after, according to the attending physician, he has died. The film originally was titled "West Side Miracle" and that about tells it.

Edmund Lowe, Helen Mack and Dick Foran are the three top principals, Miss Mack having rather more weight to carry than her shoulders are used to as the nurse with a knack for dragging patients back from the valley of shadows. Mr. Lowe plays a criminal lawyer in polished manner and Mr. Foran is quite at home as the dumb but honest prize fighter. The others in the large cast are quite evenly matched.

Tom Lennon and Lester Cole "poured it on" in their screen play. Or maybe it was Quentin Reynolds who did it, in the original story. Assuredly neither director Arthur Lubin nor associate producer Burt Kelly applied brakes. The picture contains, as the old gag has it, everything but the kitchen sink.

It runs like this: "Killer Burke" is doped in the prize ring by a handler in pay of "Largo," gangster. The handler is murdered by "Largo's" gunman, "Carson." "Burke" is taken to a hospital where nurse "Katharine" brings him back from the edge of death and falls in love with him. Another of her patients is "Dodge," criminal lawyer, to whom "Largo" comes when "Carson" is jailed. "Dodge" declines the case and "Carson" is convicted, but says he will not squeal on "Largo." "Dodge" gets "Burke" a job as bellboy because "Katherine" wants to marry him, and he is falsely accused of another murder which "Largo" has accomplished through "Smiley," another of his gunmen. "Dodge" tries to save "Burke," but he is sentenced to die. In the death row he meets "Carson," who suggests to him "Largo's" probable guilt, and "Dodge" bluffs "Largo" to the verge of a confession, at which point "Smiles" shoots "Largo." With minutes to go before the execution of "Burke," and "Largo" dying in the hospital, "Katherine" applies her bedside manner and extracts a confession which saves "Burke," after which the attending physician announces that "Largo" has been dead for several minutes.

That's about it, skipping the minor miracles. It's a film for the bloodthirstier and more credulous type of melodrama addict.

Previewed at the Pantages theatre, Hollywood, where quite a number of persons laughed in several wrong places.—William R. Weaver.

The Shining Hour

(MGM)

Sophisticated Romance

"The Shining Hour" is the screen version of a New York stage play. As a picture, according to the accepted standards of some years past, it's daringly different. It's not overtly sexy, nor is it risque, but it is moderately mature. In a direct, even if limited, way, it is a 1938 consideration of old fashioned screen material—that is, material that was the fashion in the days of, say, "A Free Soul," "Strangers May Kiss" and kindred productions. Its appeal is to those who, for want of a more completely comprehensive identification, are known as sophisticates, intelligentsia or highbrows, the "smart set," in other words.

Ann Harding sometimes was accorded the courtesy of choosing her own screen stories. In the "Facts and Figures" information, carded on the back page of the elaborate printed program distributed to preview reporters, is the paragraph: "The play was first considered as screen material by Joan Crawford when she saw it in New York. Returning to the studio she persuaded them to purchase the drama." The resulting photoplay is a romance melodrama in which the lives of several persons become snarled in a manner that threatens to bring disaster, until those most directly implicated persuade themselves to act honorably.

A business man farmer marries an exotic New York night club dancer notwithstanding the objections of his brother. The bridal couple move to the groom's farm home (it is an exceptionally ornate home), where the brothers' middle aged maiden lady sister makes no bones in demonstrating her disapproval of the bride, and where the dissenting brother falls in love with her and she with him. The husband doesn't seem to realize what's going on, but everything is plain to his sister and sister-in-law. Yet while the sister continues as an audible but uninfluential minority, the sister-in law would subvert her own hopes of happiness to those of her husband's and his brother-in-law wife as she considers them. But the dancing lady bride rescues the sacrificing sister-in-law from death in a fire, and thereupon everyone concerned suddenly realizes that the experiences they had undergone were nothing but strange if inxplicable interludes that had to be undergone before hearts of gold assayed themselves truly.

Definitely adult in conception and point, showmen have nothing to do but bid adults see the picture. When it comes time to exploit "The Shining Hour" and facts and intimations that have significance must be resorted to, it should be of value to remind prospective customers that Joan Crawford frequently has been included in the annual listing of box office champions; that Robert Young and Melvyn Douglass have won prestige and popularity for themselves via appearances in entertaining pictures; that Margaret Sullavan and Fay Bainter are among the most capable and accomplished performers now appearing in films. In most cases, as the ratio of significance is analyzed, Broadway, N. Y., appeal being only of microscopic importance in relation to the vast fields of taste and preference which motion picture distribution seeks to accommodate, it probably would be just as well to omit all intimation that the star selected the vehicle after a White Way tour.

Previewed in the Village theatre, Westwood, Cal. The collegiate attendance from neighboring University of California, Los Angeles, thought the newsreel pictures of football games, shown before the preview, were great. They, in wisecrack fashion, suggested dialogue lines for and gave the players stage directions. The host of invited guests down stairs was vociferous in applause. The man next to me was sound asleep.—G. M.

Arizona Wildcat

Western Melodrama

Here you are, ladies and gentlemen of show business—the Jane Withers picture you've been asking for, sound, rounded Western melodrama that would stand on its own feet as melodrama without Miss Withers in it and is, of course, the better for her presence. That is another and not very direct way of saying that this one is not built down to the "cute" or "sweet" level commonly sought for pictures featuring child stars, and it is also to be said that in it Miss Withers does things that a child of her age would and could do. It is easily, for these reasons and others, her best picture to date.

Quite probably the producer of Miss Withers' pictures has discovered a very vital truth about juvenile pictures in general. This would be, if this picture may be taken as representative, that a child star performing acting chores within her natural age range (or, rather, within the range of an average child of her years) is beneficiary of a plausibility that a child star acting like an adult, or a prodigy, is deprived of. It would seem a better than average bet that right about here lies the answer to the problem that so long has baffled producers when their child stars approach the socalled awkward age. Maybe a bit of important production history dates from here.

If Miss Withers were not the star of this film, as she quite definitely is, Leo Carrillo would be. The scene is Arizona in the stagecoach era. He plays a Spanish stagecoach driver, staid father of four or five sons, who takes a girl orphan under his protection when her father is killed in a holdup. A young southerner, in town seeking a man who ruined his father, is accused by the sheriff of a recent gold robbery in which murder was done. The orphan (Miss Withers) and her guardian become convinced that the sheriff is head of the robbers who have been terrorizing the community, and ultimately bring him to justice. By way of accomplishing this, the Spanish stage driver, formerly a Robin Hood type of bandit known as "The Cat," calls his former associates (now staid members of the community) together again and rides raid on the town. This sequence, like others, is full of the best type of riding and shooting.

A fine job of production and a carefully thought out story. "Arizona Wildcat" is without question Miss Withers' best picture. In pictures as intelligently planned and produced, the young lady may well be expected to pursue her extremely successful career right on through adolescence to whatever may lie beyond.

Swing That Cheer

(Universal)

Football

Football pictures come along just as regularly as the autumn months. Although it had been announced for release on October 14, Universal did not get around to previewing its annual contribution to the cycle until November 10. In "Swing That Cheer" the established routines again are used, with some alterations and innovations.

Because evil days have come upon the football glory of Carlton, old coach "McGann's" future doesn't look very rosy. The student body, fraternities and alumnae are demanding that he be fired. But the team knows that it's not "McGann's" fault, and like the Stanford eleven of a few years ago they fulfill their vow to make mince-meat of the opposition. Everybody knows that it is the running guard, who mows down the other teams' linemen and backs with devastating efficiency, is responsible for the club's success. That is, everybody but the ball-carrying halfback who gets all the headline publicity, Then, conspiring with his girl friend, the guard decides to see what the halfback can do on his own. He can't do anything. But the guard, who has been faking an injury, repents his deception in time.

Tom Brown is the running guard, Robert Wilcox the halfback, Samuel Hinds the coach and Andy Devine his assistant. The college coed coterie is represented by Constance Moore, Raymond Parker, Margaret Early and "Doodles" Weaver.

Pardon Our Nerve

Farce

Third of Twentieth Century-Fox's Big Town Girls series, "Pardon Our Nerve" is a hilarious concoction of the adventures of two girls who, being impoverished, seize upon a dull-witted waiter and make of him a prizefighter. By entertainment and artistic standards, it is the best of the series, being 65 minutes of closely knit laughs and suspense. Lack of stronger marquee names is the only thing that might prevent its being rated among the better box office comedies of the year.

From start to finish, the preview audience at the Fox Uptown theatre was in spasms of laughter as the adroit direction of H. Bruce "Lucky" Humberstone led the characters through the screenplay of Robert Ellis and Helen Logan. Hilda Stone and Betty Reinhardt wrote the original story for the Sol M. Wurtzel production.

Lynn Bari and June Gale are the "big town girls," supported by Guinn Williams, Michael Whalen, Edward Brophy, John Miljan, Theodor von Eltz, Ward Bond, Chester Clute, Helen Ericson and Tom Kennedy, a cast whose individual and collective efforts contribute no little toward the entertainment.

"Terry" and "Judy," broke, seize upon the idea of becoming managers of a waiter whom they make a prizefighter. The fighter, "Samson," is so dull-witted that "Judy," who resembles his sweetheart in Minnesota, must resort to having his opponent hit her in order to rouse him from his lethargy. Gamblers and crooked managers enter the situation and "Judy" is kidnapped on the eve of the big fight, but the denouement is entirely successful for the heroines.

Irish and Proud of It

(Guaranteed)

Comedy-Drama

An importation from the Emerald Isle and produced in its entirety in Ballyvoraine, this subject is of a whimsical nature, an improvement on recent Eire films shown in this country. A typical Irish-American audience will find it amusing if the reaction of an afternoon audience at the Belmont theatre in New York is a criterion.

The title has its origin in the expressed thoughts of a London-Irishman who is wont to speak often and long on the place of his birth, Ballyvoraine. His hope of visiting it once again, voiced this time at an Irish Flying Club dinner, spurs three aviators into kidnapping and dropping him there.

He becomes involved in various escapades, has a run-in with an ex-Chicago gangster who heads a band interested in distilling spirits and forcing them on local barkeepers, patches up a quarrel between a boy and girl, is suspected of being a government agent, and generally makes quite a splurge in Ballyvoraine.

There is also a fight, a free-for-all. The Irish, it is said, love a fight, but they could learn a lot from Hollywood actors when it comes to staging a make-believe melee on film.

The acting is commendable and Richard Hayward in the leading role performs assuredly and convincingly. He also sings several Irish songs in pleasing voice.

Reviewed at the Belmont theatre, New York, which specializes in showing foreign product. Reaction was as noted.—Paul C. Mooney, Jr.

Titans of the Deep

(Grand National)

Undersea Adventure

This is a novel and exciting 40-minute film of undersea adventure in waters off the Bermuda coast. With Dr. William Beebe in charge of the scientific details and Otis Barton in charge of the camera work, the film becomes at once both educational and entertaining.

Depicted are unusual species of fish as well as the more familiarly known sharks, octopi and lobster. The lobster in this picture is of the giant variety and one of the highlights is its battle with an octopus.

There are other undersea struggles. A shark and a sawfish fight to a draw, but Barton, filming the scene, is not so fortunate when another shark attacks him. In order to ward off the killer he shoves the camera in the shark's mouth. The shark swallows the camera, but that necessary equipment is recovered when the shark's belly is cut open.

Another thrilling aspect is the descent of the Bathysphere with Barton and Beebe inside. From the Bathysphere are filmed the ocean bed and the strange creatures of the deep.

Also in the party is Joan Igou, who fearlessly descends on several occasions to observe and be observed, and on one occasion kills a large barracuda with a rifle, a mere .22, which is deadly only at a distance of two feet. Gloria Hollister, Jocelyn Crane and John Tee Van also have roles.

The photography is excellent, the suspense sustaining and the narration by Lowell Thomas adds to the dramatic content of the picture.

Reviewed at the Criterion theatre, New York. An afternoon audience watched the screening with complete attention and gave indications that they enjoyed it.—P. C. M.

Distributed by Grand National. Producer and director, Otis Barton. Story and narration, Lowell Thomas. Running time, 40 minutes. Release date, October 28, 1938. General audience classification.

Mars Attacks the World

Interplanetary War

The floods, hurricanes and volcanic eruptions which Earth experiences now and again are the result of a powerful beam generated by a Martian made beam-gun on the planet Mars, so "Flash Gordon" and his intrepid band of adventurers would have us believe.

There are other futuristic weapons of destruction shown in this film besides the beam-gun. In fact, practically all Mars technical achievements are vastly superior to Earth's, except in wearing apparel, which on Mars is a toss up between that worn by Caesar's Centurions and Zenith's basketball team.

"Mars Attacks the World" has been re-edited from the "Flash Gordon" serial. It is patchy in spots but on the whole the job has been accomplished as well as could be expected and the discrepancies are not so serious in a fantastic story such as this is. The current release is

The Gaunt Stranger

(Capad-ABFD)

Crook Melodrama

A production team formerly active under the Gaumont British banner, that of producer Michael Balcon, director Walter Forde and actor Sonnie Hale, comes once again to the screen in this first Capad production, made at the Ealing Studios. It has every sign of understanding and teamwork, and proves both sound in production values and solid in entertainment qualities.

Based on an Edgar Wallace yarn, with that time honored reprobate, The Ringer, as its dramatic pivot, it explores familiar avenues but does so with plenty of narrative fluency and a great deal of grip and suspense. The adventure revolves around the threat of this mysterious criminal to avenge a wrong by slaying a London crook, a threat delivered literally from the air and made by a man believed long dead. The action is built up in and around the house of the sinister victim, unrolls over twenty-four hours, and comes to a well staged climax with the villain slain exactly on the deadline, his killer none other than The Ringer, long disguised as the local police surgeon.

It is the brand of story colloquially known as "hokum" but it is well knit and set off with suspense and mystery elements, decorated with slick directorial touches from Forde. The more enlightened brand of patron may have guessed The Ranger's identity long 'ere the climax, but the ordinary paying fan will have fun in unraveling the tangles. The climax in particular is built up to an effective peak, not only by Forde's sense of tempo but likewise by Wilfred Lawson's portrayal of a controlled but nerve-racked man destroyed by the thought of inevitable destruction. Despite the censor's noted antipathy to the theme, the criminal is tinted in complimentary hues, and gets scot free with a smile on his lips.

Wilfred Lawson's piano-playing, oily victim is a neat piece of character drawing, while Alexander Shaw's Scottish surgeon—cum-Ringer—has both interest and conviction. Most entertaining of all, however, is the sketch of a Cockney by Sonnie Hale, a studied and natural cameo of nervous shiftiness underlined with wit. Settings of the victim's house, the police station and the river region are well designed and very well photographed.

The film has the fortune to bear, so to speak, the Edgar Wallace trademark, a sales advantage on both sides of the Atlantic. Its creditable production and entertainment values should focus attention on Capad.

The Little Adventuress

(Columbia)

Racetrack Story

All race track stories, whether pretentiously or economically produced, it has been noted, follow the same general pattern. "The Little Adventuress" is no exception, though some alterations have been made in styling.

Until late in the last act, things never go right for the heroine, adolescent "Pinky Horten." Her show-folk parents die, leaving her an orphan and an educated horse who they hoped would some time prove himself a racing champion. He does, but not before "Pinky," her faithful and comic pal, "Handy," and sympathetic cousin "Dick," have undergone many a heart-searing experience. The "Aunt Hattie" to whom the girl looked for consolation and encouragement repays that trust by throwing her and "Handy" into jail. Their jockey, who was to ride the big race, is caught selling them out. But "Pinky," just as did "Checkers" long ago, has the mount up on the steed when he wins the $50,000 handicap.

A formula feature, the picture suggests formula exploitation.

Previewed in Pantages theatre, Hollywood. There wasn't much of an audience in this theatre where "You Can't Take It with You" had been running for several weeks. Most of those present didn't appear to be of the opinion that "The Little Adventuress" was an important contribution.—V. K.

Mr. Moto Takes a Vacation

It's the crown of the Queen of Sheba, no less, that Mr. Moto protects this time, from the point of its discovery in a not quite clearly defined terrain, possibly Africa, to the San Francisco museum, which is all but wrecked by a certain elegant criminal who wanted the crown so badly that he financed the expedition which discovered it. (Just why this doesn't entitle him to its honorable possession is one of the major Moto mysteries, unexplained and, of course, beside the point.) The film is fast, involved and intermittently comic, culminating in a two-man scrap that is quite something.

The picture opens at the scene of the crown's unearthing. "Mr. Moto" is never far from it from there back to 'Frisco, where it is placed on guarded display in a wired and otherwise protected museum. "Mr. Moto" and Scotland Yard believe a famous criminal long thought dead will try to get the crown, and he does. Various shootings and a murder follow. "Mr. Moto" finally learns that "Hendrik Manderson," the kindly old gentleman who financed the expedition, is really the sought criminal, in disguise. They fight it out all over the museum, and the criminal is captured. There's a minor romance between the archeologist who did the digging and one of the girls who work at the museum.

Much of the action takes place in San Francisco's Chinatown. All of it is fast. Norman Foster's direction is admirable in every particular, but his screen play, by himself and Philip MacDonald, does have that one gaping hole in it. Possibly the devoted followers of Mr. Moto will not notice, or mind.

Previewed at the Uptown theatre, Los Angeles, a theatre serving a Mr. Moto-conscious patronage which seemed to like the film quite well.—W. R. W.

The Law West of Tombstone

(RKO Radio)

Outdoor Adventure

Quite a departure from the stereotyped outdoor adventure formula is "The Law West of Tombstone." None of the standard elements is missing, but they are presented in an unusual way. There is more comedy than ordinarily is contained in pictures of the type, and the love interest contrast has been given a fresh treatment.

The production is built around the character of "Bonanza Bill Barker," a boastful survivor of the old two-gun fighters. Outslicked by "Kent," he becomes involved in a bit of horse-stealing, but his sentence will be suspended if he promises to round up "Tonto Kid," young bandit. He is brought also into contact with "Nitta," who doesn't know that "Bill" is her father. Catching up with the Kid," "Bill," instead of prosecuting him, becomes his mentor and further sets himself up at the law in the new town of Martinez. When "Tonto" kills his partner, "Bill" saves the youngster's hide when he finds the boy shot in self-defense. With "Tonto" attracted to "Nitta," he and "Bill" ally themselves to fight off the "McQuinns," a second-class gang of bandits. This leads to the customary thrill climax with "Bill" and his friends in a dangerous predicament until "Tonto" takes a hand in bringing down the "McQuinn" gang. The fadeout has "Bill" established as the law of Martinez, with "Bill" and "Nitta" deciding to marry and run a ranch together.

Picturesque in the sequences reproducing the wild and wooly west of the "Eighties," "The Law West of Tombstone" gives a new picturization of the peoples, whites and Indians, good men and bad men, who inhabited Arizona in the time. There's an air of naturalness about the production that makes everything seem credible. In many cases, exhibitors may find that the picture is strong enough to occupy the program top spot.

Ihr Leibhusar

(Casino Film Exchange)

Romantic Comedy

"Ihr Leibhusar" ("Her Guardsman"), produced by Hunnia Pictura Film, tells a light, romantic story of an impoverished guardsman and an heiress, and tells it in an amusing fashion.

"Feri von Noszty," Hussar officer, is suspended from his regiment because of debts, a fact called to the attention of the commander by the wealthy father of "Rosi Varga," who loves "Feri." "Feri's" father has had to sell his estate to a Hungarian-American, "Michael Toldy," and would like to see his son marry "Toldy's" daughter.

Discouraged, "Feri" decides to emigrate to South America, but in the meantime his father has managed to have him reinstated in the regiment. During maneuvers, the first order which "Feri" receives is to go to the Toldy residence and have his company take quarters there. Whereupon "Marie" and "Feri" are reunited.

The lack of English subtitles is a handicap to general patronage, but the musical and comedy elements, combined with the general polish of the production, should prove attractive to German audiences.

Previewed at the 86th Street Casino Theatre, in New York's predominantly German Yorkville section. The audience, almost completely German, laughed heartily at the comedy sequences, and in general showed complete satisfaction.—WALTER SELDEN.

The Rabbit Hunt

Kindness Pays Dividends

When the pursuer, a hunting dog, is rescued from a trap by the pursued, a hounded rabbit, that is news according to the latest Lantz Cartune preachment. When the rabbit is cornered by the hunstman and is in mortal danger of being turned into the morrow's dish of hassenpfeffer, the hound recalls the good deed done him by the bunny and pleads with his master to spare its life. The kiddies should derive a lot of fun from the cartoon business spread throughout the depiction of the hunt business as well as receive entertaining instruction on the theme that kindness pays. Running time, 7½ minutes.

Bird Dogs

(RKO)

Likable Sport Short

Not only in content and treatment should this subject interest legions of dog lovers, but it is so effectively photographed that it should please "art" audiences as well as the masses. Shown are various dog types—setters, spaniels, pointers—and their training in the art of assisting a hunter. They retrieve, they point, they compete with each other in tests of skill.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Super Athletes

(Paramount)

Excellent Sport Short

As usual with the Grantland Rice Sportlight series, and with Ted Husing's aid, "super athletes" is a top-notcher. Depicted are the differences in track practices of fifty years ago, and today; shown are the records of today, and why they are so superior. Members of the University of Southern California track team demonstrate the track events. Running time, ten minutes.

Jaipur

Good

The subject is up to standard in the FitzPatrick travel series, which means that without being sensational, it details well the life and buildings of Jaipur. Shown are the wide streets, rose pink buildings, high and low caste inhabitants, animals and birds, merchants and beggars.—Running time, eight minutes.

How To Watch Football

(MGM)

Benchley Item

Bob Benchley plays a dual role. First we find him comfortably listening to the start of a radio broadcast of a football game, then we see him, with his girl friend, arriving at the game. Good old Benchley runs into difficulty right at the start. After finding his seats, accomplished with a deal of trouble, Bob's interest becomes divided between the game and warding off a drunk. Then the girl friend begins to pester him with questions, the fans in front of him insist on standing, the enthusiastic chap on his left uses him for a punching bag, and to complete a pleasurable afternoon at a football game, it starts to rain.—Running time, 9 minutes.

Housewife Herman

Good Color Cartoon

Herman tells his wife her job at home is easy. She hands him the apron and leaves for her office. The house is pretty messy when the missus returns. Herman is a pig, his three children are three little pigs—and Herman speaks with a German accent. The combination is pleasingly humorous.—Running time, six and one-half minutes.

Grid Rules

(MGM)

Sport Subject

A Pete Smith Specialty, this delves into football's past to record the gradual development of the game and point out the reasons for present day gridiron rules. Semi-comical, the subject opens with a fooball crowd booing a referee as he paces off a penalty. It flashes back to the days when players wore metal elbow and knee guards, used the "flying wedge," the days before the series of four downs when one team kept the ball for almost an entire game, and other earlier cases of arrested development. Direction was by Edward Cahn and production by Jack Chertok.—Running time, 9 minutes.

Men In Fright

(MGM)

Good "Our Gang"

Alfalfa, Spanky and gang visit Darla at a hospital, bringing goodies. Darla can't eat; the Gang rejoice at the prospect of eating the frankfurters, ice cream and candy. Before they do, Alfalfa is nearly the victim of a tonsillectomy, doctors thinking him a patient. The boys start eating. The windup shows Darla walking out of the hospital, well again; the kids staying to be treated for stomach aches. The subject is up to the Our Gang standard, and should please the adults more than others in the series.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Dalecarlia, The Heart of Sweden

(Sanders Films)

Travelogue

The customs of the Swedes in Dalecarlia, practically unchanged for generations, are depicted in this travelogue. They are shown as an extremely industrious people, contentedly spending laborious hours at their weaving, spinning, grindstone making without recourse to modern machinery. Running time, 10 minutes.

Think It Over

(MGM)

Telling Crime Sermon

The particular brand of villainy investigated in this "Crime Does Not Pay" lesson concerns the inflammatory business of the professional arsonist who works on the discouraged small merchant to convert him to believe that it is better to have smoke get in your eyes than tears over bankruptcy. The trick of the trade is to let everything go up in smoke except the fire insurance policy. The case history of a gang of firebugs is studied in a carefully prepared and meaty script.—Running time, 20 minutes.

Isle of Pleasure

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Excellent

This is an excellently photographed travelogue of Cuba, done in sepia. Most of the reel is devoted to depicting the vantage points of the beautiful city of Havana, Morro Castle, native fiestas, the sugar cane fields and a visit to the tobacco fields. The narration is by Lowell Thomas. Running time, 11 minutes.

Going Places, No. 54

(Universal)

Down in the Deep South

The camera trek for this latest excursion with the Going Places itinerary is a dip down to the land of song and cotton, the soft and sentimental South. Besides the glorious architectural sites there are glimpses of modern Southern belles dressing up as their grandmothers, a cotton plantation and darkies singing and dancing the time away.—Running time, 9½ minutes.

The Sailor Mouse

A Mousey Morality

Illustrating the "bromide" that there is no place like home, this cartoon lecture from the Walter Lantz pen platform should amuse and impress gatherings of various ages with its philosophic and cartoon message. The adventuresome mousey character runs away from his comfortable homestead to venture forth on a maritime career. To win his spurs he is given the herculean task of snatching a slice of cheese from the captain's table. How he sees his duty and does it, and thus precipitates what looks like a mutiny, should afford fast, furious and funny entertainment.—Running time, seven minutes.

THE FOLKS ARE BACK!

The greatest enjoyment you can have in a motion picture theatre is a visit with the happy Hardy Family. To share their joys and heartaches, to howl with Mickey, to sigh with Sister's youthful romances, to open your heart to the Judge and his kinfolk – these have brought the Hardys close to all Americans. It is a pleasure to announce that their new picture is more delightful than those which have gone before – a merry, hilarious, thrill-filled entertainment.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Big Budget Films

Big budget pictures are featured in new production which started during the Armistice Day holiday week. Of the 12 films started six come within that classification.

The United Artists group started two to which more than the usual amount of money was allotted. Hal Roach launched "It's Spring Again" in which Oliver Hardy and Harry Langdon will be starred, with Billie Burke, Alice Brady, June Lang, Jean Parker, James Ellison, Stepin Fetchit and Mattie McDaniel in support. Preliminary location work completed, the Walter Wanger troupe working in "Stage Coach" returned to the studio. A John Ford production, the picture will feature John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Andy Devine, John Carradine, George Bancroft, Donald Meek and Berton Churchill.

Republic Starts Three

Republic started three productions. Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, Lulu Belle and Scotty (featured in the National Barn Dance radio broadcast), will be seen in another of the Roy Rogers western series. The leading players in "Kentucky Sweepstakes" are Ralph Byrd, George Hayes and Marion Stephens. The cast for "Newsboys' Home" lists Jackie Cooper, the Little Tough Guys, Edmund Lowe, Wendy Barrie, James McCollian, Edward Norris and Harry Beresford.

Two pictures began at Warners. Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Fay Bainter, Ian Hunter, Genevieve Tobin, Roland Young and May Robson will be seen in "Yes, My Darling Daughter." With the company on location, work began on "Dodge City." Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Ann Sheridan, Henry O'Neill, Frank McHugh and Guinn Williams will be the principal players.

Series Picture

"Dangerous Cargo," a series film, was started at 20th Century-Fox. It will present Preston Foster, Lynn Bari, Wally Vernon, Henry Wilcoxon and Joan Woodbury.

With Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche in the leads, Paramount put "Midnight" before the cameras. Francis Lederer, Mary Astor, John and Elaine Barrymore and Hedda Hopper are included in the support.

At MGM work was started on "Skids." Featured players are Dennis O'Keefe, Cecilia Parker, Harry Carey, Nat Pendleton, Charley Grapewin, Truman Bradley and Alan Curtis.

After a postponement, RKO-Radio started "Arizona Legion." George O'Brien will be starred with Lorraine Johnson, Ed Warren, Ed LeSaint, Harry Cording, Monty Montague and Rudy Sooters Ranchmen.

"Son of Frankenstein" went into work at Universal with Basil Rathbone, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Lionel Atwill and Josephine Hutchinson listed as the principals.

Eight studios each contributed one picture respectively to the list of eight completed productions. Monogram finished "I Am a Criminal," in which John Carroll and Mary Kornman will be featured.

"Red River Ranger," a number in the "Three Mesquiteers" series, was finished at Republic. Principal players are John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune, Lorna Gray, Polly Moran, Perry Irvins, Burr Caruth and Stanley Blystone.

TAKES TO ESPERANTO IN "IDIOT'S DELIGHT"

Double talk that confuses has occasionally been used in picture dialogue. Charlie Chaplin had a whole world curious to find out what language he was using when he sang in "Modern Times". All but a few were surprised to learn that his words were meaningless gibberish.

Now MGM is aware that a strange language must be used in some sequences in "Idiot's Delight". It will befuddle all but a few. Fearful of laying the picture open to possible political censorship if the specified Italian was used, producer Hunt Stromberg and director Clarence Brown have decided upon using Esperanto. So far as known, this is the first time that the invented language has been heard on the screen. The president of the Esperanto League of America is acting as technical advisor.

For United Artists distribution, Edward Small Productions finished "The Duke of West Point." The large cast will feature Louis Hayward, Joan Fontaine, Tom Brown, Richard Carlson, Alan Curtis, Jonathan Hale, Gaylord Pendleton, Donald Barry. William Bakewell, Nick Lukats and James Flavin.

The Dario production, "Radio Troubadour," which Paramount will release, was finished. Done in Spanish language, it will present Tito Guizar, Robina Duarte, Tana, Paul Ellis, Carlos Villarias, Martin Garralaga, Barry Norton and the Mexican Trio.

Columbia finished "There's That Woman Again," a sequel to "There's Always a Woman." Melvin Douglas and Virginia Bruce will be featured with Margaret Lindsay, Marc Lawrence, Lucille Lund, Tom Dugan, Paul Harvey and Donald Barry.

"Katherine the Last" (tentative title) was finished at MGM. Franciska Gaal, Franchot Tone, Reginald Gardiner and Alexander D'Arcy are featured.

"Three Musketeers" was completed at 20th Century-Fox. It is a Ritz Brothers comedy satire in which Don Ameche, Gloria Stuart, Binnie Barnes, Amanda Duff, Joseph Schildkraut, John Carradine, John King and Lionel Atwill will also be seen.

Warner Bros. finished "The Adventures of Jane Arden," a series picture. Rosella Towne, William Gargan, Dennie Moore, James Stephenson, Peggy Shannon, Marie Wrixon and Edgar Edwards head the cast.

Adventure Film

Having borrowed Spencer Tracy from MGM for the role of Henry M. Stanley in "Stanley and Livingstone," Darryl F. Zanuck has practically completed all arrangements for the next big Twentieth Century-Fox action adventure production which, it is anticipated, will carry on the traditions of "Lloyds of London," "In Old Chicago" and "Suez."

As "Stanley," Tracy will reenact the heroic exploits of the New York newspaper reporter who ventured into darkest Africa in 1871 in search of the missing explorer, Dr. David Livingstone. The trek was one of the greatest journalistic feats of all time.

Mr. Zanuck first started research on the production about two years ago. A year ago last summer a film expedition headed by Mrs. Martin Johnson went into Africa to follow the trail of Stanley. On that trip, director Otto Brower organized a safari of 300 men and shot 90,000 feet of film.

Ninth Anniversary

San Diego's Fox Theatre celebrated its ninth anniversary last week coincidental with the world premiere of "Submarine Patrol," personal appearances of four Hollywood players, and the second highest opening records of the house. Making personal appearances at Manager Jerry Gallagher's Fox West Coast house were Marjorie Weaver, Arleen Whelan, Richard Greene and Slim Summerville.

With several newspapermen and members of Harry Brand's 20th Century-Fox publicity department, the players journeyed to the Navy town in a brave effort to beat the opening day gross record established at the theatre by "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Oddly, all the players were suffering from colds or injuries incurred before starting the trip. Summerville had to be taken from the Methodist Hospital in Los Angeles to the train. Miss Weaver had a severe cold. So did Miss Whelan. Greene had his thumb bandaged—a shotgun trigger had mashed the end of it.

Summerville returned early the next morning to the hospital.

"You know," he told everyone, "the only reason that I was allowed to come down here was that my doctor is also Harry Brand's."

News Notes

MGM has chosen "I Take This Woman" as the new title for "A New York Cinderella." Frank Borzage has succeeded Josef von Sternberg as director.

Preparations for "Captain Midnight," Hal Roach's first big melodramatic production, have reached the final date. Naming Norman McLeod as director, producer Milton Bren has set the middle of December as the starting date.

Eugene Zukor has been appointed an associate producer in the Harold Hurley unit at Paramount. His first assignment will be "Federal Offense," based on a J. Edgar Hoover story in which Lloyd Nolan, Ellen Drew and Robert Preston will be featured.

William LeBaron, managing director of production at Paramount, has concluded negotiations with Charles R. Rogers to return to the lot to handle the making of "The Star Maker," a story based on the life of Gus Edwards. Bing Crosby will be starred.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

A Christmas Carol

Fantasy

"A Christmas Carol," Charles Dickens classic, is one of the most beloved stories of all literary history. Carrying a message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," it is indelibly associated with the Yuletide. As a book, it continues a best seller. As a play, it has been presented countless times in theatres, schools and churches, for generations.

As everyone knows, "A Christmas Carol" is the story of miserly Scrooge, who, following the visits of the Ghosts of the Past, Present and Future, is regenerated to spread kindness and good cheer among those he had most abused.

London of 80 years ago is the locale and time. As everything will be in keeping with the time, place and spirit, authentic old English Christmas carols will be sung and Christmas celebrations staged as incidents accentuating the plot. Many unusual photographic effects will add to the effectiveness of the scenes, with the ghosts and spirits as well as the living characters being shown in the night's darkness looking out of it to visions of the light of a new day.

Lionel Barrymore originally was scheduled to play the part of "Scrooge," as he has played it over nationwide radio broadcasts for several years, but because of his poor health, the noted British actor, Reginald Owen, was assigned to the role. The part of "Tiny Tim" will be played by Terry Kilburn, discovered in "Lord Jeff." Kathleen and Gene Lockhart will be the "Crachits." English actor Leo G. Carroll will be seen in the role of Marley's ghost and Lynne Carver will be the sweetheart of "Scrooge's" nephew. Other castings are Ronald Sinclair, June Lockhart, Ann Rutherford, Lionel Braham, D'Arcy Corrigan and Yorke Sherwood.

As the script follows Dickens' book to the letter, the picture is being directed by Edwin L. Martin, maker of "Everybody Sing," "Listen, Darling" and "Hold That Kiss."

Release date: December 23, 1938, on several hundred spot bookings.

The Last Warning

(Universal)

Crime Club Story

"The Last Warning" will be the fifth feature in Universal's Crime Club Series. The story is based on a novel by Jonathan Latimer. It may be recalled that Latimer's books were the bases of the first two numbers in the series, "The Westland Case" and "The Lady in the Morgue." The screen play is credited to Edmund L. Hartman, long experienced in the preparation of melodramatic screen material through such screen stories as "Law of the Underworld," "Hideaway," "Behind the Headlines" and "Wanted, Jane Turner." With production by Irving Starr, who instituted the Crime Club series, direction was assigned to Al Rogell, whose most recent work has been for Columbia on "City Streets," "The Lone Wolf Returns" and "Murder in Greenwich Village."

In the present episode "Bill Crane," cleverest hawkshaw in the detecting trade, and his erratic assistant, "Doc Williams," are tossed into the most menacing mystery of their careers. Things, of course, become complicated, but as resort is made to the standard crime solving tactics, the hero finally wins.

Preston Foster, who played the lead role in "The Westland Case" and "Lady in the Morgue," is again the resourceful sleuth. For the third time, Frank Jenks, recently in "Strange Faces" and "The Storm," will be his partner. The principal girl is Frances Robinson, who was in "Mississippi," the serial "Red Barry" and "His Exciting Night." The supporting contingent includes Raymond Parker, graduate of the New York stage, previously in "His Exciting Night" and "Swing That Cheer;" Joyce Compton, presently in "Spring Madness;" Kay Linaker; E. E. Clive, a fixture in Paramount's "Bulldog Drummond series, Albert Dekker and Robert Page.

Release date: December 9, 1938.

Federal Man Hunt

(Republic)

Melodrama

The meaning read into the title should clue the type of story and entertainment of "Federal Man Hunt." To be purely an action adventure attraction, in which the elements of danger and suspense will be stressed, the picture will detail the experiences of a federal officer, a girl who unwittingly has been made a part of a bandit gang, and a band of desperadoes as the latter, commandeering a wildcat bus, make a bid for escape in a transcontinental trip.

Robert Livington, lately in the "Three Mesquiteer" series, will play the role of the officer and June Travis is the girl in the cast. The outlaw chieftains are Charles Halton and John Gallaudet. Ben Welden, Horace MacMahon, Sybil Harris, Jerry Tucker, Matt McHugh and Frank Conklin will be seen in important supporting roles.

While no writing credits have as yet been made, the picture is being directed by Nick Grinde, who made "Down in Arkansas" and "Exiled from Shanghai" for Republic and who during his several years with Warner Brothers handled such pictures as "White Bondage," "Fugitive in the Sky," "Public Enemy's Wife" and "Jailbreak."

Release date to be determined.

Little Tenderfoot

(Monogram)

Action Adventure

The picture will tell the "bad-man-turned-good-man" story in a different way. The bad man roves his domain, but he is a sort of "Robin Hood." Through an error another corpse is identified as his. Thereupon, under the spur of love for a five-year-old tot, the erstwhile road agent reforms. He's elected mayor, but when he remembers his past he is loath to make any romantic alliances. Comes the attempted exposure, but the bad man has been such a good mayor, such a good friend to all the townsfolk and particularly the comely widow and daughter, that the sheriff officially pronounces the onetime terror of the plains legally dead.

An Edward Finney production, "Little Tenderfoot" will see Tex Ritter carrying on again, singing, fighting, riding. Two promising new personalities will make their debuts. The role of the heroine has been assigned to Jinx Falkenberg, one of the most photographed models in the world, whose picture has often been seen on the covers of Saturday Evening Post. Her daughter will be five-year-old Mary Ruth, acclaimed by the producer as one of the greatest finds since Shirley Temple and admittedly a genius of the piano.

The supporting cast will be made up of a troop of wellknown western players, with Tom London, Frank LaRue, Charles King, Bob Terry, Horace Murphy, Snub Pollard, Dave O'Brien and Dorothy Fay in the more important support parts.

Ritter will have three or four songs to sing in the picture, which is being directed by Al Herman, who has handled most of the Ritter features.

Release date: November 23, 1938.

Red River Range

(Republic)

Action Adventure

This production is a number in the "Three Mesquiteers" series. The trio John Wayne, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune will be featured, as they have been in the last several features in the series. While Polly Moran, partner of the late Marie Dressler in a number of comedies, is an important cast addition, most of the supporting players either have appeared in previous "Mesquiteer" pictures or have had parts in outdoor action films. Players prominent in the story are Lorna Gray, who shares the romance with Wayne, Kirby Grant, Sammy McKim, William Royle, Perry Irvins, Stanley Blystone, Lenore Bushman, Burr Caruth, Roger Williams, Earl Askam and Olin Francis.

A William Berke production, "Red River Range" was adapted from an original story by Luci Ward, for which Stanley Roberts, Betty Burbridge and Luci Ward did the screen play. The picture is being directed by George Sherman, who has made several "Mesquiteer" productions.

In the theme, as an undercover officer's identity has become known to cattle rustlers, he takes Wayne's place as one of the trio. Wayne, in the meantime, bent on affecting a rustler roundup, poses as an escaped convict and a tenderfoot with criminal instincts. Becoming a part of the outlaw band and believed to be just that by the persons, particularly the girl, whom he is trying to protect, he sets the stage for the fighting, riding, shooting climax in which the brains behind the outlaws is exposed and his minions captured.

Release date (tentative), December 5, 1938.

California Cavalcade

(Columbia-Darmour)

Historical Romance

As no outstanding screen names are included in the cast, the matter of bringing the film to public attention requires that more than usual attention be concentrated on story merit and quality of production detail.

In story character the piece is a historical romance. The major locale is Southern California and the time just after the territory had been ceded to the United States by Mexico. The usual melodramatic circumstances prevail. A government-franchised company is robbing the inhabitants, especially the old Spanish landowners, by imposing confiscatory taxes. The ringleaders also indulge themselves in outright banditry. An army detachment is ordered to investigate. The captain, incognito, proceeds to gather evidence. Soon he is caught between two fires. The girl, whom he loves and whose father he is trying to help, believes that he is in league with the carpetbaggers. These, in turn, discovering his actual identity, realize that if he succeeds in his mission their doom is sealed. That brings about the customary exciting and heroic developments.

A Larry Darmour production, "California Cavalcade" is being directed by Joseph Levering, who gained experience in handling outdoor action material in "Phantom Gold," "Pioneer Trail," "Stage Coach Days" and "Rolling Caravans," all Darmour-Columbia productions.

While several of the players have a measure of screen reputation, none is outstanding. The film will present Bill Elliott as the hero and Luana Alcaniz as the heroine. Supporting players included are Charles Whittaker, Charles King, Hal Taliaferro, Bud Osborne, Carlos Villarias, Octavio Giraud, Joe de la Cruz, Ed Cassidy, Edward Cecil, Elmer Dweey, Jack Walters, Al Gergurson and Frank Ellis.

Release date: To be determined.

Katherine the Last

(MGM)

Comedy Romance

The present title is only tentative.. One that will remove any tinges of historical significance and be more appropriate to the romantic theme will be selected.

Thematically the story has a Continental savor. The locale is Switzerland, with such backgrounds as the natural outdoors, an opera house, country fair and exclusive cafe will reflect. The story has a Cinderella twist. Following a flirtation, a young man about town falls in love with a wealthy girl. This association drives her father frantic. The youth is forbidden to see the girl. To be near her, he poses as a chauffeur and strikes up friendship with a scullery maid. While the man continues his deception the slavey falls in love with him. Circumstances never permit him to reveal to her his own identity and position of wealth. Thus, when he loses his job, she sacrifices her life savings to buy him a taxicab. This gesture causes him to transfer his affections from the lady to the maid.

The picture will star, as the maid, Franciska Gaal, who has been seen in "Buccaneer" and "Paris Honeymoon;" Franchot Tone as the man about town, and Rita Johnson. Four noted screen comedians, Walter Connolly, last in "Too Hot to Handle," Reginald Gardiner, Barnett Parker and Franklin Pangborn, will aid in the romantic mixup. Charles Judels and Priscilla Lawson are the other featured members of the cast.

The picture is based on a story by Alex Hunyadi, one of Europe's outstanding creators of the special Continental brand of farce comedy. The director, Norman Taurog, maker of the current successes "Boys Town" and "Man about Music," also has handled such adult productions as "College Rhythm" and "Reunion." The song number which will give the story a light operetta tinge was composed by Bob Wright and Chet Forrest, authors of "Donkey Serenade" in "The "Firefly."

Harry Rapf, who produced "Bad Man of Brimstone," "Everybody Sing" and "Stablemates," is producing.

Release date: Recember 16, 1938.

Pacific Liner

(RKO-Radio)

Melodrama

All the action of "Pacific Liner" will take place aboard a ship during a trans-Pacific voyage. Three themes are being blended into the story. One concerns the hectic romance between the ship's doctor and its nurse. The second picture the tyrannic power exerted by a two-fisted engineer over his stokehold crew. These two divergent themes are woven into a third, which, in detailing the horror of the sudden outbreak of a deadly epidemic in the fire and engine rooms of the liner, brings the doctor and engineer into professional and romantic conflict.

The production is based on a story by Anthony Coldeway and Henry Symonds. Coldeway's screen credits include the as yet unreleased "Devil's Island" and "Torchy Blane in Panama." John Twist, who prepared the screen play, has done such melodramatic yarns as "Flight from Glory" and "Sea Devils."

Victor McLaglen is the engineer, and he, Chester Morris and Wendy Barrie are the principals. To be starred in the forthcoming "Gunga Din," McLaglen also has been seen in RKO-Radio's "The Informer," "Lost Patrol" and "Sea Devils." "Sky Giant" and "Flight from Glory" are among Morris' pictures for the company. Last in "Love on a Bet" for radio. Miss Barrie has been seen in "Dead End" and "I Am the Law." The supporting cast will feature Barry Fitzgerald, former Abbey Theatre player, Alan Hale, lately in "Valley of the Giants," "Algiers" and "Robin Hood;" Allan Lane, Paul Guilfoyle, John Wray, Walter Miller, Douglas Walton, Arthur Loft and Halliwell Hobbes.

Direction was assigned to Lew Landers, maker of "Annabel Takes a Tour," "Sky Giant," "Condemned Women," "Flight from Glory" and "Without Orders."

Release date (tentative): December 15, 1938.

Kentucky

(20th Century-Fox)

Romance

"Kentucky" will be the first Twentieth Century-Fox production in color. Before the present corporate set up was effected, the former Fox Films had used color as a special treatment for a sequence or two in a few pictures.

In every day parlance Kentucky is associated with beautiful women, race horses and feuding. The story which the film "Kentucky" will relate will have something to do with all three.

The picture will feature Loretta Young, who, in addition to her prestige and popularity in picture appearances has, in the eyes of the publicity department, usurped the distinction of a one-time screen idol and never has "looked more breathtakingly beautiful before." The man in her mind is Richard Greene, who, following his debut in "Four Men and a Prayer," has been a featured performer in "My Lucky Star" and "Submarine Patrol."

Walter Brennan, currently in "The Cowboy and the Lady," will have an important role, as will such figures as Karen Morley, Russell Hicks, Douglas Dumbrille, Charles Waldron and Moroni Olsen.

David Butler, a horse owning racing man himself, who just a while ago turned out the silks and boots "Straight, Place and Show," is directing. Mr. Butler also directed some of the best Shirley Temple and Will Rogers pictures, and to a great extent he, personally, was responsible for the entertainment and production values which led to the commercial success of such pictures as "Pigskin Parade" and "You've a Sweetheart."

Release date: December 30, 1938.

Stand Up and Fight

(MGM)

Action Adventure

This outdoor action picture, the substantiating story of which is melodramatic and romantic, will feature Robert Taylor, fresh from his success in "The Crowd Roars," Wallace Beery, in "Stablemates," and Florence Rice, who was in "Fast Company" and prior to the release of "Stand Up and Fight," will have been seen in "Sweetheart." The principal supporting players are Helen Broderick, currently in "The Road to Reno" and "The Rage of Paris;" Charley Grapewin, Charles Bickford and Barton MacLane, who are now in "The Storm;" Robert Gleckeer and Jonathan Hale. Important minor roles have been assigned to Minor Watson, Claudia Morgan, John Qualen, Clinton Rosemond, the Negro butler in "The Toy Wife;" Cy Kendall, Paul Everton and Selmer Jackson, now in "Gangster's Boy."

The time of the story, which was adapted from Forbes Parkhill's novel of the same title, is about 1850 and the major locale that of the Maryland country served by the old B. & O. railroad. It deals with the romantic and melodramatic experiences of a young Southerner who was shanghaied into working for a freight-wagon and stage coach line, owned by Miss Rice but managed by Beery. Learning that the line's wagons are being used, without the owners' knowledge, by a slave-runner to transport kidnaped Negroes, the hero becomes an investigator for the railroad.

The picture is being directed by W. S. Van Dyke, whose latest credits are "Marie Antoinette" and "Sweethearts." It is one of Mervyn LeRoy's three initial productions for MGM, the others being "Dramatic School" and "The Wizard of Oz."

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

FEWEST BROADWAY PLAYS IN 18 YEARS

FALLING below even the low mark of 1936-'37, when only 125 plays were produced, the 1937-'38 season of the legitimate theatre on Broadway saw but 110 plays produced in 45 theatres. The number of theatres used was only one less than last season, but far removed from the high number of 80 in 1925-'26 and 1927-'28.

The figures are from The Billboard's annual theatrical index, which covers a period of 18 years. In the first year of the survey, 1920-'21, there were 242 productions.

The number of hits was the same as the previous season, 24, and differed only in that there were 19 dramatic hits in 1937-'38 as compared to 18 in the season before, while there were six musical hits in 1936-'37 compared to five for last year. In 1925-'26 the total number of hits reached 74 and declined steadily through the years, with the exception of the 1935-'36 season, when an upturn was noted.

Total seating capacity of the 45 theatres was 44,242. Of the 110 plays, 98 were dramatic productions and 12 were musical comedies.

Other statistics gathered by The Billboard for the 1937-'38 season were: Percentage of failures (all productions), 74 per cent.; percentage of failures (dramatic), 77 per cent.; percentage of failure (musical), 50 per cent.; average length of runs (all), 84 days; average length of runs (dramatic), 79 days; average length of runs (musical), 125 days, and number of productions that closed within five weeks, 52.

HOLLYWOOD AGAIN MAY BACK STAGE; BROADWAY SETS UP ACTORS' GROUP

Contract for Hollywood Support, Reported Ready for Submission Next Month, Calls for Sliding Scale for Purchases

That there may be an end to the "war" which has existed for several years between Hollywood film and Broadway stage interests is now seen as a definite possibility, with a new contract for Hollywood backing of stage plays said to be ready for submission to both parties by the middle of December. For a few years there has been no backing of stage production by the major motion picture interests, because the film companies felt the terms asked for motion picture rights were exorbitant when the play had been backed originally by film money.

A plan to end the dispute, submitted by John Wharton, theatrical attorney, has been under consideration for the past year by Jake Wilk, Warner Brothers' story editor; Luise Sillcox, secretary of the Dramatists Guild, and Sidney Fleisher, Guild attorney.

The general basis of the Wharton plan is the establishment of a sliding scale for film purchases of legitimate plays, with a minimum fee, plus extra money according to the length of the run, with rights to the play sold before production when film companies provide the financial backing.

At the last week's meeting of the Dramatists Guild, Robert Sherwood, president of the Guild, pointed out that the new plan, as finally modified, could be put into effect by the addition of a clause supplementary to the present minimum basic agreement. Contrary to expectations, there were no film representatives at the Guild meeting.

Several Guild members have pointed out that sales of stage plays to Hollywood have declined sharply since the film interests have withdrawn from backing Broadway productions, with sales now limited in most cases to outstanding successes, as against the former situation where many plays which were not greatly successful, but which may well have possessed film possibilities, were purchased. It has been pointed out by Herbert Bayard Swope, former editor of the New York World and friend of both West Coast and Broadway interests, that the two should and could work together for the mutual benefit of both.

The final plan, when submitted, would be subject to a vote of all stage managers, and to 30 days' notice to the membership of the Dramatists Guild.

EQUITY NOW WANTS PICTURE HOUSES

Actors Equity Association on Tuesday extended its plan for gaining tangible support from the motion picture business to alleviate conditions in the legitimate field on the grounds that any improvements in the stage will benefit Hollywood by opening wider the source of acting, producing and writing talent, and play material, for screen use.

Campaigning for two years in the direction of Hollywood, Equity now proposes that the American Theatre Council, formed last year to "revitalize" the stage, obtain dark movie houses and reopen them with stage road shows, to provide a new training ground for talent.

New Type Portable Victor Projector

Marked by positive regulation of the amount of film fed to the intermittent film moving member, the new 16 mm. Victor Portable Continuous Projector has been placed on the market. The new "advance feed" principle, it is claimed, insures against film destruction by binding of the film in the magazine.

Also asserted by the makers as favorable features of the mechanism are a reduction in "surface rub" or friction between layers of film; an automatic film trip which stops projection and film movement in case film loops are lost through defective splicing, incorrect threading, or damaged perforations; "spira-draft" ventilation, which "increases lamp life."

The Victor company also has announced price reductions in its silent projectors, the Model Two Master Projector, and the Model 22; and two new models of the Sound-on-Film Animatophone, the models 31 and 36.

Reisman Sees Gains In Foreign Sales

Phil Reisman, general manager of RKO Radio's foreign department, returning from a stay of several months in Europe, said Monday that the company's business abroad shows an increase over last year of 40 per cent, the gain having been made despite chaotic conditions in several countries. Mr. Reisman said that negotiations are now being carried on for the possible exhibition of Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" in Russia, where, to date, only a few American made features have been distributed under the present regime.

The quality of English films in general has been on the rise, according to Mr. Reisman, who considers Herbert Wilcox's "Sixty Glorious Years," which RKO will distribute, the best film ever made in that country. Reisman believes it will gross a million and a half dollars in England alone.

In the RKO foreign sales drive, Switzerland is leading, followed by Peru, France, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, United Kingdom and Poland in top places. "Our relations in film distribution with Latin-American countries are now on a more cordial base than ever before," said Mr. Reisman, "and the current season for RKO Radio there also is the best we have ever had."

Theatre Arts Center Taking Shape with First Meeting of Board of Governors and Membership Drive Begun

Thirty-five actors of Broadway have set out to aid and protect the position of the playing principals of the stage, both professionally and from the social service standpoint.

With the first meeting of the board of governors held last Sunday, and a membership drive actively started, a projected Theatre Arts Center is now taking shape.

The project, latest offshoot of the Theatre Arts Committee formed to revitalize the stage, aims to provide a place for actors and other stage and eastern screen professionals to meet.

The basic idea of the project, under consideration since last summer, is to take young professionals out of the Broadway drugstores and restaurants where they now are forced to meet, by providing them with a central clubroom and restaurant. The Center also would act as a clearing house for casting and other production information, and would provide lectures, play readings, rehearsal rooms, and recreational facilities as well as scripts to study and to work on.

Option Taken on Building

An option on a building on 41st Street has been taken, and there is every likelihood that difinite action will be taken soon, as the response indicates an active interest, according to the Theatre Arts Committee, headquarters of the membership drive.

The money for the undertaking would come from the members, who are to be charged $10 a year, payable quarterly. The drive is being conducted on both an individual basis and among the members of the casts of various productions, with 13 members of the "Our Town" company the first to join.

The management of the Center will be in the hands of a governing board, which consists of Ruth Adelman, head of the organizational committee; Walter Greaza, Blanche Yurka, Philip Loeb, Laura Elliot, Lloyd Gough, Edward Hale, Katherine Warren, Hiram Sherman, Katherine Locke, Sylvia Field, Benno Schneider, Frank Wilson, Joseph Losey, Mary Tarcai, and David Dorman. Also being approached for membership on the governing board are Jane Cowl and Daniel Frohman.

Effect on Equity To Be Seen

The idea in effect would go even further than the old time Broadway theatre organizations, most of which prohibited membership, including the now defunct Friars Club, the old Lambs, the Green Room Club, and others. What possible relationship to or effect it will have on the activities of Actors Equity Association remains to be seen.

There will also be an advisory board, members of which will be submitted questionnaires for their suggestions and criticisms. Those who already have accepted places include Selena Royle, Sylvia Sidney, James Reilly, Elia Kazan, Sidney Kingsley, Margaret Webster, Will Geer, Hanya Holm, Harold Clurman, Martha Graham, Lee Strasberg, Carly Wharton, Hallie Flanagan, head of the WPA Theatre, Jean Muir, Lehman Engel, Hanns Eisler, Francis Faragoh, Anna Sokolow and Nat Karson.

UNIVERSAL LABORATORY PROCEDURE IS SOUGHT

Academy Research Council Launches Survey to Improve Release Prints Made Overseas

A survey of laboratories throughout the world in an effort to establish a universal system of laboratory procedure in making release prints of American "dupe" negatives is being undertaken by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

This week questionnaires were being sent to the 273 laboratories in 39 foreign countries as the first step in obtaining information of a general nature in order to establish a system of uniform technical data to be given by American companies with the lavenders to facilitate bettering of foreign release print quality.

The work, one of the most far reaching of the Research Council's projects, is being done under the direction of Gerald Best, chairman of the foreign release print committee, and Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of the Research Council.

Foreign Prints Called Faulty

Release prints, made in foreign countries, of American-made pictures have suffered in many instances from lack of quality, principally because of the lack of instructions accompanying the lavenders as well as the unfamiliarity of some foreign laboratories with American methods necessary to get the most out of the technical processes, according to Mr. Mitchell.

The committee feels that bettering of foreign release prints will materially aid world grosses on American pictures.

Acceptances of membership on the committee have been received from Randal Terraneau, director of the George Humphries and Company laboratory in London, and C. Parfrey, technical director of Associated British Picture Corporation Elstree Laboratories, in letters to Major Nathan Levinson, vice-chairman of the Council.

Mr. Terraneau, lauding the project, said: "I have for some time felt that such an investigation would be highly beneficial. It has, however, presented many difficulties in the past due to the many different opinions regarding lavender prints, etc., but in view of the new mediums now available it can but be of the greatest benefit to the whole industry, and particularly so to those situated in the foreign fields, such as ourselves."

Others on Committee

Others on the committee are L. A. Aicholtz, Fred Albin, Philip E. Brigandi, Claude C. Carter, L. E. Clark, Alan Freedman, Franklin LaGrande, Michael Leshing, Charles Levin, A. W. Miller, J. M. Nickolaus, Gerald Rackett, George Seid, Sidney Solow, Joseph Spray, John Swain and Ray Wilkinson.

The questions asked were:

For which American companies do you make prints?

What types of negatives and/or master prints are furnished to you by these companies?

Do these negatives and/or master prints come to you direct from the United States or from some other country?

About how many prints do you make for the average release on an American production?

Are these prints for use exclusively in your country, or are some sent to another country? If so, where?

Does technical information accompany the negative or master prints to assist you in obtaining the best prints therefrom?

If so, what information is sent?

What type of technical information would be of the greatest value in helping you to obtain the best quality sound and picture?

A list of the number of foreign laboratories follows:

Argentina	18	Holland	23
Austria	4	Hungary	4
Australia	3	India	18
Belgium	6	Italy	4
Brazil	15	Japan	18
Brit. E. Africa	1	Malaya	1

Recommend "Angels" for Single Bill

Warner Brothers is recommending that theatres book their picture "Angels with Dirty Faces," with James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, the "Dead End" kids and Humphrey Bogart, as a single feature. Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, predicted a substantial majority of 500 houses which will open the picture on Thanksgiving Day will drop dual programs that week.

The Harry David Circuit of Salt Lake City has contracted with Altec Service Corporation for sound service.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Jo Hubbard Chamberlain went to Hollywood for Nation's Business to find out the "real inside" in picture making, from the standpoint of budgets, expenditures and other economics of the job. He concluded that manufacturing automobiles or widgets isn't so bad after all, that "making pictures is one of the toughest, roughest, most bitterly competitive occupations."

He found that emergencies in production were always popping up, citing Columbia's "You Can't Take It With You" set, where one scene called for a flock of moths to be released when Lionel Barrymore fished an old silk hat out of a trunk, and no one in Hollywood had any stock moths on hand. That night, all of the company went home, turned on their porch lights, and collected all the moths they could catch in mason jars, boxes and milk bottles. Everyone was pleased at Columbia, for, they got their moths and they didn't cost a penny. But after the scene was over, the moths kept flying in front of the cameras and they had to pay an exterminator to drive them out.

In future, any dialing-in on our radio will not be pointed toward those "quiz" programs, after listening to the babbling and gabbling of a typical program the other night. Typical questions:

"If 'This and That' plus one-half of 'This and That' equals 11, how much is 'This and That?'"

"Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffett. . . . What is a tuffett?"

"If a chicken has a gizzard what has an Izzard?"

A choice "Movie's Greatest Year" cartoon is "Lichty's" in the San Francisco Chronicle, showing two bedraggled, dyed-in-the-wool hoboes turning disgustedly away from "Life in a Harem" in a penny crank-handle peep-show, after one of them cracks: "We're wasting our time, Gus—that ain't one of them Quiz movies."

William Alvin Steffes, "Fighting Al" of the Northwest, apparently is a better exhibitor than farmer, for from Aitken, Minnesota, comes word that Al planted four bushels of potatoes and his crop yielded only four bushels; he raised 60 turkeys for next week's Thanksgiving table, but they all got blackhead and died; next he bought four guinea hens expecting great increase, but nothing happened because he was informed that all the "hens" are males. Maybe it would be better not to mention that Mr. Steffes also raised 19 pigs, sold 15 of them for $96, and then paid $150 for feed to keep the remaining pigs over the winter.

Radio laugh of the week comes from Jack Banner, on MOTION PICTURE DAILY, who reports that somebody forgot to tighten the screw-knob on the rod that holds the microphone in place in the New York broadcasting studio used by Lyn Murray and his four singers, and after the program started, the "mike" started to slide slowly downward. Murray and his quartet were unable to grasp the sliding rod because they had scripts and songsheets in their hands, and by the time the song was ended the chorus and Murray, following the "mike" downward, were singing on their knees.

PAT CASEY HAS A BIG ELEPHANT

Pat Casey, the producers' soft-spoken labor relations counsel, is seeing elephants. He does not know what to take for it.

The elephant at the moment is somewhere in the sticks, eating his head off, as they say, due to unemployment. Ten thousand pounds of he elephant is a lot of bull, even in the eyes of Mr. Casey.

The elephant just goes to show what your best friend may do to you. Originally, or recently, the elephant was the property of Tom Gorman, of the Peoria Gormans, showman of stage, tent and screen, one time Broadway diplomat of the Joseph P. Kennedy entourage. Mr. Gorman and Mr. Casey went into some financial relations, being pals, and when the WPA circus, to which the elephant had been leased, folded its tent the subsequent liquidation process left the animal to Mr. Casey.

He will entertain offers. His address is 1600 Broadway, New York.

ON LONDON'S FILM ROW Londoner Aubrey Flanagan heard the story about Chamberlain's "visit" to Munich, where he asked Hitler whether Czechoslovakia was the last of his demands.

"No," thundered der Fuehrer. "My smoked German hams from Westphalia are deteriorating. I MUST HAVE IRELAND AND ITS HAMS OR IT IS WAR!"

That, Chamberlain explained, was a grave matter. "But, exorbitant as it is—in the interests of peace—you shall have Ireland. And I hope that is your final demand."

"Nein," stormed Storm Trooper Number One. "I am concerned for my health in this strong mountain air. I must spend my summers in London. I MUST HAVE BUCKINGHAM PALACE OR IT IS WAR!"

"Fuehrer," protested Chamberlain, "this is terrible. But, though it is a sacrifice, in the interests of peace, you shall have Buckingham Palace. And I hope, Sir, that is all."

"NO," thundered the Nazi thunderbolt. "It is NOT. I am concerned about the German film business. We have no markets. We have no stars. I MUST HAVE GRACIE FIELDS, OR IT IS WAR."

"THAT," replied Chamberlain. "THAT, MEANS WAR!"

> "Norman Bel Geddes, stage designer and producer, whose record includes 'The Miracle,' the 'Eternal Road' and 'Lysistrata,' has applied for and obtained a U. S. patent on a beer-bottle rack."

The motion picture's "peace talks" between "majors" and "minors," pointing toward self-regulation for distributors and exhibitors have made splendid progress, but they could take some such action as Grover Whalen's dedication of the Court of Peace at New York's World's Fair, where he assembled 12,000 persons, all bent on "a better World of Tomorrow," and over their bared heads released 500 doves of peace and shot off 62 aerial bombs containing the flags of 62 countries taking part in the Fair.

For this "World of Peace" dedication, by the way, Mr. Whalen also drew up on the sidelines 2,500 soldiers, sailors and "Fighting Dog" marines and the 62nd Coast Artillery.

Republic Signs With Sam Smith; Grainger Tours

Sam W. Smith, managing director of British Lion Film Comporation, before sailing Saturday on the Normandie for England, announced that he had signed a new five-year franchise agreement for the distribution of Republic product throughout the United Kingdom.

Mr. Smith, who had been in New York for three weeks, conferring with Herbert J. Yates and Morris Goodman, vice-president of Republic, also said that British Lion planned to produce from eight to 10 pictures in England suitable for distribution in the United States through Republic.

James R. Grainger, president of Republic now on a trip to the company's southern offices, said in New York before leaving that the company has closed a contract for its 1938-'39 program with Fox West Coast Theatres, covering Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Denver, Salt Lake City, St. Louis and Milwaukee territories.

G. C. Parsons, Pacific Coast district manager; Max Roth, midwest district manager; R. F. Withers, Kansas City franchise holder, and Nat Steinberg, St. Louis franchise holder, assisted Mr. Grainger in closing the deal.

Estimates for this year's gross business are said to be far in advance of last year's gross of $4,000,000. It is estimated that the company will do around $2,000,000 in the United Kingdom alone for the year.

New German Color Film Reported from Berlin

The German News Agency reports from Berlin that keen interest has been aroused in the German film industry by a three-color film process, developed in the laboratories of the I. G. Farbenindustrie (German Dye Trust), and to be called the Agfa Pantachrome process.

The agency reports that copies made by it are immediately ready for display in theatres on standard projectors, without any increase of illumination or additional apparatus.

Orlob Plans Two More

Harold Orlob, producer of "One Third of a Nation," now being completed at Eastern Service Studios, Astoria, L. I., plans two more features to be produced at Eastern Service. One will be a film version of his musical comedy, "Trial Honeymoon," to be made in color.

Zeltner Opens Coast Office

Irwin Zeltner, who resigned as press representative for the Loew circuit, has opened an office in Hollywood to handle personal appearances of film, stage and radio stars. He will also handle general publicity and exploitation.

Wilcox Deal Closed

Record Pictures has closed with Syndicate Film Exchange for Herbert Wilcox's musical comedy, "The Gang," for the New York territory.

Warners Again Name Drive for Sears; Call Studio, Field Reports Encouraging

GRADWELL L. SEARS

Third annual 'Sears' Drive," named for the Warner sales manager, Gradwell L. Sears, will be launched this year by Warner Brothers, starting Christmas Day, and continuing till April 16, 1939. Last year's "Sears' Drive" has been called "the most successful 16-week period in the company's history."

Prizes will total $25,000. Each district manager will act as captain of his territory. Prizes will go to winning districts, and winning branches. Carl Leserman will act as co-ordinator.

More than 75 per cent of its scheduled 1938-39 product will be completed by January 1, Warner studios claim. This includes: "Always Leave Them Laughing," "Dodge City," "Oklahoma Kid," "Yes, My Darling Daughter," "Dark Victory." Those to begin production soon are "Broadway Cavalier," "Brother Orchid," "We Are Not Alone," "Beethoven," "Each Dawn I Die," "Dust Be My Destiny," "Memphis Belle," "$1,000 Window," "The Sea Hawk," "The Miracle."

Company's "new policy of national advertising, unique in that the exhibitor bears no expense," will be illustrated by the campaign put on for "Angels With Dirty Faces" for Thanksgiving release, which will rival in scope that used for "Four Daughters." A four column, 1,000-line ad on "Angels..." will be taken in 33 key cities, coincidental with picture's release. The ad will present credits, billings, and drawings of the stars, Cagney and O'Brien. There will be sparse, but inspirational, copy.

An advertising budget of $250,000 has been appropriated by Warners for "The Dawn Patrol," which is the company's first release in its national sales drive.

Home office sales department reports that "Brother Rat" is topping the records established by "Robin Hood." Sixty-five per cent of the bookings have been holdovers, and in 19 out of 30 key cities, "Brother Rat" has outgrossed the other picture.

Among the holdovers were Strand, New York; Fox, Philadelphia; Victory, Dayton; Strand to Ritz, Albany; Paramount and Fenway, Boston; Warner, Memphis; Stanley, Baltimore; Orpheum to Blue Mouse, Seattle; Mary Anderson, Louisville; Branford, Newark; Stanley, Jersey City; Roger Sherman, New Haven; Warner, Bridgeport; Strand, Hartford; Warner, Worcester; Capitol, Springfield; Earle to Metropolitan, Washington; Hippodrome to Allen, Cleveland.

Rugge Heads Union

John H. Rugge, president, William Vermont, secretary-treasurer, and Murray Stern, recording secretary, were reelected at the annual elections of Local 702, New York, Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians' Union, held last week. Lloyd Frank was elected first vice-president and Mort Bloom, second vice-president.

Musicians To Hold Jamboree

The Hollywood Chapter of American Federation of Musicians will stage a musical jamboree and dance Monday at the Palomar there. The jamboree, first of an annual series, will be featured by a "Miss Motion Pictures" beauty and talent contest. Paramount will provide the first winner with a contract.

MGM Dance Finals

Finals of the MGM "Great Waltz Competition" will be held December 12 at the Waldorf-Astoria with 24 zone finalists competing, about 3,500 attending, and the proceeds going to the Red Cross. The contest is sponsored by the company and local newspapers.

Hutchinson Returning in December

Walter J. Hutchinson, Twentieth Century-Fox's director of foreign distribution, who has been in South Africa investigating distribution facilities, will leave Durban by plane on December 1st, arriving in Marseilles on the 4th. After conferring with Ben Miggins, the company's European manager, he will go to England for conferences with Frances Harley, managing director of the United Kingdom, and sail from Southampton on December 17th, arriving in New York the 22nd.

Smith Named ERPI Coast Manager

Clifford W. Smith, former general foreign manager of Electrical Research Products, Inc., has been appointed general manager on the west coast, a new post which will give him jurisdiction over all ERPI Hollywood acitvities. E. S. Gregg, comptroller, replaces Mr. Smith as general foreign manager, and F. B. Foster, Jr., succeeds Mr. Gregg as comptroller.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 134

Conducted by

F. H. RICHARDSON

Question No. 134 was: (A) What specific inspection should the projectionist give carbons when they are received? (B) Name the important points concerning carbon cores. (C) Are small cracks running circumferentially harmful? How about those running lengthwise? (D) Does an attempt to utilize carbon stubs represent true economy?

The following made acceptable answers: S. Evans and C. Rau; J. R. Prater; G. E. Doe; H. Edwards; W. E. Limmroth; P. and L. Felt; M. B. Stout; M. and J. Devoy; Z. A. Zachritz; W. Schoeneman; L. H. Kelley; G. H. Payne; P. E. Shell; T. W. Redhouse; L. Johnson; E. Lomax; R. W. Groton; H. I. Pendlebury; D. and W. Porter; F. H., S. and P. Dalbey; W. B. Hunter; G. Thompson; F. A. Ludney; S. True; L. E. Dodson and H. H. Todd; C. H. Lowrie; L. A. Beachwood and M. F. Robinson; P. Slobodny; E. and F. Wentworth; S. M. Tomberg; T. Lavenburg; T. S. Taylor, R. Smith and B. L. Oden; E. J. Brandell; W. Winkler and R. R. Robbins; H. T. Steel; M. B. Dillon; E. Exline; J. R. Davidson and W. R. Matthews; M. and B. Walker; G. L. Goss; F. W. Brandenburg; J. K. Robinson and R. E. Bullard; H. T. Mandrake; L. F. and G. Brown; A. and B. Richardson; D. R. Spencer; L. D. Tomlinson; C. Hawkins; M. Mitchel; K. Irwin; M. F. Brown and R. Davis; T. and W. Turk; O. Ordel and L. B. Daniels; B. B. Kent; S. M. Stillman; P. Somers; K. Irwin; W. B. Hennessy; T. L. Ward and W. Jones; N. S. Ried and T. Watkins; L. Day and W. S. Daniels; J. C. Lathrope; P. L. Goldstein and M. Samuels; D. N. Logman; G. L. Baxter; T. D. Brady and C. L. Williams; M. D. McGuire; L. M. Richardson; N. F. Sheldon; G. N. Cohen; K. L. Brant; H. M. Jackson and B. L. Morris; M. Samuels and W. R. Allen; D. A. Shea and H. T. Plum; S. Robbins; S. L. Maxwell; S. T. Adams; H. J. Benjamin; A. W. Baxter; J. Walsh, D. Powers and H. N. Owens.

(A) J. R. Prater says, "The projectionist should inspect newly received carbons for any obvious faults or damage, giving especial attention to the cores at each end. The core material should fill the opening completely, although a small amount missing at the very surface need cause no alarm, nor should it cause rejection. Such a slight fault may have been due to handling or unduly rough treatment in shipping."

W. E. Limmroth says, "New shipments of carbons should be carefully inspected immediately upon receipt. A few minor faults that seem unlikely to materially affect operation may be tolerated, but if major defects are discovered, that bundle of carbons should be rejected. All core ends should be examined to make sure the cores are perfect, at their ends at least."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 140

(A) Is sound a physical quantity? Just what condition does it represent?

(B) How can sound be recorded? Can it be made to perform actual work? If so, describe the work.

(C) What is recording and reproduction?

(D) What is the function of theatre sound equipment?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answer to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

H. Edwards says, "The carbon is the base or seat of illumination of an electric arc. It therefore is evident that imperfect carbons will cause the production of imperfect light, and since variations in light density forms the motion picture, imperfections in light will produce an imperfect picture. It then is the obvious duty of projectionists to inspect new lots of carbon carefully and to reject any lot that shows serious imperfections. However, about all that can be detected by visual inspection is core ends and cracks. Core ends must be perfect, save for possibly slight surface defects caused by rough handling in shipment, broken carbons, which occur but seldom, and possible cracks, which latter will be dealt with in Section C."

(B) L. H. Kelley answers, "For best results it is absolutely essential that carbon cores be completely continuous; also that they adhere to the shell walls sufficiently to prevent any possibility of short sections falling out as the carbon burns away. Unless this condition obtain, the light will be unsteady and of varying tone and quality as bits of the core fall away."

C. Hawkins says, "Well, Dad, that is a pretty broad question. It is highly important that the core be continuous and that it have sufficient adherence to the carbon shell that bits will not fall away as the carbon is consumed. It is important that certain types of carbon be chemicalized in exactly the proper manner. It is important that the dope with which the core is mixed be thoroughly well transformed into carbon by proper baking. However, since the projectionist can have no possible control over such things and cannot detect them by inspection, I think they probably are not expected to be included in our answers."

(C) G. E. Doe says, "Any crack running circumferentially except such as are very thin and very shallow, should cause one to reject a carbon. They denote an oversight on the part of the manufacturer's inspector. Such cracks (other than very shallow, thin ones) may cause the carbon to break entirely, thus wholly stopping projection or, more commonly, if in the positive, may cause the rim of the crater to fall off, thus injuring screen illumination, perhaps quite seriously, until a new crater rim has been formed.

"Cracks running lengthwise may be disregarded, since it hardly is possible one wide and deep enough to affect results would escape even the most careless inspector. This holds good for all except high-intensity carbons, in which no cracks of any sort are permissible."

(D) J. R. Prater replies, "Any attempt to burn carbon stubs completely by joining them to another carbon or stub is very questionable economy. No method has yet been found which will join two carbons well enough to permit the arc to continue burning through the joint without causing serious and highly objectionable fluctuation in light before a firm new crater can be formed on the second carbon. However, throwing away stubs with more than a very few minutes of usable life is definitely poor economy. True, a seven or eight minute stub is not enough to run even a thousand-foot reel, but it really is a simple matter to avoid ending up with such odd lengths.

"First, measure accurately the amount of each carbon that is consumed in 10 minutes at the normal amperage used. Then, on a strip of metal, mark off a scale in five-minute divisions to cover an hour's burning time for each carbon. If positive and negative both burn at the same rate, the same scale will serve for both. Remove stubs from lamp when they still have half an hour or more of good burning time, and line them up in a metal tray or box until a dozen or so are on hand. Then whenever a stub is to be burned, estimate the running time of the next two or three reels coming up on that projector, and from the stock of stubs select a pair which are within a minute or two of the exact length required. At some appropriate time, almost any stub of half an hour or more in length can be burned to within a minute or two of its maximum safe life. This may sound like a lot of trouble, but really isn't, once the practice is established."

Laboratory Union Drive

A drive to organize laboratories in the East is being made by the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes, under the direction of Dick Walsh, vice-president. In addition to the contract recently signed with Du Art, Warners, De Luxe and Ace laboratories are working under union contracts.

IN COURTS

Smith-Rogers Firm Sued by Stockholder

Proceedings were instituted Monday in the New York Supreme Court by William Mayer, as a stockholder, to compel S. M. M. H. Corporation, C-Lens Corporation, and Studio C-Lens Corporation to turn over their books and records to him for inspection.

The petition also named as defendants Courtland Smith as president, and Saul Rogers, as secretary of the companies and stated that the purpose of the inspection was to determine why no dividends has been paid. According to the petition, S. S. M. H. Corporation is engaged in making non-intermittent cameras and projectors for motion pictures, and C-Lens Corporation is a holding company on patents covering film projector lenses. Studio C-Lens Corporation, which manufactures lenses, is alleged to have made contracts with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Pathe News and other companies.

Suit Against Pathe Ends

According to a stipulation filed last Thursday in New York Supreme Court, the suit of John F. O'Keefe against Pathe Film Corporation and Pathe Studios, Incorporated, was discontinued without cost. O'Keefe had brought suit as assignee of Zasu Pitts to recover on a judgment for $5,940, which she had brought against Pathe Studios in California. Pathe Film Corporation had been named defendant as the parent organization.

Libel Writ Won by U.A.

In London last Thursday Capt. Edmund MacMichael was enjoined from repeating alleged libels on Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., and United Artists, claimed to be contained in a pamphlet stating that the Performing and Captive Animals Defense League had denounced cruelty to animals in the film "Goldwyn Follies."

Condor Enters Denial

Condor Pictures, Inc., George Hirliman, president, and other officers and directors of the company filed their answer on Monday in the United States District Court to the $50,000 damage suit of 100 stockholders of Condor. The defendants denied the charge that they had filed an untrue financial statment with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and said that the suit was barred by the statute of limitations.

Fox Sued for $3,000,000

Suit for $3,000,000 damages has been filed in Chicago Federal Court against Twentieth Century-Fox, by Fred Walton, who alleges infringement of copyright. Walton claims that the film "Thin Ice" infringes on the idea of his play, "Weather Permitting." He is also seeking an injunction to restrain showing of the picture.

Writ Against Fox Denied

Application for a temporary injunction to restrain Twentieth Century-Fox from showing "The Battle of Broadway" has been denied by New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Hofstadter. The application was made in connection with a suit brought by Mary Orr upon grounds of plagiarism.

New Butterfield House

Michigan's Butterfield circuit last week opened the Four Star Theatre, Grand Rapids, a 900-seater in Swedish motif.

Amedee Van Beuren Producer, Dies

Amedee James Van Beuren, born James Vignot, retired motion picture producer and executive, died Friday at his home in Carmel, N. Y., from a heart ailment that started last July. He was 58 years old and New York born. Six months ago, Mr. Van Beuren retired from active participation in the motion picture business and others in which he had been interested. He had been chairman of the board of Condor Pictures and president and general manager of Van Beuren Corporation, besides holding the presidencies of Schuyler Securities Corporation, Ayee Bee Corporation, Kerneb Corporation, and Colorado Springs Theatre Corporation.

Mr. Van Beuren's father, Alfred Vignot, died when Mr. Van Beuren was a boy, and when his mother married again, he legally adopted the name of his stepfather. Educated at public and private schools and business college, Mr. Van Beuren had been an executive of Van Beuren Bill Posting Company, founded by his stepfather, before entering the film business about 20 years ago. The film corporation bearing his name produced such product as the "Aesop's Fables" series, animated cartoons and the Frank Buck features, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," "Wild Cargo" and "Fang and Claw." In recent years he had produced only short subjects, including "The Struggle to Live," "Rainbow Parade Color Cartoons," "Dumbbell Letters," "Sports with Bill Corum" and "Easy Aces." The company released through RKO.

Surviving Mr. Van Beuren are a brother, Henry V. Van Beuren of Norwalk, Connecticut, and two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Barrett and Mrs. Henry Lanthier, both of Flushing, Long Island. Mr. Van Beuren had made his homes at 444 West 56th Street, New York City, and Carmel, N. Y., and had been a member of the Elks and New York Athletic Clubs.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Church of the Holy Rosary, Yonkers, N. Y.

Newsreel as Trailer

Warner Brothers are servicing theatres with a newsreel as an additional trailer for "Brother Rat." The reel was shot at the premiere of the film at Lexington, Virginia, and shows the Virginia Military Institute students marching into the theatre and being greeted by Priscilla Lane.

Ennis Sells "Memory" Series

Bert Ennis has signed distribution contracts for his series, "The Memory Lingers On," with American Film, for New York; Monarch, for Pittsburgh and Detroit; Big Feature, for Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Memphis; Masterpiece, for Philadelphia; Trio, for Washington, and Wholesome Films, for Boston.

Pizor Home

Much improved, Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia exhibitor who was taken ill while attending the MPTOA convention in Oklahoma City, has returned to Philadelphia.

OBITUARIES

F. E. Spencer, Animator For Disney, Dies in Crash

F. E. Spencer, chief animator of Walt Disney's Donald Duck, died in a Los Angeles hospital last Saturday after an automobile accident which also injured Lou Ostrow, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production executive, and James Gaither, MGM sound technician. Mr. Spencer, 34, was described by the Disney studios as "top man" on the Donald Duck series. He is survived by his widow, Lee, whom he married about a year ago.

Mr. Ostrow, who has been in the film industry about 20 years, produces the "Judge Hardy" series, and his latest release is "Young Dr. Kildare."

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Columbia

CITY STREETS: Edith Fellows, Leo Carrillo—This is a tear jerker, and it is so crude, in its reaching for the emotions, it is so obvious of what is going to happen, and as for Leo Carrillo I'll say he did his best in a weak picture, but he also has my sympathy in being cast in it at all. Running time, 68 minutes.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

HIGHWAY PATROL: Robert Paige, Jacqueline Wells—Oldtime melodrama and not really a motorcycle police story as title suggests. While the hero is a patrolman, he is assigned to protection of a big oil concern engaged in a gas war. Good. Played November 1.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SOUTH OF ARIZONA: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—Passable western, that's all. Running time, 56 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, Ann Miller—Best picture we ever played at our house. Rather long, but not a dull moment. The tax collector scene was worth the price of admission. When Frank Capra makes a picture, it is a picture.—W. J. Haney, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind. General patronage.

First National

GARDEN OF THE MOON: Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay, Johnnie Davis—This is another swell musical with Pat O'Brien at his best. I sold the swing band and music in the picture. Business above average. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 25-26.—G. G. Waller, New Elroy Theatre, Elroy, Wis. Small town and rural patronage.

GIRLS ON PROBATION: Jane Bryan, Ronald Reagan, Sheila Bromley—A very good program picture that did a good midweek business and pleased everyone. Jane Bryan is well liked and gave a splendid performance, as did newcomer Sheila Bromley. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 26-27.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart, Philip Hurlic—Lately kid pictures have hit well for us, and this was no exception. The picture is no shakes for production, but it pleased and again the little colored boy stole the show. Very good on a double bill. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert, Minna Gombell—The answer to a showman's prayer. Excellent box office, and less slapstick than usual made this the best Laurel and Hardy we have played. Minna Gombell and Billy Gilbert were excellent in their parts. All in all just a good show. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BOYS' TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney—This picture doesn't need any build-up. Just let the customers know the playdates. In my opinion, this picture should rate the Academy Award, and that goes for Mickey Rooney, also. I screened it for the clergy and every one of them praised it to the sky in church the next morning. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 23-24.—G. G. Waller, New Elroy Theatre, Elroy, Wis. Small town and rural patronage.

BOYS' TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull—Ranks with the all-time great pictures I have ever seen, and that goes longer back than I like to think about. Every character superb. That goes for Tracy, Rooney, Hull and the boys that are in support. Some of these kids are great, in fact all of them. All credit for direction. Henry Hull as the merchant, who backs Tracy, is the finest drawn character in a long time. But in the role such as this and the one in "Captains Courageous," Tracy is all out by himself. Great always in a role of this type. Running time, 93 minutes.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

BOYS' TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull—What a picture. Given a story it would be impossible to improve upon, a cast of modern stars, with a sprinkling of oldtimers like King Babbot, George Cooper and others, fine photography, and exceptionally good recording and modulation. You can shove in all your chips on this one. The live exhibitor will don his working clothes, plaster the county with paper, and clean up. Played October 29-31.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—A good picture with plenty of excitement and comedy. Taylor fans liked him in this role. Morgan, as usual, was good. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 6-7.—Mrs. E. L. Derrick, Chadbourn Theatre, Chadbourn, N. C. General patronage.

DANCING LADY (reissue): Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Fred Astaire, May Robson, Robert Benchley, Ted Healy—Played this reissue on a double bill with "Rascals" to satisfactory business and feel satisfied that our customers got real value.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker—Pleased all, and when a picture does that you can figure it is tops in entertainment. Running time, 74 minutes. Played October 28-30.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoosa, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

LISTEN, DARLING: Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—Lacks a lot of being her best. If you like Freddie Bartholomew, maybe it will help. We don't. Very poor business after first night. Played October 25-27.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

LISTEN, DARLING: Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—Those who saw it said it was a cute little picture, but it failed to draw. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 2-3.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LIVE, LOVE AND LEARN: Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell—To "live," "love" and to "learn," our box office didn't give us film rental. It just can't be done and was hard to take.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LORD JEFF: Mickey Rooney, Freddie Bartholomew, Charles Coburn, Gale Sondergaard, Herbert Mundin—Swell is the best way to describe it. It has everything necessary to make a good picture with some extra. Rooney best draw on screen today as far as my customers are concerned. Played October 26-27.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

OF HUMAN HEARTS: Walter Huston, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi—They don't make 'em any better. Many fine comments from our patrons.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, John Beal—Very good, and with the national poster advertising Metro is doing for exhibitors, I have contracted again for 1939.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Lew Ayres, Ruth Hussey, Guy Kibbee—Regardless of several adverse reports we've read on this picture, we found it very good. The story was amusing and so well played by a competent cast that it can hardly fail to satisfy any audience. An excellent program picture. Played October 19.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacock, N. H. General patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind, Walter W. King—Laurel and Hardy are box office value and we regret to learn of their dissolving.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Robert Montgomery, Janet Gaynor, Franchot Tone—If the balance of MGM's new product is as good as this one, every exhibitor should praise Leo to the skies. The finest comedy, so far as audience reaction is concerned, that we have had in a long time. Montgomery and Tone were their usual excellent selves in this picture and Gaynor really did a job that surpassed anything she has done for us in the past. We truly call this a great picture. Running time, 69 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy—It has everything that the public evidently wants, good cast, some laughs, some action, a little romance and what more could you want, and it did business. And I have come to the opinion that most of the metropolitan movie critics are nuts. One, especially, that is followed a good deal in this town, out of Chicago, panned Hades out of this picture. She must have had a night out, or an attack of indigestion. I'll concede that it is not a "Test Pilot;" not many of them are, but at least it moves and don't go around in a circle, as so many of these lesser pictures that come in the programs each season.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

TREASURE ISLAND (reissue): Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper—Just as good for a return engagement as it was for the first showing. Played on Bargain Night to turn-away business. Played October 28.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, Irvin S. Cobb, Jean Parker, John Beal—Just a get-by B picture. Not a laugh or a cry in a carload. Mildly interesting, that's all. Running time, 83 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

BULLDOG DRUMMOND IN AFRICA: John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner—A fair programmer. Many walked out on it, nevertheless. There's not much interest locally in this series. No one ever asks for them. Played October 28-29.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MYSTERIOUS RIDER: Douglas Dumbrille, Russell Hayden, Weldon Heyburn, Charlotte Fields—Better than average western from Zane Grey. Good business. Running time, 72 minutes. Played November 4-5.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PRISON FARM: Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Ross, May Boley—A programmer, but a darned good one. My congratulations to Paramount on their program pictures this year. They'll make a mistake if they don't cast that old lady who played "Shifty" Sue in one of those famous Dressler roles. Running time, 68 minutes. Played November 1.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

PROFESSOR, BEWARE: Harold Lloyd—This picture was only fair, I should say. Harold Lloyd doesn't draw like he used to. There are so many good comedians that Lloyd is slow. Plot of picture good, and ended in a way that pleased all. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 3-4.—Mrs. E. L. Derrick, Chadbourn Theatre, Chadbourn, N. C. General patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett, May Robson, Walter Brennan, Robert Cummings—In every way this seems as well made as any in its class. Not the business getter that "Wells Fargo" was, but it really didn't have such an important story to screen. "Union Pacific" sounds better than either. Played October 22.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PICTURES for SMART BUYERS

TOUCHDOWN ARMY: John Howard, Mary Carlisle—As far as I am concerned, and that goes for the audience, too, they can quit making football pictures. There is so much false heroics all built about the hero that saves the game. Then the newsreels are full of it, and it is just a repetition of what they see for four solid weeks twice a week on the news, and a small town audience aren't very hot and bothered about football.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

TROPIC HOLIDAY: Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Bob Burns, Martha Raye—The worst picture we have ever played. Nothing worth sitting through. Dorothy Lamour was awful and Martha Raye was worse. If you have bought this, pay for it and run something else. We played it a month ago and the patrons still talk about it.—W. J. Haney, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind. General patronage.

Republic

OLD BARN DANCE, THE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Just finished playing Gene Autry in "The Old Barn Dance." It's a funny thing how some exhibitors still cling to the old custom of running these Autry pictures on Saturday just because they are westerns. All you exhibitors should take your hats off to Republic for giving us westerns like this one. Each Autry gets better and on this one we did the best business of any picture we ever played. Yes, gentlemen, it holds the all-time house record and that means just that, "Buccaneer" and all. Maybe the old argument of million dollar pictures is a good one, but I'll take the ones that gross the best and satisfy the customers.—Raymond Fontenot, Iowa Theatre, Iowa, La. General patronage.

PALS OF THE SADDLE: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Doreen McKay—We bought this series since Republic introduced them and now they for some reason are ruining them for us by placing John Wayne in the juvenile lead. He is not the type. Wayne is a good actor, but, Republic, you have a winning ball club in this series, but when you replaced Livingston with Wayne, my public just won't accept it. If you had used a younger and more active boy here, fine, but not Wayne. He and Ray Corrigan are too much alike and we want Tucson to stay in this series. Also Terhune, who adds much to their value. You have a lot of youngsters you won't have to pay as much as Wayne that you can use in his place. Give John Wayne a series of his own, but don't, please, give him the Mesquiteers. Keep it the same. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 29.—A. J. Simmons, Lamar's Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. General patronage.

PRAIRIE MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Shirley Deane—Another top gross Sunday-Monday by this pair, Gene and Smiley, and now it reminds me of, when a boy, my brothers read a pulp magazine which taught me to idolize a great character of the west, Buffalo Bill. He was first. Next the movies brought out a two-gun ruthless killer admired by all youngsters, Bill Hart. Next a showman dressed up in a pretty cowboy outfit and fought eight to 10 men and always won. There were lots of cowboys, but only one Tom Mix. The same for Buffalo Bill and Bill Hart. Now comes a fancy-pants, clean looking youngster with a guitar and singing his way into the public's heart all over the world and his name is Gene Autry. There will be many who will try to imitate him, but, Gene, you will stay on the top rung until the world develops another type to admire. It may come, but there are no clouds on the horizon at present. Gene, keep the old chin up and don't let any company on earth tell you they have one who equals your draw. Why do we know? Well, we play them all, and, by the way, keep this director, Ralph Staub. Remember his "Jimmy Fidler's Personality Parade." Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 9-10.—A. J. Simmons, Lamar's Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen, Charles Ruggles, Dolores Costello, Irene Dare—An agreeable production that remains perfectly at ease and never attempts to ruffle any feathers. It pleased generally and Irene Dare was appreciated. Played October 28-29.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—Another one in this cycle of screwball comedies. Fred is a psycho-analyst and Ginger is his subject. Some accepted it for what it was, and others wondered the why of it. Couple of good dance numbers helped it and I'll have to admit it needed it. Poor business, way below average. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—An in-between, not their best, but not bad, either. Last half picks up the dragginess of the earlier scenes. Dances are all good. Business poor. Played October 30-31.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Lucille Ball, Peggy Conklin, Richard (Red) Skelton—The kid who did the imitations opened and closed the show as far as anyone cared. Played October 30-31.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

MR DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner, June Travis—A good Joe Penner show. Where liked, goes good. Pleased all. Second half for big spots. Running time, 75 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart—A picture that everybody enjoyed. Did not hear a single person make an unpleasant comment on picture. In fact, all raved about it. The plot good, and acting perfect. Running time, 90 minutes. Played September 29-30.—Mrs. E. L. Derrick, Chadbourn Theatre, Chadbourn, N. C. General patronage.

Sack

GONE HARLEM: Negro Cast—Kindly print this criticism in an early issue. I am in business in a location where we have a 30 per cent colored population. These people are good patrons. They deserve their money's worth when they turn out for a specialty feature as well as any other feature. This feature is without doubt one of the worst of all the colored features I have seen. It is an imposition to offer it to any audience. It is an even greater imposition to offer it to an exhibitor. Those of you who cater to colored clientele keep faith with them by not showing this one.—Ed. Salzberg, Union Theatre, Anawalt, W. Va. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Jack Haley, Ethel Merman—Fine entertainment. Grosses hardly warranted rental costs, however. Played October 20-21.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Ian Hunter, Binnie Barnes—A good show that missed fire here as far as box office was concerned. Played October 23-24.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers, Robert Kellard, Jean Rogers—The poorest thing Fox has ever given Jane. Positively not a Withers story. Just a lot of blah-blah throughout. Jane can sing, dance and act, yet Fox gives her a 99% comedy role. The attempt at comedy in places is amateurish. Opened to good business which petered out rest of engagement. Played October 22-24.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver, Peter Lorre—We did a little better business for this feature than we expected as we did not think it was satisfactorily dated. Satisfied. Played October 29.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante, George Murphy, Edna Mae Oliver—I am sorry to report that Shirley has lost her pull here. She is just as adorable as ever and seems to be improving, but it seems that people have lost interest in her pictures. This was about the weakest picture she has made, but I doubt if a better one would do much business. Too bad, but it is true. Did not do more than average business. Running time, 71 minutes: Played October 27-29.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

LOVE ON A BUDGET: Jones Family, Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane, Alan Dinehart—We played this on a double bill with Buck Jones, and the Joneses did well by us. We think a lot of the Joneses here, so much so we had a Jones family who are real good customers as our guests.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—While this is an entertaining picture, it is far below the standard set by other Henie pictures. Sonja's skating is more remarkable than ever and the picture will please. Joan Davis and Buddy Ebsen make a good pair. Richard Greene's wooden performance didn't add anything. Better than average business. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 30-November 1.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

PASSPORT HUSBAND: Stuart Erwin, Pauline Moore, Joan Woodbury—Implausible story; didn't please; did nothing. Running time, 73 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

RASCALS: Jane Withers, Robert Wilcox, Robert Kent, Borrah Minevitch's Gang—Good old Jane, she helps dust off those front seats and helps one in life's darkest moments.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Lynn Bari, Michael Whalen. Played bargain night with no kicks. Played October 28.—Jimmie Denham. Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Lynn Bari, Michael Whalen—Didn't please. Was so amateurish it was painful. Running time, 65 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Bros., Ethel Merman—Worst business I have had in many a moon. The picture got a few laughs. To me, pretty bad. Ethel Merman did some good song numbers and Richard Arlen wasn't bad, but he is no draw. In my opinion, in order to do business with the Ritz Bros. you have to have a strong supporting cast and this one lacked that. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 30-31.—G. G. Walter, New Elroy Theatre, Elroy, Wis. Small town and rural patronage.

TRIP TO PARIS, A: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Russell Gleason—Another Jones Family production that gave genuine satisfaction. We had standing room only, because the Community Chest provided the children with tickets. Played October 31.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER: Tommy Kelly, May Robson—My advise is: If you haven't played this picture, by all means do so. The best grosser I had this year. Running time, 91 minutes. Played October 21-23.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

ALGIERS: Charles Boyer, Hedy Lamarr, Sigrid Gurie, Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart—An excellent picture, beautifully acted and produced. Will please those who appreciate something out of the ordinary. Most people don't. Was liked by those who saw it, but had no draw. Boyer was superb. We had no complaints about his being hard to understand because the picture was excellently recorded. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 23-25.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

BLOCKADE: Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda—This is the controversial picture that was supposed to reek Communism. I had it under contract, and booked it on our blind night. Naturally, I watched it closely, and for the life of me I can't see where the shots of Communism crept in. For one thing, it showed the people, who were starving, under the blockade, at the altar praying. Certainly that does not go with the common precept of Communism. The picture is good entertainment, but there are some harrowing shots of starvation that were not so pleasant, but today that is war.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

Universal

LAW OF TOMBSTONE: Buck Jones, Muriel Evans—Much has been said about Buck Jones slipping but he hasn't slipped anything like Boyer, Dietrich, Crawford, Garbo, Lombard and a few others. Did nice weekend business. Buck broke our house record to date a year ago.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charley McCarthy," Andrea Leeds, Adolphe Menjou—We played this a little late so our business was not large. However, we did very well under the circumstances and the show pleased heartily. Played November 2-3.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds, George Murphy—Business slightly exceeded our expectations on this. A very good story, most of us thought. A good blend of pathos and comedy. Don't take it for granted it's a comedy, however, for it really is definitely serious drama. Played October 23-24.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Andrea Leeds, Adolphe Menjou, Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," George Murphy—Excellent entertainment featuring Edgar Bergen and his right hand bower, "Charlie 'the Dapper' McCarthy," with Andrea Leeds, Adolphe "the natural" Menjou, George Murphy et al. doing their share to make this the fine production it is. The boys here were very much amused when Edgar introduced the handsome elocutionist "Mortimer" to "City Slicker" McCarthy. This was the first opportunity our audience had to see Edgar and "Charlie" in a full length feature (we had them in a short last year), and they certainly were pleased. Just couldn't seem to get enough of them. As for any person who might not care particularly for the talented Bergen—I wonder if that could be possible—they mustn't forget Menjou, and Andrea Leeds give us some very fine "heavy" acting. It's a swell show for any fan and that's just about as much as anybody can say. Running time, 100 minutes. Played November 5.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End Kids," Robert Wilcox, Helen Parrish—Help! Help! If something isn't done to stop this idea that the "Dead End Kids" are worthy of feature length pictures, what'll we do? This thing, "Little Tough Guy," is the poorest ever gotten ready for the screen and I warn you exhibs that are proud of your screen to be sure not to try to put this over at top money.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

PRISON BREAK: Barton MacLane, Glenda Farrell, Constance Moore, Robert Wilcox—Above average programmer and really not a prison picture as title implies, although it has a definite prison angle. It's rather a story of seafaring men. Played October 25.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—A very fine production, but some of our patrons failed to appear, as they thought they would find the star difficult to understand. They made a mistake. Played October 26-27.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

Warner Brothers

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN, THE: Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran—We were glad to see they didn't send us another hurricane along with our second booking of this, for it's a swell show and our patrons wouldn't have wanted to miss it for anything. The hurricane of September 21 was quite a show, but we prefer this laugh panic. Priscilla Lane is breeze enough for us. She's good. Played October 26-27.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

OVER THE WALL: Dick Foran, John Litel, June Travis, Dick Purcell—We have read several adverse articles on this picture, but am afraid that the exhibitors were looking at receipts rather than product. In our opinion this is an excellent drama well acted in an outstanding plot. The singing of Foran is always pleasing and his "Ave Maria" was excellent. Would say that this program picture could stand alone in most spots. Running time, 67 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

"ME AND MY GIRL"

Please take notice that PINEBROOK LIMITED of Pinewood Studios, Iver Heath, Bucks: England, is entitled to the sole and exclusive rights and license throughout the world to the motion picture rights, including lyrics and music, in the musical play, entitled "Me and My Girl."

EIGHT MORE SHOWMEN JOIN THE REPORTERS

Eight exhibitors, two from Canada, are the latest recruits to "What the Picture Did for Me", with reports on product they have played. Reporting for the first time are these:

ANN STONE, Star Theatre, Unity, Sask., Canada.

MRS. E. L. DERRICK, Chadbourn Theatre, Chadbourn, N. C.

RAYMOND FONTENOT, Iowa Theatre, Iowa, La.

W. J. HANEY, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind.

ED. SALZBERG, Union Theatre, Anawalt, W. Va.

Returning to the reportorial ranks after a year or more of absence are the following:

B. R. JOHNSON, Orpheum Theatre, Nipawin, Sask., Canada.

G. E. LANCASTER, Huntington Theatre, Huntington, Ind.

G. G. WALLER, New Elroy Theatre, Elroy, Wis.

Read the reports of these theatre operators in the columns of the department.

SISTERS, THE: Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Anita Louise—Swell picture if you can get them in to see it. Picture dates back to 1900 era. I exploited the old-fashioned dress and transportation, but that failed to click at the box-office. Guess I played it too hot. Running time, 100 minutes. Played October 18-19. G. G. Waller, New Elroy Theatre, Elroy, Wis. Small town and rural patronage.

SUBMARINE D-1: Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Wayne Morris—We salute Warner-First National for a very fine action picture which has plenty in the way of education, and the United States Navy for its cooperation in making it the grand picture it is. The general public should be grateful to any motion picture company which screens a story, with the cooperation of the U. S. Government, showing the wonderful work being done by Uncle Sam's "fighting units." Pictures of the "Submarine D-1" type help to build confidence in the people of this country regarding the protective agencies of these United States, so show it to your patrons and give them a real treat. It's a picture everyone should see, and the type that will be highly advertised by those who see it. Running time, 105 minutes. Played October 29. —J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville—No flies on this one. Not a Saturday picture, but did better than I expected. Bainter wonderful. Raines held his end up. Play it. Played October 29.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

CUCKKOORANCHO: Broadway Comedies—Moderately funny. Some okay dancing.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FISTIC FUN: Special Sport Thrills—Variety in "fisticuffs" is the theme of this short feature. Two youngsters earnestly trying to give each other a whipping evoke much laughter, while something new in the way of fighting is portrayed by the ladies of France. The short comes to an end by showing some real honest-to-goodness slugging by the Golden Glovers. Interesting because it's different. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

HEALTHY, WEALTHY AND DUMB: Three Stooges—The usual Three Stooge comedy prevails throughout this short feature. Went well here, bringing forth quite a few laughs. Will go over well as a program filler wherever the Stooges are liked.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

OLD RAID MULE: Andy Clyde—Andy Clyde and 3 Stooges never fail to please our audience.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

Educational

SILLY NIGHT: Jefferson Machamer—Quite good. The girls are lovely and talented.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TIME OUT: Two Reel Comedies—We traded one we thought was poor for this one. I can't see how the one originally booked could have been any worse. Disgusting. Not a smile in it.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

TRAILER PARADISE: Cabin Kids—Average for these kids.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CAPTAIN'S PUP: Captain and the Kids—Good short. Running time, 9 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

CITY OF LITTLE MEN, THE: MGM Miniature—A buildup for "Boys Town" that was truly absorbing. Excellent in all respects. Running time, 11 minutes. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

COUNTY HOSPITAL (reissue): Laurel and Hardy—Lots of laughs. Pleased very much. Running time, 19 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

DAY AT THE BEACH, A: Captain and the Kids—Very good; the best yet in this series.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

EVENING ALONE, AN: Robert Benchley—Very entertaining; above average for Benchley.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FISTICUFFS: Pete Smith Specialties—One of the best Pete Smith shorts we have run. If your audience cares for boxing, it will be a knockout. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

FISTICUFFS: Pete Smith Specialties—A very entertaining short subject for all groups and not, as one might suspect from the title, for the sport-loving group only. It has, in addition to some pointers on boxing by ex-champ Baer, swell comedy by a pretty little lady and another member of the "cauliflower department." Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

FISTICUFFS: Pete Smith Specialties—This interesting reel about boxing shows Max Baer and also has its comedy moments. Pleased all.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FOLLOW THE ARROW: Pete Smith Specialties—A very interesting reel showing the world's champion archer shooting an apple off a man's head a la Willam Tell. Also contains some good comedy. Pleased all.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FOLLOW THE ARROW: Pete Smith Specialties—Truly good entertainment. The William Tell gag keeps things lively.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GLIMPSES OF AUSTRIA: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Where everything in nature is so peaceful and beautiful, as recorded in this excellent travel talk, how can there be Hate and War?—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOLLYWOOD HANDICAP: MGM Miniatures—Entertaining musical reel.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LAND OF THE INCAS: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Fine and worth playing.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MUSICIAN'S DAUGHTER, THE: Frank Albertson, Eleanor Lynn—A good comedy with music.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

NEW AUDOSCOPIKS: Special—They are great. Wish Metro would make more than one a year.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

PARIS ON PARADE: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—More of the Paris Exposition shown than of Paris, but is good. Color fine.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THEY'RE ALWAYS CAUGHT: Crime Doesn't Pay

—This story of kid gangsters is one of the best of the "Crime Doesn't Pay" series, which are all plenty good.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

TRACKING THE SLEEPING DEATH: MGM Miniatures—Another excellent reel that holds you spellbound.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TRACKING SLEEPING DEATH: MGM Miniatures—Very good dramatic short.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WHAT A LION!: Captain and the Kids—Pretty good cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WHAT A LION!: Captain and the Kids—A good cartoon with the Captain and the Kids and done on brown sepia print. That makes a difference.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BIKE PARADE: Paragraphics—A dandy reel on bicycling that pleased.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theare, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

BIKE PARADE: Paragraphics—A very good filler. —C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

BULLDOZING THE BULL: Popeye The Sailor—Pretty good Popeye cartoon.—E M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BUZZY BOOP: Betty Boop Cartoons—Not so hot, this new character, but the kids liked it. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BUZZY BOOP AT THE CONCERT: Betty Boop Cartoons—Satisfactory Boop cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FOOTBALL TOUCHER-DOWNER, THE: Popeye the Sailor.—An excellent Popeye.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

HALL'S HOLIDAY: Headliners—Just a musical without any appeal plus a plump little singer who wasn't any too hot. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

HOUSE BUILDER-UPPER, THE: Popeye The Sailor—Another laugh-provoking short in which Popeye struts his stuff as a triple threat, being a "fireman," "house-builder" and "house-wrecker." Good enough for any movie fan. Running time, 7 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

LIGHTS! ACTION! LUCAS! Clyde Lucas and Orchestra—This is an average orchestra short with which to fill in your program.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LOST KITTEN, THE: Betty Boop Cartoons—Pretty good. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

LOST KITTEN: Betty Boop Cartoons—A fair cartoon.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

MOMENTS OF CHARM: Phil Spitalny and His All Girl Orchestra—Exceptional. Possesses class but does not exclude mass enjoyment. Done in color effectively.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SILVER MILLIONS: Paragraphics—Very interesting short on the salmon. Should be played ahead of "Spawn of the North." Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SILVER MILLIONS: Paragraphics—Good. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SWING, HUTTON, SWING: Headlined—Terrible, just a waste of film.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

RKO Radio

CARNIVAL SHOW: Nu-Atlas Productions—Do not muff this one as it is excellent in all respects. A diversified one-reel vaudeville that went over with a bang. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NO SALE: Nu-Atlas Productions—Excellent single reel with some good dancing and music. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

QUINTUPLAND: Special—Living in Ontario, I was proud to show this and would advise all those who are always writing about the fishing around our way to see this. We think Ontario is an ideal place to live in. Play it. It is a real treat.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

FASHION FORECASTS (Autumn Styles): Vyvyan Donner—A beautiful short. Even people who aren't particularly interested in a fashion show should enjoy this. It is well done in every way. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: Last week we had a news shot in China that I will never forget and have not seen in any other news. Orchids to Fox.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WOLF'S SIDE OF THE STORY: Terry-Toons—Just another cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

United Artists

MAGICIAN MICKEY: Mickey Mouse—Play it. Good to last.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WYNKEN, BLYNKEN AND NOD: Walt Disney Cartoon—Exceptional. No audience can fail to thoroughly enjoy this.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Vitaphone

BOLTED DOOR, THE: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Very good short. This series seems to please generally. Some are naturally more entertaining than others, but they are a welcome addition to any program. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

CINDERELLA MEETS FELLA: Looney Tunes—A very entertaining cartoon with Cinderella meeting "Prince Penner." The "Joe Penner" imitation was very well done, and when "Cindy" and "Princy" were strutting their stuff on the ballroom floor, etc., the boys nearly split their sides laughing. Running time, 7 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

CLYDE McCOY AND ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—A snappy orchestra reel with some "red hot" trumpet playing by this McCoy fellow. A good short in any spot. Received but one complaint from the boys here and that was, "It's a shame they make such swell shorts so short." Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

DEFYING DEATH: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Here's a real thrill reel. It ranks alongside "Playing with Danger." They won't sleep through this one. Fine stuff.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

DOCTOR CUPID: Ken Murray, Oswald—Very funny two-reeler.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HENRY KING AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—We use many of Henry King's Decca recordings and enjoy his bright style and orchestration. We were glad if this opportunity to see him on our screen. Folks liked it.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

JUGGLING FOOL, THE: Bobby May—Whoever named this short knew what they were doing. That boy May did just about everything except juggle a couple of pianos. He's about as clever a juggler as we have ever seen. The youngster who "went on truckin' down" made a very big hit. A swell short. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

LAD IN BAGDAD, A: Merrie Melodies—Not so hot, as the voice in the cartoon was a Joe Penner imitation and he is no dice with us. Just fair. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LITTLE ME: Wini Shaw—A pleasing short. Not the best we have run in this series but acceptable entertainment. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearl C. Wisch, Grand Theatre, Mohall, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

MURDER WITH RESERVATION: Broadway Brevities—Very good musical two-reeler.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

OUT WHERE THE STARS BEGIN: Broadway Brevities—Very good. One of the best musicals we have played for a long while. Running time, 19 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

PENGUIN PARADE: Merrie Melodies—Very good. All of Warners' Merrie Melodies are good. Don't pass these shorts up.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

RAINBOW'S END: Eddie Peabody—One of the best musicals Warners have ever given us, with the oldtime stars rising to new heights in their ability. Very good, bringing back fond memories of yesteryear. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RAINBOW'S END: Broadway Brevities—A dandy subject. The minstrel show idea seemed refreshingly different. It's been so long absent from things. Eddie Peabody fine.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SATURDAY NIGHT SWING CLUB: Melody Masters—A good enough Melody Master with the band and a good singer.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan. Small town patronage.

TRAPPED UNDERGROUND: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Excellent, as usual. This series has been outstanding with us. Running time, 11 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Three at Pinewood

Three productions are under way at Pinewood, two of them for release by Twentieth Century-Fox. The two are "So This Is London," the Robertson Hare, Alfred Drayton, Berton Churchill comedy, scenes of which recently have been shot in a replica of the gymnasium of the Queen Mary, and "Inspector Hornleigh," a screen adaptation of the radio series which Eugene Forde is directing. Gordon Harker, who has the title role, has created a new characterization and substituted for the somewhat dignified Inspector of the BBC a Cockney character with a combination of native shrewdness and a caustic turn of wit. Alistair Sim appears as his Scottish assistant, with Cockney support from Wally Patch.

Elsewhere production is in full swing under the Pinebrook banner of "The Lambeth Walk," in which Sally Gray, Seymour Hicks, Enid Stamp Taylor and Lupino Lane are being directed by Albert de Courville.

Snack-Bars

Scenes and settings of English low life have been re-enacted at Teddington as background for the new Warner-First National production, "They Drive by Night," in which Arthur Woods is directing actor-playwright Emlyn Williams. London snack-bars, a lorry driver's cafe halt on the Great North Road, Pentonville prison, lodging houses, public-houses and a London news-theatre are subjects which have been tackled by art directors Peter Proud and Michael Relph, and form some of the 54 sets which will be found in the story of England's night-driving transport men.

In among the properties used in the film are neon lights for the news-theatre frontage, coffee and tea boilers and saveloy-roasters for the cafe, and valuable Sêvres vases taken from Daly's theatre before it was demolished to make room for the Warner cinema in Leicester Square.

Vine Street Station

Vine Street police station, one of London's most noted police headquarters, has been recreated at Elstree for a scene in the Associated British picture "Murder in Soho," in which Jack LaRue and Sandra Storme are playing leading roles. Seeking realism, director Norman Lee has real detectives on the set during production and they certified John Meade's set as being correct in every detail.

Elsewhere at Elstree, production is now in full swing on "Black Eyes," which Herbert Brenon is directing with Otto Kruger in the role of the prosperous Russian headwaiter with an aristocratic past. The story is adapted from a French original.

Postponed

Immediate production of British National's "Daughter of India" has been postponed owing to the indisposition of the producer, John Corfield. It is hoped that the unit will leave for location work in the New Year.

BRONXVILLE THEATRE A COMMUNITY AFFAIR

Citizens of Bronxville, highly residential community in Westchester County, New York, through its Motion Picture Council, will have an active voice in the management of the community's only theatre, the 1,207-seat Bronxville, when plans now in work are completed.

The program of the council and concurred in by the manager, C. Dillon Krepps, calls for single Class A pictures exclusively, except on Monday nights, when subscription bills will bring foreign films to the theatre. On Saturday afternoons special programs for children will be a fixture, and there also will be a weekly course in film appreciation under the direction of faculty members of Sarah Lawrence College.

On the nights when foreign-made films are shown, local men and women prominent in professional and art circles will appear to interpret or highlight the films. Because there was doubt that these films would bring profitable business, the council underwrote them by arranging for season subscription sales for the series.

The appreciation course will make use of old films to point out the advances made by the industry. Girls from Sarah Lawrence will hold their class at the theatre on that afternoon, with patrons invited to attend.

The council is made up of representatives of the women's clubs, churches, American Legion and the Parent-Teacher organization.

Meanwhile production goes ahead at Walton-on-Thames on "Night Journey," which is being made for release by Butcher's Film Service. It was adapted from an original story by Maisie Sharman and Jim Phelan.

British National has signed David MacDonald to direct "Official Secrets," which takes the floor at Elstree on December 1st, for Associated British release.

Irving Asher Busy

No time has been lost at Denham by Irving Asher on his program of pictures for release in Britain by Columbia. Work has started on "Spy in Black," in which Valerie Hobson and Conrad Veidt are being directed by Michael Powell.

Additions to the cast include Mary Morris, dark eyed youngster who scored in "Prison without Bars," and June Duprez, 21-year-old actress, presently being groomed for stardom at Denham.

The story of "Spy in Black" is, as its title indicates, a war subject and opens in 1917, when the German High Command endeavored to starve Britain by a ruthless submarine blockade. It has a naval setting with many scenes around Scapa Flow, where director Michael Powell already has been on location with his unit. Bernard Browne has charge of the cameras.

Itemized

Another Queen Victoria has been added to Madame Tussaud's famous London Waxworks. The new model is, however, one of Miss Anna Neagle in the Coronation robes she wears in "Victoria the Great."

The latest film in the directorial hands of Carol Reed, creator of "Bank Holiday" and "Penny Paradise," is Gainsborough's "A Girl Must Live," at present being made at the Islington studios for release in Great Britain by Twentieth Century-Fox. Margaret Lockwood, Renee Houston and Lilli Palmer are joint stars. The cast also includes better known screen and stage names such as George Robey, Naunton Wayne, Moore Mariott, Muriel Aked, Mary Clare, Martita Hunt.

The story, adapted from Emery Bonnet's novel of the same name, is a comedy dealing with the adventures of three girls, two of whom pursue an Earl for his title and his money but ultimately achieve neither. Action centers mainly around a Bloomsbury boarding house of Victorian nature, a Swiss finishing school, a hotel cabaret and the English countryside.

Greer Garson has been signed by Ben Goetz to play the feminine lead in the new MGM British production "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips." She will play opposite Robert Donat in the role of the schoolmaster's wife in the screen adaptation of James Hilton's novel. Victor Saville is to produce, and Sam Wood has been appointed director.

Lower Admittance Age Limit, Montreal Is Advised

Lowering of present 16 year age limit for theatre attendance, to seven years, was suggested in a proposal submitted recently to the Catholic School Commission of Montreal, by Gerald Coughlin, K.C.

Concomitant with such a lowering of the age limit, would be establishment of an independent censor board, to review and grade films for school children, according to the proposal. Films would be marked suitable for children from seven to 12, and for those from 12 to 16.

A pedagogic committee of the commission is studying the proposal. Also under consideration by the commission has been superintendence of juvenile attendance at theatres.

Kniffen Leaves UA Post

Reville Kniffen, with United Artists as salesman in New Haven for more than four years, has resigned.

The Christmas Problem and What Showmen Do About It

Admitting that the gift shopping season and its distractions are ever invasive of the box office, many aggressive showmen are disposed to meet the competition of Santa Claus with various devices of presentation and exploitation.

The pages of this section, compiled by A-Mike Vogel with the collaboration of Round Table contributors, contain a compilation and summary of the expedients of exhibitors that have been found productive in holiday seasons.

Incidentally, funds now piled up and to be paid out for holiday spending, from Christmas clubs and savings funds, are much greater this year, reaching a national total of nearly $330,000,000. There is gold in the rivers of holiday traffic.

A plai
trade bogey

THIS IS THE TIME OF YEAR when a lot of normally hardworking, aggressive, live wire lads in this industry turn into sad-faced, dyspeptic, kill-joys. Instead of going out after business, as they do the rest of the year, they park on their office chairs and dolefully mourn the coming of what they call "The pre-Christmas slump in picture business."

According to their sad story, what money there is to be spent in the community during each December belongs to the department stores and the Christmas trade. Any efforts to get people into their theatres by handing them good entertainment, by giving them the lure of exciting exploitation and advertising, they know, are doomed to failure. There's nothing they can do about this sad state of affairs but take an occasional aspirin tablet. That's their undertaker's song. And, boy, do they sing it.

BUT ARE THESE THE REAL FACTS? Go into a department store during this Christmas season and talk with the lads who run it. Talk to any of your local tradesmen who are supposed to own the town's business this time of year. What will you find? You'll find that they are far from resting easy. Every day they pile advertising into the papers. Their shelves are stocked with Christmas merchandise. But are people rushing in to grab it? They are not. For the past few years it is an established fact, as any store comptroller's figures will show you, that the Christmas buying season grows steadily shorter. The idea that from Thanksgiving till Christmas Eve people have no interest in anything but Christmas shopping is no longer true. In fact, the old store theory that Christmas business would take up any slack in the year's grosses is the bunk and has been for a long time.

WHY DO STORES GO IN FOR SHOW BUSINESS? All the fancy stuff in the stores, the free entertainment, the exploitation stunts . . . are done simply because the merchants are trying to make their stores look as entertaining as the moving picture theatre. Why? Because they know the motion picture theatre, December just as much as any other month, can pack 'em in, Christmas shopping or no Christmas shopping.

tatement about that old the pre-Christmas slump!

HOW DO SMART OPERATORS MAKE DECEMBER PAY? Luckily for all of us, the kill-joys, the gloom-spouters, the do-nothings are only a small minority. Luckily for all of us, there are smart theatre exhibitors in every town who know the facts and act accordingly. They know that shrewd exploitation, good showmanship will fill their theatres in December . . . and they go to the company that has the sure-fire December pictures, book em, cash in on 'em, and chalk up a winning score on Christmas Eve.

Paramount's Pre-Christmas Business Builders!

"IF I WERE KING"	Ronald Colman, Hollywood's greatest romantic star, in Frank Lloyd's grandest screen romance, "If I Were King," with Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone.
"MEN WITH WINGS"	America's Cavalcade of Aviation is "Men With Wings," gloriously presented in Technicolor, with Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell. Produced and directed by William A. Wellman.
"THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER"	Bob Burns in "The Arkansas Traveler" is the kind of picture which can buck any competition, especially during this most sentimental time of the year.
"THANKS FOR THE MEMORY"	"Thanks for the Memory," comedy romance featuring Bob Hope and Shirley Ross and Charles Butterworth, yes, and featuring America's new number one song hit, "Two Sleepy People." There's a natural to get the whole family into the theatre.
"SAY IT IN FRENCH"	"Say It In French," with Olympe Bradna and Ray Milland is another equally fast-paced, sock entertainment.
"LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE"	And "Little Orphan Annie," starring Ann Gillis, guarantees you all the daily readers of America's most popular human interest comic strip.
"RIDE A CROOKED MILE"	For hard-hitting action, there's "Ride A Crooked Mile," with Akim Tamiroff giving another of his masterly performances, with Frances Farmer and Leif Erikson supplying the love interest.

THEATREMEN LIST IDEAS IN DECEMBER CAMPAIGNS

by A-MIKE VOGEL
Chairman, Managers' Round Table

ON these pages are set down the first reports from the field on what showmen in various parts of the nation have in mind to "beat December"—this year more forcefully than ever, judging from what already is in work and what is now in process of arrangement. Many of the old reliables of last and other years are being streamlined for current usage. In addition, as is to be expected, ideas newer to different situations are detailed. In all, the campaigns point in the direction of every available avenue of publicity, advertising and exploitation.

For the first time in Buffalo theatre history, for instance, there is to be a "Santa Claus Lane" in the form of extensive decoration of the main street taken over by leading merchants in cooperation with the Shea Theatres. The current "jitterbug" craze is utilized in a series of weekly contests between now and Christmas by the Warner Ohio managers to hold up grosses. Little is overlooked, as the following campaigns tell.

Williams Ties Movie Quiz To Playdates in December

Starting Monday night, November 28, and each Monday until Xmas, we plan a Pre-Xmas Movie Quiz Nite. Attempting to combine our giveaways with entertainment. Door prizes given away each night will be promoted from merchants. The entertainment angle will be taken care of by a combination of Movie Quiz (take-off from Philip Morris radio program "What's My Name"). Of course the quiz questions will be on popular stars of current attractions. In addition there will be a few minutes of Krazy Auction and amateurs. Experimented on high school football crowd at a special show after city championship game this week and this stunt went over big.

Definite plans are now under way for merchants to use theatre tickets as special inducements for early Xmas shopping starting December 3 with big parade and street program. Am not sure this will go over, however, we feel rather confident, as I was elected head of the local Merchants Association a few days ago. We are also planning an automobile giveaway for December 23. Merchants will give coupons with purchases throughout December, drawing on theatre stage. We will have our annual Kiddie Club Xmas party for the local youngsters, merchants furnishing gifts.

Goodwill and civic activities will include an Annual Toy mountain in theatre lobby. Patrons bring old or new toys to theatre for the needy kiddies' Christmas. Toys are distributed each year with baskets of food by a representative of city, Santa and the theatre manager. Annual free show for every youngster in town. Tickets distributed through schools. Employees donate their services, picture and shorts are free and the mayor usually gives the kiddies candies. It is necessary to run one theatre from early morning until evening to accommodate them all.

—Rex Williams, Manager,
Hoosier, Whiting, Ind.

Special Holiday Parking Stressed by Barcroft

During December we push our promotion with the city's largest indoor garage. Evening and holiday Palace patrons may enjoy a special parking rate of 10 cents by having their parking ticket stamped by the theatre cashier.

The Palace, Grand and Majestic theatres (all of RKO) will be beautifully decorated again this year at no cost. Leading department stores are tied up and by giving these stores a large toy display around a giant Christmas Tree in each house, the store agrees to decorate the entire house, including the front, marquee.

The Columbus Dispatch each year has an Old Toy Campaign. For weeks this newspaper gathers old toys which are repaired and brightened at all of the city's fire houses by the firemen. To add to this abundance of old toys, each year the RKO Palace holds an Old Toy Show. This is held on Saturday morning and the admission for each kiddie is an old toy. The Dispatch goes big in the way of publicity for this show and gives page one art breaks and stories on our current picture—as well as large ads on the picture.

A Christmas Classified Tieup is made each year with one of the papers. For two weeks or more the Christmas Shopping Guide Page carries a jingle. The last line is to be filled in . . . winners to receive theatre tickets as in regular classified tieups. The theatre ad is carried with the jingle.

—John J. Barcroft, Director of Publicity,
RKO Theatres, Columbus, Ohio.

December Quiz Pictures Publicized by Caldwell

To keep up our holiday grosses this year we have again tied up with the Toledo Blade to aid the Elks Club Poor Relief. This will be two and three column stories running for eight days, starting the first week in December rating us full picture credits plus art in main news section. Last year we garnered 107 inches in eight days.

We will heavily publicize the final December Quiz Pictures, drawing attention to the fact that no one can afford to miss one of them. Special December Hits trailer will be shown to our Thanksgiving week crowds.

Corker Ties School, Stores To December Playdates

I wish to advise you of two campaigns in particular that I have already outlined and are now in progress on pictures playing second and third weeks in December.

On "The Great Waltz" have a tieup with the Pan-Hellenic Council, The Red and Black, student paper of the University of Georgia, and the Athens Banner-Herald, local paper, to hold a "Bring Back the Waltz" contest. The "waltz" will be the featured number at a special breakfast dance to be held during the Home-Coming dances, at which Jimmy Dorsey and his Orchestra will play. This will result in about fifteen days of free publicity in the local newspapers and other papers throughout the state.

On "Just Around the Corner" I have tieups with a local department store, newspaper and radio to stage a "Shirley Temple Fashion Revue." This will be held in the store auditorium a few days before the picture opening date. Prizes will be offered for the "cutest" and "most stylish" little miss. Fifteen will be selected from the entries to appear on the theatre stage on the opening night of the picture to participate for a grand award that will be offered.

Last Christmas holly-bound books of theatre tickets, "The Ideal Christmas Gift," were sold to help boost the boxoffice receipts during the "rush" period. A three-day vacation was given the theatre employee selling the greatest number of books. This proved to be very effective, so I am planning the same thing this year.

Palace, Athens, Georgia.

Newspapers Cooperate On Benefit Shows

Toys for Everyone Set by Charninsky

This year we are going to put on the biggest and best campaign that we have ever had. Beginning Thanksgiving, we are going to give away 50 turkeys, one to every 10th person coming into the theatre. These turkeys were promoted. On December 10 we are going to have a special matinee, each patron bringing something wearable in the way of clothing, or a can of food or anything of this kind, will be admitted to the theatre free of charge. On Christmas morning I am going to play Santa Claus to the unfortunate with the proceeds from this matinee. For Christmas we have purchased toys of every description, such as puzzles, clowns, trick monkeys, police badges, dolls, whistles, toy elephants and numerous articles at a very small cost to us, which will be given to the kiddies attending.

We have planned the most elaborate decoration for our lobby this season that we have ever used. In each end of our shadow box we are going to place a silver tree decorated with blue lights exclusively, and in the center of the box we are going to use a Christmas Scene done in oils which will be set off with a special rigging of spot lights. Of course the rest of the lobby will be decorated with tinsel, holly, and all of the Christmas trimmings. The shadow box, the lobby and the theatre itself will be a beautiful sight, I assure you. This display was suggested by one of my ushers, and will rate front page publicity.

Rosenfield Top Tiein Is Auto Giveaway

Due to the tremendous success of our last year's campaign, we are proceeding along the same lines this year. Our major stunt is an automobile giveaway for Christmas Eve. In the past Christmas Eve business was practically nothing, but last year we did a big business with our car giveaway. The car deal is entirely paid for by merchants and we start giving tickets out four weeks in advance, which gives us a nice buildup. On the Monday preceding Christmas we plan to have a big gift night, including giveaway of roasters, poultry and other prizes.

We are making a tieup with a large department store for a toy display in our lobby, same to be given away to children at our special Christmas matinee for the children. We have arranged to rent the theatre to a large industrial organization the Saturday morning before Christmas at which time they will have a party for employees of the company. We derive a nice revenue from this rental. We are arranging to have the orphan home children as our guests for the Christmas show. On the Monday before Christmas we are planning a big gift night in cooperation with local merchants.

NATIONAL SCREEN OFFERS "SHOP EARLY" TRAILERS

To aid theatremen in further cementing goodwill between theatre and merchant, especially during the Christmas shopping season, National Screen Service is offering a series of four "Shop Early" trailers, for weekly change during the period before the holidays. Copy calls attention to the advantages of making purchases as far ahead as possible, the series intended as institutional buildup as well as a civic gesture.

Hal C. Young, of National Screen, suggests exhibitors using this special service announce the tiein at lunch-club meetings and before the Chamber of Commerce. The plan carries weight since newspapers can be promoted for publicity, perhaps editorial mention. The service might also soften up "tough" stores for holiday tieins.

Johnson Suggests Parties For School Children

Public school teachers quite often like to remember their children in some way at Christmas time. My idea is to plan out an easy way for them to hold a theatre party for these children at the Opera House at some matinees the week before Christmas. Each teacher will be approached well in advance. Those who like the idea will buy a ticket for each child in her class. The class will attend in a body, with the teacher coming in free. If possible some inexpensive but attractive novelty gift will be arranged for each child. If enough teachers are interested in the plan, an entire special matinee might be devoted to the parties, with welcome signs and a special section for each class.

With no newspaper in this town I have sometimes found it profitable to put out a special advertising tabloid, selling space to a number of stores and getting a lot of free space for the theatre to go along with it. I have in mind using the same idea in December this year, to cash in on the pre-Christmas desire for advertising space. Will put it out daily, semi-weekly, weekly, or as often as the advertising will justify.

As part of our service policy we always offer to take care of parcels, umbrellas, heavy overcoats, etc., for our patrons, but we have no regular check room. During the weeks before Christmas I plan to keep a table in the lobby with some one to watch it, ready to run a free checking service.

Naturally we intend to call the attention of women shoppers to the fact that children can be kept conveniently and contentedly out of the way for two hours any afternoon for the price of a 10-cent ticket. If, as a result, the place is overrun with small children a girl will be hired to look after them and keep them from disturbing other patrons.

Local Industry Displays Arranged by Harris

Last December we arranged with the Chesapeake & Ohio to display in our spacious lobby a miniature working model of their entire system, showing stations in the various cities, trains moving, stopping to receive passengers, freight trains unloading coal and reloading. This display was more than 80 feet in length, attractively illuminated, and created considerable attention. Adults brought in the kiddies, particularly during the matinee, to see this unusual demonstration. This year we are planning a very elaborate display during the month of December in cooperation with the United States Steel Corporation in Cleveland showing a miniature working model of strip mill demonstrating the process of strip steel manufacturing in its miniature operating form which should attract quite a bit of attention.

With special permission from the local postal authorities we print and the post office officials display at all branch offices a card urging the public to shop early, wrap securely and mail early finishing the copy with a plug for "Loew's for Good Shows." Tie-up with leading department store for elaborate display of toys, living Santa Claus and publicised through the medium of store and theatre ads. This particular department store permits us in exchange for publicity to insert holiday heralds in all purchases made at store and delivered direct to homes.

Annual orphan show which results in plenty of free newspaper space. Tieup with leading merchants to place slugs in their newspaper ads on the basis of the present movie drive slogan, "Trade Follows the Movies," inviting people to shop early after attending matinees and vice versa. In exchange for easel display in lobby on the campaign "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early" we are permitted to have our attractive heralds inserted in all packages being delivered to homes. We also distribute heralds at football games and conventions, theatre guides in hotels, key boxes, etc.

Loew's Cleveland Theatres.

Reeths Ties Store To "Treasure Chest"

Gifts of all kinds are offered in the tiein arranged by Fred Reeths, Jr., with leading store on a "Treasure Chest" promotion wherein keys obtained in designated departments, posted on the display, are given customers to unlock the Chest, displayed prominently in the theatre lobby. Chest is arranged in three compartments to show off some of the prizes to be won. On Friday, Dec. 23, from one in the afternoon until eight at night, patrons with keys secured from the store will be allowed to try the locks. Store is publicising the tiein widely with generous theatre and picture mention in all the advertising.

Accent on Christmas Activity Stressed by Warner Ohio-men

by DICK WRIGHT

District Manager, Warner Ohio Theatres

With the approaching few weeks before Christmas there is a great deal of hustling and bustling among the Warner managers in Nat Wolf's Ohio Division, where Ray Brown, Jess Fishman, and the writer are assisting in preparing plans and stunts.

A number of the managers are laying plans for their presentation of Kute Kris Kringle, the living, breathing, human Santa Claus who will make his bow in their theatres Thanksgiving week.

Readers of these columns are undoubtedly aware of this attraction and the tremendous amount of goodwill it will bring the theatre. The following managers are making tieups in their respective towns with their leading stores for toy displays, lobby cards, mailing lists, etc., and expect to have Kris Kringle available for their Thanksgiving day crowds; Frank Savage, Warner, Youngstown; Bill Dworski, Madison, Mansfield; Doc Elliott, Ohio, Lima; Marvin Samuelson, Colony, Cleveland; Julius Lamm, Uptown, Cleveland; Lou Milder, Variety, Cleveland; Glenn Nelson, Harris, Findlay; Bunny Somers, Ohio, Sidney and Knox Strachan, LaRoy, Portsmouth.

LaDue To Repeat Promotion

At the Strand Theatre in Akron, John LaDue is cooperating with the Akron Beacon Journal on their annual drive of the "Mile of Dimes," newspaper promotion for the purpose of raising funds to provide Christmas dinners and gifts for needy Akron children. Last year all of the services, including the personnel, theatre, film, newspaper advertising, banners, show cards, newspaper publicity, sound trucks, printing of tickets, and heralds were furnished as a contribution to the fund by the agencies involved, so that all receipts might be turned over to the fund. Last year tickets were on sale in advance at the Strand boxoffice and various downtown stores. This year LaDue expects to receive cooperation from the police department and various civic groups and through these agencies force a large advance sale of tickets. He is also planning on securing the cooperation of Akron florists and the Junior League to sell roses in the lobby at the end of the show for the benefit of the fund. Last year's show received tremendous amount of publicity and good will and this year LaDue feels that he will have even better results.

Harpster Promotes Parteis

Along these same lines is Frank Harpster's annual "Three Muster Cheer" Charity Campaign tie in with the Mansfield News Journal and the Warner Theatres in Mansfield, the Ohio, Madison, and Majestic giving a can matinee and a midnight show with all proceeds going to charity. Last year the newspaper gave daily front page publicity over a 24-day period. Frank Harpster also is promoting a number of annual Christmas parties given by various industrial plants in Mansfield. These parties are actual outright ticket sales to the plants in Mansfield which they distribute to the children of their employees; an ample supply of candy, oranges, and nuts, etc., is also on hand for the children.

Bill Dworski at the Madison Theatre in addition to the extra business which he expects to promote through the presentation of Kris Kringle is working on the Mansfield Grotto members to put their annual Minstrel Show on the stage of his theatre. Bill is also planning extra Saturday morning cartoon shows and parent-teacher association benefit as well as his usual participation in the Three Muster Cheer Drive.

Celebrates Anniversary Week Ahead

Wayne Williams, the skipper at the Majestic Theatre in Mansfield finds that the best stunt of his Christmas Campaign is the celebration of his theatre anniversary, the week prior to Christmas. This enables him to sell a full-page of cooperative ads and various other advertising media such as his combination Christmas and anniversary card, heralds, etc., as well as the usual congratulatory messages and bakery tie-up.

At the Lincoln Theatre in Massillon, Irv Solomon is working on his annual Rotary Club Show given for the crippled children. This is always a big event both for the kids and the Rotarians. While Solomon does not normally have facilities for checking packages during the year because of lack of space, he goes out of his way during the holiday shopping season, devoting part of his office to check room and sells patrons the idea of resting and relaxing at the theatre after a hard day of shopping.

Managers Work with Clubs

Harry Bodie at the Sixth Street Theatre in Coshocton and with the assistance of Don Jacobs at the Pastime Theatre in Coshocton annually tie in the Coshocton Women's Clubs for a big party for the poor children on December 24. Bodie gives matinee a week or so before Christmas at which all children are admitted for food stuffs, proceeds are used to fill baskets for the poor by a group of organizations. This year Bodie is planning on a giant Christmas party which will include a special program put on by the kids themselves and an inexpensive gift for each one.

Ben Schwartz at the Ohio Theatre in Canton annually ties up with the Lions Club for the annual distribution of foodstuffs to the poor families in Canton. Ben also has an annual toy show, proceeds of which are turned over to the children of the Blind.

Routson Arranges December 'Revue' to Build Grosses

For the week of Dec. 16, which he reports as the week the box office needs it most, Ted Routson, major domo publicist of I. M. Rappaport's Hippodrome, Baltimore, has dated in an amateur revue dubbed "Baltimore Follies," which he is producing, now already in work under the sponsorship of the local News-Post. The same presentation put on last year returned a fat week, says Ted, as did another like it put on in July, which held for two weeks.

The tiein insures publicity, page one and all, for four weeks ahead, of art and publicity in which of course the theatre receives consistent mention, including the current shows. First story broke on Nov. 7, and with it was carried a two-column box to be filled in as application for audition.

Application Blank Detailed

In addition to the name, address and phone number, age, weight, height, color hair and eyes is requested, also whether applicant is married or single. Also asked is whether applicant can sing or dance, type of such, ability to play musical instrument, do specialty, characters, etc. Assurance must be given that all rehearsals will be attended as all performances, if selected.

Routson has also gone "jitterbug" with a state-wide contest, the finals decided at the theatre at a midnight show on Nov. 17. Eliminations were held on Mondays and Tuesdays for four weeks and the six couples picked in the finals given a week's paid engagement. In addition, Routson reports that Milton Schwartzwals, RKO shorts producer, picked three couples, for one of his shorts.

Jitterbugs in Philadelphia

High school and other local swing addicts who patronize the Warner Philadelphia neighborhood houses are being given opportunity to show their "stuff" in Jitterbug Contests arranged by City Manager Jack Flynn and Al Zimbalist, city zone ad head, the second contest now nearing the semi-finals. Having studied the possibilities, the theatremen offered it to the Daily News, Zimbalist explaining the opportunities of extra circulation. Paper got behind the promotion heavily, running daily entrance coupons and day after the finals of the first competiton gave the event a spread in the picture section, reported a first time for neighborhood houses, reports Zimbalist.

Winners Voted Theatre Date

Initial contest ran for six weeks with the finals at the Downtown Earle Theatre. Winners of the second event will vie with winners of the first at the same house for the grand award, a professional engagement at the Warner de luxe spot. Zimbalist got out a special two-color herald distributed at high schools and colleges, also at homes and factories, which brought a wide response. Tiein has cost very little, says Al, and results have already brought requests for information from theatremen in various sectors.

'Santa Claus Lane' Arranged by Taylor and Buffalo Stores

This year—during the Yuletide season—the Shea Theatres are cooperating with all downtown merchants in the installation of an elaborate electrical decoration that will transform the main stem into "Santa Claus Lane." The idea was inspired by the Hollywood plan. The decorative scheme will cost thousands, but it is expected to draw many thousands of people downtown and—before and after shopping—into Shea theatres. Our lobbies and ads will publicize the "Lane" from Thanksgiving to Christmas, during which period it will be in operation. It is the first time the idea has been tried in Buffalo.

We plan to tie up with post office annual shop early and mail early campaign, with cards in branches and signs on trucks reading: "Shop Early—Mail Early. Enjoy the Big Holiday Shows in Shea Theatres."

As in the past, we plan to stage theatre parties for every orphanage in the city, in cooperation with the Buffalo Evening News. These parties are given week before Christmas. The newspaper gives the parties much publicity and we promote free transportation for the kiddies with a local bus company. Free candy is promoted.

Stage Stars Booked

In ads, lobby and radio we will promote our free checking service for patrons—urging them to shop early—then bring their bundles to our checking rooms and enjoy our big shows. We also will promote this idea on taxi tire covers from now on as well as on our screens.

Stage personalities booked during the coming weeks will visit the Courier-Express Toy Shop, taking along a bag of toys, and inspecting the work of the boys and girls who contrubute their services each year to mending old toys for poor children of the city. Photos and stories on the star's visit brings the theatre much valuable publicity. Because we are close to the Canadian border, we will advertise our Yuletide shows in papers in the Dominion as well as on the radio stations across the line. These stations have a large listening audience in Buffalo.

Santa Claus To Lead Parade

We plan to tie up with one of the big department stores here and have their Santa Claus visit our lobbies to greet the children during certain periods in the afternoon a few weeks in advance of Christmas. We will ballyhoo this stunt by having Santa lead a parade from the store to the theatre.

We will print bookmarks for the Public Library calling attention to books of special Yuletide interest and listing them. In our part of the mark we will sell our Christmas shows and free checking service.

Christmas attractions of special interest to the children will be sold through channels that lead into the schools as well as the homes. For instance, a return engagement of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is being considered during the holiday season.

—Charles B. Taylor, Publicity Director, Shea's Theatres, Buffalo, N. Y.

Famous-Players Canadians Again Feature Gift Tickets

Inaugurated in 1936, a campaign by Famous Players-Canadian theatres to sell theatre tickets as Christmas gifts, sold 15,000 adult tickets. The campaign for the same purpose in 1937 brought more than double that number in addition to thousands of children's tickets introduced last year.

Success of the plan has caused a wider and more intensified campaign to be sponsored this year, guided by N. L. Nathanson, president, and J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president and general manager of operations. The project, now under way in every F.P.C. theatre, is fully explained in a comprehensive manual by James Nairn, circuit director of publicity and advertising, the highlights of which are here detailed.

Full credit is to be given all managers under the circuit Sharing Plan for all Christmas tickets sold, thus giving the theatremen an extra incentive to go after this added business. It is also pointed out that distribution of the tickets as gifts will bring to the theatre those who are not regular attendants. Tickets are to be honored in all FPC theatres until July 1, 1939. As an extra convenience, tickets may be sold for delivery in other towns where the circuit operates. This also applies to children's tickets which are again being featured.

Members of the theatre staff, excluding the manager, will receive a 10 percent commission on outside sales of tickets. Friends and outside business contacts are suggested as well as charitable and social groups, popular retail stores, such as cigar shops, etc. Tickets actually sold at the boxoffice are not subject to this commission. This participation by staff members is pointed out as the best sales medium.

Emphasized is the importance of a meeting of manager and staff when gift tickets are received, to discuss best sales angles. Selling crews are to be organized and when the house staff is large enough, two crews with captain for each is suggested. Extra prizes might be given to winning crews. Sales meetings are to be continued during progress of the drive to report progress and discuss any sales resistance.

Top Store Ideas Listed

Among the most effective ideas listed by Nairn, based on results in the past, and offered for use generally, are the following:

Merchants whose type of business and locations provide best tiein with theatre are to be selected first. Managers are to visit stores regularly to stimulate sales and to see that counter piece advertising, supplied by the circuit, is prominently displayed. Merchants are also to be interested in using the Gift Tickets to customers making purchases over a certain amount. Stores so doing will advertise this.

Blocks of tickets to employees are suggested for firms usually giving food baskets, from the viewpoint that most folks like to pick their own dinners. Tickets have a wider appeal, it is found, and build goodwill between employer and employee. This is to be brought out in letters to employers, special letterheads for which have been made available by Nairn's department for the managers. The ticket gift is also to be suggested to newspapers for carriers and stores for delivery boys, also to insurance companies and other offices where large staffs are employed.

Ideal Gift for Children

Since it is found that gifts for children from 10 to 15 are difficult to select, children's tickets have been found popular as a solution. This is to be plugged in lobby cards and other mediums. Local clubs are to be approached to buy tickets in youth welfare work for holiday parties for under-privileged children. They also answer the requirements of teachers in public and Sunday schools as prizes to class leaders.

One manager reported as his best medium, the personal talk. He used this approach, for instance, with head of a large motor company and sold tickets for employees in local branch as well as other branches in nearby towns. In most every instance, this approach was successful. Another manager sold tickets to clubs which resold them through members turning in the commission to the club funds. Rotary Clubs bought tickets for distribution to the poor.

Another good medium was hospital sales where switchboard operators sold tickets to doctors for gifts to internes and nurses. Also found profitable was tiein with the Junior League whose members sold tickets for the 10 percent commission for the club holiday fund. To further stimulate effort of this staff, a manager made an extra concession of extra nights off to usher selling most tickets.

In addition to the letterheads, noted above, copy for the letters is supplied in addition to trailer copy of various kinds and carrying different appeals. The circuit is also supplying silk screen box-office window stickers, lobby one-sheet and the counter card.

On the subject of trailers, Nairn calls attention to the value of changing the copy since they become stale if used too long, he finds. With this in mind, two trailers were made up for the Christmas ticket publicity. Number one is meant for early showing. Number two for the week or two weeks before Christmas. To provide proper contrast, trailers were made as differently as possible in animation and treatment.

The letterheads are in two colors. Across top copy reads "Give Theatre Tickets for Christmas," in reverse. In red is a block cartoon cut of Santa Claus, reproduction of the envelope for gift tickets, showing spaces for names of donors and recipients. Most managers found this an effective mailing piece since the colorful holiday illustration gained immediate attention.

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1937 CAMPAIGNS FOUND EFFECTIVE AT BOX OFFICE

WHAT he reports as an annual standout is Ray Bell's "Christmas Cheer Club" worked out for the Wasington Loew theatres with the Washington Herald, Washington Times and Station WJSV. Through these sponsors, residents of the district were asked for old and new toys distributed on Christmas day to underprivileged children by the D. C. Playground's Santa Claus. Old toys were repaired by the distributing charity.

Huge Christmas boxes were placed in lobbies of all Loew houses, trailers requesting patrons to fill them. Radio stations contributed daily plugs and newspapers came through with generous stories. The club project was climaxed with a large matinee at the Capitol Theatre several days ahead of Christmas, wth a toy serving as admission.

Further newspaper tieup was effected with the Washington Post for a theatre promotion in connection with that paper's Christmas Gift Guide. Paper published a daily two by 150-line ad carrying figure of Santa and Charlie McCarthy with balloons. Guest tickets were then awarded to persons offering best conversations between the two. Current attractions were prominently billed.

Most Popular Newsboy

Awarded by Lester Stallman, College Theatre, Bethlehem, Pa., before leaving for the Astor, in Reading, were promoted prizes to winners in his most popular newsboys contest. Voting blanks were carried in the cooperating paper with votes cast only at the theatre. Paper played the contest up daily with human interest stories, etc.

Effective lobby display was constructed by Stallman in the form of an animation showing youngsters going downhill on sleds and another group walking uphill, with automatic waterfall with ice and holiday trimmings as background. Display was planted under a Christmas tree decorated and illuminated with colored spots.

On Christmas morning, lads distributed red and green cards house-to-house, copy reading: "P. S. I had to come back to tell you of the excellent picture at the College," etc., and signed by Santa.

Santa Claus Planes In

According to idea planned by Herb Grove, Fort, Rock Island, Neb., in conjunction with the Rock Island Argus, a letter-writing contest was held for children on why they believed in Santa Claus which involved cash and ticket prizes. Paper equipped a plane and party to fly north to locate the home of Kris Kringle, with Grove taking pictures from local airport. Radio station contacted the plane in flight and finale of the stunt was for the plane to return with Santa and present him in the public square and at the theatre.

Climax of the stunt so far as the theatre was concerned was the special showing of the pictures with other subjects, paper and radio station getting behind the show to publicize it.

Proof of the good returns from many of the ideas developed for last year's Christmas campaigns is found in the decision by theatremen to utilize featured tieins again for the current drive for December grosses. On this page, therefore, is set down briefly what was reported before for the information of readers and perhaps to be developed locally in other situations.

Store Underwrites Santa Movie

Suggested by Dick Wright, district manager Cleveland Warner zone, was a "Christmas Auction Night" through cooperation of leading merchants. Stores and theatre distributed slips each representing 10 shekels, on the reverse side of which were listed the name or names of participating merchants. Each shekel entitled patron opportunity of bidding at the auction. Needless to say, the more slips a holder had the more they were entitled to bid.

The night preceding Christmas was designated as "Christmas Auction Night" and merchandise promoted from the stores for the Auction was displayed in the lobby in advance with credit cards. Each merchant heralded the event in ads and throughout the stores.

Also held was a local movie of Santa, department store underwriting expense of a toy department promotion. Pictures were taken of Santa arriving by plane at municipal airport and after Kris Kringle circled the city, further shots were taken showing him being transported by car or sleigh to the store where he met the kiddies. From the store Santa drove to the theatre for the toy matinee. Later pictures were taken of the children looking at the toy displays in cooperating store. On completion of film, store announced in its ads that the pictures could be seen at the theatre.

"Gold Rush" Comes to Tucson

Held for the second time last year was Roy Drachman's "Gold Rush" at the Fox Theatre, Tucson, Ariz., in the form of a $1,000 giveaway, split into six prizes. Eight hundred of the money was promoted from merchants, who gave lucky numbered tickets with purchases for the prize drawing. Tieup was made with merchants on one street only, stores paying for their share of tickets and space in double-truck co-op pages. Drachman reports that last year the idea drew over 10,000 with the Governor and Congresswoman Isabella Greenway on stage to draw the winning numbers.

On Christmas Eve Drachman was placed in charge of civic party when Tucson plays Santa to poor children. Thirty-foot tree was set in front of theatre, entire block was roped off, band was secured and high school choir sang carols. Highlight of tieup was the offer of benedictions by ministers of different denominations. City officials cooperated and boy scouts were on hand to direct traffic.

Suggested last year by Harry Botwick State Theatre, Portland, was the choosing of the most courteous salesgirl. Each merchant contributed a certain amount of cash and articles of merchandise to be divided between three winners. People were entitled to votes by securing ballots only after they had made purchases at any one of the cooperating stores, voting was done in theatre lobby and winner announced from stage on Christmas Day. Tiein was publicised in theatre and throughout stores.

Botwick also made his theatre a bureau of information, stationing girl in lobby at a telephone. In exchange for publicity, telephone was promoted and girl instructed to get information for patrons on bus and train schedules, accept messages for friends and relatives and in general encourage folks to make the theatre a general meeting place. Also suggested by Botwick was the hiring of a matron during the entire month of December to serve tea from executives.

Contact was also established with leading garage whereby, week preceding Christmas, the use of cars to transport patrons to theatre were made available. Folks wishing to avail themselves of the ride downtown were instructed to call the theatre for a cab, garage received advertising in the lobby in exchange and all cars were bannered.

Theatre Tickets for Gifts

Ticket selling idea was inaugurated by Guy Martin, Colfax, South Bend, Ind., with the Elks, Eagles, Woodmen and other fraternal organizations, whereby two tickets were offered each member selling a punch board, proceeds of which went to local fund for the needy. Theatre received full price for all tickets offered on the board as prizes. Martin reported that last year the Elks put out over 1,000 boards.

To businessmen of the city, Martin wrote letters suggesting theatre tickets as gifts for employees and to encourage early shopping merchants were approached to buy tickets to be given for purchases over a certain figure. Guy went to town on a series of manufacturers' parties, where the plants took over the theatre and gave special shows for employees and their children. Theatre received a flat rental and furnished the program, house staff, etc., sponsoring company defraying cost of toy and candy distribution.

Radio Star Sings Carols

As an added attraction for his Christmas week program while at the State in Syracuse, Ed McBride , now at Loew's in Providence, secured the services of a popular male singer over the Columbia chain, for his Christmas prologue.

With a church window scene and falling snow effect as a background, singer was seated at a small portable organ on stage, surrounded by a group of altar boys, singing Christmas hymns and carols. Theatre organist, concealed from the audience, played the accompaniment, so that it seemed the singer was playing the numbers.

Contests and Carols Featured Widely

Carols Contest in Public Schools

Reported as one of his most profitable promotions last year was Lew Chatham's public schools carols contest at the Sooner Theatre, Norman, Okla., wherein pupils of eight grade schools competed in singing Christmas carols from the stage. One group appeared each night up until three days ahead of Christmas, with the city's music teachers acting as judges. Prizes were free shows to the winning group.

Also planted by Lew was a citywide contest tied in with local paper for the best letter on "What Christmas Means to Me." Cash and guest tickets were awarded and rules of the contest stressed the spiritual side of the holiday. Another idea used by Chatham was his annual contest for youngsters in the first to sixth grades on a coloring contest, entrants obliged to make up drawings and cutout of any Yuletide subject, pass coupon books going to winners.

For his Christmas prevue put on with the aid of 20 leading merchants, Lew held a lucky number party with stores and theatre distributing numbered coupons with purchases and admissions. Merchandise promoted from the cooperating stores was given to winners, and stunt was plugged in theatre and store ads, on screen and in lobby.

"Christmas Tree Hunt"

Hookup that combined charity, entertainment and theatre tiein in connection with a 30-minute broadcast was featured last year by J. P. Harrison, Paramount, Amarillo, Tex., in the form of a "Christmas Tree Hunt."

Each day during the hunt program, running 24 days, listeners were asked to find two or three articles, the value of which was equivalent to at least the price of a theatre ticket. These articles were either food, clothing or toys. Each day the items asked for were brought to one of the designated Texas Consolidated theatres and the donor admitted on presentation of the articles. During the course of the daily 30-minute program the commercial plugs for the theatre's picture was tied in with the explanation of which theatre to take the articles to on that particular day. All material collected was divided equally among the churches of Amarillo. The theatre also gave admissions each day except Saturday and Sunday to the first 50 who brought the requested articles to the theatre.

"Most Adorable Child" Contest

Kroger Babb, former advertising director of the Chakeres-Warner Theatres, Springfield, Ohio, and now with Filmack Trailer in Chicago last year, reported a promotional idea involving children. With proper screen, lobby and newspaper exploitation, Babb announced early in December a contest to determine the "most adorable child" in the city.

Age limit of contestants was from six months to six years and lengthy list of promoted gifts for winners was published in cooperating newspaper. Various merchants participated in exchange for screen credits, lobby and publicity. Display panels constructed of light lumber and black cloth and directly lighted were erected in lobby, on which were tacked the photos of entrants together with their names, age, addresses and contest numbers.

Representative Christmas Lobby Decoration

A girl for "field work," to obtain photographs and entries by personal calls to homes with children expedited earlier interest in the contest. Contest lasted two weeks, during which period a voting ballot was presented to each patron, on which they could vote for only one child by name or contest number. Results of a tabulation of the votes was announced by a committee of prominent persons serving as judges and prizes were awarded to first, second and third place.

"Miss Spirit of Christmas"

Down in New Mexico, Russ Hardwick, Lyceum, Mesa and Plains Theatre, in Clovis, put over a community day celebration in which 40 merchants participated at a cost of five dollars each for entering a local girl in Christmas contest. Parade headed by school bands was held in the afternoon with girls in evening dress, transported in bannered cars. Entrants appeared at theatre on given night and through votes distributed by merchants and at theatre week ahead, "Miss Spirit of Christmas" was selected by audience applause and awarded $25. Entry fee also covered cost of free show given by Limerick one morning during holiday week for shoppers from drawing area.

Various other activities engaged in by Hardwick during December covered two pictures locally sponsored by ticket selling campaigns, one by the largest and most active women's club and the other girls' organization in local high school. Stage wedding with two couples was also held, theatre giving cash prize in addition to a large number of promoted gifts secured from merchants.

Special kid matinee was held, toys being repaired by local firemen and distributed to the needy by Boy Scouts. Food show was also held to aid the Salvation Army activities.

"Best Decorated Homes" Contest

Originated by George Limerick now at the Aztec, Enid, Okla., while he was at the Yale in Cleburne, Tex., was his "best decorated home" contest. Put on in cooperation with local paper and divided into three classifications; two-story homes; apartment and duplexes and one-story homes and cottages, prizes were given in each division to those decorating the exteriors of their homes in the most attractive holiday attire. Coupons were run in paper and on receipt of entries, George followed up by visiting the home and presenting theatre ticket.

Deadline for entrants was December 15 at which time, rounds were again made to determine best dressed homes. Judging took place few days ahead and winners were announced Christmas Eve. Loving cups to winners and monthly passes were awarded runnersup. Papers played the stunt up in great style and Limerick reported much goodwill resulted.

On his kid angle, a special matinee was held to which all children bringing a piece of fruit were admitted. Baskets were then made up and turned over to local charity.

Turkeys, Geese and Ducks

Sid Holland, city manager, Elco Theatre, Elkhart, Ind., last year arranged for factory parties, with an average price of 10 cents per person being made to plant heads for shows to the employees and employees' families. Approximately five parties were held. Promoted by Sid was an electric range and refrigerator for giveaway in exchange for theatre advertising and lobby display. Toy and food matinees, free kid shows, checking services were also part of his campaign.

Poultry party was also arranged for by Holland, with cooperating dealer supplying turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens. Theatre advertised the party on screen and wherever possible gave the dealer an advertising break, lucky number coupons were distributed by the merchant and with each ticket purchased at box office.

Carols in Cleveland

Used with great success last year was the selection of eight singers from the nationally-known Acepella Choir by Milt Harris, Cleveland Loew's theatres publicist, to visit with a town crier, all leading restaurants and hotel dining rooms. Group of four boys and four girls sang carols, after which the crier opened scroll and in Colonial fashion announced screen attraction at the State.

Newspaper was contacted to sponsor a "bury the tree" party, whereby readers were invited to bring toys, clothing and nonperishable foods to be placed around the tree until it was practically covered. This was put on at all the Loew Cleveland theatres. Through tieup effected with leading department store trees were decorated and Santa was on hand to distribute candy promoted from local factory in exchange for credits.

What's your Screen worth?

Apparently it's worth plenty to those who want to buy it! Commercial advertisers place a high value on the use of your screen to sell their goods. So why shouldn't you do the same?

That screen is YOUR best advertising medium—it can be your best ticket-seller. Don't waste it by using unshowmanlike trailers.

A good trailer on your screen is the lowest-cost advertising you can buy. Ever stop to think how little National Screen Service costs?

When the BEST is so cheap, there is no economy in using make-shift stuff on that valuable screen. In fact, that is extravagance and unfair to your box-office!

National Screen Pre-vues are built to sell tickets—by showmen who have studied screen-salesmanship for years.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly
in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor
GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

FISHIN'—AND FISHIN'

There is something in the opinion that during the immediate weeks before Christmas grosses ofttimes vary in relation to the effort put behind the show. There must be something to it, since not every member looks with foreboding to December. In fact, it would surprise you to know how many of the boys regard the pre-Christmas period quite cheerfully. Seeing nothing ahead but a situation requiring considerable attention and perspiration, they take another hitch in their galluses, give the so-called bad weeks a thorough going-over, and profit thereby.

For instance, there is Joe Rosenfield, of the Modjeska, Milwaukee, one of the numerous who calmly spits in the monster's eye, as follows:

"I am of the opinion that business can be gotten in the two weeks before Christmas. We have proved it in the past two years by careful booking and exploitation. Some exhibitors claim that good pictures are wasted during this period and hold off booking their good product until after Christmas. We give them the best pictures we can get during this time and our results have been very good."

Rosenfield has lined himself up a fancy campaign which he tells about in the special Christmas section immediately preceding this issue of your Round Table. In detailing his plans, Joe joins with other exhibitors who are not in the habit of kidding themselves about Christmas opposition. They may believe in Santa Claus but not to the extent of turning loose hard-earned advertising dollars without assurance of adequate return. At least, not according to what they report, and they report plenty.

Of course, there are showmen who regard the weeks before Christmas a better time to go fishin' than to try and combat the holiday shopping. The other side likes fishin', too. They fish for extra admissions.

SMILES DO SELL TICKETS

It may sound like a bit of preaching to call attention to lack of theatre service. Plenty has been written about the warm-welcome-and-pleasant-smile reception. It would seem by now that all of us realize the advantages of such greetings. A "dead-pan" at the ticket window often turns away the paying guest. An unconcerned usher may point the patron across the street to the opposition. And even though these omissions be made unconsciously, they hurt.

One of this department's not over-sensitive scouts indicts a de luxe metropolitan neighborhood operation on both counts. He encountered somewhat of a chill from the cashier, service on the grumpy side from an usher. Standees were handled, he claims, with little regard for the individual. He aims to take his trade elsewhere.

Well, ushers and cashiers are folks, too, and every patron not the paragon of all virtues. During tough days, it can be that the good ole smile does not always come spontaneously and cheerful service limps a bit. That should be generally understood. Unfortunately, it isn't. Next to a warm welcome, perhaps a good imitation might satisfy the captious. The customers rate that, at least.

NOT AT ALL IMPOSSIBLE

The Rockefeller interests call attention to a new building project in the "Center" by means of a special grandstand for excavation fans called the "Street Superintendents' Club". Membership cards are distributed. To remind New Yorkers that winter is upon us, Lord & Taylor, Fifth Avenue department store, creates window displays showing realistic imitation of a snowstorm. No merchandise is included, only copy reading "It's coming—sooner or later". Both promotions stop plenty of traffic, land heavy newspaper publicity.

If showmanship in business continues to be utilized so advantageously by conservative executives, it will not be at all surprising to find showbusiness itself beginning to give showmanship some serious consideration.

And while the above was being penned, came a communication from a Sixth Avenue laundry tieing in with the Columbia picture at a nearby theatre. The copy read: "If You Can't Take It With You, we will gladly deliver".

Round Table in Pictures

Forty-year-old talking machine was used by Dave Martin, Fox Bruin, Los Angeles, in connection with his Greater Movie Season drive lobby. Machine was tied-in with the beginning of pictures with appropriate copy, building up to the drive. Martin also utilized a card with a supposedly personal letter from Grover Jones, Paramount producer, on the new season's attractions and a short history of the movies.

On behalf of opening of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" at the Rialto Theatre, Cohoes, N. Y., Manager Paul Archambault tied in with local girls' drum and bugle corps. Band marched through streets to theatre where they performed on stage.

Conceived and executed by Anthony Laurie, assistant to Julius Lamm, at Warners' Uptown, Cleveland, was lobby display shown at right. Through tieup with Boy Scouts, their complete equipment was planted in lobby for week, boys on duty demonstrating the various activities of their group.

Fire Prevention Week

Tying in with the local Fire Prevention Week, Joe Goetz, assistant to Arthur Frudenfeld, RKO Theatres, Cincinnati, promoted the "House of Hazards" display for the lobby of the Paramount theatre there. Firemen stationed there during the entire week, answered all questions. Fire truck was also parked in front and made complete tour of the neighborhoods and schools calling attention to the theatre display. Newspapers were generous in their publicity breaks.

At left may be seen Borough President George Harvey of Queens, L. I., turning over his office to honor student Neill Twohill as part of the elaborate campaign staged by Sam Coolick and Pete McCarty in north Queens for Loew's Theatres on "Boys Town".

An effective lobby gag was that shown at right and created by Bill Exton, Kenosha Theatre, Kenosha, Wis., for "Too Hot to Handle." A penny electric machine was stationed in lobby and as patrons would ask about it, ushers furnished them a penny and they were then instructed to hold on to the handles of the machine. Exton reports the idea as attracting considerable attention.

Salesgirl Matinee Builds 'My Heart'

"Salesgirl's Matinee" and charm contest on opening day in which all department stores in the city allowed their girl employees to participate, provided an attention-getting novelty stunt to the campaign conducted by Marty Burnett for "There Goes My Heart" at Loew's, Dayton.

With important sequences of the film woven around department store procedure, the stunt found the ready cooperation of store officials, and, further, tied-in directly with the picture.

To lend an unusual angle to the "Matinee" theme, the showing was held from 7:45 to 9:00 A. M., prior to the regular performances, and was followed by the selection of the most attractive girl with cash prizes being awarded to the winners. Breakfast was served to all salesgirls attending the performance. Notices of the contest were posted on the bulletin boards of every store, and were inserted in payroll envelopes. The stunt attracted the attention of all local editors who accorded it prominent feature stories.

"Marco Polo" Winners Announced by U. A.

Five winners of the cash prizes in the National Exploitation Contest conducted by United Artists for the best individual campaigns on Samuel Goldwyn's "The Adventures of Marco Polo" were chosen from a field of 323 entries.

Ed Levin, of Balaban & Katz, Chicago, was awarded first prize of $100 for a publicity drive that extended over a period of four months. Other winners were John Hesse, Roger Sherman, New Haven, second, $50; Russell Bovim, Loew's Columbus, third, $50; Marsline K. Moore, Hollywood, Ft. Worth, fourth, $25, and Bill Saxton, Century, Baltimore, fifth, $25.

All entries were judged by Samuel Goldwyn, James Mulvey, eastern representative for Mr. Goldwyn; Lynn Farnol, advertising and publicity director of United Artists, and Monroe W. Greenthal, exploitation manager for United Artists.

Merchants Aid Simon On Fall Harvest Tiein

To usher in his Harvest Season, Alfred Simon, Inwood Theatre, Forest Hills, has secured the cooperation of various merchants on the block where his theatre is situated and is putting on a special week. Sponsored by the stores tying in, each night gifts are donated for a lucky number giveaway. Food baskets, Chinese dinners, and merchandise credits are some of the items promoted by Simon.

Lobby is appropriately decorated with fall foliage, etc., and merchants plug the special nights in their stores in addition to taking paid ads in theatre program, which covers entire printing and distribution costs for Simon. Also contained in the program is a misspelled word contest, guest tickets going to those readers who discover the incorrectly spelled words in the various merchants' ads and reporting them as requested.

SHOW

Past-master in the art of spoofing the customers with his entertaining stage show at Hallowe'en time, Les Pollock reports a successful party at Loew's Rochester. The Spook Show was well advertised ahead, especially at the theatre over the P.A. system, while usherette-farmerettes distributed cider to passersby in the midst of Hallowe'en atmosphere, as illustrated above, with Les, himself, sampling the brew.

The party itself carried a lot of laughs, among others "Old Man Mose," whose demise was represented by a dangling skeleton (below) worked in black and thrust forward to audience on bamboo pole. Accompanying this was a woman in white, whose head followed her around the stage. Worked in complete darkness with dim spot.

Other items to intrigue the audience had ghosts rising from coffins, plus other devices looked for by patrons in the celebration of this yearly occasion.

Many Tieins Made for 'Waltz' Contest

The dance competition on behalf of MGM's "The Great Waltz" conceived by Howard Dietz and carried through by Billy Ferguson's exploitation men has assumed nationwide proportions with eliminations already held in all parts of the country. In addition to the MGM exploiteers, other theatremen are following through on arrangements set by the home office, tying in with newspapers, hotels, ballrooms and social organizations to encourage local interest in the campaign.

Featured in the drive was a tiein with the New York World-Telegram, a page ad announcing all the details of the elimination and finals to be held at the Waldorf Astoria, here the sectional winners will compete for the high prize of a Hollywood contract. Newspaper is carrying additional publicity and will fully report the finals, the proceeds of which will go to the American Red Cross.

In Cleveland, Milt Harris has obtained the sponsorship of the Press for the local hookup with Loew's theatres. A "Great Waltz" contest was held on November 8 at the Arena for the benefit of the paper's Christmas Fund. The daily plugged the campaign thoroughly with a series of page one breaks in advance of the playdate at Loew's State.

Also reported in Shreveport, La., the Saenger Theatre is working the contest with the Journal, which ran coupons for entries. The semi-finals have already been held and sectional winner will be selected immediately preceding the local playdate. City social club memberships make up list of judges for contest with dancers judged on grace, rhythm, personality, dance deportment and general appearance, each counting 20 per cent.

Radio Helps Roy on "That Certain Age"

Lively program initiated by Andy Roy, manager of the Strand, in Albany, N. Y., brought better than average box office for "That Certain Age." Liberal use of radio announcements over Stations WOKO and WABY, together with tie-ins by 150 merchants playing up Deanna Durbin headlined the efforts.

Both local papers featured a 6-column fashion spread a la Durbin, with children's shops advertising the star's clothes models. Local news distributor bannered his trucks and heralds were inserted in Liberty magazines, while RCA Victor, department stores and the highly popular music counters in five-and-dime palaces played Durbin music.

Plants Election Contest

Tying in with the recent elections, Morris Rosenthal, Majestic Theatre, Bridgeport, Conn., planted a contest in the Bridgeport Times, whereby 25 guest tickets to "Drums" were offered those coming closest to determining the outcome of the balloting. Entrants had to write down the number of votes they thought the gubernatorial candidates of the three political parties would receive and send their guesses to the theatre before 4:30 P. M. on election day.

GOVERNMENT ORGANIZES NEW UNIT AS OUTLET FOR ADVERTISING FILMS

Commerce Department to Handle Distribution, Exhibition of Sponsored, Industrial Pictures in Consumer Education Drive

The United States Government, through the Department of Commerce acting in cooperation with the national Chamber of Commerce, has completed and approved plans for a federal agency which will undertake the distribution and exhibition of industrial and "consumer education" motion pictures through non-theatrical channels. The plan, under which advertising films will be shown to an audience estimated by the sponsors at 50,000,000, is expected to bring vital changes in a field which has developed rapidly in recent years but until now has had little precedent, direction or stabilization.

The new agency in some respects will be a development of the Government's present activities in the industrial film field concentrated in the Bureau of Mines through which documentary or educational films of a general promotional nature based on the operations of the heavy industries or films produced by other Government departments are distributed on request for free showings. These pictures, without the organized distribution and exhibition service which will be rendered by the new agency, were given 102,462 showings to a total audience of 9,476,813 persons in 1937. The Bureau, now under the Department of the Interior, will continue this "gravity" distribution.

If developed as at present contemplated the plan will give manufacturers and advertising agencies the controlled circulation which they have been seeking in varied and increasingly numerous attempts to place their films on theatrical screens and will lessen the pressure at present being exerted to reach the theatrical audience. Government executives say that the films, to be shown in school and municipal auditoriums under the sponsorship of local committees on consumer education, will not constitute competition for theatres.

Establishment of the Government agency to supply distribution for advertising films is the culmination of long efforts on the part of advertisers to make full and profitable use of the screen—theatrical or otherwise—as a medium to promote sales. Prompted by the theory that the eye and ear appeal of the sound film projected in a darkened auditorium with no possibility of distraction for the audience is potentially the most powerful advertising medium available today, agencies and their clients in the last year have devoted increasing attention and study to the problem of exploiting the field.

Spurred by the promotional activities of advertising film producers and distributors many of which had been operating for a number of years the medium reached a peak last spring. Many agencies handling large national accounts announced the establishment of special advertising film departments, extensive surveys were made, experiments in film were launched to test the possibilities of the field, and predictions were made that the $10,000,000 gross business handled by the medium in 1937 would be increased by 50 per cent in 1938.

BLAMES TEACHERS, NOT MOTION PICTURES

The motion pictures were placed secondary to the influence of teachers, in causing juvenile delinquency, by Major W. H. Lester Drane, assistant to J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in an address last Saturday before the Southwestern Ohio Teachers' Association in Cincinnati.

"You teachers are more responsible for juvenile crime and delinquency than the motion picture, the newspapers and the popular thriller magazines," said the Major. "I can but remind you of the importance of directing the reading of children in the proper channels, their enjoyment of the proper motion pictures and books, and their respect for law and discipline. In doing this, you will keep them out of mischief."

The bright promise of spring failed to materialize. Agencies and clients found that no matter what form their advertising copy took, no matter what branch of the medium they entered, whether minute movie or longer sponsored film, a basic problem remained unsolved—control and assurance of circulation. They learned that even minute movies, the short length trailers which have been made and sold for years by companies long established in the field, are paid for at a rate based only on average theatre attendance for a six months period. Accustomed to buying audited circulation in newspapers and magazines they found it difficult to offset this disadvantage even with the compensating circumstance that 100 per cent coverage of the theatrical audience their films did reach was assured. The difficulty was accentuated in the case of longer films distribution of which has never reached the minute movie's degree of stabilization.

Four Reel Length To Be Used

Films to be distributed by the new Government agency are to be four reels or longer of the type which in the past have been produced for non-theatrical consumer audiences. In recent months theatrical distribution has been sought for several of these films without notable success. Some of the new product will be in documentary form, explaining the operations of a whole industry. Others will constitute direct advertising, explaining the uses and advantages of a particular product. According to present plans they will be produced entirely by the advertisers.

Local committees on consumer education will be set up in cities and towns under the leadership of the Department of Commerce. In many cases committees of local Chambers of Commerce or education units of Granges will be utilized. These committees will order complete film programs from Washington headquarters of the agency or from film depositories to be established in the field. Prints will be available in either 16 or 35 mm.

Showings will be arranged by the committees in church, school, club or civic auditoriums or even in vacant theatres or theatres which operate only one or two days a week. The prints will be owned by the Government, serviced in the agency's depositories and shipped under Government frank as will all bulletins, posters, circulars and other material designed to promote bookings and attendance at the free shows.

Projector Cost To Be Cut

Negotiations are now in progress to make 16 mm sound projectors available to the local consumer education committees at a price considerably below their present average of $400.

Final details for the establishment and operation of the Industrial Film Institute as the agency will be called are now being completed by Frank R. Wilson of the Department of Commerce, who first conceived the idea after a conversation with John D. Biggers, president of the Libby-Owens-Ford Company, last summer. The plan grew out of subsequent talks between Mr. Wilson and the heads of most of the country's major industries. His knowledge and experience of the motion picture field was gained as a financial director of D. W. Griffith, Inc., president of the Producers Finance Corporation, the Motion Picture Capital Corporation, North American Theatres, Inc., and Talking Picture Epics, Inc., and vice-president of the Principal Distributing Corporation.

The membership of the United States Chamber of Commerce, including most of the country's largest advertisers, is ready to participate in the plan and many companies which have not previously been active in the advertising film field are reported considering plans for production.

From shoes and ships and sealing wax down to and including laxatives and hangover elixirs, nearly every commodity blazoned to the public by radio, newspaper, magazine and billboard is or at some time has been the subject of screen advertising, a medium which brought exhibitors in the United States added revenue in excess of $1,500,000 last year and has bulked large in the conversations and plans of advertisers and their agents this year.

All during the life of the theatrical motion picture the screen's 80,000,000 regular weekly patrons have been regarded enviously by sales organizations. The advertiser's problem has been and remains the question of how best to speak his piece without arousing the antagonism of the public, the exhibitor and the press, which more than once has attacked what it considered a diversion of its revenue to a medium to which it devotes columns of publicity.

The evolution of the field has brought two main classifications, called for convenience the sponsored film, of one reel or longer, and the minute movie, short trailers 60 to 120 feet in length. The sponsored film lends itself to further classification into those bearing direct advertising for a specific product and those of a general institutional or promotional nature, finally tapering off to films properly called documentaries.

Furthermore, the line of demarcation between theatrical and non-theatrical is not clearly defined. Many advertising films of one reel or longer which have achieved occasional theatrical distribution were produced primarily for the non-theatrical field with distribution through a special bureau set up by the sponsor or through agencies which specialize in that extensive field. Other pictures, designed primarily for theatrical distribution through various agencies and devices, have been routed to other audiences when the distribution proved unsatisfactory or impossible to obtain on the scale originally planned.

Development of the sponsored film never has attained the degree of stability reached by the minute movie, although attempts to adopt it to extensive use have paralleled successful periods in the history of the short trailers and consequent attraction of the attention of agencies and advertisers. Such cycles of success have been particularly marked in screen advertising. Reasonably they can be linked, as one experienced producer in the field has theorized, with the degree of prosperity of the industry's box-offices. When attendance falls off, it has been pointed out, theatre managers eye thoughtfully and in many cases agree to accept the additional revenue possible for him through placing advertisements on his screen. When business revives he no longer considers the revenue which at best paid only the weekly salary of an usher or two sufficient to justify the possible ill will of his patrons.

Medium Is Time Worn

Minute movies are a direct outgrowth of the lantern slides and curtain advertisements which are as old as the motion picture itself. They were in existence in their present form if not technique in the days before the World War and they are produced and distributed today by established, well-financed companies, at least one of which has been operating for 20 years.

These companies annually distribute thousands of prints to the more than 8,000 theatres which now use the trailers more or less regularly. For showing those prints the theatre owners received in 1937 approximately $1,500,000, and although the business showed a decline in the first months of this year it is estimated that nearly the same amount will have been disbursed by the end of 1938.

The bulk of the business handled by these distributors is the sale of stock library films to local dealers in all sorts of commodities. The dealer contracts for a series of films, advertising the product he sells, to be shown in selected local theatres with his name added to the leader. Services and commodities advertised in stock films currently available include automobile garages and service stations, bakeries, banks, beauty parlors, building materials, cafes, cleaners, dairy and creameries, drug and confectionery, dry goods, florists, flour and feed, fuel and ice, furniture, groceries and markets, hardware and sporting goods, ice cream, insurance, jewelry and optometry, ladies' ready-to-wear clothing, laundries, men's clothing and haberdashery, paint and wallpaper, public utilities, gas and electric companies, plumbing and heating, radios, refrigeration and shoes. Series of films in black and white, and color, are available under all these classifications and on various specialties in each group.

Cooperative Deals Arranged

Many of the trailers feature specific nationally advertised products under a cooperative arrangement with the manufacturer, and it was the growth of this type of advertising which resulted in increased attention to the medium from national advertisers and the formation in 1933 of General Screen Advertising and later of Screen Broadcasts Corporation. These companies arrange cooperative deals for distributing companies which comprise their membership. Recently they have devoted intensive and profitable attention to the sale of the theatrical circulation available through their members to agencies for campaigns on national accounts.

CAN'T FIND WOODEN INDIAN, USE ACTOR

Studio prop departments, proud boasters that they can duplicate any object that the mind of man can conceive and outdo Nature in its own creations, couldn't discover an old fashioned cigar store wooden Indian, nor were MGM's wood carvers eager to hew one out of a tree trunk.

So instead of a wooden Indian, demanded in the script of "Idiot's Delight," the manufacture of which baffled the technicians, an actor will portray the dummy. Naturally the chosen player insisted that his identity remain anonymous.

Feenamint Featured

The extent and success of the resulting campaigns has been as varied as the products advertised. Presently being released is a series on Feenamint, the candy laxative. Now in production is a railroad thriller for National Carbon Company, one of a series tieing in with its magazine advertisements for flashlights. A scenario calling for the rental of a section of railroad and damage to a train resulting from an emergency stop will make it one of the most expensive minute movies ever made. Cartoons in color have appealed especially to advertisers as being certain to win audience sympathy. A series in this medium is being produced for Sinclair Oil.

Automobile manufacturers have been the most consistent and the largest single users of the screen medium. General Motors last year was reported to have spent $2,500,000 for production and distribution of films of all types on its products. The figure this year was reported to have been reduced by more than $1,000,000 following a decline in car sales of 44 per cent in the six months to June, 1938, and a corresponding decrease in earnings of 70 per cent for the same period.

Cigarette compaines have made occasional use of the medium but the latest extensive effort was production late last year of a series of seven minute movies in color featuring the testimonials of Hollywood stars for Lucky Strikes.

Occasional users of minute movies either for national campaigns or dealer cooperative campaigns, in addition to these, include Alka-Seltzer, Bauer & Black Thermat Heat Pad, Delaware & Lackawanna & Western Coal, Old English Wax, Acme White Lead and Paint, Florsheim Shoe, General Electric, Quick Elastic Starch, Norge Refrigerator, Nu-Enamel, Pillsbury Flour, Procter & Gamble, Monarch Coffee, Textile Bag Manufacturing Association, United Gas Corporation, Westinghouse, Dr. Pepper (soft drink), Automatic Butler Stoker, Kerr Mason Jar Company, Philco, RCA and Zenith radios, Zinsmaster Baking Company, Salisbury and Satterlee furniture, Seminole Flavor Company, American Gas Association, California Consolidated Water Company, Armstrong Cork Products Company, Berwind Fuel Company, Willard Batteries, U. S. Industrial Alcohol (anti-freeze), National Carbon Company's Prestone, Ethyl gas, Phillips and Sinclair gas and oil, Goodrich Tire, U. S. Tire, Coca-Cola.

Standard rates quoted by General Screen Advertisers and Screen Broadcasts for the advertising are $3 per thousand average weekly attendance for each booking. Payment to theatres averages about $2 of each $5 received by the distributors for the showings. Circuits receive about $30 a theatre for a week's showing, although as high as $75 has been paid on certain campaigns. Many distributor contracts with circuits have been signed recently, some of them giving the distributor exclusive rights to the circuit's screens.

Early last year national advertisers and their agencies turned their attention to the longer, sponsored film, a medium in which there had been little activity since the collapse in 1931 of a plan initiated by Paramount and Warner Brothers to produce sponsored shorts and guarantee circulation in the distributor-affiliated circuits.

In the comparatively few instances in which it has been tried, theatrical distribution of films carrying direct advertising follows the lines evolved for the minute movies. The distributor pays the theatres to show the film, relying on its entertainment content and interesting presentation to overcome exhibitor and public antagonism. Although several companies specialize in such distribution, there are no standards of comparison. Separate arrangements usually must be made for each picture, since the bookings vary widely, depending on the subject matter and the success with which the producer has combined entertainment and the advertising message.

Several experiments have failed to produce any definition of that dividing line between entertainment and advertising. Some agency executives have maintained that it is possible to produce advertising pictures not only of sufficient entertainment value to gain entree to any screen but even to be given that entree free of charge. Results have not justified their stand. The only films to be played under such conditions have been of a general promotional nature, in the category of public service or public health.

Auto Men Extensive Customers

The automobile industry, again, has been a major factor in the field. Many of the General Motors films which have received theatrical distribution have been of one reel. "Trees and Men," a near documentary film on the lumber industry produced for the Weyerhauser Timber Company, is gaining some circulation in theatres. Latest of three sponsored films to play the Music Hall in Radio City was the United States Steel production, "Men Make Steel," produced in color last year at a cost of $200,000. The company appropriated $15,000 for distribution of the film, which first was shown last spring. Original plans for large scale distribution were abandoned. Recently the film has been booked through states right exchanges.

Previously this year the Music Hall showed a production made for the National Association of Manufacturers and a public health film sponsored by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. "Boy Meets Dog," a cartoon in color advertising Bristol-Myers' Ipana toothpaste, was given scattered theatrical distribution last spring, but plans for further exploitation have been held in abeyance.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX TO THE RELEASE CHART

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

"RUBBER HOSE"

ANY notion that the ultimate designs of some of the New Dealers, after these several amazing years, have by now been completely revealed is to be dismissed, forthwith. Apparently the nation is but at the beginning. Latest of the thrilling wonders comes from that newest of the Administration's stars, Mr. Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, who has decided, obviously with more practical backing than abstract authority, that American business is to be run by the Department of Justice.

Most significant, in sequel to the consent decrees in the Ford and Chrysler anti-trust suits, with their commitments involving restriction of advertising operations, is an amplifying statement from Mr. Wendell Berge, a special assistant attorney general, that:

"These restrictions are of signal importance and are illustrative of the possibilities of obtaining through consent decrees public benefits not actually required by law."

Not so long ago, in the period of the issues between the White House and the Supreme Court, we were being told that the old horse-and-buggy judiciary was in effect usurping the legislative functions of government, vetoing the will of the people as expressed by the law makers. Now, it is made manifest, under the club of suits, prosecution and "consent" decrees, there will be no waiting for the formalities of legislation and the ventilating processes of enactment. It is to be necessary only for the Commissar to decide.

To be sure, the "consent decree" method is not entirely unknown to the traditions of "the law." In the main, however, the technique has been limited to the use of a section of rubber hose in the basement of the police station.

CAMPAIGN

IN an article in the New Republic of November 23, one Mr. Leo H. Lehmann makes attack on the motion picture industry's Production Code, asserting that it is a part of a program of the Catholic Church for censorship of literature, radio, stage and screen.

Specific allegation is made that Mr. Martin Quigley made "the first unified step" with the Code. Says Mr. Lehmann: "Today the Catholic church controls Hollywood through Hollywood's master censor, Joseph I. Breen."

Mr. Lehmann's heated recording tends to defeat its purposes of alarm when it says: ". . . threat of federal censorship, troublesome political censorship boards and general criticism over the quality of productions" made the industry receptive.

What Mr. Lehmann really says is that the industry decided it needed a code as a way out of its difficulties. He does not complete the story by examining the success of its application, nor does he present to his readers the moral precepts of the Code. That would not help his inferential argument. He could hardly make a case if he admitted that the Code asks nothing more esoteric than common decency. It would be hard to be against that, too.

It also would not have made copy in support of the theme to have exposed the fact that Mr. Quigley, with a considerable investment in the institution of the screen, including most of his working career, was in his Code activities vastly interested that it be of service to the industry and its customers. Mr. Lehmann gives Mr. Breen a history unsupported by the facts.

More curious is Mr. Lehmann's statement that the Papal Encyclical of July 2, 1936, "condemned the motion picture industry in no uncertain terms. . . ." Apparently he has not read it. He might have found in that Roman document the observation to the churchmen of America: ". . . you . . . will be able to insist with justice that the industry in your country has recognized and accepted its responsibility before society."

In view of his considerable sojourn in Catholicism and his Catholic scholarship, one might have expected, from Mr. Lehmann, both a more careful and more accurate representation of the papal expression.

HELPFUL HEDDA

NOT so long ago, Mr. Westbrook Pegler, the bitter sage of New Canaan, suggested in print that he was becoming annoyed with columnists, a pontificating lot who about six times a week sit down and dispose, authoritatively, of any or all of the world's problems in a matter of a few hundred words.

An exact exemplification in our own special world of the motion picture is afforded in an outgiving a fortnight ago by Miss Hedda Hopper in Mr. Harry Chandler's Los Angeles Times.

Miss Hopper is charmingly equipped to record the cafe chatter of Hollywood, or even some of the lighter gossip on the studio lots, but a reading indicates that even at the length of two columns of The Times she has not quite comprehended all of the industry's problems in international relations, nor yet the nature and modus operandi of the Production Code. She puts her paper in the position of unskilfully, ineptly, monkeying with the machinery. Maybe she'd better let the machinery alone.

IT MOVES

THERE is that about the state of the world today which makes for a considerable national consciousness. That is at once the reason for both the production and acceptance of "The Declaration of Independence," a romantically patriotic short.

It has had a typically enthusiastic reception at the Radio City Music Hall and Mr. W. G. Van Schmus has written to Mr. Harry Warner: "You would be amazed and gratified at the reception, with applause, not only at the end but breaking out spontaneously during the course of the picture. The subject is one that should be thoroughly familiar to all of us, and yet, somehow, is not. It has been treated with such imagination and dramatic effect it makes a profound impression. I am happy to have had the privilege of showing it on our screen."

61 Taxes on Ticket

Sixteen and four-tenth cents of every dollar paid in motion picture theatre admissions goes to taxes, according to the National Consumers Tax Commission, which cites 81 different federal, state and local taxes that are paid by the public on each ticket purchased.

The taxes are listed on page 12.

Deny Compromise

Individual companies and the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, through Frederick L. Herron, foreign head of the MPPDA, this week denied any possibility of a compromise between Italy and the American film distributors on ENIC, the Italian government's film monopoly, scheduled to become effective December 31st.

The denial was made in answer to a statement by Minister of Popular Culture Alfieri which appeared in the Corriere della Sera, Milan. Alfieri had said, "We have not committed an act of hostility against the American film companies. The proof of this is that the only opposition to the monopoly has been the 'Big Four,' which have declared that they will not accept the system. Other American companies are negotiating with us." The reference to the "Big Four" is understood to mean Loew's, Twentieth Century-Fox, Paramount and Warner Brothers, which maintain their own distribution systems in Italy.

Dilemma

Britain's problem of two "super pictures" on one program, the double feature in American trade parlance, is taking on new significances following the report of the General Council's negotiating committee of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association that the dilemma is unsolvable. At first considered a reflection of a weak position of the independent exhibitor, Wardour Street is beginning to see in the situation an evidence that the distributors as well are victims of the circuits' strength, writes Aubrey Flanagan from London.

The article appears on page 35.

Persecution Protest

Protest movements and benefits designed to aid the victims of persecution in Germany and Italy were launched this week in the motion picture and allied entertainment fields. Endorsement of the Federal Government's action in recalling the United States ambassador to Germany to "conferences" was general.

Plans for benefits and charity drives as well as the latest decrees of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy are reported on page 17.

Folsom Protests

While his company in common with others who allow employees to share in profits, think it "good business" in preventing strikes and rapid labor turnover, he would oppose an "incentive tax" to compel other industrial units to adopt the plan, Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Company, one of the largest manufacturers of motion picture films, this week told the subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee, investigating profit sharing systems.

Eastman employees on March 27, 1939, will shart in the 27th annual wage dividend, since that company's plan started in 1912. The company's directors recently voted that a total of $2,200,000 be paid. All regular employees who are working on March 27, or who have worked all or part of 26 weeks in 1938, will be eligible.

Patent Limitation Denied

The United States supreme court on Monday declined to limit the extent of the monopoly conferred by the ownership of a patent, and rejected appeals of the Department of Justice for judicial limitation of such monopoly.

The issue involved was American Telephone's suit for patent infringement against General Talking Pictures, which was charged with using a vacuum tube in a theatre sound amplifier whereas the license permitted only its use in broadcast reception.

Highlights of the case appear on page 16.

"Films for Democracy"

Denouncing critics of their organization, 300 members and guests of the organizing committee of "Films For Democracy," a "non-profit" organization formed to produce films "educating the people to democracy," at a dinner last Friday in New York City's Town Hall raised almost $3,000 in contributions to promote a fund-raising dinner; heard speakers New York's lieutenant-governor-elect, Charles Poletti, New York University's Dr. Ned Dearborn, and Professors Robert Speer, Henry Pratt Fairchild, others in education and public life praise their organization; and heard plans for production of three films the first year, to cost about $100,000 each..

The story of the meeting is on page 13.

Studying Sound

Hollywood's eight largest studios, working with the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, this week announced another step in their joint program to raise the standards of sound in all theatres.

The new method is in the form of a series of "balancing films," of regular release print types, upon which a 1,000-cycle tone has been recorded to check the volume level balance between the minimum two projectors in theatre booths to enable projectionists to present a complete show without unwarranted changes in the loudness or softness of the dialogue or music.

Statistical Marathon

The Federal Communications Commission's widely heralded investigation of "monopoly" in the radio broadcasting industry bogged down this week in a morass of statistics on programs, writers, actors and comparative number of receiving sets. Less than half the witnesses to be heard for the National Broadcasting Company had appeared and none of the array expected to be marshaled by Mutual and Columbia.

The proceedings are condensed on page 21.

Television Rules

Pressure is being brought to bear on the Federal Communications Commission, following recent announcement of the impending removal of the medium from its experimental phase to the public domain, to bring about the formulation of standards, rules and wave band assignments. Such formulation would permit television broadcasters to sell advertising on sponsored programs.

The objections of Commission engineers and developments in the field are outlined on page 32.

Anticipation

The program of trade practice self-regulation to be formulated by the distributor-exhibitor round table conferences remained in the speculative phases with whatever commitments agreed upon kept secret pending revelation of the complete plans. Representatives of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America are to resume discussion with the distributors' committee on December 8th, but dates for further conferences with Allied and the non-affiliated units have not been set. The government's suit was seen in Washington Wednesday as precluding anti-film legislation in the next session of Congress.

No Relief

No mention was made of the motion picture industry in the trade treaty signed last week by representatives of Great Britain and the United States in spite of the hope of American companies that the negotiations might result in relief from some of the provisions of the new British Films Act. A treaty signed at the same time with Canada, however, granted duty reductions on colored positive prints not made in Canada and on black and white "emergency" positives occasionally imported from the United States.

The treaties are discussed on page 14.

Arnold Wants Congressional Fund For "Business Control" Program

Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, on Tuesday disclosed in Washington that he would seek additional funds from Congress to expand the activities of his division, eventually setting up regional offices in leading cities to prosecute anti-trust violations. Mr. Arnold's division for more than two years has had scores of investigators in the field of motion picture practice, resulting, for one thing, in the current U. S. suit against the majors. Also, the Department only recently filed a criminal contempt trust proceeding against the majors in Chicago, and is continuing investigations elsewhere.

Mr. Arnold Tuesday told newspapermen that his division will need 150 additional investigators and lawyers to carry out expanded plans, giving further evidence of the United States Government's "business control" program.

Mr. Arnold denied that the Justice Department desired to control advertising. Referring to the Ford and Chrysler consent decrees, he said that the anti-trust division did not want to control advertising. This was a purely isolated case, he added. Furthermore, he emphasized that in the movie industry anti-trust action he foresaw no curb of advertising.

What Happened

Associated Press Wednesday cabled from London that Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, had told the House of Commons that the British government acted in conjunction with Joseph P. Kennedy to suppress a Paramount newsreel which, the British government felt, might have had "a prejudicial effect" during the Chechoslovakian crisis and that Sir John had said his government believed the newsreel would have hampered Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in his conference with Adolph Hitler at Godesberg on the Rhine late in September.

Ambassador Kennedy, told of Sir John's statement, said that it was "inaccurate to give the impression" that he "personally took any action which caused the newsreel to be changed." The ambassador explained, according to Associate Press, that he merely referred the matter to the office of Will H. Hays in the United States and did not know that the Hays organization had taken action in the matter.

The Paramount organization received Sir John's praise for their "sense of public duty," but opposition in Commons cried "government cersorship."

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, said the matter never had come to the attention of the home office and that the newsreel sequence referred to, giving criticisms of Chamberlain's policies from the "man-on-the-street"—was intended solely for local British consumption, and would not ordinarily have been sent to the American newsreel.

A representative delegation from Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America is expected to attend the eighth international conference of North and South American states which will meet in Lima, Peru, December 9, according to the State Department.

The announced intention was interpreted as an attempt of the film industry to forestall a spread, to this side, of "nationalistic" curbs on American pictures, which have closed or restricted a number of European markets.

At the Hays office in New York it was emphatically denied that any MPPOA representative or home office representative would attend the conference—except newsreel men.

Ticket Code

Efforts of the League of New York Theatres to make Broadway ticket brokers adhere to the code to limit advances to a maximum of 75 cents per ticket are receiving new support, with plans for additional legislation towards that end being discussed Monday by theatrical interests at a meeting with Paul Moss, N. Y. C. license commissioner, and Howard Spellman, city councilman. Mr. Spellman will introduce a bill before the City Council to compel theatre owners to limit the resale price; and Mr. Moss, in January, intends to sponsor a bill before the state legislature to transfer the licensing power over ticket agencies to cities.

PUBLIC PAYS 61 TAXES ON TICKETS TO FILMS, SAYS CONSUMERS GROUP

Sixteen and Four-Tenths Cents of the Dollar in Most Cases Is Diverted, Commission Finds; Forty-one Federal Levies

Sixteen and four-tenths cents of most of the dollars that go through the box office windows of motion picture theatres in the United States are diverted to taxes, the public, exhibitors and the industry generally paying 61 taxes, mostly indirect, on each ticket, 41 of them of a federal nature, 20 levied by state and local governments.

This state of affairs is cited by the National Consumers Tax Commission, which has headquarters in Chicago and active units working in each of the 48 states and in the District of Columbia, to point out burdensome taxation on business, which passes the taxes on to the consuming public.

The Commission, a non-profit non-partisan organization, according to its statement, fights to protect the public against excessive taxes and to get relief for the public from existing heavy taxation. Mrs. Kenneth C. Frazier, of Dallas, is national president, leading a national committee of 48.

Practically All "Hidden"

The Commission's investigation of the tax situation as it concerns theatre tickets was conducted over an extended period, and its conclusions in this instance are based on its own tax figures and on official reports compiled by the Bureau of Home Economics Division of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The taxes are all "hidden," with the lone exception of the "labeled" federal and state admission taxes. In the case of the Federal admission tax, of course, only tickets priced more than 40 cents are taxed.

The "hidden" taxes range all the way from the general property tax to tire and tube taxes paid by those who transport motion pictures between the exchanges and theatres, and include taxes paid by the film manufacturer, producer, distributor and exhibitor. They are listed by the Consumers Tax Commission as all being passed on to the buying public, and include the following:

Taxes Paid by Film Manufacturer

1. Federal Income
2. Federal Capital Stock Value
3. Unemployment Compensation
4. Old Age Benefit
5. Excess Profits

U. S. TAX RECEIPTS OFF LAST YEAR'S

Federal admission tax collections for October, for the seventh successive month, were under those of the corresponding period last year, it was disclosed by figures made public Wednesday by the Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington.

Receipts for the month, the bureau reported, totaled $1,596,367, a drop of $72,000 from the September revenue of $1,668,827 and $370,000 under the October, 1937, total of $1,966,617.

Collections for the 10 months ended with October were $785,000 under those of the same period last year, totaling $15,655,832 against $16,441,430. The greater part of this loss has taken place since June 30, bureau records for the first four months of the current fiscal year placing total admission tax collections at $6,309,070 compared with $6,921,416 last year, a drop of $612,346.

Accessory Sales of Drive at $197,777

Accessory sales in the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year drive have mounted to $197,777 or $100,000 over the figure quoted since the recent presentation by Howard Dietz of the report of the advertising committee.

The sale of a million additional Movie Quiz booklets also has been reported by campaign headquarters since the October total of 30,000,000.

All newsreels will give notice to the public of the closing weeks of the $250,000 Quiz contest.

Trailer No. 10, completed by National Screen Service, will be distributed through the campaign's regular exchanges. The trailer ties in with the holiday season; the announcer appears as Santa Claus, distributing gifts in the form of prizes.

The latest oversea request for Movie Quiz booklets comes from Surrey, England. Similar inquiries have come from Bombay, India, Mexico, Japan and Norway. Only residents of the United States and Canada are eligible.

Supreme Court Will Hear ASCAP Appeals in January

The United States supreme court in the first week of January will hear appeals by American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers against legality of legislation in Washington and Florida. ASCAP's attack against the Nebraska legislation, to be heard in federal court in Lincoln, Neb., will be delayed until after the first of the year.

ACCEPT "DEMOCRACY" FILMS OR FACE ROADSHOWS, THEATRES ARE TOLD

Woman Speaker Praises "Publicity" Given Spanish Loyalists at Dies Hearings; Another Calls "Concealed Propaganda" Best

Some 300 guests of the organizing committee of Films for Democracy, at a dinner last Friday in New York City's Town Hall, applauded a condemnation of critics of their organization and heard New York's lieutenant governor-elect, Charles Poletti, declare:

"We have to fight damn hard for democracy and for civil liberties."

A warning was sounded to the motion picture industry that if theatres do not accept the organization's films, the group will "road-show" them, with the help of organized labor.

Paid or pledged was $2,789 and plans were announced for a fund-raising dinner with 1,000 guests expected.

The first three pictures will be made at a total cost of $250,000, the Town Hall meeting was told.

The organization, formed some four months ago, mainly through the efforts of its executive secretary, Samuel Rodman, proposes to "safeguard and extend" democracy, choosing motion pictures as the most effective means of "educating" the public.

Mr. Rodman refused to reveal any of his background to MOTION PICTURE HERALD, unless a copy of the story to be written on the dinner was submitted to him. At the dinner Mr. Rodman indicated that he had spoken in behalf of Loyalist Spain to various groups in several cities; and the offices of North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy said that Mr. Rodman had spoken under their auspices on various occasions.

Correspondent in Spain and Russia

In relating his own entrance into the organization, Dr. Ned Dearborn, chairman of the organizing committee, and dean of the New York University division of general education, revealed that Mr. Rodman's "enthusiasm for democracy" was a result of Mr. Rodman's experiences as a correspondent of the London News Chronicle, newspaper with "decidedly liberal" views, in Spain, Russia and other countries.

In the group discussion following the speeches, one woman "praised" the "publicity" which the Dies Congressional Committee, investigating un-American affairs, had given the North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy, of which she was a member. The audience applauded her.

Robert Dell, representative of the Manchester Guardian, one of England's great newspapers, speaking as a guest, declared the group should bear in mind that "the best form of propaganda is concealed propaganda." He reminded them of "Russian pictures like 'Potemkin,' which appealed to everyone, and therefore got hold of the unconverted."

Roadshows If Not Approved

Another guest asked whether the films to be produced by the organization could be distributed without the approval of "the Hays organization," to which Mr. Dudley Murphy, director for Paramount of "One Third of a Nation," replied that there was no reason to doubt that the Hays office would give its approval, as "We all know that Mr. Hays believes in democracy"—whereupon laughter arose from the gathering.

JUDGE DENIES FILMS AID JUVENILE CRIME

Judge Henry S. Waldman of the Union County, New Jersey, juvenile court, this week answered allegations that some films contribute to juvenile crime and delinquency. Not one of the 4,000 children who have appeared in his court in the last seven years started on a delinquent career as a result of "going to the movies," the judge said, adding "A study of the film going habits of 198 delinquent girls and boys in our court during 1937 disproves the theory that delinquent children are interested only in gangster pictures. The cowboy is a greater hero to the boys than the gangster."

Mr. Rodman, in answering the same question, said that the films, if not approved by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, would be "roadshown," and seen by the Visual Educational Committee of The Congress for Industrial Organization, and the membership of the American Federation of Labor.

Speakers of the evening, Judge Poletti, Professor Dearborn, Susan Brandeis, of the New York State board of regents; Paul Kern, president of the Municipal Civil Service Commission; Helen Hall, of the Henry Street Settlement; Fred MacPeak, of Jam Handy Picture Corporation, producers of films for industry, and Dudley Murphy—praised the movement, pledged their support.

Judge Poletti expressed pleasure in being with "men and women who are fighting for democracy." Mr. Kern advocated use of the "same type of propaganda which has been so long and so successfully used by our enemies," and pointed to Frontier Films pictures as showing "the practicability of the job upon which we are about to embark."

"Yearning to Express Themselves"

Mr. Murphy, asserted many players, story writers, and technicians in Hollywood were "yearning" for a chance "to express themselves." He said they were high priced for capitalist enterprises, but would give their services cheaply for the organization, and that pictures at a cost of $100,000 each were entirely practical.

The real vehemence of the evening was reserved for an editorial by Martin Quigley, publisher, in last week's MOTION PICTURE HERALD and Motion Picture Daily, and one in the HERALD by Terry Ramsaye, editor of the HERALD. The editorials criticized the organization for its special pleading, its leftist sponsors, and its determination to invade the entertainment screen.

With a copy of Motion Picture Daily in his hands, Professor Robert K. Speer, head of the elementary education department of New York University, and treasurer of Films for Democracy, referred to the editorial "by a man named Martin Quigley." Said Professor Speer:

"Reactionaries are not concerned with ordinary democratic movements; they are ineffective. Reactionaries attack those movements which are effective. Their instant response indicates we are effective."

Professor Speer then read congratulatory messages from actor Fredric March and Judge Julian Mack, and shouted, waving the Motion Picture Daily above his head:

"And these are the answers to Martin Quigley!"

Sociologist Replies

Professor Henry Pratt Fairchild, head of the sociology department of the New York University graduate school, referred to the editorials with the remark that, "in this instance, I am inclined to believe that the critics are more ill than the thing they criticize."

Copies of the Daily and the HERALD had been circulated among the guests before the dinner, and then had been handed to Professor Speer before he made his "reply."

Telegrams from Thomas Mann, Franz Boas, Herman Shumlin, Libby Holman, Kirk Mather, Lee Pressman, Will Rogers, Jr., Carleton Beals, Abraham Flexner and others were read to the gathering.

Mr. Rodman outlined plans for a fund raising dinner which would be attended by 1,000, with Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, as probable honor guest. Plans for such a dinner were dependent on the response of those present, he said: $2,789 was pledged at the Friday meeting.

Committee and Board Members

Members of the organizing committee of Films For Democracy are Dr. Dearborn, chairman; Hadley Cantril, Helen Hall, George S. Counts, Arthur Hopkins, Gardner Jackson, Paul J. Kern, Clyde R. Miller, Dudley Nichols, Jesse H. Newlon, Louise Pearson, Harry Scherman, George Seldes, Herman Shumlin, Sigmund Spaeth, Ordway Tead, Frank P. Walsh, Percival Wilde, Robert K. Speer, Samuel J. Rodman.

On the advisory board are Mary E. Woolley, Sherwood Anderson, James W. Angell, James L. Brewer, Dr. A. A. Paramount Censor Authority Calls "Zaza" Reports False

Luigi Luraschi, Paramount studio censorship authority, this week branded as untrue published reports that "Zaza," production starring Claudette Colbert and Herbert Marshall, has been denied a Production Code Administration certificate. Reports described by Mr. Luraschi as unfounded were that a basic story situation and a French music hall staging of a can-can dance number were in conflict with PCA standards as presented. He said retakes and editing will require three weeks.

NO RELIEF FOR FILMS IN BRITISH TRADE PACT

Canadian Import Duty on Positive Films Reduced to 2¼¢ a Foot; Excise Tax Dropped

American motion picture companies were given no relief from England's quota restrictions in the new reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and the United Kingdom, signed last Thursday afternoon by President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull, secretary of state, and by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, and Arnold Overton, second secretary of the British Board of Trade.

There had been some anticipations during the treaty negotiations that the friendship of Joseph P. Kennedy for the motion picture industry might result in some concessions. Mr. Kennedy, former motion picture executive, had been appointed ambassador to the Court of St. James's at London at about the time negotiations were started, early in the year.

Aside from the usual provisions that the contracting parties will afford fair and equitable treatment to each other's products in cases where quotas or other limitations on imports are imposed, the only mention of films in the British treaty was the binding of present duty status by ten of the British colonies whose imports of American pictures range only from $1,735 to $113,829 a year.

Canadian Import Duty Cut

In a second agreement, with Canada, signed at the same time, however, the American picture industry was given definite recognition by a provision for a reduction in the Canadian import duty on positive films from three to two and one-quarter cents per linear foot, and the erasing of the special three per cent excise tax on U. S. film imports. This is the first agreement on films to be made by Canada, the original pact, signed in 1936, making no provision for any concession on motion pictures. Canadian imports of positive films last year were valued at $254,000.

The reduced duty on films will go into effect January 1, the effective date of the treaty. Actual abolishment of the special excise tax will not take place until the Canadian Parliament passes the necessary legislation. Parliament is scheduled to convene January 12. With the exception of the special excise tax, there is no major change in tariff or taxation advertising accessories.

Both for Three Years

The greatest Canadian gain in the matter of actual films will be the duty reduction on colored positive prints not made in Canada and on black and white "emergency" positives occasionally imported from the United States. There will be little effect on the cost in Canada of black and white positive films which are made in Dominion laboratories from master negatives brought in from the U. S. for the purpose. All colored prints are imported, however, and the socalled "emergency" prints are the occasional pictures which are required after the master negative has been returned to the U. S. The cost of printing a positive in Canada is three cents per foot while the cost of American-made positive is 4¾ cents per foot in the Dominion. This difference, it is believed, will warrant the continuance of the present procedure of making prints in Canada.

The British agreement also will become effective January 1, 1939. Both run for three years, during which tariff reductions or concessions are granted by the countries on a total of 1,000 products.

Among the tariff concessions granted the United States on goods entering the United Kingdom is a reduction from 33 1/3 to 25 per cent ad valorem in the duty on theatre sound amplifiers and loud speakers.

Present duty status under the British pact is protected against changes in the colonies of Bahamas, British Guiana, British Honduras, Ceylon, Federated Malay States, Fiji, Gold Coast, Jamaica, Northern Rhodesia and Trinidad and Tobago, whose total imports of American films in 1936 amounted to but $390,000.

Aside from the binding of colony rates there was no mention of films in the 170-page British agreement.

Few New Operations In Film Securities

Operations of officers and directors of film companies in the securities of their corporations continued in low volume in September, it was reported Tuesday by the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington in its semi-monthly summary of such transactions.

The only activities noted were the acquisition of 700 Universal Corporation common voting trust certificates by Daniel M. Sheaffer, of Philadelphia, a director; and the disposition of 600 shares of Paramount common by Y. Frank Freeman, New York, an officer, and the acquisition, through his wife, of 600 shares of the company's second preferred stock.

The report showed that at the close of the month Mr. Sheaffer held 15,500 Universal Corporation voting trust certificates direct and, through Standard Capital Company, 26,500 certificates and 111,283 common voting trust certificate warrants. The disposition of 600 shares of Paramount common by Mr. Freeman cleaned out his holdings in that class and the acquisition of 600 shares of second preferred was his first in that class.

George J. Shaefer, elected an officer in Keith Albee Orpheum October 21st, held no equity securities in the company on that date, it was shown.

New Film Law Book in India

A two volume work titled "The Law Relating to Places of Entertainment and Amusement" has just been issued in the first edition. The author, K. Venkoba Rao, advocate in the High Court in Madras, India, has covered the whole field of entertainment as it relates to law. In the preface, Mr. Rao mentions the many types of litigation possible in the motion picture field alone, and says, "The present work is an attempt to present the various aspects of these types of cases and elucidate them on authority and criticize them on principle."

In the first chapter of his book the author sketches the outlines in different countries of the industry which, he says, "typifies the entertainment having the largest popular appeal in modern times—namely, the screen." In that chapter, various film bills are discussed, including the British Films Act of 1938, which raised the American quota, and which is summarized in the chapter.

Chapter 3 deals with motion picture theatres; in chapter 4 libel by sound films is discussed. In chapter 11 is an outline of the American law relating to places of entertainment, along with a summary of distribution contracts and an abstract of opinions in some outstanding film cases. Chapter 12 gives a complete report and history of the Cinematograph Films Bill, and changes sustained before passage by parliament. Among the many special appendices is one on New York state Bills affecting the industry.—W. S.

Normandie Theatre Opening

Tri-National's picture, "Sacrifice D'Honneur," will be the feature at the opening next Wednesday of the new Normandie theatre, on Park Avenue and Fifty-Third Street, New York City. The picture was made in France, is English-titled, is distributed in the U. S. by Tri-National Films, Inc.

"Great Waltz" Contest

About 1,500 cities in virtually every state will have participated in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Great Waltz" contest by the time the finals are held at the Waldorf-Astoria December 12th, according to William R. Ferguson, exploitation manager.

Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, will be guest at a testimonial dinner at the Congress hotel in Chicago December 2d. Henri Elman, Chicago Monogram manager, is handling reservations.

George Friedl, Jr., director of sound engineering, International Projector Corporation, left Tuesday for Hollywood to cooperate with producers in use of the Simplex Four Star Sound System.

The "March of Time" radio program will go off the air December 2d. Time Magazine has been sponsoring the program, and another sponsor has not been found.

Consolidated Film Industries has declared a dividend of 25 cents on the preferred stock, payable December 27th to stockholders of record December 5th.

Denmark's Press Pares Publicity

by KRIS WINTHER
in Copenhagen

Motion picture publicists in Denmark are faced with a difficult problem following the announcement from the Copenhagen Editorial Board to the effect that advance notices in the daily press are to be limited to one picture and 10 lines reading matter on any one motion picture to be released in this country.

This gives the distributor's publicist (in Denmark practically all publicity work in connection with the press, whether daily or periodical, must be arranged by the distributor) the choice between publicizing his picture in the Sunday supplements of the big circulation dailies about two months in advance of the premiere and leaving the weekly and monthly publications out in the cold when the picture finally appears, or dropping publicity in the supplements and stressing space in weeklies and monthlies about a week before an opening.

The view generally held by the publicists is that all publicity should appear at about the time of the release and that publicity appearing a month or more before this date is virtually wasted effort.

The Copenhagen Editorial Board is comprised of the editors-in-chief of the 10 Copenhagen dailies. It is known that the motion was made by Niels Hasager of Politiken, largest circulation daily in the city, but, beyond this fact, no other information for the motive is available.

Major Plans Three Films

Walter Futter and Leslie Howard, who recently formed Major Pictures, Ltd., arrived this week on the Normandie. Mr. Futter said the company plans to make three pictures in England, with Howard starring, production to start in January. Stories lined up include "The Mississippi Bubble" and "The Life of General Gordon," the latter in color. Sir James Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton" will also be made if the rights can be cleared.

Censors Protest "Birth"

First official act of the new "moral welfare" board (of censors) in Wausau, Wis., has been to oppose showing of "The Birth Of a Baby." The Ritz theatre played it six days, barring children under 10.

RKO Radio has authorized first-run engagements for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" during Christmas Week, Jules Levy, general sales manager for the company, said this week.

Mae West's first starring vehicle to be made by her Mae West Empire Productions will be a musical instead of "Catherine the Great." The film is to get under way early in January.

Newsreel Theatres, Inc., will open a new house on December 2d in the Associated Press Building, Rockefeller Center, New York. The house is in the same block as the Music Hall.

A second newsreel theatre has opened on Hollywood Boulevard east of Vine Street, Los Angeles.

CANADA TO USE FILMS AS PROPAGANDA AID

John Grierson, British Government Officer, in Montreal on Call to Start Project

by COLIN R. HAWORTH
in Montreal

Canada, first to governmentally engage in film production, beginning about 1914, is to again engage in screen production activity, and again in exploitation of the physical resources of the Dominion.

Canada's plans to organize the governmental production of motion pictures about the Dominion came out into the open Monday with the arrival in Montreal of John Grierson, British Government film officer, from London, aboard the liner Montrose. (Picture in pictorial section). On a visit to Canada earlier in the year Mr. Grierson had looked into the project and left, "indefinite" as to what might be done by Canadians; this time, however, he admitted he had been summoned by cable from the government at Ottawa, to start a project.

Mr. Greierson's ultimate aim is to have Canadians, both governmental and private producers, turning out "documentary" films dealing with Canadian life and progress, with the airways of the Dominion, its mines, farming, the development of the MacKenzie river, wheat growing and other such subjects, films such as those produced by the "alphabetical" agencies of the Administration in the United States.

The Briton's stay in Canada is of undetermined length, but will probably be three months. During that time he says he will make Ottawa his headquarters and act in an advisory capacity rather than take control. He hopes to demonstrate to Canadians the manner in which documentary film work has been done in England with success.

The first Canadian motion picture enterprise was founded and conducted by B. E. Norrish, who had entered the government service in connection with water power surveys for the department of natural resources. Early Canadian pictures were distributed as "scenics" on the General Film Company's program entered by the Essanay Film Company of Chicago.

About 1920, in sequel to its successful sponsorship of pictorial presentations of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada on the world screen, the Canadian Pacific railway participated in the formation of The Associated Screen News, Montreal, with Mr. Norrish as its managing director. At this point the official government film activity began to approach a diminuendo, releases became infrequent, their screen showings few. This condition has obtained for many years.

First Film Enterprise

The films produced under the new scheme in all probability will be distributed not only abroad for their publicity value to Canada but at home too. According to the visitor from London, local government officials, including the premier, MacKenzie King, and many cabinet members, are impressed with the value of such films as a means to develop national unity in Canada, overcoming petty provincial prejudices which exist due to the Dominion's territorial vastness and the consequent remoteness between persons in different sectors.

Local Dominion distribution, however, presents a problem. For while exhibitors in England are now using such pictures with success, Canadian exhibitors are inclined to frown on them. This might be counteracted, Mr. Gierson thought, by the showing of the films in small town halls, churches and other public buildings where exhibitors will not run them.

The field for the production of films dealing with Canada is excellent, he believes. The government here is anxious to undertake it; private producers are equally eager, and exhibitors overseas, disappointed by the standard of Canadian films, are more than willing to provide an outside market, according to Mr. Grierson. He is not, however, sure of other markets.

The dramatization of such subjects, he points out, does not mean fictionization. Facts alone will guide the production of each film, but they will be assembled and presented in a fashion that gives entertainment value to the reels, he hopes.

To Be Shown at Fair

This system of dealing with subjects, which when mishandled can be dull, uninteresting shows, has proved its value in England, the Briton claims. English producers, he said, have so captured the knack that the films have become a feature in the home market. This style of production he says will be amply exhibited to the American public at the New York World's Fair next year when England's exhibit opens a motion picture section there.

Mr. Grierson's plan to organize the documentary film industry in Canada is based on the principle of employing newspapermen experienced in "digging out the real story." It is, he claims, "much the same system used in building up the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation." In this regard he already has forwarded to Ottawa a list of names, gathered on his first visit here, of suitable or interested men.

During his stay in America Mr. Grierson will co-operate with Frank C. Badgley, director of the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau at Ottawa and Mr. Norrish, of Associated Screen News, Ltd., in Montreal.

U. A. Theatre Circuit To Reelect Leaders

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO ACT ON PLEA TO LIMIT MONOPOLY OF PATENT

Rejects Appeal of Department of Justice in Reaffirming Its Decision Against General Talking Pictures Corporation

Rejecting appeals of the Department of Justice for judicial limitation upon the extent of the monopoly conferred by the ownership of a patent, the United States Supreme court on Monday reaffirmed the decision handed down last May in the vacuum tube patents case of the Telephone Company against General Talking Pictures Corporation, holding General to have been guilty of patent infringement by the use, in sound equipment for theatres, of amplifiers limited by license notice thereon by American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its subsidiary, Western Electric, to certain types of radio reception.

The court's action leaves undecided the question raised by General and the Justice Department as to whether a patent holder may control the "use" to which the patented article is put by a purchaser who acquires it "in the ordinary channels of trade". The court ruled that in the present case this question did not need to be answered.

The case was watched with interest by large patent holders both within and outside the picture business.

The rehearing of the A T & T case resulted in an intervention by the Government on the grounds that the court's first decision last spring would extend patent monopolies in a manner not intended by Congress. The Government argued that a patent holder had no legal right to control the use of his patent article once he had sold it or permitted it to be sold in ordinary trade channels.

Says U. S. Question Has No Bearing

In the majority opinion delivered by Mr. Justice Brandeis, the supreme court ruled that the vacuum tubes had not "passed into the hands of a purchaser in the ordinary channels of trade," and that consequently the Government's question had no bearing on the case.

The action had arisen when General purchased certain A T & T patented vacuum tube articles from American Transformer Company, an A T & T licensed vendor, used the tube in the manufacture of motion picture theatre sound equipment and then leased this equipment to others. Since the tubes bore a license notice restricting their use to amateur, experimental and broadcast radio reception, A T & T, through its subsidiary, the patent holder, claimed infringement.

General corporation argued that no infringement was involved since royalties had been paid and no changes made in the tubes. This contention was rejected by the court.

Black and Reed Dissent

As was the case last May, also, the U. S. high court divided on the question, five members joining in the majority opinion to which Associate Justices Hugo L. Black and Stanley Reed dissented, while Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts took no part.

As a result of the court's decision, General Talking Pictures is liable for triple damages.

MONOPOLY INQUIRY TO GO INTO PATENTS

Restriction of patented devices and its effect on the national economy will be the first order of business of the Congressional-Executive Monopoly Investigating Committee, Senator O'Mahoney, its chairman, said last week after a conference with President Roosevelt.

Senator O'Mahoney said the committee probably would begin hearings the first week of December and would continue in session, after an adjournment for the Christmas holidays, for "as long as is necessary to tell the story." Government investigators now engaged in making studies on which the inquiry is based will be the first witnesses to testify, the Senator told the Washington press.

Pointing out that the American Transformer Company was one of a number licensed by the A T & T "patent pool" and that its activities were restricted by its license to manufacture and sale for use in certain specified fields, the court explained:

"Transformer Company, knowing that it had not been licensed to manufacture or to sell amplifiers for use in theatres as part of talking picture equipment, made for that commercial use the amplifiers in controversy and sold them to Pictures Corporation for that commercial use. Pictures Corporation ordered the amplifiers and purchased them knowing that Transformer Company had not been licensed to make or sell them for such use in theatres. Any use beyond the valid terms of a license is, of course, an infringement of a patent. If where a patented invention is applicable to different uses, the owner of the patent may legally restrict a licensee to a particular field and exclude him from others, Transformer Company was guilty of an infringement when it made the amplifiers for, and sold them, to Pictures Corporation. And as Pictures Corporation ordered, purchased and leased them knowing the facts, it also was an infringer."

Calls Restriction Legal

Referring to past decisions holding that a restrictive license is legal, the opinion held that "as the restriction was legal and the amplifiers were made and sold outside the scope of the license, the effect is precisely the same as if no license whatsoever had been granted to Transformer Company. And as Pictures Corporation knew the facts, it is in no better position than if it had manufactured the amplifiers itself without a license. It is liable because it has used the invention without license to do so.

"We have consequently no occasion to consider what the rights of the parties would have been if the amplifier had been manufactured 'under the patent' and 'had passed into the hands of a purchaser in the ordinary channels of trade.' Nor have we occasion to consider the effect of a 'licensee's notice' which purports to restrict the use of articles lawfully sold."

Asserting that in decisions reaching back almost a century the court has held that when a patented article is sold and passes into the hands of a purchaser it is no longer within the limits of the monopoly conferred by the patent, Associate Justice Black, in his dissenting opinion, charged that the majority had returned to an interpretation of the patent law which was expressly overruled within five years.

"In result," he declared, "the judgment here is a second departure from the traditional judicial interpretation of the patent laws."

Triple Damages Ordered

"As a consequence of the return to the interpretation of the patent statutes previously repudiated and expressly overruled," he commented, "petitioner is enjoined from making full use of, and must account in triple damages for using, tubes and amplifiers which he owns. . . . The departure here permits the patentee—by virtue of his contract with the manufacturer—to restrict the uses to which this purchaser and owner may put his tubes and amplifiers."

Even the contract authorizing the Transformer Company to make and sell the amplifiers provided that they should be considered as sold when billed out, delivered, shipped or mailed.

"Notice to the purchaser in any form could not—under the patent law—limit or restrict the use of the amplifiers after they were sold and knowledge by both vendor and purchaser that the articles were purchased for use outside the 'field' for which the vendor had been given the right to sell, made the transaction between them no less a sale," Mr. Black continued. "Had petitioner—after making the purchase—decided not to use these amplifiers in the forbidden fields, or had they been destroyed prior to such use, certainly the mere state of mind of the parties at the time of sale would not have made them both infringers.

"Petitioner has persistently contended throughout this litigation that no existing trade practice permits a patentee—under guise of a "license"—to extend his monopoly to commodities after sale, and has not stipulated otherwise. Neither stipulation nor practice could justify extension of patent monopoly beyond the limits of legality fixed by Congress and recognized by this court for over three-quarters of a century," he concluded.

Griffith Promotes Five

Five promotions of Griffith Amusement Company managers include Carl Benefiel, city manager at Enid, Okla., to Pampa, Tex., as city manager; George Limerick, Cleburne, Tex., manager, to Enid, succeeding Mr. Benefiel; Frank Aydelotte, city manager at Drumright, to Cleburne, as city manager; Galy Varnell, Hugo, Okla., city manager, to Drumright in the same capacity, and Taylor Joyce, assistant at Griffith's Stillwater, Okla., theatre, will manage two Griffith theatres in Hugo, Okla., as city manager.

The original stockholders of International Cinema, Inc., independent laboratory on the west coast, have organized a new corporation, Cinema Laboratories, Inc., which this week purchased for $70,000 the physical assets of the laboratory at a bankruptcy sale. Under the deal, which must be consummated in 30 days, creditors will receive 30 per cent cash for their claims and 40 per cent in preferred stock of the new corporation.

Charles F. Iles and H. E. McKinney, owners of the Iowa Film Delivery Company, have purchased the Meadows Transfer Company, Des Moines.

PROTESTS AND BENEFITS IN SHOW BUSINESS FOLLOW NAZI'S ATTACKS

Italy Restricts Business Activities; Mexico's Censors Snip Mussolini from Newsreel; Berlin Press Attacks March of Time

Protest meetings against the Nazis' treatment of Jews in Germany, and benefits for those being "purged" were opened this week in several quarters in the motion picture business and allied amusement fields, from Broadway to Hollywood.

At the same time, press services reported from Rome that 15,000 Jews in Italy had lost their jobs under Il Duce's edict of November 10th, aimed particularly against the holding of government positions by "non-Aryans", and was also restricting them in general business and professions, presumably including motion pictures.

Three German refugees, who arrived Tuesday in New York from Berlin, on the Veendam, will seek employment with American film companies. They were in the business in Germany. One, Franz Paul Wisbar, formerly connected with Terra and UFA, will confer with W. Ray Johnston at Monogram about a possible contract before going to Hollywood. The others are Theodor Daniel Bachenheimer, stage manager and director, and Kurt Dry, song writer.

The decree last week of Italy's Minister of Propaganda, Dino Alfieri, barring all foreign cartoon characters except Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Popeye, is of little effect because the American distributors are withdrawing from that market anyway, on January 1st, as a result of another Mussolini decree creating a governmental monopoly in distribution.

Il Duce, in turn, was deleted from newsreels appearing in Mexico City where censors scissored shots of the Italian dictator playing golf, on the grounds that showing the Fascist chieftain indulging in such a non-proletarian diversian would hardly do.

A note from the United States to Germany, asking formal assurances that the decree ousting Jews from business enterprises does not apply to those holding American citizenship, was presented at the Foreign Office in Washington on Monday.

Just being released is March of Time's "Uncle Sam—the Good Neighbor," which treats of the activities of the U. S. State Department in counteracting Nazi Germany's influence and bid for power in South and Central America, as well as Germany's challenge in Europe and Japan's in China.

UA Condemns Nazi Policy

Murray Silverstone, chairman of the executive committee of United Artists, this week sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

"We heartily applaud your courageous sentiments against the outrages committed on a defenseless and innocent people by the Nazi regime. We, the undersigned, in the motion picture industry, express our grateful appreciation for your humanitarian views. You have ably voiced the feeling of horror and indignation of the American people toward Nazi brutality, and we all earnestly hope in pursuance with your high ideals that, at the proper moment, you will use your great influence towards obtaining a discontinuance of all relationship with a nation that has such wanton disregard for human rights."

NAZI POLICIES HURT FILMS, SAYS 'NATION'

The "escape-from-reality" themes so dominant in current German films; the expulsion of that country's best writers, directors, producers, and actors; the throttling of its export markets by boycotts instituted in reprisal against German governmental measures; the amassing taboos which make almost impossible the producing of a script good enough to avoid cutting which hampers coherence in the production—these are given as factors of the dilemma facing the German motion picture industry, in an article in the Nation, of November 19, entitled "Films in Nazi Germany."

The result, according to the article, has been a drastic drop in exports.

The telegram was signed by the executives of the Samuel Goldwyn, Alexander Korda and United Artists organizations.

The film division of the Theatre Arts Committee, in New York, gathered a large number of additional signatures which were appended to the same message.

Mary Pickford, speaking in Washington, denounced dictators, demanded that women back a big national defense program.

Calling Hitler "mad as a March hare," she predicted that "when he finishes with the Jews he will turn to the Catholic Church, then to the Protestants," and finally "to the country that has the most gold."

Benefits for Refugees

The show business—screen, stage and radio—has started to put on benefit shows for Jewish refugees from Germany. Motion picture circuits are contributing from box office proceeds, among them the Karl Hoblitzelle-Bob O'Donnell Interstate Circuit in Texas, N. L. Nathanson's Famous Players Canadian Corporation, and others.

Some $100,000 was grossed by the United Palestine Appeal Fund from its "Night of Stars" show at New York's Madison Square Garden, last week, where scores of stars from radio, the stage and screen performed.

Special benefit performances of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Knickerbocker Holiday" were given at the Plymouth and Ethel Barrymore theatres in New York.

German refugee relief committees will benefit from the proceeds of a special preview showing of "Pygmalion" at the Astor in New York next Wednesday evening. Nicholas M. Schenck has issued invitations for the performance.

In Hollywood, the Anti-Nazi League, numbering scores of motion picture personalities in its ranks, held an open demonstration against the Nazis.

On Friday night, the Theatre Arts Committee staged a protest rally at the Fulton Theatre, New York, Eddie Dowling was a guest.

Although the Chicago censor board said they expect rioting to follow the showing of "Professor Mamlock," a Russian film depicting Nazi persecution of Jews at the Sonotone theatre, Police Commissioner James Allman thinks otherwise.

Charity Group Pledges $225,000

Members of the motion picture and theatrical committee of the New York-Brooklyn Federations of Jewish Charities campaign pledged themselves to raise a quota of $225,000 at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Astor Tuesday. The drive ends January 31.

Louis K. Sidney, of Loew's, will head a Hollywood committee.

B. S. Moss reported he has organized the accessories field, and William Morris, Jr., says the artists' representatives group is functioning. Meetings have been set for December for independent exhibitors, with William and Harry Brandt as chairman; for the legitimate theatre group, headed by William Klein, Sam Forrest, Harry Goetz and Marcus Heiman; independent producers, headed by Budd Rogers; and music publishers and composers, under the chairmanship of Louis Bernstein and Irving Caesar.

David M. Bernstein and Albert Warner are co-chairmen of the amusement division.

Among those at the meeting were:

Barney Balaban
Nate J. Blumberg
Jules Brulatour
Leopold Friedman

U. S. Bests Nazis In Equipment Sale

The Polish Telegraph Agency, government institution at Warsaw, has placed an order for 200 American-made 16 mm. sound film projectors, together with gasoline-electric generators, according to a report to the United States Department of Commerce from the American Commercial Attache at Warsaw. They were sold in competition with projector manufacturers in Germany.

The telegraph agency is the official news, newsreel and information agency of the Polish government. The total value of the projectors is estimated to be $65,000. Delivery is to be made in lots of 25 to 50.

INDEPENDENT EXHIBITORS DEMAND CONCILIATION

MPTOA Returns to Conference Table with Distributors on Self-Regulation December 8th

Industry action on self-regulation awaits the resumption of negotiations between the distributors and the exhibitor groups, with December 8th and 9th still standing as the dates for the MPTOA returning to the conference table, and dates still to be set on Allied and non-affiliated units' meetings.

Sales managers and counsel of the eight majors will meet Friday in New York to go over the distributors' trade practice proposals, and the final program will be ready in a week for presentation to exhibitors.

Broadway was speculating this week over the outcome of the program, with predictions freely made that the strain of block booking will be eased, the right to buy probably achieved, clearance rules changed, score charges eliminated, the forcing of shorts abandoned and a general industry-wide system of arbitration or conciliation set up. How these would be achieved was as much of a mystery as is the true nature of the program itself, pending the final conferences.

The only open action of the week was a declaration by the Independent Theatre Owners of New York demanding conciliation, on the grounds that exhibitors have "too much to lose by legislation and regulation."

Daily Reports on Theatre Deals

Solution of the problem posed by the Department of Justice demands that the defendant major circuits in the anti-trust suit maintain the status quo in operations, pending trial. is seen in the circuits' submission of daily reports on theatre deals to the government.

Inherently threatened in the Government's stand had been a possible preliminary injunction against the defendant companies, to prevent them from engaging in theatre dealings.

On the other hand, attorneys for the defendants feel the compromise is indicative of Governmental hesitation because of possible fears that injunctions could not be obtained without effort, long and costly.

United Artists counsel have asked the Government that Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin be eliminated as individual defendants in the suit; and it is understood that the Government may drop as defendants those of other companies no longer associated with them, or inactive.

Among those who may come under this category are Courtland Smith, formerly Pathe News head; Merlin Aylesworth, formerly RKO board chairman; Leo Spitz, who used to be RKO president; Dr. A. H. Giannini, no longer the president of United Artists; H. A. Fortington, for some time not on the Paramount board of directors; E. A. Schiller, of Loew's; Charles Rogers, no longer the Universal production chief, nor connected with the company; Adolph Ramish, member of the Universal board.

Action in Philadelphia Suit

A preliminary hearing in the anti-trust suit brought by Herbert J. Elliott, of the Fernrock theatre, Philadelphia, against 12 major producers and distributors, was adjourned last Friday when Mr. Elliott obtained a consent release on three films, "Hold That Co-Ed," "Straight, Place and Show" and "That Certain Age." The suit is based on a clearance question on the booking of the films into a territory in which the plaintiff claims his theatre has precedence over Warner Brothers' Lane theatre.

Federal Judge Welsh declared that he wished to go into the case thoroughly and demanded that counsel prepare their case fully for the next hearing. The hearings will be resumed December 1st.

At Friday's hearing, Mr. Elliott's attorney declared that it was impossible to obtain witnesses for the plaintiff because of fear of reprisals, and charged that a representative of one of the defendants, who was not specified, had that day refused to deal with Mr. Elliott unless the suit was withdrawn.

Extension in B. & K. Case

Federal Judge James Wilkerson, in Chicago, last Friday, extended the time for the filing of answers in the case against Balaban & Katz and the major companies instituted by 101 independent theatres, until December 15th. Judge Wilkerson told the defense this would be the final time extension. He also said he would not be able to try the case before January 1 or perhaps early in February.

More than 5,000 documents will be used as evidence, according to the defense attorneys, who told the court that the contracts asked for by the plaintiffs' legal counsel, Rosenberg and Stein, would be near that number. The documents to be photostated include all contracts with B. & K by the major companies for the last five years.

The defense attorneys, with Robert Golding as spokesman, told the court Friday that 57 of the 101 plaintiffs were not connected in any manner with the B. & K contracts with the majors.

The Government's criminal suit in Chicago against Barney Balaban, B. & K. and the major companies, excepting Columbia, will come up for hearing on November 28th. Answers to the Government's charges that the consent decree of 1932, handed down by Judge Woodward, had been violated, are due at that time.

Paramount Plans Only Quota Films

Paramount will confine its British production activities to the making of quota films only, with no high-budgeted films for world distribution planned. Production will be under Adolph Zukor, who arrives in London in two weeks, from Hollywood, where William Le Baron, as production general, and Y. Frank Freeman, as business head, have taken over Mr. Zukor's California studio duties. From London, an invitation has been sent to Mr. Zukor to attend the Cinema Luncheon Club on December 14th. The club is composed chiefly of exhibitors.

The leader line on Paramount productions —"Adolph Zukor Presents"—will be dropped January 1st after appearing on the company's releases for more than a decade. The decision to eliminate the line follows Mr. Zukor's transfer to London to head Paramount European operations. He continues as chairman of the board.

Mr. Freeman will leave New York Monday to assume his new post at the studio and Mr. Zukor will sail from New York for London on December 2nd.

CITES INDEPENDENTS' GAINS IN MPTOA

A statement sent out from MPTOA headquarters, over the signature of Ed Kuykendall, president, said that "the MPTOA now has the largest number of small independent exhibitors in its ranks that have ever been represented in a national organization of theatre owners."

"A responsible, representative exhibitor organization, through which independent exhibitors can coordinate and make effective their joint efforts, will be more than ever needed in the immediate future," he said, "with the drastic changes in our business that are impending, with Congress on the warpath and with the government threatening to impose new and increased taxes. The federal admission tax law comes up for reenactment this year. If the industry is hopelessly divided and we are obviously disorganized, fighting each other, we will be a push-over for unfair, special taxation and drastic regulation."

Washington and Arkansas Units Hold Sessions

L. O. Lukan of Seattle was reelected president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Washington at the 16th annual session in Seattle held last week. The meeting was attended by approximately 125 theatre owners of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Alaska.

Other officers are: Milton Kenworthy, first vice-president; Paul Aust, second vice-president; Cecil Gwinn, third vice-president, and James M. Hone, reelected executive secretary and treasurer. Three new trustees are John Hamrick, Mildred Bishop and Henry Davidson.

The Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas held its semi-annual convention Sunday and Monday at the Hotel Marion in Little Rock. About 100 exhibitors attended.

The convention adopted a resolution attacking motion picture theatres by showing first-run pictures for a nickel. A discussion of unfair trade practices was also held. S. A. Arnold of Little Rock was appointed a special representative to recruit new members for the organization.

Officers are J. F. Norman, president; G. Carey, vice-president; R. V. McGinnis, secretary-treasurer; O. G. Wren, W. E. Malin, Charles Bonner, K. K. King and L. F. Haven are directors.

Executives and actors of Paramount will be official hosts to the Independent Theatre Owners of California at a special entertainment program at the Carthay Circle, Hollywood, December 16th, in connection with the organization's annual get-together.

The program will consist of a stage show to be produced by Leroy Prinz and Cliff Lewis and a screening of "Artists and Models Abroad."

The Milford theatre, Chicago, has been taken over by Harry Balaban from Melchor Brothers.

Inquiry into Broadcasting "Monopoly" Drifts into "Fishing Expedition"; Only Half Dozen Witnesses Heard in 10 Days

Making slow progress in its investigation of "monopoly" in broadcasting, the Federal Communications Commission this week was doggedly plugging away on what had frankly degenerated into a "fishing expedition."

At the close of the first ten days of the Washington hearings, which may continue for months, the FCC had heard a mere half dozen of the 16 witnesses who will be offered by National Broadcasting Company alone, with probably an equal number from the Columbia and Mutual broadcasting systems.

On Wednesday John Royal, vice-president of NBC, in charge of programs, from the witness stand asserted that the reason that NBC asks writers to sign waivers on material was self-protective to avert plagiarism suits against the firm and not for purposes of securing a monopoly and control of writers.

Mr. Royal also said that while NBC insists that certain religious, educational and public affairs sustaining programs be carried by all stations which it owns or operates, local managers of these stations are free to refuse other sustaining programs in favor of features of more local interest.

O. B. Hanson, chief engineer of NBC, testified that the advent of sound motion pictures nearly ruined the broadcasting industry. With Hollywood clamoring for sound equipment and personnel trained in sound, he said NBC lost 50 per cent of its engineering staff to Hollywood. This "raid" almost wrecked operations, he testified.

First definite issue to be raised by William J. Dempsey, FCC counsel, was the propriety of NBC operating a talent booking office and seeking to tie up artists for radio, including television, vaudeville and other entertainment. The activities of the NBC bureau were discussed by Daniel S. Tuthill, assistant managing director, who testified that last year it had a net profit of $286,882 on commissions of $674,891 collected from talent booked to radio advertisers, film producers and others to the amount of $6,032,274. Motion picture bookings were $189,230, on which commissions were $25,476, but bulk of sales, naturally, were to radio advertisers, who paid $4,028,187.

Although Mr. Dempsey hinted that some of the 300 artists now having management contracts with NBC may have been taken away from Columbia and other booking agencies, Mr. Tuthill insisted that the interests of the artists were well taken care of.

No other medium can bring an obscure artist into prominence as quickly as broadcasting, Mr. Tuthill said, citing the cases of Russ Morgan, whose earnings jumped from $75 to over $3,000 a week in three years, and the "Fibber McGee" act which, getting $150 a week, climbed up to $3,000 in a short time.

The Committee stepped out of its usual line of questioning to ask Mr. Royal about censorship in broadcasting.

Questions pertained particularly to the script of "Beyond the Horizon," broadcast recently by NBC. It received some adverse comment from listeners.

"UPPER BRACKETS" PAY 82% OF ADMISSIONS

Eighty-two per cent of all box-office revenue accruing to exhibitors in the Chicago area is spent by families with incomes of more than $1,450 a year, those of lower incomes contributing but 18 per cent, according to a "market pattern" made up by the Chicago Daily News.

Expenditure percentages in some other lines run as follows:

	Income above $1,450 in %	Income below $1,450 in %
Reading	68.5	31.5
Gifts, taxes, etc.	88	12
Food	65	35
Clothing	77	23
Housing	65	35
Education	90	10

The Chicago territory is the second largest in the country.

Mr. Royal said the play had been staged by "60 or 70" churches, schools and clubs throughout the United States.

In regard to "scarces" on childrens' or other programs, Mr. Royal said:

"Radio mustn't be blamed for all excitable children—or adults."

He testified that NBC is trying to clean up the situation with respect to children's features, has strict rules against ad libbing and has been unable to do much about prize contests because they are popular, more than 6,000,000 responses being received in one week in one contest.

Mr. Royal testified that NBC agrees with the Commission as to the undesirability of such features as the highly publicized Mexican love song and the Mae West "Garden of Eden" broadcast.

At the same time, he revealed that NBC mail shows a surprisingly small proportion of criticisms.

The Commission was told by Hugh M. Beville, chief statistician for NBC, that research shows that the American type of program is the most popular.

Research Figures

Offering more dance music than any other country, Mr. Beville's charts showed, the United States has the most receivers per 1,000 of population. On the other hand, the proportion of receivers dropped as the volume of dance music was reduced and that of serious music increased, and the countries concentrating on serious music have the fewest receivers.

The nearly 38,000,000 receivers in use in the United States are more than the aggregate number in the twelve other countries which have more than 1,000,000 sets each, he said, while the 290 sets per 1,000 of population is more than 100 sets per 1,000 greater than Denmark, which has the second highest ratio.

Mr. Beville also submitted statistics showing that New York is losing its preeminence as an originating point for broadcast programs and, whereas 65.6 per cent of NBC programs originated there in 1930 only 37.6 per cent were originated in 1937, while in the same period Chicago originations jumped from 7.7 to 24.4 per cent, and those of Hollywood, seven years ago not even in the picture, now amount to 7.1 per cent.

The NBC program department has a budget for the current year of $5,200,000, it was testified by Mr. Royal, of which $1,375,000 is for the purchase of talent for sustaining programs and $2,223,000 for orchestras. The cost of talent for commercial programs was placed by him at $15,000,000, but the total cost of commercial, international and other programs other than sustaining, including talent and the services of the organizations involved, will run to $100,000,000 or more a year, he said.

Shows, he testified in reply to questions by Chairman Frank R. McNinch, may be put on for as little as $500 or $1,000 talent expense or for as much as $20,000 to $30,000.

U. S. Reports 22% Drop in Radios

Retail radio sales the first half of 1938 were 22.4 per cent under those of the corresponding period last year, it is indicated by the U. S. Census Bureau on the basis of a sample census of 243 stores, representing six per cent of the establishments and 10 per cent of sales shown by the 1935 census.

Total sales of the 243 cooperating stores jumped from $5,602,000 in 1935 to $8,080,000 last year. Sales during the first half of 1937 were $3,897,000 and for the same period this year, $3,024,000.

New Activity Set For Film Councils

The National Motion Picture Council of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has prepared an outline of activity for film councils and other film study groups.

The organization of film councils, according to the outline, should have as their objectives:

1. To demonstrate through the education of public opinion, the effectiveness of selection and classification, instead of censorship, as a means of forwarding the development of the motion picture and its best uses.
2. To encourage through open meetings, forums, classes and other means, the study of the motion picture as a medium of entertainment, education and artistic expression.
3. To concentrate the attention of the public on specific worthwhile films through the publication of a Photoplay Guide to the Selected Pictures being currently shown at local theatres.
4. To arrange family Friday night or week-end programs of selected family films, and junior matinees of pictures particularly suited to the tastes of children, through cooperation with local exhibitors.
5. To endorse and further the use of visual education through motion pictures in the schools.
6. To arrange and promote occasional exhibitions of exceptional and cultural films that would not ordinarily be shown in commercial theatres.

U. S. Produces Four More

Four pictures, available in 16 and 35 mm for free use, are being released by the United States Bureau of Mines, of the Department of The Interior. The pictures depict the production story of copper and were made with the cooperation of a large copper company.

FAIRBANKS AND CHAPLIN AGAIN ACTIVE FOR UA

Chaplin Will Make One Feature; Fairbanks To Produce Two or Three

Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin were "welcomed back into the fold" of active producers, and plans were discussed for new season product of its other producers, including one Hollywood picture to be made by Alexander Korda, at the annual meeting lost Friday of the United Artists' board of directors, in the New York offices of chief executive Murray Silverstone.

Present were attorney Charles Schwartz, representing Mr. Chaplin; Douglas Fairbanks; Mary Pickford; James Mulvey, representing Samuel Goldwyn; Emanuel Silverstone, representing Alexander Korda; Harry J. Miller, treasurer; attorney Dennis O'Brien; Murray Silverstone. Miss Pickford's departure for Chicago forced adjournment of the meeting, along with projected meeting of the company's stockholders, to November 30.

Mr. Chaplin will make one picture, starting in January; he will produce, direct, and star in it.

Mr. Fairbanks will make two or three on the Coast, under the banner of his new company, Albion Films.

Referring to Mr. Fairbanks decision to produce again, Mr. Silverstone said that Mr. Fairbanks' project appeared to be "a great plan as he presented it to us; however, it is doubtful if Fairbanks can make more than one or two a year. He's an individualist, you know."

Mr. Fairbanks will leave for Europe soon to complete financing arrangements for his new producing company. An associate in the company is British financier Montague Marks. Mr. Fairbanks' first picture will probably be "Lola Montez," it is reported; but this could not be confirmed. It is also understood that Mr. Fairbanks will not appear in any of his productions.

Mr. Mulvey will bring to the next meeting details of Samuel Goldwyn's new season plans.

Profit-Sharing Plan

The next meeting probably will see approval of the revised "profit-sharing plan" which all partners are understood to be agreed upon, but which was not taken up at the meeting. It provides for extra participation in the profits of pictures produced by them, and becomes effective January 1. The original plan provided for distribution of profits to all partners, whether or not they produced pictures. The revision allows only those who produce pictures to participate, and then only to share proceeds from their own productions.

South American revenue will more than make up for the loss of the European market, Mr. Silverstone declared, in an interview after the meeting's adjournment.

"We're going to lose our European market; there's no question about it," he asserted, adding that recent action by the German government in Austria, in seizing American films, was "grand larceny; that's what we call it."

Poland will shortly follow Italy's lead in "freezing" out American films, Mr. Silverstone said, adding his information was indirect but from reliable informants.

Mr. Silverstone said he believed American action now will save South American markets, and cultivation of it will overbalance the revenue lost in Europe. United Artists will probably finance South American producers, and produce Spanish dialogue pictures on Hollywood. He revealed he had discussed the South American situation recently with 20th Century Fox president Sidney Kent.

Mr. Silverstone will visit England briefly in early December, and plans to be back here before Christmas. United Artists is interested in 300 houses there, and Mr. Silverstone said three United Artists releases would have premieres on the day after Christmas in London—"The Cowboy and The Lady," "Trade Winds," "The Young In Heart."

Closeted with Mr. Silverstone this week were David O. Selznick, president of Selznick International, and John Hay Whitney, chairman of that company's board, who arrived in New York Thursday from England. A new releasing contract with United Artists was discussed.

According to Mr. Selznick, "Intermezzo" will be the first picture in the company's 1939-40 lineup, and there will be five additional.

The law firm of Dwight, Harris, Korgel & Caskey is now counsel for Samuel Goldwyn. Schwartz & Frolich, former attorneys for Goldwyn, continue their interest in United Artists, however, as counsel for the company and for Charles Chaplin, Alexander Korda and Murray Silverstone. Other counsel for the company are O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery who also represent Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

U.A. Theatre Circuit Earnings

The general slump in theatre business the last year was seen as a major factor in the decline of its net profits for the year ended August 31st, by United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc. The annual report shows a net income of $148,743.37, compared with $364,973 the previous fiscal year.

The circuit owns and is interested in a total of 200 theatres, half of them in the New York metropolitan territory. The circuit has a 50 per cent interest in Robb & Rowley United, Inc., in Texas, and interests in mid-west and coast houses.

In the New York area, the circuit owns the Rivoli, on Broadway, a first run house, controls Metropolitan Theatres.

The circuit had $547,623 in cash on hand August 31, compared with $485,883 the previous year. Theatre investments at cost or appraised values, less reserves for depreciation and amortization, of $1,677,868, are carried on the books at $3,630,553, which is $178,000 under last year. Capital stocks and advances to affiliated companies owned less than 100 per cent, total $2,485,138. Total current assets are $8,265,639. Net income the past year, exclusive of the deductions for interest, depreciation, amortization, and Federal income tax allowance, was $573,440.08, compared with $627,254 for the previous period.

Cobian Signs del Carril

Hugo del Carril, Argentine tango singer, has been signed by Raphael Ramos Cobian of Productions, Inc., for two Spanish pictures. Mr. del Carril will arrive in New York from Argentine the latter part of January enroute to Hollywood.

Distribution deals for all of South and Central America, with the exception of Peru, has been closed by Monogram, according to Norton V. Ritchey, export manager.

FHA Opens Bids Short Reels On New Series

Five producers of commercial and institutional films have submitted bids to the Federal Housing Administration, to produce films for that agency in color and in black-and-white, demonstrating FHA activities. The five producers are Motion Picture Corporation of America, in New York; Pathe News, which already has done work for the government; Hollywood Industrial Picture Company, Culver City, Cal.; Loucks and Norling Studios, New York, and Splay Commercial Pictures, Hollywood.

Motion Picture Corporation's bid was as follows: for color sound, $8.20 per foot up to 1,000 feet, $7.80 to 3,000 feet; $6.65 per foot on anything longer. The company offers 35 mm sound prints at 12 cents per foot, up to 3,000 feet, and nine cents on any film longer; for color silent, $7.60 to 1,000 feet, $7.20 to 3,000 feet, and $6.20 if longer. In this category, 35 mm prints would be 12 cents per foot up to 3,000 feet, nine cents on longer films. Black-and-white sound films are $5.20 per foot up to 1,000 feet, $5.10 to 3,000 feet, and $5.05 on anything longer. Black-and-white silents would cost $4.60 per foot up to 1,000 feet, $4.50 to 3,000, and $4.45 on anything longer. The company did not quote prices on 16 mm color prints.

Pathe did not offer prices on prints, but quoted films costs as following: 35 mm color sound, $12.80 per foot up to 3,000 feet, and $9 per foot if longer. Color silent, $11.80 per foot up to 3,000, and $8 if longer. Black-and-white sound at $4.50 per foot and black-and-white silent for $3.50.

Loucks and Norling made the distance from New York responsible for variation in prices, as follows: $15 to $13 per foot for sound color films, if made within 400 miles of New York; $17 to $15 for the same, if over 500 miles. They offered 35 mm prints at 13½ to 7½ cents per foot, the price depending upon quantity ordered. They quoted a two cents additional per foot price for prints on acetate (safety) base. Their 16 mm print prices ranged from 17 to 13½ cents per foot. The same studio offered silent color films at $14, $13, and $12 if within 400 miles; and $16, $15, and $14.50 if made over 1,500 miles from New York. 35 mm prints on these would be 13½ to 7½ cents per foot, dependent on quantity; and 16 mm, 17 to 13½ cents. Black-and-white sound was offered at $7, $6.75 and $6.25; black-and-white silents at $6, $5.75 and $5.25, also depending on length.

The Hollywood Industrial Picture Company's bid offered color sound films, without animation, at $14 per foot to 1,000 feet, $13 to 3,000, and $12 for anything longer. They ask $20 per foot for animation. Prints in 35 mm were offered at from eight to 22 cents, depending on quantity. Additional charge of two cents per foot was asked for acetate (safety) film.

The same company asked $13, $12 and $11 for color silents, without animation, prints being same price as for sound. Black-and-white sound and silents were offered at prices dependent on length.

The Splay company quoted $4.10 per cut foot for sound color; 3.80 for silents; $3.25 for black-and-white sound, and $3.15 for the same, silent.

All bids except that by Splay Commercial Pictures were formal.

Jersey Allied Meetings

Setting its schedule so that each monthly meeting will be held in different part of the state, New Jersey Allied plans its next in Newton November 29. Members will meet in Passaic in December; Trenton, in January.

Max Suderov has formed the Kameo Amusement Corporation to operate the Kameo, Bronx, New York, and the Jackson Amusement Corporation to operate the Jackson, also in the Bronx. The Rosyl Amusement Corporation, Louis Morinberg, president, and Jack Field, secretary, is the new owner of the Cameo, Jersey City.

Dario Faralla has incorporated Dario Productions in Sacramento, Cal., and will make a series of Spanish pictures starring Tito Guizar for Paramount release. Irving Applebaum is production manager and Ralph Berger is art director.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Only Six Start

The number of pictures started on their way the past week was nothing to brag about. Only six were given the go ahead signal, but two of the starters are of more than ordinary importance. One is a bit of factual and romantic history. The other was born of a surprising accomplishment.

Deluxe new picture of the week was "Juarez," Warner Brothers, in which will be told the story of Maximillian and Carlotta, ill fated emperor and empress of Mexico. One of the company's most ambitious undertakings in scope and cost, the production will star Paul Muni and Bette Davis under the direction of William Dieterle. The supporting cast will feature a small regiment of the screen's most capable players. Important parts have been assigned Brian Aherne, Claude Rains, Gale Sondergaard, John Garfield, Donald Crisp, Joseph Calleia, Gilbert Roland, Montague Love, Harry Davenport, John Miljan, Charles Middleton, Georgia Caine, Frank Reicher, Robert Warwick, Gilbert Emery and Hugh Sothern.

The second unusual starting subject is RKO-Radio's "The Flying Irishman." The story which is based on the adventures of the young man who, upon flying across the ocean, announced that he had flown the wrong way, will star its inspiration, Douglas Corrigan. The supporting company will include Paul Kelly, Robert Armstrong, Donald McBride, John Arledge, Cora Witherspoon, Dorothy Appleby, Peggy Ryan and Joyce Compton.

Two by Monogram

Monogram started two pictures. Frankie Darro will be seen in the Crescent Production "Tough Kid." William Rowland, William Ruhl, Lillian Elliott, Judith Allen and Dick Purcell head the supporting roster. "Wild Horse Trail" will feature Jack Randall and Dorothy Short with Walter Long, Charles King and Warner Richmond.

"Trigger Pals" was started at Grand National. The cast includes Art Jarrett, Lee Powell, Al St. John, Dorothy Faye, Marie Adams, Stanley Blystone, Ted Adams and Nina Gilbert.

Initial sequences were begun on "King of the Turf," in which Adolphe Menjou and Roger Daniel will be starred by Edward Small.

Ten Completed

As the number of pictures actually shooting on November 19 stands at 48, a healthful increase above the average generally in the work at this season of the year, 10 pictures were completed as of the above date.

Two productions were marked off the list at Republic. Both are action romance stories. Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, William Farnum, Chester Gunnels, Lulu Belle and Scotty, Stanley Andrews, Matty Roubert, Pat Hennings, Frank Jacquet and Joseph Whitehead will be seen in "Shine on, Harvest Moon." "Federal Manhunt" will present Robert Livingston, June Travis, Horace MacMahon, Margaret Mann, Charles Halton, John Gallaudet, Sybill Harris, Jerry Tucker, Matt McHugh and Frank Conklin.

MGM completed "A Christmas Carol," a picturization of Charles Dickens' Yuletide classic. The cast will feature Reginald Owen, Terry Kilburn, Gene, Kathleen and June Lockhart, Leo Carroll, Ronald Sinclair, Lynne Carver, Ann Rutherford, Lionel Braham, D'Arcy Corrigan and Yorke Sherwood.

ENOUGH IS PLENTY, SAYS BICKFORD

With the return to Hollywood of the last members of the Cecil B. DeMille unit that endured the rigorous weather and storms of the Wasatch Mountains in Utah to make exteriors for "Union Pacific," the producer discovered that there were still things about the picture that made men afraid.

In casting about for the fearsome role of the man who gets whipped, DeMille first selected Charles Bickford, but when Mr. Bickford learned that he would have to face a twenty-five foot long bull whip wielded by Akim Tamiroff, he resigned the part. The actor acknowledged that he had been injured enough in pictures in fights with men and beasts and in battles with the elements and didn't care for any more. J. Carroll Naish accepted the role until it was learned that conflicting schedules would prevent his filling it. Thereupon Brian Donlevy became the recipient of the part of the chief antagonist of Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea and the one whom Tamiroff will lash into submission.

For Paramount release Harry Sherman finished "Arizona Bracelets." A "Hopalong Cassidy," it will, as usual, feature William Boyd, Russell Hayden and George Hayes. Charlotte Wynters will be seen as will Russell Hopton, Sonny Bupp, Jack Rockwell, Roy Barcroft, John Merton, Bob Kortman and "The King's Men."

Columbia Finishes "Racketeers"

"Racketeers" was finished at Columbia. Alan Baxter and Jacqueline Wells head the cast which includes Joseph King, Gordon Oliver, Willard Robertson, John Tyrrell, Ed Featherstone, Dick Curtis, Harry Strong, Joseph Caits, Eddie Laughton, George Taylor and Stanley Brown.

RKO-Radio completed "The Pure in Mind." Ann Shirley and Roger Daniel are the stars. Feature support roles are filled by James McCallion, Walter Ward, Charles Powers, John Fitzgerald, Frank Malo, Paul White, Walter Tetley, Charles Lane, Alan Baxter, Fred Kohler, Arthur Hohl and Olin Howland.

Final shots were made on "Exile Express," which Eugene Frenke produced for Grand National. It will feature Anna Sten and Alan Marshall with Jerome Cowan, Walter Catlett, Jed Prouty, Leonard Kinskey, Irving Pichel, Theodore Chaliapin, Addison Richards, Henry Roquemore and Byron Foulger.

A story of women in aviation, "Tailspin," was sent on its way toward preview at 20th Century-Fox. It will present Constance Bennett, Alice Faye, Nancy Kelly, Joan Davis as the heroines and Charles Farrell, Jane Wyman, Kane Richmond, Wally Vernon, Edward Norris, Warren Hymer, Joan Valeria, Robert Lowery, J. Anthony Hughes and Jack Pennick.

"Swing, Sister, Swing" wound up at Universal. Kenny Murry, Johnny Downs, Kathryn Kane, Eddie Quillan, Ernest Truex, Edna Sedgwick, Nana Bryant and Ted Weems and his orchestra are the top names.

From Argentina

Dario Faralla productions signed up Argentine Actress Armanda Varela for a role with Tito Guizar in "Papa Soltero."

The starting date for the picture is December 1 and the publicity release has it that this will be Miss Varela's first trip to Hollywood. Maybe so, the young lady who is a real Argentine nonetheless has been singing in a local night club for months under her actual name, Jean Kelly.

Old Timers

News that Warner Baxter is again to play the role he created in "The Return of the Cisco Kid" proves that pictures can't do very well without the old timers. Sound and color have come, but there's still a considerable harking back to the personnel of the silent films. Leading men and women of yesterday, character players and comedians are still at the top of the heap.

Ronald Colman is more popular than ever. Lionel and John Barrymore are never out of work. Claudette Colbert remains glamorous as does Norma Shearer, Janet Gaynor and Joan Crawford. Gary Cooper continued very much of a buckaroo in "The Lady and the Cowboy." Carole Lombard is now at the peak of her career.

They were stars in the silent days. So were Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, Jack Holt, Charles Bickford, Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Charles Butterworth and May Robson. Time has not hampered Joe E. Brown's talent to make fun or has it blunted Edward Everette Horton's whimsicalities.

Hersholt Signed

A new policy of increased budgets and top name casts for al future pictures to be made by producer Sol M. Wurtzell has been announced by 20th Century-Fox. Wurtzell's program calls for 28 pictures for the 1939 release schedule.

First casting under the new set up was the assignment of Jean Hersholt to a part in "Mr. Moto in Port Rico" which will star Peter Lorre. Marjorie Weaver who made a hit in "Hold That Co-Ed" has been slated for the lead in "Winner Take All" which will be started shortly.

Marquee names will appear with the familiar personalities in the next "Jones Family" feature which will go before the cameras about December 1. Future Jane Withers features will also carry stronger support cast names, as will the "Charlie Chans."

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public

The Beachcomber

(Paramount)

Psychological Melodrama

Theatregoers of adult understanding may be promised a rare cinema experience by showmen billing this Paramount import, first fruit of the union of the Erich Pommer and Charles Laughton talents in their significantly christened Mayflower Productions. Mr. Laughton's performance of the title role is a riper and richer portrayal than his Captain Bly, his Rembrandt, his Ruggles or his Henry VIII, and his vehicle is as finely wrought a work as any he has had, although similar to none of them.

Opposite Mr. Laughton and matching his best with as good is the accomplished Mrs. Laughton (Elsa Lanchester) and there are effective secondary performances by Tyrone Guthrie and Robert Newton. They play four white persons, three English and one Dutch, stationed on an island in the Dutch East Indies.

The Beachcomber played by Mr. Laughton is a classically dissolute person, a libertine, a sot, a cheat and a determinedly abandoned although not embittered remittance man. He entices native school girls from the classroom of the resident missionary's sister, defrauds the native merchants, wrecks a cafe whence he has escorted one of the dusky belles and lands in jail. The missionary and his spinsterish sister demand his deportation, but the Dutch controleur, a lonely Dutchman secretly fond of the reprobate's company, sentences him instead to three months at hard labor on a nearby island densely populated by entertaining native ladies and totally without work to be done.

The spinster is sent to nurse the sick on another island and the boat bringing her back puts in to pick up the beachcomber. A breakdown compels the two to spend a night on a barren rock with only male natives for chaperones and she mistakes his aversion for gentlemanly restraint. When, on return home, the missionary and the commandant compliment him on his gallantry he goes berserk and returns to his drunken state.

Later on force of circumstances makes him unwilling aide to the spinster in an outbreak of typhoid among the natives in a remote settlement. Whilst awaiting the arrival of enraged warriors who will murder them he mentions that he is the rebellious son of a vicar and she replies that her father drank himself to death. The native attack does not occur and picture's end finds the two back in England happily married and contentedly operating a profitable pub.

The story was adapted for the screen by Bartlett Cormack from "Vessel of Wrath" by W. Somerset Maugham, a circumstance explaining fine plotting, point and counter point. As produced and directed by Mr. Pommer the film is a masterly narration. Technologically and musically it is of challenging caliber.

There is a tale told around Hollywood to the effect that young actors screen tested by Paramount are given the script of "The Beachcomber" to read and enact, after which they are shown the film and the performances in it as examples of present day perfection. They could not experience so thorough a lesson in any other way.

It is rather important that showmen plan their campaigns in such fashion as to assure adult attendance. There is no reason whatever for labeling it an English production, save where that label is an asset, because Hollywood seldom produces so modern a demonstration of production technique. There need be no hesitancy whatever about billing it as Mr. Laughton's best performance.

Previewed November 22nd at the Village Theatre in Westwood with impressive success. —William R. Weaver.

Exposed

Comedy-Melodrama

There's quite a bit of diversified entertainment and exploitation material in "Exposed." It's a combination of several elements, importantly comedy, melodrama and romance, used with a wealth of interesting topical material and so put together that action and excitement are permitted full swing. The picture makes no pretence at being big but was designed to appeal to those who like to see something doing all the time on the screen.

"Click Stewart," ace photographer of a pictorial magazine, photographs derelict "Reardon," but publication brings a libel suit. Attempting to settle it, "Click" learns that if she only can find a girl whose father, "Reardon," a former prosecutor, wrongfully sent to the electric chair, he'll talk business. Thereupon "Click's" real adventures begin.

For name value, "Exposed" offers Glenda Farrell, Otto Kruger, Herbert Mundin, Charles D. Brown, Richard Lane, Lorraine Kruger and Eddie Anderson, the "Rochester" of Jack Benny's radio program.

The Frontiersman

(Paramount-Sherman)

Hopalong Cassidy

Qualities that have been the entertainment and showmanship substance of Harry Sherman's outdoor action adventure pictures are the basis of "The Frontiersman," and in many instances are improved upon here. Formula material, though it may be, it is freshly devised and treated. Additional value is in the presentation of the St. Brendan's Boys Choir, whose singing may be used to attract customers not ordinarily interested in chaps and sombreros.

Given quality staging, with artistic photography accentuating the beauty of natural scenic settings, the show moves speedily. Action and dialogue are carefully balanced. There is a generous amount of comedy as well as love interest and, of course, suspense and thrill.

"Hopalong," hindered and helped as he always is by "Windy" and "Lucky," is confronted with a dual problem. He has plenty of trouble in running down a band of cattle rustlers, exposing its pseudo respectable leader. He has more grief trying to straighten out the local school system. This matter is complicated amusingly by the antics of "Artie" and by the situations which arise when all the ranch hands, especially "Lucky," fall in love with the school teacher, "June Lake."

Out West with the Hardys

(M-G-M)

Mickey Rooney Rides Again

Short of typing him as a juvenile Don Juan, it just wasn't in the cards to immerse Mickey Rooney in another such romantic dilemma as "Love Finds Andy Hardy," so MGM did the next best or better thing and pitched him smack into the middle of a good oldfashioned Western. To be sure, it's fitted out with modern equipment, electric refrigeration in the bunk house and things like that, but at bottom it's the plot about the greedy rancher who controls his neighbor's water supply and puts a dollar-a-gallon price on it by way of forcing him to sell at a giveaway price. The plot, long a major prop of the perpetual public interest in westerns, is buried pretty deeply here under a superstructure made up of characteristic

Hardy Family episodes, and yet provides the dramatic purpose of the picture and gives point to all that happens.

This adroit device takes the Hardy family from their home town to the great open spaces in response to an old friend's call to "Judge Hardy" for the type of legal aid in which he specializes. "Judge Hardy" does his best, finally staking his own fortune on a final bit of strategy, but is seemingly defeated and impoverished before an Indian rug purchased by "Mrs. Hardy" turns out to be a map of the area as it existed prior to the villain's changing of the water-course.

Emphasis is laid upon the doings of the family in the unaccustomed ranch surroundings rather than upon the serious business which has taken them there. "Andy" dons chaps and proceeds to find out disastrously, about broncho busting, about six-gun marksmanship and about the expansiveness of a desert when one is lost in it. An eight-year-old westerner, superlatively played by Virginia Weidler, figures largely in the young man's painful education. These two share the picture's most effective sequence, in which "Andy" is responsible when the young lady's horse breaks its leg. This episode brought tears and then applause at the preview.

The production holds interest steadily, save possibly in the final sequence mentioned, and contains many scenes of the kind the four preceding Hardy Family pictures have prospered in. The western setting provides for special exploitation and there is plenty of sound basis for showmanly promise-making.

Peck's Bad Boy with the Circus

(RKO-Radio - Principal Production)

Comedy

"Peck's Bad Boy" of yesterday's juvenile literature, stock stage plays and a picture or two, probably doesn't mean much to today's youth, but the entertainment that has been incorporated into "Peck's Bad Boy with the Circus" should.

There's a story basis for the production. It has to do with how a typical, mischievous, modern lad, "Bill Peck," got to summer camp and won an obstacle race over his despised rival, "Icewagon Boggs." En route, a detour is made into a circus and the real fun of the show is found in the sequences on the experiences encountered there. Practically all this material is gag comedy and the humor, notwithstanding the superabundance of stock shots, is enjoyable.

Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, the juvenile team starred in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," are hero and heroine. Edgar Kennedy, as a lion tamer, gives another expert demonstration of his slow burning but eruptive comedy talents. Benita Hume is a little too melodramatic as the menace to Miss Gillis, but the rest of the characters, Spanky MacFarland, Billy Gilbert, Grant Mitchell, Nana Bryant, William Demarest, Wade Boterler, Mickey Rentschler and Louise Beavers, contribute much that accentuates the comedy content.

Previewed at the Pantages theatre, Hollywood. The audience was made up mainly of adults, but a few youngsters were present. They were the ones to whom this reporter paid attention. They gave the show a send-off which should be typical of the reaction when kids are predominant in the attendance.—Gus McCarthy.

Say It in French

(Paramount)

Metropolitan Comedy

This is an effervescent comedy of manners, New York manners, in which a dozen principals flip humorous lines back and forth like a Notre Dame backfield throwing lateral passes and with equivalent results. Ray Milland and Olympe Bradna are paired in the romantic leads, with Irene Hervey and Erik Rhodes as secondary sweethearts, completing a triple-threat quartet of ball carriers. (No, it isn't about football.) Mary Carlisle, William Collier, Sr., Janet Beecher, Walter Kingsford, Mona Barrie, George P. Huntley and diminutive, silent Billy Lee run air-tight interference.

The story of "Say It in French" is fresh in detail and lively as a cricket. It has to do with what happens to and around a wealthy young New Yorker who returns from Paris with an undeclared French bride and finds his parents abruptly impoverished and greatly in need, therefore, of a profitable match for their son.

Produced and directed by Andrew L. Stone at high speed with never a letdown, the film slips down the screen brightly as a mountain brook. Dialogue is smart and action keeps one foot inside the limit of plausibility at all times. A cross-town dash from Park Avenue to the Queen Mary is one of the most amusing as well as difficult sequences recently screened. Intimate shots of Rockefeller Center, the Rainbow Roof and various departments of the Waldorf Astoria pin the story definitely to Manhattan and now.

Frederick Jackson's screen play, based on a play by Jacques Deval, is a masterly composition that comes alive in the opening shot and stays that way.

Previewed at the Paramount theatre, Los Angeles, where it kept a midweek audience chuckling, gurgling, guffawing and, in at least four spots, clapping approval.—W. R. W.

Come On, Rangers

(Republic)

Musical Western

Third musical western vehicle of Republic's newest western star, Roy Rogers, "Come On, Rangers" is a lively story of the transition of Texas from a republic to one of the United States, a period in which outlaws overran the state following the temporary disbandment of the famed Texas Rangers. Rich in history, the film is likewise pregnant with action. Rogers, as in his other vehicles, sings, his four songs being interpolated in such a manner as to aid the progress of the narrative.

Supporting Rogers are Mary Hart, Raymond Hatton, J. Farrell MacDonald, Purnell Pratt, Harry Woods, Bruce MacFarlane, Lane Chandler, Chester Gunnels and Lee Powell. Joe Kane, veteran of the western field, guided this Charles E. Ford production and built from the concise, original screenplay of Gerald Geraughty and Jack Natteford a combination of entertainment elements considered surefire in any market which serves cinematic fare of outdoor action type.

Songs delivered in a style which has gained Rogers a reputation on radio, in films and on personal appearances are "I've Learned About Women" by Johnny Marvin, "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground," old favorite dating back to Civil War days, and "Let Me Hum a Western Love Song" and "Song of the West" by Eddie Cherkose and Walter King.

Discharged from the Texas Rangers with others at the disbandment of the organization in favor of the U. S. Cavalry, "Roy" joins the army only to find it ineffective against the maurauders sweeping the land. He deserts after his brother is killed by outlaws in order to wipe out the crooks with aid of former Rangers.

Everybody's Baby

Domestic Comedy

The character, plot and manner of treatment of this Jones Family feature makes a noticeable change from the customary style. Though clean, wholesome and amusing as usual, the plot has more appeal to adults than to all the family, particularly juvenile audiences. Tersely, the film concerns itself with a situation that has played hob with many an actual family. It has to do with the conflict of old-fashioned child raising versus the ultra modern ideas of child psychology. The hokum, of course, is elaborately applied, but evidences continually crop up that those concerned in the picture's making were not quite sure of the ground they were treading.

"Bonnie" has a baby and its rearing is immediately entrusted to ideas outlined by phychologist "Doctor Pillcoff." The family is astounded to learn that they can not pet or baby it as is the custom of all great grandparents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and fathers the world over. "Bonnie's" devotion to "Pillcoff's" rules

THUNDERING DRAMA!

"A FINE HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT"

— Jimmie Fidler

Here is a fast action drama, one of Republic's most ambitious productions, with proper exploitation should fare well at the box office. Patric Knowles, a British aviator, is stationed in India where he manages to discover the location of a hidden radio station used as a medium to incite the natives to warfare. Troops on the march to capture, destroy the station are saved from ambush, destruction by Richard Cromwell, who sacrifices his life in a plane crash to warn the soldiers. The film is crammed with other thrilling action scenes, especially when Knowles escapes from the natives, blows up munitions stores, the outlaw radio station. Knowles is outstanding in this offering, his good work should set him in line for bigger, better parts. Action scenes are exceptionally well done.

COLORFUL FILM WITH ACTION SUSPENSE AND ROMANCE WILL BE STRONG B.O. DRAW.

One of the most ambitious efforts of Republic, this picture should be a strong box office attraction as it offers all ingredients demanded by audiences. The cast is fine, headed by the handsome and extremely able Patric Knowles. The film is replete with colorful pageantry, and crammed with action topped off with a neat romance. Production value is good and the direction is smooth.

STO

OVER

Here is another offering to demonstrate Republic's canny ability to make superlative action pictures at comparatively low cost. Every foot of this gripping and highly entertaining yarn of British army activities on India's frontiers packs a trip-hammer wallop and the film can be depended upon to account for itself nobly on any bill, top side or in support. Production and direction would do credit to most of the more pretentious and expensive efforts that have chosen the same theme. The cast is sincere and its members make the most of their respective opportunities.

Box Office

Republic's "Storm Over Bengal" justifies its increased budget by its commercial and artistic values. One of the higher outlay pictures of the studio, "Storm Over Bengal" is 65 minutes crammed with fast action, suspense and romance laid in Northwest India during the fictional uprising of a religous fanatic seeking to overthrow British rule.

Generous exploitation campaigns, touching the same ground as Paramount's "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," boxoffice success of several years ago, are indicated.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—One of the better pictures to come from Republic, "Storm over Bengal," by virtue of its commercial and artistic values, justifies the increased budget. Its 65 minutes are filled with action, suspense and romance set against the background of Northwest India during the revolt of a fanatic seeking to overthrow British rule.

Republic reached a little in "Storm Over Bengal." The large scope of the subject is not common with this studio's product. But if this film is a "feeler" to test the studio's ability in producing Class A product, then it has achieved its goal. Its fast action, beautiful camera work and excellent musical investiture give the picture license to play houses which ordinarily do not book Republic's product. It's good for a spot on any bill.

and regulations and the stern manner in which they are enforced by nurse "Cordell" drives husband "Herbert" from home. Thereupon "Granny" takes a hand. Formulating plans with the fury of one denied, but bent on vengeance, she has "Pilcoff" invited to give another lecture. In alliance with "Jack," "Roger," "Tommy McGuire" and "Herbert" she has them haze the great specialist. He is driven out of town and as his ideas are forgotten, "Bonnie" and "Herbert" are reconciled and the family has free swing to drag up the youngster in any way it wishes.

Two or three topical gags are worked in to substantiate the rather thin story, funniest of which are incidents in which the baby is believed kidnaped, only to be found once in the father's care and the second time lined up at a Negro baby show.

While novel and different, "Everybody's Baby" is hardly up to the customary Jones Family standard as either an entertainment or commercial prospect for audiences which have grown accustomed to the human and whimsical character of the preceding items in the series.

Little Tough Guys in Society

(Universal)

Comedy

The six young men referred to in the title are able and active enough to carry their own picture, but they don't have to. They have here the maturer and definitely major talents of Mischa Auer, Edward Everett Horton and Mary Boland to rely upon. Or is it the other way around? Anyway, junior and adult performances of commanding comedy value are expertly matched and balanced in this distinctly positive entertainment.

The young men known as "The Little Tough Guys" are genuinely tough characters, as presented, but not criminals. The story, a screen play by Edward Eliscu and Mortimer Offner, has to do with their flight from New York's East Side after an ill-advised wrecking of a glass factory, from which their fathers have been discharged because of overproduction, and their stay on a rich country estate where they are under obligation to rescue the young son of wealth from a severe attack of ennui.

Mary Boland as the jittery dowager whose son the young ruffians go to work on, Jack(ie) Searl as the son, Edward Everett Horton as the butler who first despises and finally emulates the roughhousers, and Mischa Auer as a psychoanalyst, turn in sparkling characterizations. David Huber personifies the criminal influence inherent in the home surroundings of the young men from Tenth Avenue without dramatizing it disproportionately.

Strange Boarders

(GB)

Comedy, Mystery

This British equivalent of "The Thin Man" is a detective story, from the pen of E. Phillips Oppenheim, in which the ace operative of the British secret service is called, on the night of his honeymoon, to investigate a new spy scare. The deepest secrecy is necessary and so the bride isn't informed of the bridegroom's plans, and that is where the comedy element comes in. The bride always is turning up at in opportune times. There is no "Asta," however.

"Strange Boarders" is in its own right good melodrama with an element of suspense. The characters are finely drawn. The ending develops into slapstick and there is a deal of broad comedy throughout, sometimes seeming to get in the way of the melodrama.

Tom Walls, popular British star, plays the secret service man while Renee Saint-Cyr, French actress, and speaking with an accent, is the bride. The picture was directed by Herbert Mason at the Pinewood Studios in England.

Reviewed at the Progress theatre on upper Third Avenue, New York, where an audience, partial to action pictures, serials and slapstick comedy, appeared to be enjoying both the melodrama and the comedy. — PAUL C. MOONEY, JR.

Wedad

(Egyptian Film Company)

Romantic Drama

To the list of foreign countries sending films to this country in 1938 is added Egypt. It would appear from the reception this film received from a preview audience of Americo-Egyptians and allied peoples—that it has a definite appeal for them. For others the interest is chiefly from the novelty viewpoint.

The story is a simple one detailing as it does the romance between "Wedad," a slave girl, and a rich merchant.

The film is much too long for the story it has to tell. Many feet of film are given over to the singing of the slave girl, "Wedad," unfamiliar to the Occidental ear. The film has considerable comedy, perhaps the best part of the picture. There are also glimpses of Egyptian customs of the period, of the dancing slave girls and the Nile.

The March of Time No. 4, Vol. 5

(RKO Radio)

Uncle Sam's Good Housekeepers

To exemplify the claim in the descriptive title, "Uncle Sam—the Good Neighbor," is the main business of the subject through the secretary of state, Cordell Hull, the reel voices of diplomatic policies. Career men of the foreign service department are pictured in an interesting array of instructional shots, also their superiors at the international nerve centers of London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Tokyo and Shanghai. The sequence reporting the propagandistic campaign of Fascistic forces to worm their ways into economic and governmental life of South American countries and the efforts expended to counterattack such foreign pressures, makes interesting and thought-provoking material. American audiences should acclaim this exposition of foreign fare for the merit of timely instruction which it contains.—Running time, 19 minutes.

Schubert's Unfinished Symphony

(Paramount)

Very Good

This is excellent for specialized audiences that respond to symphonic music. The entire subject is concerned with only one composition, the "Unfinished Symphony" by Franz Schubert. Frederick Feher conducts the 122 piece National Philharmonic Orchestra. The camera has caught characteristic poses of the conductor and musicians while playing. Running time, 10 minutes.

Going Places (Puerto Rico)

(Universal)

Travelogue

The island of Puerto Rico, founded by Spain and currently a possession of the United States, is a blending of the old and new, ancient and modern. In this travelogue, which is enhanced by excellent photography, all of the island's principal points of interest are shown. Graham McNamee is the narrator.—Running time, 10 minutes.

The Night Watchman

(Warner Brothers)

Good Color Cartoon

This is about a timid little cat who remembers that he is a cat and should not be scared by tough mice. Our hero is Tommy Cat, Jr., replacing his ill father as night watchman in the kitchen. At first, the mice ignore, humiliate him. He recovers gumption, beats, routs them. The tough mice are tough, indeed, in the Warner Brothers crime melodrama tradition; and Tommy has a cute, ineffectual manner and voice. Should please all classes.—Running time, seven minutes.

Sears Drive Meetings Held by Warner Men

Following meetings in New York and Chicago to set up plans for the forthcoming Sears Drive, Warner Brothers' district managers this week held intra-district meetings with branch managers. The sessions were supervised by Roy Haines, eastern and Canadian sales manager, and Ben Kalmenson, western and southern sales manager. The meetings were in San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans, New York and Toronto.

Warners' has scheduled a $75,000 advertising budget to promote "Heart of the North," set for release December 10th, and done in color. The New York exchange on Monday moved into new headquarters at 315 West 44th Street.

National Decency Legion Classifies Eleven Pictures

Of 11 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week seven were approved for general patronage and four were listed as unobjectionable for adults. The pictures and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Arrest Bulldog Drummond," "King of the Sierras," "Nancy Drew, Detective," "Paris Honeymoon," "Rhythm of the Saddle," "Sharpshooters," "Submarine Patrol." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "The Beachcomber," "Peg of Old Drury" (Reissue), "The Shining Hour," "Singing Blacksmith" (Yiddish).

Republic Exchanges Initial New Pact

All but two exchanges this week had signed the new Republic five year percentage pact with its franchise holders. Jack Berkowitz, Buffalo and Albany, and Arthur Bromberg, Atlanta, have contracts extending to next July.

The new agreements, retroactive to last July 1 and giving the home office a greater percentage, had been signed up to this week by 16 franchise holders, the latest being Robert Withers and Clarence A. Schulz, of Republic Pictures Midwest Film Distributors, in western Missouri and Kansas.

Recent sales deals by Republic include the signing up by President James Grainger of the E. J. Sparks Florida Theatres for the entire Republic output in 87 spots. Jack Bellman, eastern district manager, closed with the Comerford circuit for 15 houses in New York.

Herbert J. Yates has arrived in Hollywood, as has Hiram Brown, Jr., who succeeds E. H. Lavenstein as studio purchasing agent.

Charles Ford, who joined the company a year ago as executive producer, coming from Universal where he had been newsreel editor, has resigned, "to enter into production on his own."

Reports are that, under its new five year distribution deal with British Lion Film Corporation, Republic already has received a cash advance of $250,000. The deal cancelled the previous four-year commitment, which would have expired in July.

Gene Autry has signed to star in Republic's radio program, to be known as "Under Western Stars," to be carried by Columbia Broadcasting, and produced by Bill Lawrence, CBS.

SARNOFF TELEVISION ANNOUNCEMENT BRINGS PRESSURE ON FCC FOR RULES

Griffis' Statement That Paramount Will Enter Field Also Is Expected to Bring Commission Action

Washington sees the Federal Trade Commission jarred into establishing a definite policy on television as a result of the statements by David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America, and Stanton Griffis, executive board chairman of Paramount pictures, that their companies, independently, are preparing to market television sets.

Mr. Sarnoff had told radio manufacturers, meeting recently in New York, that RCA would be ready to market in time for the opening of the World's Fair, New York, in April, 1939, and Mr. Griffis, visiting the studios, called in Hollywood newspapermen two weeks ago to say that Paramount would be in on "the new art", as a "leader". Both announcements now are expected in Washington to bring the FCC to act.

The Commission, several months ago, was given "warning" that plans were being made to put television sets on the market, and tentative overtures were made by radio interests for consideration of new regulations which would provide for permanent station assignments, remove the "experimental" restrictions which bar advertising, and pave the way for commercialization.

So far as can be learned, those overtures were repulsed by Commission officials, although it was said that FCC engineers have been closely watching recent developments, and particularly the test transmissions which were undertaken by the National Broadcasting Company and others.

Programs, Financing, Prices

The Commission so far has said nothing regarding its plans for the future treatment of television, but it is said Commission engineers, in outlining the situation, have held that there are factors other than the mere ability to transmit satisfactory pictures which must be taken into consideration. Those factors, it is said, include the provision of satisfactory programs, adequate coverage, financing and the production of receivers at prices consonant with the current economic situation.

With the disclosure that television finally is actually to be introduced for public consumption, pressure is again being brought to bear on the Commission in Washington to enunciate the policies it will adopt with respect to that branch of the radio industry.

Failure to move now, while television still is "anybody's game," the FCC is warned, may result in the Commission having to face the strength of a monopoly when finally it does go into the matter, it being pointed out that in a period of unregulated development of a new industry domination usually falls into the hands of the best financed interests.

On the other hand, some Commission officials are represented as feeling that no permanent recognition should be given television until its basic problems have been solved and until an agreement is reached as to which of several transmission methods now under study shall be adopted as standard.

Inferentially, these FCC engineers believe that television as actually presented will not live up to the promises which have been made for it. In the first place, it is held, there is no assurance that receivers in the hands of unschooled purchasers will give the same results as those used in the test transmissions by experienced people, and in the second place, there is no assurance that the purchaser of a receiver will be able to pick up more than the very few stations using the type of transmitters for which it was built.

IATSE WANTS TO MAN ALL FAIR MACHINES

No difficulty with the New York World's Fair management is expected by Local 306, IATSE projectionists union, in its demands that its operators be employed for the 200 odd 16mm projectors at the Fair. Joseph Basson, union president, is a member of the advisory committee on labor relations, of the Fair.

The union has asked that one operator be assigned to every unit, each unit to consist of four projectors or less. Wage scales will be "dependent on the economic conditions at the time of the exposition and local conditions."

Operators of 16mm will be paid the same scale as those of 35mm, the union president said.

However, in some quarters, it is held that current developments may make it imperative that the Commission take action without further delay, regardless of its opinion as to the desirability of such a move, and to adopt standards and policies which, while they may be subject to change in the future, will give the television industry at least some semblance of stability and an opportunity to probe the possibilities of sponsored and advertising programs as a means of financing development.

Can't Advertise Receivers

Under the provisions of the six-months' experimental licenses which now are issued to television stations, it will be impossible for RCA or other set manufacturers to advertise their receivers over their television services.

Indications, however, are that the Communications Commission will not give consideration to permanent rules until after the telecasting services which are now scheduled to start next spring have been in operation long enough to give some idea of just how perfect picture radio is in actual practice, at least. Accordingly, any advertising of television will have to be carried in other media.

Says 35mm Is Best Television Width

The ideal size film for televising of motion pictures is 35 mm—not 16 mm, or 8 mm, according to a paper by three engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, read before the Atlantic Coast section of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, last week in the Hotel New Yorker. The engineers were G. L. Beers, E. W. Engstrom and I. G. Maloff, and the title of the paper was "Some Television Problems from the Motion Picture Standpoint."

Other factors discussed were proper scanning of films; screen color; contrast and range in the image.

The first television broadcast from the New York World's Fair was made last week when two "telemobile" units of National Broadcasting Company and Radio Corporation of America transmitted a celebration of the arrival of 1,000,000 tulip bulbs from the Netherlands.

Also sent from the Fair grounds were images of murals and statues. Engineers were pleased at the reception, particularly because of the distance involved, seven and one-half miles, the longest distance covered up to then, and because of the victory over atmospheric conditions. It was raining during the tests.

Guests To Participate

Guests at the General Electric building at the World's Fair will participate in television broadcasts, as well as see them, according to plans announced by the company. In the building will be a complete television studio and transmitter. The company will also exhibit its television receivers during the Fair, but has not announced whether they will be for sale.

An RCA-NBC mobile unit "caught" a fire on Ward's Island, New York City, last week. The engineers of the unit had been photographing scenes at an Astoria swimming pool. They iconoscoped the fire, crowd scenes, a fireboat in action. The televising "broke" in the New York newspapers.

With the cooperation of NBC, CBS and the Dumont television laboratories, of Montclair, New Jersey, Paramount will make a short explaining television in operation, according to shorts department head Lou Diamond.

Full Play Is Broadcast

In London last week the British Broadcasting Corporation essayed broadcasting a full length play from the St. Martin's theatre. The play was J. B. Priestley's "When We Are Married." Scheduled to be televised this week was one act of the opening night, Thursday, of "Under Your Hat," starring Jack Hulbert and Ciceley Courtneidge. The BBC already has televised a film first night, and shots from the picture "St. Martin's Lane."

Solomon Sagall, managing director of Scophony, British television organization, is to sail Saturday on the Normandie, for England. Mr. Sagall has been in New York to set up a Scophony Corporation of America, which would manufacture sets, erect transmitting stations, exhibit at the World's Fair, license manufacturers to use its unique patents.

Dumont Electric Company won a victory in the courts last week when a patent infringement suit brought against it by Rubin Condenser Company and P. R. Mallory & Company, Inc., was dismissed in United States district court "without prejudice," by stipulation of the attorneys. Co-defendants with Dumont were Phil and Jacob Dubilier. Dumont has been experimenting with television at its laboratory in Montclair, N. J.

The Leo C. Popkin Distributing Company, Atlanta, Ga., is handling the product of Million Dollar Productions, Inc., producers of all-Negro films. Current releases are "Bargain with Bullets," "Life Goes On," and "The Duke Is Tops." "Gang Smashers," starring Nina Mae McKinney and all-negro cast will be released January 1st.

NEW GRAND NATIONAL REORGANIZES COMPANY

Hammons to Organize Unit to Take Over Fine Arts Program; Quota Films Set

The producing and distributing structure of the "new" Grand National Pictures was reorganized suddenly Tuesday evening, with President E. W. Hammons announcing that a new producing company, as yet unnamed, would take over the assets and program of Fire Arts Pictures, which originally had been set up as the company's main producing unit.

Also announced were plans for production in England of eight quota pictures, intended for English consumption only, and Grand National's own distribution organization in England, headed by Jeffrey Bernerd and Edward R. Russell. Mr. Bernerd until two weeks ago was with Gaumont British in London.

Decision to form a new production company by taking over Fine Arts Pictures' assets was the result of conferences between Mr. Hammons and Franklyn Warner, head of Fine Arts, in New York, Monday. Mr. Warner had been using the Grand National studios for production. He came East last week with the understood intention of obtaining greater administrative authority, and a possible half interest in Grand National Pictures. He was reported to have argued for these on grounds that his company was supplying 26 of the 44 films on the organization's schedule.

The result was the withdrawal of Mr. Warner from the company. Grand National will continue to distribute three completed Fine Arts Pictures, "Shadows Over Shanghai," "Cipher Bureau" and "Frontier Scout," and a new picture, now being edited, "The Long Shot."

The new company will complete the 22 remaining pictures on the program, and in addition, may produce at least two "A" pictures, and increase appropriations for future productions. The new unit as yet has not been named.

British Unit Set

Mr. Bernerd, as head of the new Grand National British company, will be assisted by Edward B. Russell, managing director of Educational Films, Ltd., as a managing director. The company will handle shorts and features and will have exchanges in all key spots in Britain. Plants and equipment to be used in Britain for production are not yet revealed.

According to Arthur Lee, head of Gaumont British in America, Mr. Bernerd's GB contract was settled several weeks ago. Mr. Bernerd had been director and general manager of Gaumont British Distributors, Ltd.; a director of the General Theatre Corporation, Ltd., of London, an affiliate of Gaumont British, and general sales manager of Gaumont British Pictures.

Present Grand National Pictures is the result of a recent merger between Grand National Films and Educational Pictures.

Grand National Films, which began about two years ago, ended up this year in reorganization under 77-B. In it, Educational saw the opportunity for studio and story properties, acquisition of films already made, and a sales set-up in key cities, as well as a foreign department. The merger, talked about for months, became a fact in October, with name being changed from Grand National Films to Grand National Pictures, and with Educational officers assuming control, and Educational being financially the parent company. Capitalization of the new company was $5,450,000.

Officials of this new company are E. W. Hammons, president; Jack Skirball, vice-president; George Blake, secretary; T. R. Williams, treasurer; Harold Saxe, assistant treasurer. Edward Alperson is general sales manager.

The board of directors of Educational Pictures, the parent company, met Wednesday morning and re-elected their entire slate of officers as follows: E. W. Hammons, president; Bruno Weyers, vice-president; T. R. Williams, secretary and treasurer; Harold Saxe, assistant treasurer.

Franklyn Warner, whose producing company, Fine Arts Pictures, was acquired by Grand National Pictures, said of the transaction before leaving New York for the coast, that he had "nothing but the warmest feelings and sincerest good will towards Grand National. I predict an exceptionally bright future for the company."

Schaefer Makes First RKO Studio Visit

For his first visit to the RKO studios, since he was named president of the company, George J. Schaefer left New York this Friday. In addition to his RKO presidency, and that of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, B. F. Keith Corporation, and RKO Pathe News, Mr. Schaefer was recently elected president of RKO Proctor Corporation, and board chairman of RKO Orpheum Corporation.

Leo Spitz, whom Mr. Schaefer succeeded, is back in New York after time spent at the studio, and a vacation at Palm Springs.

"Jules Levy Appreciation Week" will be observed by RKO Canadian offices from this Saturday to next Friday. RKO Canadian district head is L. M. Devaney.

Universal Puerto Rico Office

Universal will open its own distribution office in Puerto Rico, in line with which a general revision of distributing arrangements in the adjacent territory is being made, J. H. Seidelman, foreign manager, said this week. Carlos Matos has been named manager of Universal Pictures Corporation of Puerto Rico, the new distributing company. The company will also handle its own distribution in the islands of Curacao and Aruba, as of December 31st. A two year distribution agreement for Venezuela has been made with Luis Martinez. These territories formerly were handled for the company by Jaime Puig Arosemena, who continues as Universal's agent for Colombia.

Warner in New York

Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production of Warner Brothers, arrived in New York Thursday on the Normandie, after a trip abroad to attend the opening of the new Warner theatre in London. Mr. Warner will remain in New York until December 3rd for conferences with Gradwell Sears, sales manager; Major Albert Warner, vice-president and treasurer, and S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity.

New RKO Plan May Be Adopted Before Year's End

Hope for final disposition of the RKO reorganization plan before the end of the year was advanced this week by a statement from Federal Judge William Bondy, before whom the plan is being discussed, in which he said he hoped to conclude his examination before December 2nd, date of the next hearing. The judge said at Tuesday's hearing that he was examining all arguments against the plan carefully, and if it was found fair, he would look at the technical details somewhat broadly, so as to hasten the plan's adoption.

Tuesday's hearing was devoted mainly to objections raised by lawyers in opposition to the plan. John S. Stover, attorney for Ernest W. Stirn, who holds 1,234 shares of original Class "A" RKO stock, claimed consents to the plan were not valid, because only his client, and none of the stockholders, or debenture holders had filed sworn proofs of claim.

Colonel Hamilton C. Rickaby, counsel for those who advocate the reorganization plan, said it was not necessary for the stockholders to file proofs of claim, and that the debenture holders had filed proof of claim through the debenture trustee.

Warners to Continue Cosmopolitan Releases

Warner Brothers' releasing arrangement with Cosmopolitan Productions will be extended for a period of years, probably on the present basis of releasing six pictures a year under the Cosmopolitan label,

The new agreement is still to be completed and further meetings are scheduled when Harry M. Warner recovers from his illness. The present agreement expires at the end of this year, and will be completed when Warners deliver two more pictures.

Actors Guild in Air Show

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, said Tuesday that a deal for a transcontinental radio show series, in which SAG members would take part, would be signed this week, with Gulf Oil Company the sponsor. The money paid by the sponsor and agency is to be turned over to the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

Ben Schlanger, motion picture theatre architect who is a regular contributor to Quigley Publications' "Better Theatres," has removed his offices to 117 West 46th Street, New York, from 67 West 44th.

Incorporation papers have been filed in Sacramento, Cal., by Harry Wurtzel, agent, and Gilbert Pratt, writer-director, for Sunset Productions, Inc. The company plans 52 short subjects in color on patriotic themes. Negotiations are under way for major release.

Blanca Castejon, who played the feminine lead in the Spanish talking picture, "Mis Dos Amores," produced by Cobian Productions for Paramount release, has been given a long term contract by Rafael Cobian.

DOUBLE FEATURE DEADLOCK CALLED DEFEAT FOR BRITISH DISTRIBUTORS

Industry Realizing That Renters, as Well as Independent Exhibitors, Are Victims of Circuit's Strength

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

The fidelity with which the vicissitudes of international warfare reflect themselves on the battlefields of Wardour Street was never more vividly or more provocatively revealed than in the present impasse over the problem of two super pictures in one program.

On the face of it the complete and confessed inability of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, or at best its executives, to find a solution to what is a crucial problem, and the deadlock into which the matter has drifted, would seem, on the face of it, to be a failure, a complete and self-admitted defeat for the great mass of British exhibitors.

With the passing of the sting and the return of normal vision, however, an increasing body of realists are moving to the belief that it is in fact a defeat for the distributors and, what is more significant, a defeat which ultimately may well strengthen the exhibitor's position in the film hire market.

On the pleading of the General Council's own Negotiating Committee and on the Council's own acceptance, the problem of overlong programs, the guilt for which is allegedly laid at the circuit's door, is insoluble. There is no apparent solution which does not bring in its train worse evils than already exist. The independent exhibitor, in fact, has roared in furious revolt . . . but the circuits' position is, if not unchallenged, at any rate unshaken.

Circuits' Hands Free

Obvious it is now that the circuit houses can continue unhampered by domestic discords and protests, to show two super films in one program, with or without vaudeville support as they will. The independent exhibitor and the CEA in general are powerless to prevent it. Independents, faced with this inconvenient competition, must, as the saying is, take it and lump it.

What hitherto has been lost from view, but now is being recognized, is that though it is a defeat for the protesting independents, admittedly a minority, it also must be hailed as a defeat for the distributors who are avowedly and vociferously, whatever may be the economic processes and workings opposed to it. Forgotten for a time was the objection of the Kinematograph Renters Society, forgotten even the fact that grading as composed and presented by the KRS was allegedly designed to stop it. Now it is realized that independent exhibitors to some degree, and the renters themselves, are in a like position of being victims of the circuits' strength and uncompromising tenacity.

Recognized is it, too, that the victory of the circuit interests in regard to the showing of two supers in one program must have an effect on the whole processes of film hire. If the circuits continue to show two supers in one bill, against alleged objections of the distributors, it must, contend the realists, have an effect on film rentals generally, an effect to the ultimate benefit not only of the circuits but of exhibitors in general.

BELIEVE BRITISH LABOR PROBE DEAD

The proposal to issue a report on the government's investigation of labor conditions in the British film industry is authoritatively believed to be dead, following a meeting this week at the Board of Trade between government officials and Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association representatives.

It was intimated that the government and the exhibitors expressed satisfaction with the progress of film labor negotiations and the completion of a number of agreements already. If the situation continues so, it was indicated, there will be no attempt to hamper the progress by the issuance of the labor report.

It would seem perfectly true that though this latest development may not necessarily weaken the position of the distributors, it certainly will unsettle them. The dominance of the circuit over the independent exhibitor would in the face of it seem consolidated to a great extent, but the ultimate gain, following a victory of a body of consumers over the producer corporation, should in the long run be felt by all.

It is generally felt that the negotiating committee, to whom the buck was passed back last month, were justified in the attitude that if the rank and file and the branches could not agree on what a "super film" was, it was impossible to solve the problem of the "super film." In their own words, "there is strong opposition from a considerable number of Branches to any grading of pictures. Your Committee has also noted suggestions that they should interview the circuits and try to get the showing of two super films on one programme stopped. Your committee would point out that it is perfectly useless for them to be expected to find any solution while a considerable section of the Association is not prepared to have films graded." The problem, in fact, was declared insoluble.

Independents Say Otherwise

The more rebellious and turbulent independents are still convinced that the problem could be solved. Indeed, some of them have declared that nothing ever has been more unsatisfactory than the manner in which the matter was dealt with by the committee. There are some who even interpret the committee's activities and decisions as being entirely pro-circuit. But the consensus was that they had an impossible task to fulfill, that they were, in fact, being asked to solve a problem without being given a definition of the factors upon which the problem is based.

As already suggested in these columns, the question of two features in one program is, though in many ways, a cause celebre, limited to individuals and local areas. But the essential fact so far as the independents are concerned, is that the circuits have consolidated their stronghold. The present shortage of films, the fact that the circuits, being biggest buyers of product, have first choice and the fact that although these may be the normal workings of the economic law the ultimate question of price is left to the arbitrary decisions of salesmen, are likely to drive the independents, who after all form the great bulk of film buyers, into supporting that plea for a general campaign in the matter of film rentals of which President Kenneth Nyman, champion of the small man, is the standard bearer.

It was perfectly clear from the recent local examinations of the problems, that the vast bulk of exhibitors realize that any grading of films or any registration system, even though aimed to solve the two features in one program problem, would inevitably have repercussions which would result in the rationing of product and the demand for increased prices. The logicality of exhibitors starting a process of grading to which they already have expressed their objection, hardly arose. The economics of the matter spoke louder than the politics.

"Apprehension," "unqualified opposition," "surprise and alarm," these are fair examples of the language in which CEA branches have described the proposal—a very half hearted alternative—to set up their own system of grading.

According to Jack Prendergast, the independent market represents £18,000,000 ($90,000,000) per annum, which means that the independents contribute £6,000,000 ($30,000,000) each year to the renters' coffers. Factual arguments such as this are not unlikely to appeal to the growing realist camp in the CEA, with an ultimate attack on the rental situation, not on political but on economic grounds. It remains now to be seen what the next move will be. It will not be one of bland acceptance.

Consider Producers' Association

Formation of a producers' association to continue on a wider scale the work of the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries was decided at a dinner of the FBI group this week to consider the future course of the organization. American producers in England were invited to join the planned organization.

Only 52 features were made here during the first seven months that the Film Act has been in operation, according to the Association of Cine Technicians. This figure includes 12 pictures made under the exhibitor quota provisions of the Act.

The London branch of the CEA has advised its members officially to cooperate with the London City Council in carrying out the new seating rule.

An audience of 6,000,000 visits theatres each week in the London area, the annual report of the London Passenger Board, traffic trust covering the metropolitan area, shows. The report also estimates that there are 41 houses with 44,000 seats in the West End alone.

As a result of CEA pressure, backed by an almost complete unanimity and collaboration among rank and file members, distributors in the future will pay greater attention to the condition of prints.

British Films on Broadway

British-made films are enjoying unusual first-run representation on Broadway, at this time, with "The Citadel" completing its third and last week at the Capitol and "Sixty Glorious Years" at Radio City Music Hall. "Pygmalion" will start at the Astor December 1st. "The Citadel" and "Pygmalion" are being distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which made the first-named. "Sixty Glorious Years" is being released by RKO Radio.

THE TIME IS RIPE FOR A

NEW WESTERN STAR

...AND HERE HE IS!

★ BILL ★

("WILD BILL HICKOK")

ELLIOTT

Believing that in the highly competitive field of Western showmanship, the constant development of new personalities is absolutely essential, COLUMBIA is elevating to stardom the youthful hero of the sensational serial, "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok"... BILL ELLIOTT.

We urge every exhibitor to book his first starring picture, "IN EARLY ARIZONA", and to back it with a two-fisted campaign that will build him up into one of your strongest Western attractions.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

CRIME TAKES A HOLIDAY: Jack Holt, Marcia Ralston, Douglas Dumbrille—Jack should take a holiday until Columbia learns to produce better sound. The sound in this was very poor, mushy and booming. Jack is too good a scout to be handicapped by poor recording. Story itself not exactly his type. Business under par. Played November 5.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown—If you can credit Joe Brown in college, this picture is okay for a screwball comedy, that has some laughs, and an audience that is not too critical, which goes for the weekend run. The picture will get by, and comedies are supposed to have some license, so Joe is in college in this one, and that's that.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson—Another glorious picture. Entertainment with a big E and from an exchange with a heart. Give Columbia all the playing time possible. A picture action, grand acting. Extended runs in any spot. Running time, 83 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown, Jane Wyman—We have played better Browns than this picture. It got by nicely on a Friday-Saturday date. Do not expect too much or you will be disappointed. Running time, 67 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

First National

GARDEN OF THE MOON: Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay, John Payne, Johnnie Davis—Pretty fair music show which pleased average business. Gets its title from name of night club operated by Pat O'Brien in which John Payne sings and leads the orchestra a la Vallee. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 7-8.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Gaumont British

SAILING ALONG: Jessie Matthews, Roland Young—Fair.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

STRANGE BOARDERS: Tom Walls, Renee Saint Cyr—Interesting spy story. Drawing power by English stars is absolutely nil in my theatre.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

Grand National

SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT: James Cagney, Evelyn Daw—Something to crow about, too! Our biggest weekend in some time and that's what we are all looking for.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tillbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull—Needless to say, this should do business everywhere.—Rudolph Covi, Covi Theatre, Herminie, Pa. Small town and rural patronage.

CITADEL, THE: Robert Donat, Rosalind Russell—A fine dramatic production. Donat and Russell enact their roles splendidly.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

CITADEL, THE: Robert Donat, Rosalind Russell—Headache number two. (See report on "The Great Waltz.") Played November 8-9.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

CHASER, THE: Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morris—Plenty of action and the picture pleased.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfurt, Kan. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan—Good picture but very poor at the box office. Played November 4.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, Lionel Stander—This is a good picture. Taylor further proves he's a real "he man." Lionel Stander is a knockout. Some people said there was too much fighting, but the more the better for me. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 12-13.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan—This picture pleased, but did not do any extra business.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice—Fair comedy. No business.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

GREAT WALTZ, THE: Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Karjus—A musical treat for everyone. Miliza Karjus a brilliant singer. Gravet and Rainer splendid.—Leon C. Balduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

GREAT WALTZ, THE: Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Karjus—What a headache. Pulled it on second day and substituted "The Citadel" and instead of one headache we had two in succession. My advice would be to pay for them, if you don't get help from Uncle Sam meanwhile, and let them lay on the exchange shelf. Played November 6-7.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

LISTEN, DARLING: Freddie Bartholomew, Judy Garland, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—Interesting comedy drama.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MANNEQUIN: Joan Crawford, Spencer Tracy—Joan did some nice work here, but competition is getting her down. Spencer Tracy saved the day. Didn't make film rental.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power—A very fine bit of acting, directing and photography that meant not a thing in this situation. I am very sorry to say that we had a very poor turnout for this special of Metro's. Personally, I thought that Power had no business whatsoever in the same picture with Miss Shearer and the rest of the fine cast, but then that's a small matter. Picture pleased those who came. Running time, 157 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Small town and rural patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery—Not so good. Business poor.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Lew Ayres, Ruth Hussey—Fair picture, however, not an "A" production by any means. Did average business. Played November 1.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan—Very fine picture. Pleased all who came to see it.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—This is a honey and should do business and pleases patrons anywhere. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 9-10.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—Here is a grand picture. One of the best you ever ran. Action, smiles and tears, and two grand stars. When you run this, remember if I was right. Running time, 90 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy—A wonderful picture that failed to click due to snow and bad weather. Should have run this two months sooner. Everyone that saw it raved over it. Running time, 119 minutes. Played November 11-13.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—Good comedy that everyone enjoyed. Played November 8.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

TOY WIFE, THE: Luise Rainer, Melvyn Douglas—A flop here. Too bad we have to play these kind of pictures in small towns. It is well acted.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—Fair program picture.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

YANK AT OXFORD, A: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Vivien Leigh—Fine picture that seemed to please. Running time, 103 minutes. Played November 4-6.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU'RE ONLY YOUNG ONCE: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford—This was my first Hardy family picture, and believe you me it was a knockout. I am playing "Love Finds Andy Hardy" this week and expect a "stand-up" crowd. They're okay. Played October 18.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore.—Excellent B picture. Stands alone in any spot. No extended runs. Entertainment every minute and will please all. Running time, 82 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lynn Carver, Jo Ann Sayers, Nat Pendleton, Emma Dunn—This is one swell picture and should please anywhere. Better picture and better business than I expected. Lionel Barrymore is very good. Lew Ayres ditto. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 13.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lynn Carver, Nat Pendleton, Jo Ann Sayers, Emma Dunn—More entertaining than "The Citadel." Ayres and Barrymore very good.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

Monogram

BOY OF THE STREETS: Jackie Cooper, Maureen O'Connor—This is really "tops" at the B. O. Had one of the biggest prevues I ever had. It's good entertainment, too. Running time, 76 minutes. Played September 24-26.—R. L. Hall, Altec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

ROSE OF THE RIO GRANDE: Movita, John Carroll—A "Zorro" type of a drama that is above average, and we also did above average business on this.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER: Bob Burns, Jean Parker, Fay Bainter, John Beal—This is what the doctor ordered, a down-to-earth picture that goes in a small town and has what it takes. Burns' first starring picture and your memory goes back to Will Rogers in just such as this. And Miss Bainter, may she carry on for a long while. She is a great trouper, always a finished performance and that goes for her role in "White Banners" and she is tops in this one.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

Saves $3,000 When Hurricane, Flood Ravage Theatre

HARTFORD, CONN.—"When the hurricane and flood, that put many New England theatres 'in the dark,' struck our big State Theatre here, we immediately called our Altec inspector, Charles E. Maass," said Martin D. Harris, vice president of Capitol Theatre, Inc. "When he first arrived, the auditorium was full of water, and he had to ride across the stage on a raft to inspect the horns.

"I fully realized for the first time the importance of the testing and other equipment the Altec man uses. By means of it, Maass saved us from having to make almost a complete rewiring job, and enabled us to open our theatre, one of the largest in New England, without any serious electrical troubles.

"Our Altec service contract has saved us approximately three thousand dollars, or the cost of service for many years to come."

BUCCANEER, THE: Fredric March, Franciska Gaal, Margot Graham, Akim Tamiroff, Hugh Sothern—The story, acting, photography, etc., all combine to make this according to the most critical of all critics, our boys, one of the best pictures ever screened. They were especially impressed by the very fine acting of that new "up and coming" feminine star, Franciska Gaal. Paramount, don't let her get away from you, for she's natural. The acting of March, Hugh Sothern (Andrew Jackson), the ever comical Tamiroff, et al., left little to be desired. If you haven't already arranged for your patrons to see this great picture, don't delay, do it today. It's a box office natural. Running time, 125 minutes. Played November 12.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Hank Luisetti, Eleanore Whitney, Betty Grable—Nice little program picture featuring basketball. Recording good. Running time, 63 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Eleanore Whitney—TOUCHDOWN ARMY: Mary Carlisle, John Howard—Both of these are well done. Please all. Stand alone in small spots; second half in the larger towns. Good enough for B pictures, as good as you expect. Running time, 65 and 70 minutes respectively.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PROFESSOR, BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—A very good slapstick comedy suitable on any night. I can't understand why so many of the exhibitors pan this one. We played same two days to good business. Running time, 90 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

PROFESSOR, BEWARE: Harold Lloyd—The picture was okay, but we had several walkouts and it did not draw.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

SING, YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Donald O'Connor, Ellen Drew, Elizabeth Patterson—The first since long ago that drew well. Their music and songs are plenty good. Little Donald O'Connor is good. Had good crowds despite bad weather. Running time, 88 minutes. Played November 2-3.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Dorothy Lamour, Henry Fonda, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, John Barrymore, Louise Platt—A fine picture with a "smash" finish. Raft and Lamour still pack 'em in. Wish Paramount would team them more often. Running time, 110 minutes. Played September 28-29.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

TOUCHDOWN ARMY: Mary Carlisle, John Howard (see report on "Campus Confessions").—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine.

Republic

GANGS OF NEW YORK: Charles Bickford, Ann Dvorak, Alan Baxter—This is a major grade A action drama from every count, story, direction, players, suspense. A picture like this is a credit for any major studio for that type of a picture. We did a fair average business considering weather and counter attractions.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—Gene Autry draws plenty good here, but am of the opinion that "Frog" does most of it. When they play, its "S. R. O." Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 7-8.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry—Fine musical western that brought in extra business. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 4-5.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

UNDER WESTERN STARS: Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—Make no mistake, these Republic boys seem to have the answer when it comes to westerns. Record business. Played this first picture up. Got started on the right foot.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BLIND ALIBI: Richard Dix, Whitney Bourne—Pretty good program picture. The dog in this was excellent. Recording good. Running time, 70 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

BORDER G-MAN: George O'Brien, Ray Whitley—One of George O'Brien's best with action galore.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. Gneral patronage.

CAREFREE: Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire, Ralph Bellamy—Good program picture. As a dance team, these two are hard to beat. Of course, not everybody likes dancing pictures. What these pictures need is some good comedy relief and not quite so much dancing. Recording good. Running time, 83 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MAD MISS MANTON: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Frances Mercer, Whitney Bourne—Amusing mystery comedy.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Fay Bainter, Ruby Keeler, Anne Shirley, James Ellison, Ralph Morgan, Donnie Dunagan—An ideal picture for all audiences. Nothing spectacular, but just homey entertainment. The little child Donnie Dunagan stole the entire picture, and Anne Shirley and Ruby Keeler exceptionally good. More pictures like this will bring patrons into your house. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart—Excellent picture to good business. Played October 24.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—Everyone's already said all that can be said about this grand picture. It's "tops." Nothing can be added. Running time, 105 minutes. Played October 26-27.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—A picture that puts sunshine in an exhibitor's life.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers, Robert Kellard, Jean Rogers—Stands out with other previous Jane Withers pictures.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Claire Trevor, Jean Hersholt, Joan Davis, Cesar Romero, Slim Summerville, John Qualen—Pleased those who saw this picture. The Quints do not draw in my town.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER: Loretta Young, Richard Greene—An interesting melodrama if they see it from the start. It had no drawing power for us. The massacre scene on the stairs is about as horrible a scene as has been put into a picture in some time, outside of out-and-out war dramas. How a producer like Darryl Zanuck would permit a scene like that to go into a picture, is beyond me, especially when the scene was not needed to develop the story. Perhaps some producers still think that slaughtering a couple of hundred helpless men and woman is entertainment.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronge.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy—Picture pleased, picture drew fine and all were very happy. We played this on a Bank Night but that was simply to get an early date on it. Give this a big play and it will bring them in, or so it did here. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. E. Iliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Small town and rural patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers — Well liked and drew well.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers—Played this with "Gold Mine in the Sky" (Gene Autry), Republic. This double bill did top business for us. Just whom to credit for the special draw let us divide the honors. Give the proper credit to Gene Autry and the Ritz Brothers and not forgetting Smiley Burnette, because without Smiley things would not be quite the same.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

KIDNAPPED: Warner Baxter, Freddie Bartholomew—I found this a very interesting melodrama. It is different from the usual run. The title would lead most to believe that it is a gangster drama, but it is drama of Old Scotland, but it keeps moving at a fast pace with the suspense mounting right to the end. If they want action and red blooded drama this ought to please. This had no special drawing power for us.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple—Shirley is losing out as a drawing card here. The picture was fair but nothing to rave about.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

MYSTERIOUS MR. MOTO: Peter Lorre, Mary Maguire—Played this picture on Armistice Day and it failed to draw, although Moto pictures have drawn here before. Those few who saw it liked it. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 11-12.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Gloria Stuart, Jack Haley—My last picture at Star Theatre, Mendenhall, and many people said that it was the very best that I had ever shown. I really liked it and thought little Shirley did a great piece of acting. She had a fine supporting cast. Also her singing was better than usual. This is the sweet, lovely type of picture that any exhibitor is proud to have for his patrons, and he can be sure that no one will go away dissatisfied. Running time, 81 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General patronage.

SUEZ: Tyrone Power, Loretta Young, Annabella—Beyond a doubt, "Suez" is all that the producers claim it to be and that's saying a lot! Tyrone Power plays an outstanding role, and if anything, Annabella, who isn't as great a beauty as Loretta Young, outplays her by a wide margin. Really a picture that leaves something down deep within the spectator. Running time, 104 minutes. Played November 9.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea—Fair comedy drama that did not draw.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

WE'RE GOING TO BE RICH: Gracie Fields, Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy—Not much chance of us getting rich if Fox continues making ones like this. A mushy mouthed English period picture made in England. This picture made the third in a row for us that had been made for foreign consumption. Here's hoping that the European market blows up and stays that way. Then our producers can concentrate on American stories and backgrounds. Played November 11.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

United Artists

COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO, THE: Robert Donat, Elissa Landi—I got behind this as if it was a new picture and we did above average business with this. We brought this reissue at a reasonable price so we came out on the profit side of the ledger on this. This is an outstanding picture in every way. —J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

DRUMS: Sabu, Raymond Massey—A very interesting feature dealing with England's trouble in India today and giving us a very vivid picture of what they have to contend with. This is a very heavy show that will not appeal to the masses but will find high favor with those who like to concentrate their whole attention upon the screen and who can follow a rather deep plot without losing interest in the story. Color very nice and so was photography. This didn't draw any too well, but then we played it rather hot and didn't get the benefit of any outside advertisement. Thought parts were just a little too brutal but guess it was all for more vividness of story. Running time, 99 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Small town and rural patronage.

Universal

FRANKENSTEIN (reissue): Boris Karloff, Colin Clive—The biggest gross on this one than on any other picture. These horror films still pack them in. "Ole" Universal has given me three out of my five biggest grosses on "Frankenstein," "You're a Sweetheart" and "Little Tough Guy." Running time, 71 minutes. Played October 15-17.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," Andrea Leeds, Adolphe Menjou, George Murphy—An excellent picture so far as the box office is concerned. This man Murphy is no "love interest" so far as we are concerned. Very wooden in his acting, but Miss Leeds is sweet and Bergen supplies enough comedy to take off any of the heaviness that Menjou supplies. Very satisfactory entertainment. Running time, 103 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End Kids," Robert Wilcox, Helen Parrish—Help! Help! If something isn't done to stop this idea that the "Dead End Kids" are worthy of feature length pictures, what'll we do? This thing, "Little Tough Guy," is the poorest ever gotten ready for the screen and I warn you exhibs that are proud of your screen to be sure not to try to put this over at top money.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Universal can take a bow on this because it is one swell piece of entertainment. Being the first effort of a foreign star they did a grand job, but it is hard for a foreign star to click at the box office the first time and oh, boy, what a jaw breaker of a name for plain folks to pronounce or even for folks not so plain, "Danielle Darrieux," but if they keep on making them as good as this, she may become box office in spite of the name.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday—I saw this lovely picture at the Alabama Theatre, Birmingham, and was well pleased with it. Think Deanna really was more like her real self in this than in any of her former pictures, especially when she sang "My Own," a song that was made for her. This picture should by all means be seen by all adolescents from ages 15 to 25 and is naturally pleasing to parents who have children that age. Running time, 95 minutes. Played November 8.—J. H. Young, Star Theatre, Mendenhall, Miss. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson—If this stage show wowed them on Broadway, in filming it they must have missed some of the ingredients. The picture is terrible. Now this is not my own reaction, but the audience's, that if this is the best that this team can do they might as well wash them out. Did they exit on it, I'll say they did, and what they said about it I can't print. It's been a long time since the audience were so unanimous in panning a picture, and we are still hearing about it.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

BOY MEETS GIRL: Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Marie Wilson, Ralph Bellamy—Not even a good program picture. A lot of fine talent wasted. All actors miscast. The whole picture was talk, talk and more talk. Why not put these stars in pictures they belong. Running time, 87 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

INVISIBLE MENACE: Boris Karloff, Marie Wilson—Nothing much to it, but a midnight Hollowe'en audience had no complaints. Played October 31.—Jimmie Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

LOVE, HONOR AND BEHAVE: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, John Litel, Dick Foran—A mild comedy drama that has about lukewarm appeal. They won't squawk on it nor will they give it much applause. We did enjoy Priscilla Lane, however. Played October 22.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Claude Rains, Fay Bainter—The poorest Saturday business for some time. Those who saw the picture praised it but it would not draw. Warner ought to have better recording.—W. H. Hardman, Royal Theatre, Frankfort, Kan. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

HEALTHY, WEALTHY AND DUMB: Three Stooges—These Three Stooges are some fun. For a "finisher" for any program, just book any of these comedies. Running time, 18 minutes.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BURIED TREASURE: Captain and the Kids—Pretty good.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre. Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PYGMY HUNT, THE: Captain and the Kids—Excellent for all the kids and them only. Paramount has this company skinned to pieces when it comes to making cartoons. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SURF HEROES: Pete Smith Specialities—Another ringer for Pete Smith.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

THAT MOTHERS MIGHT LIVE: MGM Miniatures—Instructive.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Paramount

GOOD LOOKING WINNERS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—The unusual in a Grantland Rice Sportlight, showing women's part in sports. Interesting and instructive. Quite a contrast in the women of yesterday and today. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State rison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE: No. 5—The best we have played to date as there were plenty of diversified subjects to please all. Running time, seven minutes. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

GOOD SCOUTS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Excellent in all respects, keeping up the usual standard of this entertainment. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CHRIS COLUMBO: Terry-Toons—Average cartoon. —E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

BOLTED DOOR, THE: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure"—Our patrons don't care for these adventures. They are not worth the rental. Running time, 11 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE CRAWFORD: Vitaphone Varieties—Excellent. One of the best shorts we have played for a long while. Running time, nine minutes. —P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold. Iowa. General patronage.

ROMANCE OF LOUISIANA: Broadway Brevities—A historical short that was pleasing to the eye but very draggy as to action. Strictly historical, dealing with the Louisiana Purchase. Our audience wants action or comedy and not history. Just fair. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

REVIEWS OF BOOKS

WE SAW IT HAPPEN—by thirteen correspondents of the New York Times, edited by Hanson W. Baldwin and Shepard Stone. 379 pages, no illustrations, no index, a book for readers only. Simon & Schuster, New York, $3.00.

It is a November morning's darkest hour. An owl, eagle of the night, is hunting on the meadow at our bend of the Silvermine river. The telechron, humming remotely of the sixty-cycle impulse of some far dynamo, says it is four o'clock. Your writer, in this fireside chair since midnight, has just come back from far places and high excitements, adventuring through the pages of a volume that is a cavalcade of the Now, a ride with the horsemen of the apocalypse into the hell and the humor that is our world.

Little facts of touchable, immediate reality seem amazingly important at this moment of return, facts like the gleam on the andirons, the color in a waning decanter, the comforting blurring sound of an oil burner tending to its business against the chill of impending dawn. I have been away a long time and into trying places—at Washington with Arthur Krock, so sharply objective about deals, Old and New; G. E. R. Gedye, under the beguiling chapter heading of "Vienna Waltz," has made me die with Austria: and again I have thrilled and suffered, while Elliot V. Bell recorded "The Decline of the Money Barons," and Russell Owen has had me off to the South Pole, and then, damit, off to Hawaii and the Massie case again.

But it appears that this preview volume came to me in part because M. Lincoln Schuster thought it might be provocative of interest by reason of its inevitable challenge to one congenitally condemned to reportorial interest and in part because of Douglas Churchill's probably well founded suspicion that I would be looking into it anyway.

Under the indicting title of "Graustark" Mr. Churchill, who is the Hollywood correspondent of the Times, and Frank Nugent, of New York, motion picture editor, have allegedly collaborated.

But when one reads in the first paragraph that: "Future generations will see 1938 on the screen and wonder if this truly has been the age of rebellion and war, TVA and SEC, of the ties of strength between dictatorship and democracy, of the intense scrutiny to which all the rules and laws of our twentieth century civilization have been subjected," one is aware of Mr. Nugent at the microphone speaking his standard piece about how the movies ought to get into the thick of the day's troubles.

After all Mr. Nugent practically convinces one that "motion pictures are your best entertainment." He writes so blandly, engagingly well, with a sleek technique that has a certain shimmer even among the many able wordmongers of the Times. One can be almost sure that the reason he does not say anything is because he has decided not to. The words, though, have a certain annoying fascination like eating popcorn.

It is made manifest that Mr. Nugent went to the Brown Derby and had a laugh—the tee-bone is the best buy there—and that he was about the studios and told some of them that the Times would print the news even if they did bar Mr. Churchill off the lot.

Then there is quite a sequence-of-dig at "Beverly of Graustark," a certain, oh so certain, sloe eyed but weathered Juno, functioning in the region under letters of marque-and-reprisal from a publisher noted for his appreciation of costly antiques. That seems unfair, but a lot of fun to yours-the-undersigned who was among the very first (1916) to get "the heat" from "Beverly." So far as she was concerned Chaplin was a bust until we bought large space. We didn't. Also we wrote her then publisher's obituary. We are going to write another.

Under the title of "We Saw It Happen," after reading Mr. Krock in Washington, and several other penetrating surveys, one might wonder what these gentlemen of the Times cinema pages were doing with their lorgnettes through the careers in screenland of such personages as Harley Clarke, John Otterson and David Sarnoff, through the rise of both Balaban and Katz, the ledger matter of the charge off of $40,000,000 by the Chase National Bank, the spectacular and imaginative and creative job that Joseph M. Schenck did with a notion and Darryl Zanuck, the special significances of the rise of Stanton Griffis, the suppressed report of Joseph P. Kennedy on Paramount, the extraordinary floration of interest in the American racehorse in Hollywood, etc., ad lib., and also ad infinitum. These boys must have been at a preview when the business happened. Anyway they know how cobwebs are made by "the back lot."

—TERRY RAMSAYE

CHARLES LAUGHTON AND I—by Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Laughton), 269 pages, illustrated. Harcourt Brace & Company, $3.50.

Here is biographical, and autobiographical, entertainment with a deal of amazing shrewdness, candor without conceit, and most competent writing. Mrs. Laughton's work in this gay book about her husband presents a viewpoint, a technique and an order of thinking that might well be an example to many a contemporary with vastly more imposing literary pretensions. Her book calls for adjectives—pungent, poignant realisms, all with a composed decency. But it is loaded.

Mr. Laughton has been quoted: "As in her style of writing, Elsa is a sweet unsophisticated person, but suddenly, through an apparently chance but invariably carefully worked out remark, which has probably taken weeks of thought, you feel somewhat as if you had been kicked by the hind leg of a giraffe."

Mrs. Laughton is not unappreciative of Hollywood, and she expresses a conviction that America has done such a job with the motion picture that production overseas might profit by some of its examples.

Most importantly she has written a book to read, filled with many the merry chuckle and a deal of hard sense. By an actress about an actor, it's a miracle. If you know an actor send it for Christmas. It might cure him.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 135

Conducted by

F. H. RICHARDSON

Question No. 135 was: (A) What is a mushroom tip? What causes it? (B) Do properly stored carbons suffer any harm because of length of storage? (C) Name proper SRA carbon combinations and proper amperage for each.

The following made acceptable answers: C. Rau and S. Evans, G. E. Doe; J. R. Prater; C. Oldham; H. Edwards; M. B. Stout, P. E. Shell; L. H. Kelley; J. C. Lathrope; J. A. Zachritz; W. Schoeneman; L. Johnson; R. W. Groton; C. A. Whitlock; W. E. Limmroth; R. Feasel; G. Burdis; C. H. Lowrie; F. W. Brandenburg; H. Bunker; M. and B. Walker; K. L. Brant; F. H., S. and P. Dalbey; E. and F. Wentworth; S. True; A. C. Greene; T. and W. Turk; T. S. Anderson; B. B. Hornstein and R. R. Jacobs; P. and L. Felt; S. M. Robbins; K. Irwin; G. L. Goss; C. Traxler; R. Davis and M. F. Brown; G. Thompson; H. T. Steele; G. L. Baxter; D. and W. Porter; W. Jones and T. L. Ward; A. and B. Richardson; E. Exline; C. Umphrey; P. L. Goldstein and M. Samuels; E. Lomax; G. S. Davis; D. R. Spencer; T. W. Redhouse; P. Slobodny; L. F. and G. Brown; M. D. McGuire; M. and J. Devoy; E. Willoby, G. T. Jones and A. Leonard; L. M. Richardson; H. A. Ames and F. E. Dorp; S. E. Billings; C. Hawkins; G. L. Baxter; B. L. Morris and H. M. Jackson; J. M. Kelner and A. W. Baxter; T. D. Brady; H. T. Plum and D. A. Shea; W. S. Samuels and L. Day; L. Bailey; H. H. Todd and L. E. Dodson; L. A. Beachwood and M. R. Robinson; N. S. Reid and H. T. Watkins; W. R. Allen and M. Samuels; W. B. Hennesy; T. S. Greenberg; N. D. Logman; W. R. Matthews and J. R. Davidson; H. K. Luisser; W. S. Maxwell; W. Winkler and R. R. Robbins; L. B. Daniels and M. A. Ordel; P. L. Gillespie; S. L. Logan; N. D. Tomlinson; S. T. Adams; P. Somers; L. L. Higgins.

(A) W. Schoeneman says, "The enlargement of either or both carbon tips is known as a mushroom. It is caused by carrying too short an arc."

This was essentially the reply of more 200 who correctly answered Section A.

(B) M. and J. Devoy say, "Properly stored in a dry atmosphere, carbons, we believe, would suffer no damage if stored one hundred years. Whether or not storage in excessively damp air would eventually cause some damage we are not certain, though it seems possible. However, if nothing but dampness reached them it would, we believe, work no harm unless the time period be quite extended.

"Coming down to practice, except that storage be where the stock would be covered with more or less dirty water, it seems probable that storage through the whole lifetime of the ordinary theatre would find the carbons undamaged when the playhouse pulled its last performance."

I am not myself altogether certain as to just how far all this holds true. The National Carbon Company, on page 91 of its latest edition of "National Projector Carbons," says, "Carbons should always be stored in a dry place. They are porous and will absorb moisture if stored in a damp location, with the result that sputtering at the arc will be experienced. National Projector Carbons are thoroughly dry when they leave the factory, but there is always the possibility of exposure to dampness during shipment or storage. For this reason, the practice of some projectionists of laying a few carbons in the lamphouse or on top of a rheostat before burning is to be commended. Carbons are not perishable. A damp carbon after being thoroughly dried, is as good as ever."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 140

(A) What has the nature of sound to do with theatre equipment?

(B) What is sound?

(C) What is the effect of sound upon the human ear?

While this may of course be accepted as authoritative, still it would seem such dampness must necessarily be imparted by clean water or by moisture drawn from at least reasonably clean air.

(C) J. R. Prater says, "The proper SRA carbon combination for 28 to 32 amperes is 12 mm. positive, and 8 mm. negative; for 32 to 42 amperes a 13 mm. positive and 8 mm. negative. Positives are also available in 10 mm. and 14 mm. diameters, which can be used with the 8 mm. negative to cover 21 to 24, and 42 to 52 amperes, respectively. Although the total light which can be produced with SRA trims ranges from about 6,000 to 15,000 candle-power, this amount of light is never all available to the collector (mirror) of the lamp. Furthermore, increasing the amperage does not increase the crater brilliancy per square millimeter of area; it merely increases the area of the crater. This increases the diameter of the spot formed at the projector aperture, but seldom results in very much more light getting through the aperture, which of course is the only part of the spot which produces screen illumination. So many different factors—such as focal length or magnification factor of collector (mirror), diversion of light beam beyond aperture (governed by mirror diameter and distance from aperture), working distance of projector lens in that particular theatre, and free diameter of projector lens—must be considered when amperage is increased in an attempt to gain more screen light, that the only safe guide is to make an actual test and measure the increase as it is reflected from the screen. A local photographer or camera dealer can do this with an exposure meter or photometer.

Following his answer Brother Prater remarks, "Regarding the point brought out in Section B to Question 129 (October 15th issue) by our new Alaskan friend, M. B. Stout, I believe that steam does effect the conductivity of the arc and cause flickering light, but not on account of the difference in conductivity between steam and carbon. The minute pockets within the carbon which contain sufficient air and moisture to form steam would have the conductivity of damp air before the steam was produced, which would be very nearly that of the steam itself. However, the actual burning of the arc depends upon the conductivity of the carbon gas which fills the gap between the carbon tips. We all know that the arc will not burn without this gas, and that when steam under pressure escapes from the tips of the carbons, the steam will seriously disturb the gas in the arc gap, often blowing a considerable portion of the gas entirely out of the gap. Since the entire arc voltage is consumed in carrying the current across this short gap between carbons, even slight changes in the conductivity of the gas in the arc stream will cause serious disturbances in the light produced."

Mebby so, Brother Prater, but my own view is that by the pressure generated by confinement, the steam blows off minute particles from the crater floor. National Carbon says moisture within the carbon will cause sputtering of the arc, but does not say exactly why. The "blow-off" is merely my own theory.

Peru a Market for Latest Equipment

There are approximately 205 motion picture theatres in Peru, all of which are reported to be wired for sound with the exception of about 25 small theatres situated in remote sections of the provinces, according to a report to the Department of Commerce at Washington, from the office of the American Commercial Attache at Lima.

Practically all motion picture theatres in the Lima-Callao district and in the other commercial centers of the Republic are equipped with two projectors. Dealers report that the immediate future prospects for the sale of sound and projection equipment are confined principally to supplanting antiquated and inferior equipment, the report states.

Film Process Group Increasing Capital

Permission to increase its capitalization from $25,000 to $300,000 has been granted Motion Picture Process Corporation of Hollywood, by the secretary of the State of California. Plans of the company are for expansion of operations, now devoted chiefly to supplying process shots to major studios, to include developments of the commercial department.

Officers are John Gentile, president, Mario Castegnaro, vice-president and treasurer, and Bertha Castegnaro, secretary.

Three New Film Stocks Produced by Eastman

Improvements over previous stocks used in filming motion pictures are claimed by Eastman Kodak Company for three new negative films: "Plus-X," fine grained and speedy, for general studio work; "Super-X-X," faster than the previous "Super-X," for news work under difficult lighting conditions; and "Background-X," ultra-fine grain, for background use and exterior work.

J. E. Brulatour, Inc., distributes Eastman motion picture film.

IN COURTS

Name Schwartz Examiner In New York Tax Action

Arthur Schwartz of the law firm of Schwartz and Frolich has been assigned to conduct the examination of industry witnesses in connection with the New York City comptroller's attempt to assess distributors more than $100,000 in penalties and interest for failure to pay the two per cent city sales tax from March, 1935, to June, 1937. The distributors contend they acted in good faith, relying upon legal opinion that a sales tax would not apply to films, which are leased and not sold.

Regal Sues GB

Gaumont British Pictures Corporation of America, Gaumont British Picture Corporation, Ltd., and Arthur A. Lee have been named defendants in a suit filed in New York supreme court by Regal Distributing Corporation and Kayart Theatres Corporation. At the same time the plaintiffs filed application to examine Mr. Lee, both individually and as an officer of the defendants, in order to frame a complaint. In the suit the court was asked to rule that the French picture "Rothschild," to which Regal has United States distributing rights, does not infringe upon the defendant's picture, "Mr. Hobo."

Sue for Short Negative

Theodore Nemeth and Mary E. Bute, doing business as Expanding Cinema, Film Service Laboratories, Inc., and Paul Guffanti were named defendants in a suit filed in New York supreme court by Rutherford Boyd, to recover the negative of "Parabola," a one-reel film dealing with the use of curves in art, which he claimed the defendants were wrongfully withholding. The defendants have counter-claimed for $7,500.

Award $30,000 to Widow

Federal Judge Harry Hollzer in Los Angeles this week awarded a $30,000 judgment without limitation of liability to Mrs. Helen Gonmesen, widow of Kristen Gonmesen, against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Mr. Gonmesen was a seaman who was swept overboard in the Pacific during the filming of "Captains Courageous." The suit was based on the contention that the ship was unseaworthy and improperly manned.

Columbia Appeal January 3rd

The New York appellate division has set January 3rd for appeal brought by Columbia Pictures Corporation, Jack and Harry Cohn, A. H. Giannini, and other officers and directors from the decision of New York Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin which upheld the complaint of Betty Davis, plaintiff. The suit charges Columbia with paying excessive salaries to executives, and issuance of illegal voting trust certificates.

Joyce Receives $1,000

John E. Joyce, as special master of Paramount Public, Inc., was allowed ad interim commission of $1,000 this week by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The order providing for the allowance stated that further commissions would be allowed when Mr. Joyce completed his work. He has received a total of $14,000 since his appointment in 1933.

Roxy Accountant Gets Fee

Barrow, Wade, Guthrie and Company, accountants, have been awarded an additional $2,555 by United States District Court Judge Francis G. Caffey for the closing of the operating account of the old Roxy (N. Y.) theatre receivership. The work was done at the request of Howard S. Cullman, former trustee.

Deny MGM Plea

Application to examine Jack Bachman, Don Gordon, Jean Hollingsworth, Lena Frederickson and Grace Dobish in Los Angeles before trial of the infringement suit brought by Henry Rose against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been denied by Judge William Bondy in federal court in New York. Mr. Rose charges plagiarism of his script, "Burrow, Burrow," in the MGM short subject, "Man of the People."

Disney Files Counter Suit

Walt Disney Productions has entered a counter suit in court in Los Angeles against Thornton Allen claiming infringement of the song used in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Some Day My Prince Will Come Back." Mr. Disney claims that his firm copyrighted the song 21 months before Mr. Allen copyrighted "Old Ely," of which he is the publisher and not the composer.

Adjourn Kindler Hearing

Hearing on a motion to punish Abraham Kindler, as president of Empire State Motion Picture Operators' Union, for contempt of court for violation of a preliminary injunction was adjourned this week by New York Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenthaler. The motion was made by Joseph Kimmel, former operator at the Marblehill, who contends that his discharge violated an injunction granted by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy.

Meltzers Drop Suit

With the signing of a new lease, the suit against Continental Properties, Inc., recently filed by the Meltzer Brothers in Chicago, has been dropped. The suit concerned the leasing of the Milford, owned by Continental Properties, whose officers are Harry and Elmer Balaban, Milton Spitz and Morris Leonard.

A one-reel documentary of the recent Atlantic Coast hurricane called "Shock Troops of Disaster," and showing the work of relief and reconstruction forces of the WPA, was screened at the National Archives auditorium in Washington this week.

Charges Against IATSE To Be Heard December 1

Dr. Towne Nylander, Los Angeles regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, has set December 1st for hearings on charges brought by Jeff Kibre, minority faction leader of Studio Local 37, against the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. Mr. Kibre's petition to the board accused the IATSE of company unionism.

The Screen Writers Guild has sent registered letters to all producers pointing out that the Guild has been designated sole bargaining agency for the writers and warning that continued negotiations with Screen Playwrights "are not only illegal under the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act, but also raise additional serious questions as to good faith."

Cobe With Grand National

Robert Cobe has been appointed manager of the Grand National exchange in Boston. Harry Asher has been promoted to division manager of the Boston area. George Rabinowitz, Boston, replaces Mr. Cobe as Republic manager in New Haven.

Howard Estabrook, writer, has severed his connection with Samuel Goldwyn after serving eight months of a one-year contract.

Astor Pictures Corporation has moved its offices to the RKO Building, Rockefeller Center, New York.

Universal has extended the contract of Jerry Sackheim, executive assistant to Cliff Work at the studio.

LETTERS FROM HERALD READERS

DISAGREES WITH STAND ON "FILMS FOR DEMOCRACY"

Dear Mr. Quigley:

After reading in the New York Times of November 20th a fuller explanation than your abridged one in the Motion Picture Herald of November 19th setting forth the aims and ideals of the new non-profit organization, "Films for Democracy," I was amazed at your scepticism of the sincerity and soundness of their program. Your editorial on this subject inspired this reply, which I hope you will publish.

If, in publishing the names of the personnel heading "Films for Democracy," your aim was to discredit the organization, I am sorry to disillusion you, because I for one have reacted in the opposite manner. I would deem it an honor and a privilege to be associated with such people as Rexford G. Tugwell, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, Fredric March, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Fritz Lang, Walter Prichard Eaton, Thomas Mann, and all the others, each a recognized national and international authority in his or her particular calling. To cast aspersions on such a group of men and women, one must produce unimpeachable proof of guilt. Your editorial is devoid of any evidence citing even one instance where anyone of the group was ever found guilty of jeopardizing democracy.

You contend that the general public is not interested in films of educational, or as you prefer to call it, "propaganda" nature. Why then is it that among the Ten Best of 1937, the outstanding themes were social problems?—viz: Emile Zola, The Good Earth, Captains Courageous, Lost Horizon, A Star Is Born, Stage Door, Dead End and Winterset. And these were all box office hits.

And if you care to look still further back, do you remember The Big Parade, What Price Glory, King of Kings, The Covered Wagon, The Birth of a Nation, Disraeli, All Quiet on the Western Front, Arrowsmith, Scarface, Fury, They Won't Forget, Henry the VIII, Rasputin and the Empress, The Informer, Lives of a Bengal Lancer, Louis Pasteur, Mutiny on the Bounty, etc., etc., etc.? Currently, I cite Boys' Town as the classic example of what is good entertainment plus good box office plus social theme. Does not that negate your theory that the public shuns the film with a message?

Furthermore, are you not narrowing down the meaning of the word "enjoyment?" The dictionary defines it briefly: "To feel or to perceive with pleasure." One person may enjoy an opera or a concert, while another may enjoy a prizefight or a wrestling match. Enjoyment is a matter for the individual to decide.

The word "propaganda" has also been so abused that it's high time we became of age and realized that the word "propaganda" should not be used to terrorize. My 98c dictionary briefly defines it as "an organization having for its object the spreading of particular principles or doctrines." Everything is propaganda, depending on the point of view. I, therefore, strongly object to the implications of the heading of your editorial: "Again—the Propagandists." Meaning What?

In the final analysis, it is our great theatre-going public who will be the judges of the merits or demerits of this or any other new trend in the development of stage or screen. Let us, therefore, encourage, rather than discourage, the patriotic endeavor on the part of these prominent educators, artists, playwrights, civic workers and statesmen, in their effort to safeguard and extend democracy in America, through the medium of "Films for Democracy."—George Kraska, Fine Arts Theatre, Boston.

NOTE:

Persons of position frequently lend their names to movements such as "Films for Democracy" because of the broad, meritorious objectives listed and without exact knowledge of the subject matter and methods involved. It is reasonable to assume, and I have so assumed, that various of the persons listed in this movement are not precisely aware of what they have been led into.

The motion picture subjects mentioned are primarily entertainments. Social, economic and political implications, if any, are incidental. There is a vast difference between such subjects and others which are intended primarily as instruments of propaganda with the entertainment feature used only as bait to an unsuspecting public.

You borrow from the viewpoint of totalitarianism when you undertake to insist that motion pictures, the stage, literature and the dance must all be perverted from their original purposes to the end of dragooning the public mind in such habits of thought as may be dictated by prophets of the New Order.

It is not the word propaganda that has been so much abused. Rather it is the vast multitude in many countries abroad who have been abused by the uses of propaganda, until the time has arrived when the term may well be regarded as a word of terror. The modern uses of propaganda, such as this latest effort to pervert the entertainment screen, constitute an import destructive of and not helpful to the American way of life.—M.Q.

FAVORS PRESS BUREAU FOR U. S. FILMS ONLY

To the Editor of the Herald:

I am entirely in agreement with Messrs. Dietz, Schaefer and Birdwell in their suggestions (Motion Picture Herald, issue of Nov. 19) for a permanent publicity bureau which would represent the motion picture industry. As a matter of fact, I have felt for a long time that the industry was negligent in not setting up an agency of this kind long ago.

It seems to me that this very desirable end can be swiftly and effectively accomplished with the minimum cost and difficulty. In this connection I would suggest that this permanent press relations bureau be established within the Motion Pictures Producers and Distributors of America structure, thereby coordinating and centralizing all good-will efforts in behalf of the Industry—the avowed purpose for which the MPPDA was created.

I do not agree with Mr. Birdwell, however, that the head of the bureau be appointed for life, nor that the bureau represent the film industry of the world. Merely to represent the American film industry will be sufficient. Neither do I approve of his suggestion that the industry cooperate with the Government in the defense of democracy, feeling as the Motion Picture Herald does that the function of the screen is to entertain and nothing else.

Mr. Dietz's report is definitely constructive. Were the recommendations contained therein followed through, I feel sure the entire Industry would tremendously benefit thereby.—Joseph G. Ehrlich, Dorchester, Mass.

KEEPS FILM RECORD FROM 'THE HERALD'

To the Editor of the Herald:

I am the manager of a war department theatre at this post and one of the first things I did was to subscribe to the Herald. While we book our pictures through the Kansas City offices and are more or less governed by the protection demanded by the exhibitors in Leavenworth, I still keep a very complete record of releases.

Each week I take the Herald and note any new pictures under the "Coming" list presented from each studio. I make a card on the picture showing the stars, the release date, if stated, and other pertinent data. Then I cut, from the pages of the Herald, the writeups under "The Cutting Room" and "Showmen's Reviews" and paste them on the back of the cards previously filed. This gives me, an "amateur" at this game, a very comprehensive outline of the picture and a fair review of the feature.—Major F. J. Pearson, Inc., The Command and General Staff School, Office of the Recreation Officer, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

SAYS DUAL BILLS CAUSE COMPLAINTS ON QUALITY

To the Editor of the Herald:

Last night I witnessed the most perfect example of the fallacy of the double bill policy in the exhibition of motion pictures and came to a more perfect realization of why the theatre-going public are steadily increasing their complaints as to the quality of pictures the producers are releasing.

This example is so enlightening as to create the further realization that there is nothing wrong with the fine pictures the producers are making, but the method of presentation on a double bill is so involved as to confuse the minds of those witnessing these pictures. . . .

In order to have retained the fine impression created by "The Great Waltz" one should have left the theatre at the end of the picture.

We would suggest that every producer make it a point to drop in at the different theatres playing their pictures at different hours during an evening. They can then determine what effect their own pictures make upon themselves, particularly when they have entered during the third reel of their pictures and have to sit through another picture on the accompanying double bill program, and then sit through the first two reels of their own picture.

It is not my thought in presenting this thought to criticize, nor to do anything other than be helpful and constructive in an industry I love and respect. It is only because of our continually increasing efforts for the past three years to convince producer and exhibitor that the double bill policy is breaking down every fundamental principle of the motion picture industry.—R. H. Poole, General Manager, Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California and Arizona, Los Angeles.

NEW AIR-CONDITIONING TYPE FOR SOUND STAGES

Stored Cold Water Augments Refrigeration Available from Machine During Shooting

Air-conditioning has found something of a new problem, requiring specific modification of its usual technique, in the growing need of air conditioning for the studio sound stage. Three companies alone—20th Century-Fox, Paramount and MGM—have 35 air-conditioned sound stages, and this number is likely to be steadily increased among most of the Hollywood studios because of the greater use of the stage for sequences formerly requiring "location shooting," which requirement has been in substantial measure eliminated by the process background.

This development and the air-conditioning methods applied are discussed in a paper, now made available, by C. M. Wert and L. L. Lewis of the Carrier Corporation, and read by Mr. Lewis before the spring convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Sound stages are so constructed, it is pointed out, that they retain a great deal of the heat generated within them, a principal source of which is the lighting. Without air-conditioning, both performers and members of the technical staff become oppressed by the atmospheric conditions unless production is stopped and doors are opened to "air out" the stage. Although heating of the stage is not usually required during shooting, it is needed during the building of sets and at other times when the large studio doors are constantly being opened; cooling and humidification during the cooling periods are of course necessary, and the air-conditioning system provides these as well as the heating. Additionally, it is of utmost importance to cleanse the incoming air of dust particles that might reduce the quality of the photography.

Features of the System

The air-conditioning system for sound stages described by Messrs. Wert and Lewis, employs the economical storage type of refrigeration, which is said to be particularly applicable because of the intermittent and variable heat loads contended with. When no scenes are being filmed, the water in the storage reservoir is cooled by the relatively low-capacity refrigeration machine; during shooting, when maximum cooling is required (beyond the capacity of the machine alone), the stored cold water augments the refrigeration available from the machine.

Distribution of Conditioned Air

In distributing the filtered, heated or cooled and humidified air, the system must provide for concentration of air in any specific part of the stage, since atmospheric conditions for one set may not be adapted to another.

It has been found, according to Messrs. Wert and Lewis, that the variable set requirements and other factors advised delivery of the conditioned air downward at low velocity "against a blanket of heated air rising upward." The conditioned air displaces the warmer air. The supply outlets are placed at such heights that the conditioned air is sure to reach the breathing zone, and do so without creating drafts, while the warmer air can ascend to area well above it.

Supply outlets are at the level of the bottom of the building truss construction; exhaust openings are at the roof. The system provides for recirculation of the conditioned, partly "used" air along the floor.

Prevention of System Noise

The system must of course be carefully treated for the prevention of system noise penetration into the stage area. The treatment cited by Messrs. Wert and Lewis consists of the concentration of sound-absorbing material at one point, "in cells or passes through which the air must flow." Plenum effects, wherein fans are discharged into large acoustically lined chambers, the discharge velocity being impacted against the walls of the chamber, have also proved very effective, they add.

Harris' Senator Theatre Opens in Pittsburgh

The Senator theatre, Pittsburgh, dedicated to the late Senator John P. Harris, was opened Thursday by Harris Amusement Company, following an invitation preview Wednesday night at which ex-Senator Frank H. Harris delivered a dedicatory speech. Mr. Harris, president of the company, is a brother of the founder of the circuit, and a son, John H. Harris, is general manager.

The house, known as the Aldine when operated by Loew's, was closed for ten years. Nearly $100,000 has been spent in remodeling and increasing the seats to $2,000.

Columbia Will Increase 1939 Newspaper Budget

Increased newspaper advertising and emphasis on certain pictures were laid down as a general policy for the forthcoming year, by Columbia's sales manager, Abe Montague, speaking in New Orleans last weekend to a quarterly meeting of exchange men from Atlanta, Charlotte, Dallas, Memphis, Oklahoma City, and New Orleans. Pictures to be emphasized will be "Plane No. 4," "Blondie"; "Golden Boy," and "Our Wife."

One thousand are scheduled to attend the 19th annual dinner-dance Saturday night at the Hotel Astor, of the Motion Picture Associates.

French Film Exchange has leased offices at 545 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Leo Malchin is a principal.

B. N. Judell has acquired the mid-western territorial rights to "Adventures of Chico," produced and distributed by Woodward Productions.

Dave Snell has been assigned to do all the musical scoring on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's short subjects.

Pathe Dissolution Awaits Approval Of Stockholders

Pathe Film Corporation stockholders will meet December 12 to approve liquidation plans calling for retirement of Pathe preferred shares at $100 a share, pro-rata distribution of the company's Monogram stock and RKO notes, purchase by Robert R. Young, and other Pathe directors of the Bound Brook, New Jersey plant, and its business.

The plan was completed this week, and seal of the Securities Exchange Commission was expected this week, also. Eighty per cent of the stockholders must approve before December 31, if the liquidation is to be effective under the Federal Revenue Act, section 112-B.

Mr. Young and his associates are offering $500,000 in 25-year debentures for the Bound Brook plant, and its business, this being equal to 90 cents a share on the common stock. The debentures would be retired through a sinking fund equal to 20 per cent of the yearly profits. The purchasers would invest $200,000 as working capital.

The 7,968 preferred shares would be retired as follows. The company's 3,500 shares in Dupont Film Manufacturing Corporation would be pledged with a bank as collateral for a loan of $1,000,000, which would be used to retire the preferred shares at $100 a share. It is estimated that if Dupont dividends continue at the rate paid in 1937, they will be enough to pay off the loan in two years.

The company holds 66,000 shares of Monogram stock, and $240,000 of RKO notes. These would be distributed pro-rata among common stockholders.

Mr. Young and his associates are said to control about 60 per cent of Pathe common.

Variety Clubs Dine and Elect

In Kansas City, this Friday, the local Variety Club was to hold its annual charity ball; the Washington (D.C.) Chapter Club elected a slate of officers for 1939, headed by A. E. Lichtman as chief barker; and in Columbus, Governor Martin Davey was a luncheon guest.

Besides Mr. Lichtman, elected as chief barker, the Washington unit elected Hardie Meekin, of RKO Keith's, first assistant chief barker; and Sidney Lust, independent exhibitor, second assistant chief barker.

Harry Brown, Grand National branch manager, is the new secretary; Sam Galanty, Columbia division manager, is again the treasurer; Ray Bell, of Loews, continues as executive secretary; and A. Julian Brylawski, chief barker of the past season, is new delegate to the councils of the national organization.

The occasion of the luncheon in Columbus last week was the presentation of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Paramount cameraman John Hermann, who photographed the second Byrd expedition to Little America.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor
GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

THE DOUGH DOES IT

The circuit sale of Christmas gift tickets by Famous Players-Canadian in 1937 doubled the number disposed of in 1936. Last year's figures are expected to be topped by a wide margin in the current drive now in operation.

Why? First, a commission is offered to staff members on what they sell outside the theatre. Second, the manager gets his through the circuit's famed Sharing Plan which allows him to include in his grosses the sales made by his staff.

In other words, gentlemen, the Famous Players-Canadian theatre-tickets-as-Christmas-gifts plan goes over like a house afire because an incentive is provided for the boys and girls to get out there and push the ball. The incentive is the extra do-re-mi, and no more effective shot-in-the-arm has been discovered since Eve swapped an apple for the facts of life.

THREE-SHEETS THE BOXOFFICE ONLY

It was a chance meeting with a circuit operator that encourages your Chairman to set down here what came up in the conversation about contributions from the managers of his theatres.

The executive had somewhat of an opinion that contributors to this department were endeavoring to three-sheet themselves at the expense of their operations. At the same time, he praised the Round Table as an aid to the box office, emphasized that the HERALD came regularly to every manager.

We answered that the Round Table was purely a clearing house for ideas from the field for every man's ticket-window. Since the executive agreed that these pages aided his men in rolling up satisfactory grosses, we pointed out further that the only way for this department to continue functioning "in high" for his circuit, was for his managers to send in ideas in return for those they received from these pages.

"Thus," we stressed, "if your managers obtain good ideas from the Round Table, contributed by other theatremen, that bring in extra business for you, isn't it only fair to allow them, in turn, to assist in maintaining our aims and purposes, which you endorse, by forwarding reports on the things that worked for them and might be of help to the man who does his share for the other fellow. If there is any 'three-sheeting' involved, it must spotlight what was done rather than the man who did it."

The Round Table has long ago proven its importance in fattening box-office grosses. For this reason alone, executives should encourage their managers to contribute to keep it important.

BET ON THE WINNER

Acknowledging the First Mention Certificate voted him in the Third Quarter, a Round Tabler expresses himself in this refreshing vein:

"The receipt of a Quigley Award causes an exhilaration that cannot be expressed with mere words. In reading over the inscription, it seems to say: 'Well done, lad, but just a trifle short. However, there is still another Quarter in the year—try again'."

Far be it from your Chairman to go inspirational on the membership, but in these days it's like a breeze from the ocean to meet spirit so buoyant, force so determined. Whatever the project, everyone can't take top honors, everytime. But place your bet on the boy who uses one recognition as a foothold to the next. In the long run, he pays off.

JOIN THE S. P. T. A. I. D.

On behalf of the suffering patrons, your Chairman announces his annual call for membership in the Society for Protection of Theatregoers Against Icy Draughts. Round Tablers interested in guarding ticklish ankles and tender necks from the darts of chilling breezes are invited to join. To do so, members agree to watch foyer and exit doors, crack down on ventilators through which the wind dives on defenseless heads.

With the season of sneezes and snuffles upon us, action is the watchword, and right now. Neither Clark Gable nor even Hedy LaMarr is equal to the job of warming up the customers against that kind of competition.

Santa Claus Convention Planted in Hollywood

Aimed for top attention by local newspapers is the Santa Claus convention arranged by Mort Goodman, in the December campaign promoted by the Warner Hollywood and Downtown Theatres in Hollywood in Lou Halper's Pacific Coast zone of Warner Brothers theatres. Mort intends inviting each department store Santa Claus to the theatre to see picture being shown Christmas week.

To be featured again this year is the famed Santa Claus Lane, Hollywood Boulevard, bedecked in holiday atmosphere. Starting about four weeks before the holidays, Santa Claus makes a nightly trip down the famous Lane atop a spectacular replica of Santa's sleigh with Donner and Blitzen and all the reindeer before him. In addition to Santa are different movie stars each night, and one of the best bets, Mort reports, is to plant personalities from the current attractions at the Hollywood and Downton Theatres atop the float.

Other ideas reported include the placing of tremendous Christmas trees in the lobby of each of the theatres, this to be negotiated at no cost to the houses, cooperating dapartment store defraying expense. In exchange they will have the benefit of scattering toys at base of tree, tiein card carrying store credit.

Zone manager "Skip" Weshner, Warner Theatres in Philadelphia, enrolled members of the Motion Picture Forum to help exploit his "Man to Remember" engagement at the Aldine Theatre through a telephone-call idea.

Following special screening, 20 women of the organization volunteered to make 50 calls each, extolling the merits of the picture as a "must." Continuing the chain, each person called by this committee was asked to make 10 additional calls.

Various other special screenings were held for important groups, trailers used in the 21 Warner houses throughout Philadelphia and through tieup with the director of the Board of Health, literature was sent to all city institutions. Radio promotion included spot announcements daily over local stations.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

"Know Thy Neighbor" Party Inaugurated by Mayes

To create goodwill between the theatre and patrons, Al Mayes, advertising manager, Palace, Graham, Texas, in a house-to-house canvass, distributes five-by-eight cards on one side of which are printed titles of his three weekly changes. Reverse side, which has a red number stamped on it, advises recipients that someone on the same street has a card bearing the same number. Under the heading "Know Thy Neighbor," Mayes suggests that they visit their neighbors to find the corresponding number and then come to the theatre as his guests, bringing the cards along.

Paramount Plans National Tieins

Emphasis on exploitation for coming Paramount pictures is indicated by a number of campaigns arranged by Cliff Lewis and his studio advertising staff, including nationwide publicity on "Union Pacific." In a meeting with W. M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, Lewis has worked out an elaborate plan for the coming attraction, which centers around all simultaneous previews in a half dozen cities. Further plans also call for a national broadcast from each point, a traveling train theatre for reviewers, traveling exhibits of Union Pacific relics and props from the picture, a nationwide essay contest with scholarships as awards and contact with the National Association of Miniature Train Builders. The railroad company will cooperate in posting, providing folders and placards, imprinted menus, servicing of mailing lists and the like.

On "Paris Honeymoon," novelty letter from Akim Tamiroff is planned and another mailing piece from Claudette Colbert will plug "Zaza." Lucky horseshoes, which play a prominent part in the picture, will go out from Bing Crosby.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Live Window Slant Helps Sell "Room Service"

Tieup with five and ten was arranged by manager Ed Miller and publicist Manny Pearlstein, Warners' Hippodrome, Cleveland, in advance of "Room Service," whereby girl artist was stationed in window doing caricatures of the Marx Brothers, window also contained stills and prominent theatre credit cards.

Hat, designed as a replica of the one worn by Harpo in the picture was planted in haberdasher's window, passersby were requested to guess the size and win prizes. For laughs, 22 by 28 cards featuring Groucho were displayed in windows of two of the larger downtown barber shops starting three days in advance. Copy read "Don't allow your mustache to become like Groucho's, come in now," etc., etc.

Contest in the Plain Dealer broke with a first story of 150 lines four days ahead, subsequent stories running straight through day of opening. Cash and ticket prizes were awarded to those submitting best 100 word letters on the funniest or strangest orders ever received from a boss or customer.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Orlove Mails Window Cards to Merchants

For the opening of "Too Hot to Handle," at the Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Louis Orlove, MGM exploiteer, imprinted several window cards and then addressed them to prominent individuals in the city with proper postage, etc. The cards were then placed on mail boxes and on them a sticker "Don't bend." Cards attracted considerable attention and still could not be removed from the boxes as they were legitimate mail. Carriers could not put the cards inside their mail bags because they were too large and thus wherever they went passersby read the Wisconsin message.

Election Day Idea Worked on 'Heart'

Capitalizing on the intense local mayoralty campaign in which there were seven candidates and the city was inundated with a wave of serious politics, Francis Deering launched a drive to have the stars of "There Goes My Heart" elected to office as a highlight of the exploitation for the engagement at Loew's State, Houston.

Ten automobiles were hired to cruise through the city's main streets on opening day, with large signs covering them calling upon the people to "Vote for Fredric March for Mayor of Mirth." Other signs listed Virginia Bruce as candidate for "Commissioner of Frolic" and Patsy Kelly for "Collector of Laughs."

Through the cooperation of the police boys were allowed to escape the "electioneering" laws and hand out throwaway candidate cards within 150 feet of the polls, announcing the picture's opening date.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Various Institutional Aids Used by Cooper

Recently inaugurated by A. R. Cooper, Prince Edward Theatre, Prince Edward Island, Canada, was a series of community sing songs to be held at the theatre one night a week, sponsored by a Toronto weekly paper and broadcast from local radio station. Paper paid all broadcasting fees and supplied slides for the songs, the radio station supplied the leader and pianist and as Cooper says, the only thing up to him was to supply the audience.

In contacting the future patrons, who are the children of today, the theatreman arranged with four schools to get a list of students from around the ages of eight up to high school ages. To these a card with appropriate congratulatory verse and pass were mailed on their natal day.

Another goodwill gesture was to send by means of a microphone placed in front of the screen, the sound of selected programs via radio station, to local sanitorium, where bed patients were able to listen in by means of head phones, to programs that they would in all probability be able to see or hear. Newspaper covered the idea.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Still Sells "Moonshine"

Promoted by C. C. Stephens, Cherokee Theatre, LaFollette, Tenn., for his "Kentucky Moonshine" engagement was a genuine mountain still promoted from the sheriff. Planted in front of his theatre with various and sundry jugs containing soft drinks, patrons were invited to step up and have a drink on the house.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Street Bally Helps "Sheik"

Chap dressed in costume similar to that worn by Rudolph Valentino in "Son of the Sheik" rode about town as part of Jack Gamble's exploitation on that picture at the Regent Theatre, Norwalk, Conn. Horse, properly bannered, heralded the opening, title and theatre, and Jack reported the ballyhoo as gaining the anticipated attention.

"Snow" Falls, Traffic Stops; Squawk Made, Business Jumps

The animated blizzard, occupying last week all nine of the store's Fifth Avenue windows, brought Lord & Taylor plenty of street attention and extra business. It appears it also brought a protest from the Fifth Avenue Association, of which the store is a member. Squawk, made because display violated association rules against sound and movement in windows, came on last day of exhibit aimed to speed buying of winter apparel in face of spring weather. Sales jumped immediately, with temperature obligingly dropping, as did squawk.

"Snow", made of cornflakes treated with acid, is known as maizfetti. Blizzard was simulated with blowers, illusion heightened by sound device on balcony. Windows, without merchandise except ski pants and poles for atmosphere, were decorated from inside with "snow" and frosted panes on which was traced: "It's coming, sooner or later". Frost was so well simulated that children, gathered outside, were reported trying to trace words and pictures on the windows.

Cashier In Lobby Telephones Patrons for "Wonderful Time"

As advance for their date on "Having Wonderful Time" at Wilmer and Vincent's Colonial, Allentown, Penna., Manager Charlie Bierbauer and Nick Todorov, publicist, stationed cashier in lobby ahead of opening to call selected list and plug the forthcoming attraction. In addition, girl's conversation was audible to patrons entering.

Numerous street gags were used, among which was a 300 pound piece of ice stationed at side of theatre, guest tickets going to those coming closest to guessing time the cake would melt. Another neat stunt was the citywide distribution of keys, some of which fit a padlocked heart attached to giant cutout of Ginger Rogers stationed in lobby. Tickets also went to winners and much merriment ensued as holders tried their luck at opening Ginger's heart.

Truck toured the city piled high with barrels, copy on back read "Barrels of joyous entertainment await you at" etc. etc. Also stationed in front of theatre was lad supposedly asleep in a chair, card at side had copy with clock set at 12.20 and request that he be awakened at that time to see the picture.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

"Gay Nineties" Gets Colorful Opening

Old time nickleodeon false front plastered with stills attracted considerable attention to the premiere of "Gay Nineties," according to Harry Rose, Poli's Globe, Bridgeport, Conn. Entire staff was dressed in Gay 90's costumes, wearing imprinted sashes.

For his lobby, museum was erected consisting of bally artist and woman in costumes working on kerosene lamp lit stage, distributing gazettes. On the walls were photo enlargements of cast including bygone actors and fighters. Also spotted strategically were antiques, relics, wooden Indian, tandem bikes, Diamond Jim Brady jewel collection, etc., etc.

Harry Greb, Canadian middleweight champion, was introduced before main bout at fight arena, stating that he had come down by plane to attend the opening. Premiere was given the usual Hollywood opening with lights, cameras and city's notables who turned out for the event.

Fire Department Turns Out on "Old Chicago"

The first public appearance of East Chicago's new fire-fighting equipment took place in front of the Indiana Theatre there in a tieup effected by Jack Albertson to exploit "In Old Chicago." Public was treated to a demonstration of exactly what happens when an alarm is turned in and how speedily the equipment arrives on the scene. Feats of valor and thrilling rescues were staged by the firemen, which were climaxed by dummy dressed in usher's uniform which was used for a net jump. Papers picked up the stunt and covered it with plenty of publicity and photos, in each of which the picture and playdates received mention.

Kids were catered to by Albertson, who staged a "back to school" matinee. Special shorts were booked for the event and through cooperation of leading merchant, promoted prizes were awarded each child attending. Show was plugged on trailer and lobby easel constructed for the occasion, in addition to the distribution of lucky number heralds for free admissions. Another kid activity was a soap box derby with the Mayor acting as starter, and presenting prizes to winners of the various heats.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Creates Atmospheric Display

Attractive lobby display was constructed by Maddry Wallace, Forsyth Theatre, Winston-Salem, N. C., for his showing of "The Buccaneer." Replica of the ship was placed on table, top of which was painted to represent the sea and to the right was an island with palm trees, etc., and treasure chest partially buried in the sand. Planted above and on either side of the display were cutouts of Fredric March and scene stills.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Plane Drops Heralds

Since "Men With Wings" opened at the Emboyd Theatre, Fort Wayne, Ind., on Armistice Day, advertising manager Betty Powley reports that the theatre flew a plane above local parade as it toured the city. Varied colored heralds with playdates and picture copy were dropped from the ship, which flew as low as city ordinance would permit.

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN UP

started as an usher at the Luna Theatre in Kankakee, Illinois, and became the assistant manager of this house within a year. He changed his job, becoming the assistant at the Paramount, also in the same city. He then attained a managerial post at the Majestic Theatre and we look forward to hearing from him from time to time.

began as an usher at the Kinema Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1934, and two years later was promoted to assistant manager. He was then transferred to the Utica Theatre and subsequently to the Rivera and Leader houses, also in Brooklyn. He returned to the Kinema and at present is acting as the assistant there. We have it in writing, from Leonard himself, that we will hear from him.

O. H. ROBERSON

handles the exploitation and publicity for the Indiana and Lawrence Theatres in Bedford, Indiana. His first job was with M. Switow and Sons, in 1925, as an usher at their Kentucky Theatre, in Lexington, Ky., remaining in their employ until 1938. While with them he worked with a tab unit and performed various other duties. He then joined the McCarrell circuit and is very much pleased with the type of work he is doing.

began in theatre business in Chicago, Illinois, at the Marshall Square Theatre, and a few months later was sent to the Illington as manager. He went from there to the Casino and then to the Deluxe Midwest. He joined the Schoenstadt Circuit a while later, remaining with them for seven years, during which period he managed ten of their different houses, remodeled three and opened two. He came on to act as skipper of the Vic Theatre in Indiana Harbor, Indiana, one of the Indiana-Illinois Circuit theatres, and has been doing a good job of it there for the past seven months.

is the assistant manager of the Rex Theatre, Pampa, Texas, acquiring this post after many years of extensive work in the picture industry. In 1926 he started as a janitor in Tonkawa, Oklahoma, then transferred to Borger, Texas, as a relief operator. He secured the job of chief operator of the A house in Enid, Oklahoma, in 1929, and the next year found him in Lubbock, Texas, as chief projectionist of three houses. He moved to Pampa in 1932 as chief over three houses, remaining in that position until 1936, when he became general advertising man. The following year he became exploitation man and a year later secured his present job.

ELBERT S. THOMPSON

manages the San Marco Theatre, South Jacksonville, Fla. Six years ago he started as an extra usher in the Palace in Jacksonville and gradually worked up to assistant manager at the same house. After remaining at the above position for two years he was transferred to the Lyric in Gainesville, where he acted in the same capacity. Two years later he became the manager of his present house, from where we anticipate frequent reports on his activities.

started out as bill boy at the Gaiety Theatre, in Ronan, Montana, later became doorman, janitor, bill poster and operator. He left there for Missoula, Montana, doing doorman duty at the Rialto, Strand and Liberty. His next job was acting as regular doorman, house manager, bill poster and shipper at the Strand Theatre. He moved to Butte, Montana, to become manager of Fox-American Theatre and the following year went to Delta, where he became manager of the Fox-Egyptian house. He resigned after a year's service there to manage the New Rena and Liberty Theatres in Kellogg, Idaho.

is a newcomer to showbusiness, beginning his career last year at the Roxy Theatre, Buckeye, Arizona. His progress has been very rapid, going from popcorn boy and janitor to projectionist devil. Shortly after, when the El Rey opened in Glendale, Arizona, he was sent over to manage this house. The circuit took over the Glendale house and Ed was made city manager for both the Glendale and the Roxy Theatres.

worked as an usher in the National Theatre, Richmond, Va., from 1931 to 1933, while still in school. His next house was the State in the same sector, also acting as usher. Six months later he was promoted to assistant. The next year found him transferred to Arlington as assistant and he also operated at the State and Lee houses in Falls Church, Va., in the same capacity. He received a managerial post in 1937 at the Ashton in Arlington, then transferred to his present situation as manager of the State in Falls Church.

is the manager of the Leader Theatre in Brooklyn, New York. He began his career as an usher, about five years ago, at the Congress Theatre in the same sector and after working at that job for a year became an assistant at the Carlton. Two years later he was made manager of the Leader, remaining there only two months, and was then recalled to manage the Carlton. However, he was transferred to manage the Leader after serving at the Carlton for a year and a half and is still at it.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com.; Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

POLICIES

SOME of the red, pinkish and leftish young men who write for the press appear to have arrived at a notion that Motion Picture Herald has no enthusiasm for the "Films for Democracy" project and its program for muscling-in on the amusement screen by duress of class pressures. These lads are not, one might hope, thereby getting proud of an extraordinary perspicacity.

The charge is made that the expressions of the publisher and the editor alike have been calculated to discourage the movement.

The more direct fact is that that Motion Picture Herald is rather interested for reasons of broad import in the preservation of the amusement business as the amusement business.

To ask a motion picture theatre to assume a political position, to engage in controversial presentations, to deal in issues, has about as much mercantile merit as a soap box speech at the opera.

This position has no relevancy to the merits or demerits of the social causes concerned. It is relevant to a considerably informed opinion about what is good and bad for the box office.

Pictures of special pleading and opinion can be acceptable where only one order of opinion is permitted.

Conspicuously the policy importantly prevails in the motion picture theatres of two nations, Russia and Germany. How are they doing?

NONE are more vociferous in proclamations against censorships than these same radical persons.

They are unable, however, to perceive the identities of dictatorialisms involved in saying "you must not" and "you must."

The censorship which tells you what you may not say is probably in the ultimate result considerably less invasive of human rights and liberties than its obverse which tells you what you must say.

The motion picture industry dedicated to the entertainment of the multitudes is not equipped to engage in, or responsible for, the issues and problems of the period. It would, however, enjoy the privilege of doing business during altercations.

THE chip-on-shoulder approach and we'll-tell-you attitude of the "Films for Democracy" announcement is the inevitable revelation of attitude that begets hostility.

Just suppose, if one might, that instead this group had announced: "As a forward looking organization of creatively minded persons we have discovered an important opportunity for the screen with a new line of product, with a new address to the audience, calculated to interest, perhaps please the patrons of the screen, give the motion picture new meaning and stimulate the box office. We are going to try to compete with the investment of as much brains as we can assemble and about a hundred thousands dollars a negative. Ideas are bigger than budgets. We are promised some Hollywood talent and we aim at amusement pictures with a social consciousness. We think they will be box office."

That sort of entry would have been rather better calculated than the shouting announcement that the exhibitor would either take "Films for Democracy" or they would open in competition under agitator auspices.

But that would not do at all. The movement pertains not to the picture business but to the industry of hell-raising.

TWITTERING

QUITE a pother has been had in the press under such headlines as would imply that the British Government engaged Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador, to censor a Paramount newsreel.

The facts seem to be that the Government learned of the impending release of portions of a reel containing critical expression, precisely at the time that Neville Chamberlain, prime minister, was in his ordeals of conference at Godesburg—that the Government mentioned it to Mr. Kennedy—that Mr. Kennedy mentioned it to Will H. Hays—that subsequently the material concerned did not appear on theatre screens—that the film was British made and intended only for British consumption. Probably the whole matter could have been handled in London. And probably it ultimately was.

The answer seems to be, what of it? Britain was substantially in a state of war, with trenches in the parks and a-fever with mask drills and gas terrors.

Given the equivalent situation in the city of New York, what pressures might be expected on the policies of American newsreels. Does anyone remember when Woodrow Wilson made it his personal business to have the Japanese flag removed from the foe army in the Hearst serial "Patria"?

THE language of the law and the lawyer gets naive at times. The defendants in the major monopoly suit this week in Federal court asked a bill of particulars from the Government for four purposes, the fourth of which is "to prevent surprise." They might just as well decide now not to be surprised at anything.

SOMETHING needs to be done about these brutal sports. A few weeks ago Mr. Westbrook Pegler sprained his back in a soft-ball game and took to bed. Mr. Ed Anthony of Colliers, author of Frank Buck and Clyde Beatty books, broke his sacroiliac playing croquet, and now Mr. Robert Gillham is on crutches in sequel to a violent pass at badminton.

DON'T tell the Motion Picture Research Council, but there are signs that the Lone Ranger is tending to invade and even displace Santa Claus in pre-holiday department store attentions in New York, Brooklyn and Chicago, Al Adams discovers.

STUDIO gadgetry grows apace. From the Goldwyn plant comes announcement that Mr. Gregg Toland, chief cinematographer, has perfected "a development which may revolutionize all camera carriages. It is a hydraulic lift," to replace the standard tripod. It sounds to us very much as though Mr. Toland had put his camera in a barberchair.

This Week

Product

Presently a topic of wide discussion in the field is the product principal distributors will release during the holiday season. An inventory of December dates and a further listing of product on which shooting has been completed has been compiled by MOTION PICTURE HERALD, the information covering the lists of 12 distributors and release dates of their product.

The lists are presented on page 12.

Warner Profit

Net profits of $1,929,721, equal to 41 cents a share on the common stock of the company, were reported for the fiscal year ended August 27th by Warner Brothers. Losses during the summer and heavy amortization writeoffs during the year were responsible for a drop in earnings from the $3,282,765 shown for the first nine months. A substantial decrease in amortization charges was predicted for the second quarter of the present fiscal year by Harry M. Warner, president, in his annual report to the stockholders.

The financial report was followed by conferences of home office and production executives in New York on the subject of immediate sales and the product for next season.

Consolidated balances and supporting statistics are on page 25.

"Frills and Puffing"

Witnesses for the National Broadcasting Company are trying to use the Federal Communications Commission hearing as a medium of advertising for the network, Frank R. McNinch, chairman, informed Philip J. Hennessy, Jr., NBC counsel, when he sought to introduce pamphlets describing Radio City and the NBC organization. Mr. McNinch called them "frills, advertising and puffing." Later O. B. Hanson, chief engineer for the network, attacked the Commission's wavelength allocation policy, charging that 10 kilocycle separation between channels was hampering the development of high fidelity reception.

The week's testimony is condensed on page 24.

Chicago Operators' Pay

Terms of the new operators' contract in Chicago are understood to call for the current pay, which is 10 per cent under last year. The signing of the contract awaits only the working out of individual problems for certain exhibitors.

This ends the long battle between union and exhibitor groups over the attempt of the union to get a pay increase, instead of taking a cut.

Good Will Films

Extensive use of motion pictures will be made by the United States Government in its campaign to counteract Fascist and Nazi propaganda in South America by substituting information on the United States, its policies and products. Six films of a series to be sent to the southern continent have been completed and others are to be made. Government officials said the pictures will not constitute competition for private distribution or exhibition but rather will help sell commercial American films. Present plans call for the expenditure of at least $30,000 for projectors and equipment to facilitate showings which will be held, among other places, in embassies and consulates.

Plans are outlined further on page 15.

RKO Divisions Shifted

Reorganization of divisional operation of the 46 RKO metropolitan theatres along geographical rather than corporate lines, in order that the division managers may apply themselves more thoroughly to the operation of the theatres, was announced this week by John O'Connor, vice-president in charge of RKO theatres. The number of theatres operated by each division manager has been reduced, thereby establishing an additional division. The division managers will have jurisdiction in their territories for both first and second-run houses. The division managers are Charles McDonald, Louis Goldberg, Russell Emde and Sol Schwartz.

Copyright in Peru

At the Eighth International Conference of American States, opening December 9th, the copyright question will be treated as part of the program of establishing closer relations between this country and those in South America. In the delegation headed by Cordell Hull, secretary of state, and including Alfred Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, is Dr. Edith Ware, executive secretary of the Committee on Copyright, which has been sponsoring the recent copyright meetings in New York among the various parties interested, including representatives of the motion picture industry.

This country has copyright agreements with several South American countries, and Miss Ware has copies of these agreements with her.

Pleads Guilty

Edward G. Levy, motion picture theatre attorney in Connecticut and general counsel of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America and the Connecticut MPTO, accused in connection with a utility investigation for which large fees were alleged to have been collected, pleaded guilty Tuesday in superior court at Waterbury, Conn., as 27 other defendants went on trial on conspiracy charges, accused of defrauding Waterbury of more than $1,000,000.

Appointment of Hugh M. Alcorn as special prosecutor was followed by indictments last May of some of the state's biggest politicians, both Republicans and Democrats, including T. Frank Hayes, lieutenant governor, and the Democratic mayor of Waterbury. Mr. Alcorn himself was an unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate, two years ago, and the indictments in this case were the principal ammunition in the last political campaign.

Mr. Levy's New Haven law firm, Levy and Levy, had participated in a revamping of Waterbury's light ratings, as a result of which he is reputed to have saved the city $250,000 in a few years, and for which he collected fees now in dispute.

He has been serving the Connecticut MPTO since 1927 and the MPTOA since 1932.

Wage-Hour Study

Elmer F. Andrews, national administrator of the Wages and Hours Law, will confer with motion picture executives this weekend on application of the law to the Hollywood branch of the industry. Mr. Andrews was to speak in Los Angeles Friday night.

Conferences were planned this week between studio attorneys and union representatives on possible revision of the basic labor agreements with five Internationals which provide for a work week of 54 to 60 hours.

Would Pro-rate Taxes

California Congressmen, led by Senator-elect Sheridan Downey, plan to seek legislation in the next Congress, this winter, which would pro-rate Federal income taxes of Hollywood and Broadway stars over a period of years, to benefit them when their box office power starts to dwindle.

Companies with receipts not exceeding $250,000 a year and net incomes of less than $25,000 will be relieved of much detail in preparing income tax reports next year through a new form announced Wednesday by the Treasury Department.

See page 17.

3 New Film-Radio Shows

Slated for early production are three new radio shows with film affiliations. Jesse Lasky's show, put on in cooperation with RKO Radio Pictures and sponsored by the Wrigley Company in the interest of Doublemint Gum, will make its debut over the Columbia network on January 8th. Called "Gateway to Hollywood," the show will be a motion picture talent quest.

The show of the Screen Actors Guild and sponsored by the Gulf Oil Company is to start on the same date, with proceeds going to the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

Herbert Ebenstein, film man, and William and Harry Brandt, New York theatre operators; have formed Radio Attractions, Inc., to produce air shows.

Aid Paralysis Fight

Joseph M. Schenck, board chairman of Twentieth Century - Fox; Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc.; Ed Kuykendall, president, The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America; Gene Buck, president, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers; Eddie Cantor, comedian—these comprise the entertainment division of the executive committee in the 1939 campaign to "Fight Infantile Paralysis," which is the highlight of the nationwide celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday, January 30th. Banking and finance, labor, industry, communications, transportation and power, advertising and publishing also are represented on the committee.

First Quarter Report

Losses for the summer and heavy amortization charges were reflected in the financial report of Columbia Pictures for the first quarter of its fiscal year, ended September 24, 1938, which showed a net loss of $233,612. Working capital on September 24th was $10,740,000 of which $2,300,000 was in cash.

The balance sheet is on page 32.

Television Challenge

Television, within two years, will bring a competitive test between radio-broadcasting and the motion picture on the determination of the source of talent for telecasting.

Hollywood is determined that it rightfully has a place in television, both in its development and the eventual form it will take.

These conclusions are made by the Academy's Research Council in its third annual report on television's position in relation to motion picture production, as detailed on page 31.

Paramount Television

Paramount studio officials denied on Welnesday that the company will inaugurate television programs in Paramount or any other theatres in January, as reported. They pointed out that the license granted Dumont Laboratories is for experimental purposes only and specifically prohibits commercial operation. Although experimental broadcasts are to start the latter part of January, Paramount executives said the company would not have the authorization to sell a television program even if it was practicable to deliver one.

Stanton Griffis, of Paramount and a director of Madison Square Garden, said television rights to Garden events would go to the highest bidder.

Burlesquing Films

The proposal of WPA Theatre Project officials to burlesque the motion picture business in a "Horse Opera" "living newspaper" play became a definite plan this week, after a conference in New York between WPA Theatre officials of that city and those in Chicago, where the burlesque will be produced this winter as the industry starts the observance of its golden jubilee.

WPA play-producers say they originally had intended to produce a "cavalcade" of films, but that the industry indicated a complete lack of interest, whereupon the Federal Theatre Project decided to burlesque the business.

Plans for the play appear on page 14.

RKO Decision Expected

Federal Judge William Bondy, at the hearing Tuesday on the RKO reorganization plan, said Friday's hearing might definitely dispose of the matter. The judge declared himself concerned about the delays, and said he would regard the technical parts broadly, so as to hasten the company's emergence from section 77B before the year's end.

Special Master George Alger, who approved the plan, was this week awarded $27,500 for services. Judge Bondy this week also ordered RKO trustee Chemical Bank and Trust Company to pay $5,512 to RKO trustee Irving Trust Company which will pay the amount to attorneys Wickes, Neilson, and Ridell, and accountants Price, Waterhouse and Company.

Columbia in France

The possibility that Columbia Pictures might undertake production in France, while at the same time, definitely establishing a distributing organization of its own there and in Algiers was revealed this week, according to Pierre Autré, cabling from Paris.

The distributing organization to be established would have exchanges not only in Paris but additionally in Lille, Marseilles, Lyons, Bordeaux and Strasbourg.

These revelations were made prior to the departure of Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, for the United States on the Queen Mary. Mr. Cohn was in Paris with J. A. McConville, general foreign sales manager; Joseph Friedman, European manager, and Al Segal. Mr. Cohn also closed with Paul Graetz of Transcontinental Films, for Columbia distribution of Transcontinental product.

Mr. Cohn was guest of honor before sailing at a dinner tendered him by Jean Zay, French Minister of National Education, in recognition of the aid rendered French films by the deal.

Broadcasters Act on Self-Regulation; Congressional Radio Inquiry Nears

Acting almost within the shadows of the chambers where the Federal Communications Commission is conducting its governmental investigation of alleged monopolies in radio, the National Association of Broadcasters, in Washington, last Friday, moved to formulate a code of self-imposed regulation for the air, appointing a special committee of industry leaders to draw up a program.

Self-regulation has been discussed among radio leaders for some time and was put forward by David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America, as the "American" solution of the radio problem, during his testimony before the FCC probers.

The special committee, representing a cross-section of network and independent operation, consists of:

Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, chairman; Edward Klauber, executive vice-president, Columbia Broadcasting; Lenox Lohr, president, National Broadcasting; Theodore Streibert, vice-president, Mutual Broadcasting; Paul Morency, station WTIC, Hartford, Conn.; Edgar Bill, station WMBD, Peoria, Ill., and Ed. Craney, station KGIR, Butte, Mont.

The first meeting of the committee will be held in New York, December 5th, and it will bring in its final recommendation to the board of directors of the NAB meeting in Washington, December 12th and 13th.

A demand of Senator Wallace H. White of Maine for Congressional investigation of radio is gathering strong support in Congress, in view of the slow and apparently unrevealing nature of the Federal Communications Commission's present monopoly probe.

Senator Clyde L. Herring of Iowa is now working on a bill to establish a board of review for examination of programs. What he proposes is said at the Capital to amount to Federal censorship.

Senator White will sponsor a measure calling for a study of the "outstanding" problems of radio. Presumably this will include chain ownership and control, newspaper control of stations, superpower, international broadcasting, libel responsibility of broadcasters, and even patent ownership.

Closing Threatened In Union Dispute

It was reported early this week that the Warner Earle theatre in Philadelphia would be closed December 2nd unless a dispute with the Philadelphia local of the musicians' union over employment terms was settled before that date. The dispute originated at the Fox theatre and has spread to other stage show houses.

Stoppage of work under any conditions is prohibited in working agreements signed by the musicians' union, Local 6, and the San Francisco World's Fair. Employment terms and wage scales are included in the contract.

Rodgers at Chicago

William F. Rodgers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer general sales manager, and other home office executives plan to attend a district managers' meeting in Chicago on Saturday. Mr. Rodgers plans to leave for Chicago on Thursday, so as to attend the testimonial dinner Friday night to Jack Kirsch, president of Allied Theatres of Illinois.

City Requires Theatres To Report Annual Gross

The Hot Springs, New Mexico, city council has passed an ordinance making it mandatory on theatres to file an annual statement of gross business in order to determine whether or not the annual license fee of 25 cents a seat is too high, according to the council. The gross business statement applies to other businesses besides theatres as well.

Alarmed at the prospect of an early return of the Ontario amusement tax, athletic associations of the Canadian Province have extended cooperation to the theatres. The subject was to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Allied Sports and Amusement Association in which both sports bodies and theatre organizations hold membership. Colonel John A. Cooper, head of the Motion Picture Distributors Association of Canada, is president.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Cincinnati City Council prohibiting admittance of children under 16 to any theatre which does not have an appropriate license, to be issued annually by the City Treasurer at a cost of $2, and to be revocable by the City Manager for violation.

WPA TO PROCEED WITH BURLESQUE OF FILMS

Chicago Federal Theatres Officials Say $150,000 Will Be Spent on "Horse Opera"

by WILLIAM F. CROUCH
in Chicago

Uncle Sam's WPA Theatre Project is going right ahead with its proposal to "glorify" the motion picture business in reverse, as "Horse Opera," under that title, in a WPA "living newspaper" play, to be put on in Chicago this winter, as the industry starts the observance of its golden jubilee. What was originally intended to be a graceful salute to the screen during its 50th anniversary in 1939 will become just the opposite.

WPA Theatre Project officials say that their about-face in favor of a "Horse Opera" lampooning the business resulted from a refusal of the film industry to cooperate on the original plan.

The play will be staged in Chicago, but whether it will be routed to other large WPA theatre centers—New York and Los Angeles being the two largest—has not been decided.

Doubt Cooperation

WPA officials have indicated that "Horse Opera" still can be produced as a constructive piece, if industry officials are willing to cooperate, but this is considered doubtful.

The idea had been mulled over in Chicago for many months, on the expectation that the WPA would get assistance from the film companies. A script, in rough form, very rough in fact, according to Chicago film theatre officials, was submitted to the New York offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, for comment. The WPA authors had created several scenes which burlesqued film executives and stars, but did not feel that they were sufficiently serious to result in rejection of the entire idea.

Major company officials said they wanted no part of the idea, according to the WPA authors. Some who read the script in the MPPDA office pointed out various phases they considered extremely harmful to the industry.

Starting Work at Once

Following conferences in New York with other Federal Theatre executives, John McGee, director of the project for the midwest, has returned to Chicago to start work immediately on "Horse Opera," described as "musical drama."

More than $150,000 will be expended in getting the production ready, Chicago Federal Theatre officials say. The tentative date for the opening of the new show will be February 15th. No less than 300 persons will have a part in some phase of the production, it was said.

At present eight persons in Chicago are engaged in research to obtain material for use in the play, digging into the industry's "closets" for "skeletons." This material in the main concerns the history of the film business. The legal action against the industry by the Government is being closely watched in hopes that it will divulge a variety of charges that would be considered good material for the play.

Films of olden days were needed for the original plan and these would have to come from the film companies. When the companies refused to cooperate the Federal theatre group decided to go ahead with a "Horse Opera" version. Instead of using help from the industry to make the production, they turned to revelation of "inside information" heretofore never brought into the spot light of the stage.

Negotiations are now on with various independent film libraries and laboratories that sell old film to get bits of celluloid that show how pictures used to be before censorial groups, for one, took a part in the business. These film excerpts will be tied in in some way as part of the "expose," along with sequences on any monopolistic tendencies, reports of effects of films on children, gangster films, films and morals, etc.

The play "Horse Opera," which is an original by Emmett Lavery and John McGee, will be rewritten extensively in the next few weeks.

Film executives and many of the stars will be important characters, with masks used by the actors to resemble these celebrities. Chorus numbers with producers' doubles doing the dancing, blackouts about story conferences, the hiring of relatives for important positions in studios and exchanges will also be dramatized.

The WPA theatre executives in Chicago say they still are hoping that the film companies will have a change of heart and cooperate with them. They say that are open to "suggestions" as to how they could "improve" their play so that it may be a help in celebrating the industry's Golden Anniversary next year.

Drop Games Case In Philadelphia

Independent exhibitors in Philadelphia this week gave up their fight in the Pennsylvania supreme court to legalize use of Bingo, Bango and similar chance games.

The case originated when the Palm theatre sought an injunction to restrain Philadelphia police from interfering with the games. Common pleas court refused the application and an appeal was taken with a number of other theatres throughout the city joining in the action. After several court setbacks, attorneys for the exhibitors advised the state supreme court that the appeal action was being withdrawn.

The ruling in Portland by Judge Robert Tucker of circuit court that Bank Night constitutes a lottery under the laws of Oregon will be appealed to the supreme court, Carl R. McFadden, counsel for the Laurelhurst theatre and other suburban houses, said this week.

Pursuant to a mandate of City Council in Cincinnati, which body influences administrative policies of municipal incumbents, City Manager C. O. Sherrill, who recently clamped the lid on Bingo, has, temporarily at least, tilted it sufficiently to permit minor games by religious or charitable institutions on their own premises.

Records show that in the five months ending October 31st there were 370 Bingo games held in Cincinnati with a total attendance of 341,280, total receipts of $287,999 and total prizes of $179,340. In October there were 99 games, with an attendance of 97,000, who paid $77,000, and received $43,000 in prizes.

Police charges of conducting a lottery against three Brooklyn theatres in the operation of chance games were dismissed after a hearing in court.

Fairbanks Begins Producing Soon

United Artists producers, partners and executives this week were busy traveling. Douglas Fairbanks, producer-partner, sailed from New York to London; Alexander Korda, producer-partner, sailed from London to New York; David O. Selznick, producer, left New York for Hollywood; John Hay Whitney, Selznick partner, left New York for the South; James Mulvey, representative for U. A. partner Samuel Goldwyn, left New York for Hollywood; Lynn Farnol, company advertising director, accompanied Mr. Mulvey westward.

Mr. Fairbanks' new producing company, Albion Films, Ltd., which he formed with Montague Marks, is expected to start operations soon after the first of the year with distribution through United Artists.

Mr. Marks sailed with Mr. Fairbanks. They expect to return here in January. Meantime, the two will confer with financial associates in London and Switzerland.

Mr. Korda will continue on to Hollywood when he reaches New York, to produce his first picture there.

Mr. Selznick, in an announcement to the press in Chicago Tuesday night, said his "Christmas present to the world" would be the announcement of who would play the role of "Scarlett O'Hara" in "Gone with the Wind," and that the picture would be released next Thanksgiving Day, in sixteen reels, for roadshowing during its first year. Mr. Selznick also said a six-picture deal with United Artists was set, and would start after "Gone with the Wind" was finished.

All directors of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., were re-elected at the annual stockholders' meeting in Baltimore Monday.

Directors include Harry D. Buckley, A. H. Frisch, Joseph H. Moskowitz, Bertram S. Mayfack, Dennis F. O'Brien, Willard V. King, William P. Philips, Joseph M. Schenck and Lee Shubert.

To Reorganize Federal Theatre in New York

A complete reorganization of the business administration of the WPA Federal Theatre Project in New York City, intended to put the project on a par with the commercial theatre in terms of operating efficiency, was announced this week by Paul Edwards, administrative officer in charge of the five WPA Federal Arts Projects in New York, and George Kondolf, director of the theatre project in New York.

Mr. Edwards estimated that initial savings of between $5,000 and $10,000 a month would be effected through the reorganization. He said efforts over a period of more than a year to institute economies had already brought the per capita cost of running the relief theatre to the lowest point in its history.

Form New Company

William Steiner and Harry Webb have formed a new producing company to be known as Metropolitan Pictures, Inc. The company plans eight Bob Steele westerns and eight "meloplays." Mr. Steiner is general sales manager.

FILMS IN $1,000,000 U.S. PROJECT TO CEMENT LATIN-AMERICA GOODWILL

Plan Calls for Distribution of Six Films from U. S. Through Embassies and One from Other Republics in This Country

Enlisting all trade, cultural, scientific and technical forces of the United States in an effort to counteract Nazi and other "totalitarian-state" propaganda in South America, the State Department at Washington, Tuesday night, officially released a report of the Government's Inter-Departmental Committee on Cooperation with the American Republics, recommending a film project as part of a $1,000,000 "propaganda" program to cement relations between the United States and the 20 Latin-American republics. The report came on the eve etc.

The report, now on the desk of the President, points the United States, for the first time, toward the use of motion picture as an inspired medium to enhance its position abroad. Thus the screen again is moved on the checker-board of internationalism in the trend of the day in virtually all large countries to solidify their own military and economic borders with "cultural" teachings by films fabricated by their governments.

The U. S. plan is a part of the President's strategy to fortify all the Americas against inroads by foreign interests, economic or otherwise, arising from the Government's survey of American defenses, undertaken when the world appeared on the brink of war, last September.

For Building Goodwill

The United States is years behind some foreign countries in adapting the motion picture as a governmental builder of goodwill on the outside as witness the inspired films of Soviet Russia, Germany, Italy and others, in circulation for years. However, virtually every important Federal agency and New Deal "alphabetical" agency has been using the screen within the U. S. borders, producing and distributing motion pictures pertaining to the activities of each.

Any progress made by the Government in advancing the economic position of this country in South America stands to benefit Hollywood motion pictures, it would seem.

In turning to the Latin countries for new screen markets, to make up for some of the huge losses suffered in rentals abroad by foreign restrictions and out-and-out barriers, U. S. producers have found that the Nazis, for one, already have undertaken to win over South American countries for their products, including their motion pictures. These pictures are in the main intended to gain sympathy and support of political causes.

$176,500 for Film Project

Established by President Roosevelt last May to draft for his consideration "a concrete program designed to render closer and more effective the relationship between the Government and people of the United States and our neighbors," the Inter-Departmental Committee on Cooperation with the American Republics has explored the field of cooperation available to each of the many Federal agencies in Washington. The program now presented calls for the cooperation of 13 U. S. departments and agencies, and involves 74 separate proposals. For those requiring financing, $1,000,000 would be made available, $176,500 earmarked for immediate motion picture purposes.

THEY FIRST "LOOK" TO HOLLYWOOD

"Asserting that the trend in motion picture content is running away from the 'vulgar', and toward a higher quality, the United States Government this week observed through the National Resources Committee that motion pictures will play an important part in the cultural development of the Nation as it approaches its peak of population, expected to be reached with an eventual maximum of 158,000,000. The Committee reached this conclusion in a report Tuesday to President Roosevelt." — MOTION PICTURE HERALD, July 9th.

The Inter-Departmental Committee was headed by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, as chairman.

The motion picture project would be under the direction of the United States Film Service of the National Emergency Council. It contemplates production of films portraying the United States for distribution in Latin America and a film on Latin America for distribution in this country; establishment of a film exchange, and installation of projection equipment in a number of our embassies.

The program of the Inter-Departmental Committee, which would be a continuous policy of the Government, was seen in Washington as comprising the most important contribution to be offered by the United States toward a campaign for solidarity among the nations of the New World and to nullify the anti-American propaganda in Latin-America of Russia, Germany, Italy and Japan.

Expected to Aid Industry

The project, it was emphasized, will not put the Government into competition with the film industry, but is expected to help develop the Latin-American markets.

The committee explained that it is "of the opinion that various of the activities of the Government of the United States, including those in the technical and scientific field, are susceptible of dramatization through motion pictures, and that such presentation would be of definite interest and value to the other American republics."

"It is proposed as a beginning to utilize six such existing films, which will be sound-tracked in Spanish and Portuguese," the report continued. "It is likewise proposed to explore the possibility of producing two pictures, one for distribution in the American republics which will be descriptive of the United States, and one picture on the American republics, for showing in the United States. The committee emphasizes that the contemplated projects will not be competitive with private enterprise, but will endeavor to supplement such enterprise.

"In addition it is proposed to utilize the United States Film Service as a coordinating agency and as a clearing house for motion picture matters of interest to the 21 American republics, and in connection with the foregoing program to equip the embassies and legations of the United States in the American republics with motion picture projection equipment."

Complete Cost Sheet

The committee accompanied its recommendations with a complete cost sheet, showing that the expenses of the project would be as follows:

PRODUCTION: (a) Re-scoring, re-edition, and narration in Spanish and Portuguese of the six films, $30,000; (b) Production of one film on the American republics for the United States, $45,000; (c) Production of one film on the United States for the American republics, $45,000; total, $120,000.

DISTRIBUTION: (a) Distribution and exploitation of six films—press releases, stills, posters, exhibits, press books, educational study guides, special articles for newspapers, magazines, theatres, schools and other non-theatrical outlets, and radio stations; packing and shipping, and general handling of prints, $6,000; (b) Services of one man and a secretary, office expense and overhead, for a Film Library and Film Exchange serving the 20 Latin-American republics, including advertising matter and literature, $6,500; (c) Contribution toward expenses of travelling representative in Mexico, Chile, Argentina and Brazil, to hold previews, meet with United States embassy and foreign government officials, civic, artistic and cultural leaders, press, representatives of motion picture organization, etc., $6,000; total, $18,500.

SPECIAL: (a) Screening room equipment for embassies of the United States in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico and Peru, each to have permanent projection equipment consisting of booth, two 35 mm. projectors, one 16 mm. projector, turntable, screens and sound equipment, $28,000; (b) For expenses with respect to preparation of films, soundtracking, editing, etc., $10,000; total, $38,000.

Coast Guard Films

As part of the general program, it was recommended that the Coast Guard send a 327-foot cutter and a 165-foot patrol boat on a cruise of the Central American republics, and that, in connection with the cruise, motion picture films of the Coast Guard to be distributed for showing in the ports.

The committee found that no special projects need be developed for broadcasting, in view of the fact that the Federal Communications Commission already is seeking to improve service to Latin-America, and that a special committee appointed by the President, with Chairman Frank R. McNinch at its head, is writing a report on international broadcasting for submission to the President in January, and is aiming to raise the standards of programs and engineering and to eliminate interference.

Establishment of a new governmental division concerning international communications — including motion pictures—in the State Department, to be headed by Thomas Burke, formerly with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, was announced on August 26th by Secretary Cordell Hull, in Washington. (See MOTION PICTURE HERALD, August 27th, page 13.)

The United States Government, through the Department of Commerce acting in cooperation with the national Chamber of Commerce, on November 15th, approved plans for a federal agency which will undertake the distribution and exhibition of industrial and "consumer education" motion pictures through non-theatrical channels. (See MOTION PICTURE HERALD, November 19th, page 97.)

U.S. SET TO PROCEED WITH SUIT; SELF-REGULATION PROGRAM READY

Department of Justice Hopes to Start Trial in January; Distributors' Petition for Particulars Has 35 Requests

The United States Government stands ready to go to trial at any time with its anti-trust suit against the motion picture business.

The Department of Justice on Tuesday told a Washington correspondent of MOTION PICTURE HERALD that it would proceed when the companies were ready, and that it anticipated much earlier action than indicated by the 90-day delay expected by the defendant majors. The Department hopes to whittle down the delay to 45 or 60 days, which would bring the case to trial late in January.

Some optimists, however, continue to point up the possibilities of a "consent" decree, which the distributors have repeatedly "reputedly" refused to consider if based on the sweeping contents of the original bill of complaint, which seeks to divorce distribution from exhibition, abolish "talent pools" in Hollywood, and reconstruct virtually the entire system of distribution-exhibition.

On Monday, in New York, the major defendants filed with the U. S. District Court a 60-page memorandum in support of their pending motion requiring the Department of Justice to submit a bill of particulars and more definite specifications of the Government's allegations. The majors stated that a bill of particulars should be ordered by the court: (1) To enable the defendants to answer and prepare their defense without needless expense, (2) To aid the court in an orderly and expeditious disposition of the case, (3) To clear up ambiguities, uncertainties and indefiniteness in the petition, and (4) To prevent surprise.

35 Requests Made

The majors make 35 specific requests for particulars, among them whether the Government is charging single monopolization or separate monopolizations; the period of time covered in the alleged monopolization; the time and places conspiracies were entered into; explanation of the Government's references to types of runs cited, contracts and also specific requests for particulars on various of the other allegations contained in the complaint. They also seek the names of those against whom the violations are alleged to have been committed.

The Government is opposing the defendants' petition for a bill of particulars, especially that part requesting the names of those involved in the alleged violations.

United Artists on Tuesday filed a motion in Federal Court, New York, to have stricken from the U. S. anti-trust complaint against the film companies, the major part of the Government allegation insofar as it refers to United Artists. Inasmuch as those parts of the complaint which refer to U. A. are fairly vague, the granting of such a motion could amount to virtual dismissal of the action in favor of U. A.

No court action on the motion is expected for a couple of weeks. Columbia and Universal may ask similar relief.

Federal Judge Woodward in Chicago set Thursday as the date for hearing motions by defense lawyers for a bill of particulars in the Government anti-trust suit against Barney Balaban, Paramount president; Balaban and Katz circuit and major companies except Columbia.

IN THE PICTURE YET OUT OF IT

An unusual case as regards screen credits concerns Cary Grant and the Hal Roach picture, "Topper Takes a Trip." Grant, while not actually working in the picture or receiving a salary, nevertheless will get "feature" billing.

Grant was in "Topper," and since it was necessary to refer to him in the sequel, 500 feet of the first picture have been cut into the sequel for flashbacks.

On the main leader of "Topper Takes a Trip" will be this card: "Grateful acknowledgement is expressed to Mr. Cary Grant for his consent to the use of scenes from the original film, 'Topper.'"

The court also ordered that Mr. Balaban appear in person. Considerable controversy arose this week over the Government's attempt to impound letters and contracts between the majors and B. and K. until the trial. The documents are also being used in the trust action of Chicago independents against B. and K. Defense attorneys protested that Mr. Balaban's appearance would be difficult to arrange and unnecessary, but the Government's attorney insisted and the court ordered it.

The defense plans to ask the court to set January 12 as the date for filing answers.

Philadelphia Plaintiff Injured

Herbert Elliott, Philadelphia exhibitor, who is plaintiff in the most recent anti-trust suit against major distributors and affiliated theatres suffered two broken ribs and other injuries in an automobile accident last weekend.

Indications were that Elliott's injuries might force a postponement of the hearing on the suit scheduled for Thursday.

In some quarters it was reported a settlement might be effected.

"Divorce" Case Action Demanded

Pressing for submission of the North Dakota theatre "divorcement" case to the United States Supreme Court in order to establish a precedent, upon outcome of which depends further prosecution of campaign of Allied States Association to secure similar state laws, Devaney and Schwartz, counsel for Allied Theatres of the Northwest, have filed a memorandum with the three-judge federal statutory court objecting to further extensions in time for Paramount's appeal from the court's decision upholding the constitutionality of the law. Last week a 30-day extension was granted upon petition of Paramount. This extension gives Paramount and its subsidiaries, Minnesota Amusement Company and American Amusement Company, until December 15 to file their appeal with the supreme court.

Enforcement of the North Dakota law, which would prohibit producers and/or distributors from operating theatres in the state, has been held up pending the outcome of the proposed appeal.

Distributors' Committee Molds Final Draft of Concessions To Be Submitted for Approval to Exhibitor Organizations

The organized industry's program of self-regulation for distribution and exhibition, is ready, the distributors' committee this week finally moulding a complete draft of concessions, practices and procedure based on agreements among the distributors and on the negotiations held with exhibitors.

The text of the program, however, will not be divulged until the arrival in New York of committeemen of the three exhibitor groups in a few days when the majors will first publicly hand out the proposals to them for final adjustments. Local conciliation boards, greater cancellation privileges and relief in other frequently disputed practices are part of the program.

The distributors' committeemen, headed by William F. Rodgers of MGM, as chief negotiator, worked far into the nights this week to clarify the language of the program made necessary by the insistence of some of the majors in a phraseology that would leave no misunderstandings either as to the commitments of their companies or expectations of exhibitors.

Final acceptance, of course, will depend on the action of the boards of the MPTOA, Allied and the various unaffiliated state groups whose committeemen will shortly converge on New York for the final negotiations.

Date of the program's enactment, if definitely determined, has not been divulged. Complete unanimity of all of the various exhibitor organizations is not necessary for enactment.

Trial of Loew Minority Stockholders' Suit Opens

Trial started Wednesday in the suit by minority Loew stockholders against the company, its officers and directors, before Judge Louis A. Valente, in New York Supreme Court. Emil K. Ellis was the attorney for the minority and Joseph H. Proskauer represented the defendants. Mr. Ellis' opening charges of "conscionable conduct" were met by Mr. Proskauer's reply that "there is not a scintilla of evidence to support any of the charges."

Principally disputed is the profit-sharing contract of several Loew executives which goes into effect January 1st. Also attacked are contracts under which Loew executives received profit-participation contracts and stock options.

J. H. Hoffberg will open a branch office in Los Angeles in conjunction with William Smith to distribute Hoffberg product throughout California, Arizona and Hawaii Islands.

Guy Holmes, censor for Kansas City since 1926, died Tuesday at the age of 63.

CONGRESSMAN ASKS PRO-RATA TAXES: QUERY FILM MEN ON PROFIT-SHARING

Senator-Elect Downey of California Will Suggest Stars "Bank" Salaries with U. S. to Draw on in Lean Years

Attempts to pro-rate federal taxes of film stars of Hollywood and stage stars of Broadway over a period of years will be made at the next Congress, this winter.

The plan, to be introduced by Senator-elect Sheridan Downey, of California, would in effect turn Uncle's Sam's Treasury Department into a trustee for film stars and other theatrical professionals whose financial life is cited as a series of ups and downs, who are required to pay high taxes in "fat" years on incomes that must be spread over "lean" years.

Senator-elect Downey would have U. S. revenue laws permit Hollywood and Broadway professionals to "bank" their high salaries with the Government and draw upon them in lean years, paying taxes as the money is taken out.

Agitation by the professionals against the present methods of taxing came into the open a few years ago when the Revenue Bureau began to release publicly, via the House ways and means committee, lists of annual salaries reported by "high bracket" persons in all lines. Newspapers the country over published these figures, with special headline emphasis on the $370,000 salaries of the Gary Coopers, the $360,000 salaries of the Ronald Colmans, $350,000 by the Claudette Colberts, and on up the line. But they did not note that these salaries were liable to federal and state taxes running as high as 66 per cent. The newspapers left the inference with their reading public that the large Hollywood incomes mentioned were net, which they were not.

Drawing Power Fluctuates

The stars have been complaining down through the years, that the high taxes paid by them on their salaries have not taken into consideration the wide fluctuations of box office drawing power, on which all star salaries presumably are based. A typical instance is the $480,000 salary of Mae West reported two years ago—which was liable to 66 per cent tax—and the complete non-activity of Miss West in production since then.

Reporting on the Revenue Bureau salary list for 1937, MOTION PICTURE HERALD, on Jan. 29, 1939, page 68, recorded gross salaries of $6,129,296 for some 40 important Hollywood players, whose salaries were liable to total federal taxation of some $2,829,199 and state taxation of $480,342, without computing any reductions, leaving a potential balance of but $2,809,678 on the $6,129,296 incomes.

Hollywood stars have contended that the salaries of "high-bracket" businessmen, for example, are steady year in and year out, and, therefore, their tax payments are pro-rated evenly over the years.

It is not likely, however, that the proposed attempt in Congress will not be without attack by opponents of any such "favored-person" taxation. Seemingly writers, artists, illustrators and other professionals, not mentioned in the new move, but who similarly have "fat" and "lean" years of creative effort, would seek to be included.

Capital observers concede that the idea would require extreme changes in Administration attitude on the subject of taxes. While United States Treasury officials at Washington were understood this week to have taken an interest in at least examining the proposal, the plan was seen running up against several sizeable snags, not the least of which is the difficulty of cutting through the maze of red tape in working out a system which would not involve a tremendous amount of bookkeeping on the part of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Another and even more important phase is the fact that more than 50 per cent of all U. S. income taxes are collected from persons with earnings during the year in excess of $50,000, and from whom a vociferous protest likely would come if a comparatively few professionals were to benefit while others were excluded.

NAVY USES 300 FEATURES A YEAR

Enlisted men in the Navy see more than 300 motion pictures a year, it was disclosed this week by Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, chief of the Bureau of Navigation at Washington, in his annual report to Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson.

Cost of the service during the fiscal year ended June 30th last, was $320,000, of which $85,000 was provided by Congressional appropriation and the balance made up by profits from ship's stores and contributions from ships, stations and sailors.

Seeking New Tax Sources

Offered at a time when the Treasury is casting about for new sources of revenue, and at a time, also, when the Administration is desirous of limiting new tax legislation to a minimum, Washington sees an even narrower chance for adoption of any proposal which would reduce revenue and open the way for a general rewriting of the revenue laws.

There is admittedly in Washington a growing feeling that there should be a halt to the "soak the rich" program of the Administration, but there is also a definite fear that the easing of the burden on that class would necessitate the adoption of levies which would fall heavily upon the smaller wage and salary earners.

Any proposals to give tax relief to film personalities and others in the public eye will have to pass a Congress which is committed to a policy of protecting the small taxpayer as much as possible and which, even in the depths of the depression resisted all suggestions that the income tax base be broadened to bring into the ranks of taxpayers the several million persons whose incomes are below the taxable minimum of $1,000 for a single person or $2,500 for the head of a family.

A portable projector to be used for playbacks on location has been developed at the Paramount studio by Lorin Grignon, chief transmission engineer.

Kenneth McKenna has been signed to a new long term contract as story editor for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Eddie Schreiber has been assigned to short subject publicity at Vitaphone.

Senate Finance Subcommittee Asks Views on Tax Concessions to Concerns Adopting Profit-Sharing for Employees

Leaders in the motion picture industry, together with executives in a number of other major lines of business, have been asked by a subcommittee of the Senate finance committee to make known their views of the desirability of amending the tax laws so as to give concessions to business concerns adopting profit-sharing plans for their employees.

Letters have been written to a large number of industrial leaders, including Will Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew, Inc., Walt Disney, and others.

Action of the subcommittee, which is headed by Senator Clyde L. Herring (Dem.) of Iowa, and consisting of Senators Edwin Johnson (Dem.) of Colorado and Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.) of Michigan, was taken, it is understood in an effort to obtain testimony counteracting the adverse views expressed by representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the National Association of Manufacturers and by officials of corporations which already are practicing profit-sharing under one plan or another.

The testimony of several of these officials, who included Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Company, was to the effect that no special inducements should be given to the adoption of profit-sharing schemes and expressed the fear that tax concessions would lead many companies to adopt profit-sharing on such a basis as to result in a lowering of wage scales.

It was pointed out to the subcommittee that profit-sharing companies are permitted now to make deductions from gross income for the money divided among employees, and doubt was expressed whether further tax exemptions would be practicable, at least without a tendency to lower wage rates to offset profit sharing.

Imperial Pictures Offering Stock

Imperial Pictures, Inc., headed by William M. Pizor, is making a public offering of 424,000 shares of common stock, with initial offering price of $1.50 per share. The company's balance sheet as of August last showed total assets of $92,952 against total liabilities of $53,188. The company has four pictures in distribution and plans for at least 32 films in the coming season. Distribution is being handled by franchise holders in 20 key cities and an addition 10 cities is being arranged for.

Lewen Pizor, circuit exhibitor and president of the United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, is a vice-president of Imperial Pictures.

Joseph Gould has been assigned to the press book department at United Artists, succeeding Ann Suter.

Discuss Aid for Reich Refugees

Several presidents of the large companies met last Friday in the New York offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America to discuss what steps might be taken to give financial aid to "Non-Aryan" German refugees. At MPPDA headquarters it was said the executives had acted independently, merely using the Hays organization's large board room for the meeting, and that no MPPDA representatives attended. The exact nature of the discussions and plans arrived at was not disclosed.

Plans to raise funds by a nationwide raffle of paintings contributed by famous artists were formulated by film company art directors and advertising and publicity representatives at a meeting in New York this week. The group adopted the name of the Motion Picture Art Fund for German Refugees.

The sale will be held February 12th at a place to be determined. A dance may be held in connection to raise additional money for relief. Tickets for the sale will be printed in books of 20 to be sold for 25 cents each.

Vincent Trotta, chairman of the art committee, reported between 50 and 100 oil paintings might be contributed by leading artists. Al Margolies presided at the meeting as temporary chairman. A permanent chairman will be elected Friday. The nominating group includes Gordon S. White, Alec Moss, Morris Helprin and Mr. Margolies.

The finance committee consists of Mr. Helprin, chairman; George Fraser, David Strumpf and Mr. Margolies. Hal Danson heads the ticket committee. Other committee chairmen are: Carl Krueger, ticket distribution; Leonard Gaynor, newspaper publicity; Herb Berg, trade publicity; Paula Fraser, inter-company publicity and permanent secretary. In addition there will be one representative from each company assisting on each committee.

Karl Hoblitzelle, R. J. O'Donnell and John Moroney, and their Texas Interstate Circuit, of the southwest, will donate one day's gross receipts in 137 theatres to German refugee relief. Film companies have agreed to cooperate with special programs.

Nicholas M. Schenck, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer president, will sponsor a special showing of "Pygmalion" at the Astor theatre in New York next Wednesday night for German refugee relief.

Japan, Germany Plan Exchange of Films

Interchange of films between Japan and Germany is provided for by the recently signed Tokyo accord on "cultural cooperation." Details are to be determined later through the basic agreement to promote cultural relations in the domains of films, sciences, radio and youth movements.

Loss of U. S. Films Seen Blow to Italy

Vittorio Mussolini, the Premier's eldest son, is worried about what will happen to the Italian motion picture industry when American films are withdrawn from Italy after the first of the year, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Rome last week.

The dispatch said that the concern of the Premier's son, expressed in an article written for the trade journal, Cinema, was aroused by the decision of large American distributors to withdraw their pictures rather than deal with the new Italian film monopoly.

Mr. Mussolini said the abrupt withdrawal of 200 American films "might influence the public to stay away from the movies" because it "has not too much confidence in our production."

Mr. Mussolini said negotiations must be opened with other nations to fill the gap.

ANTI-NAZI LEAGUE AD ASKS RIEFENSTAHL BAN

The Hollywood Anti-Nazi League for the Defense of American Democracy, in advertisements in coast newspapers Tuesday asked the industry to "close the door to all Nazi agents."

"Today Leni Riefenstahl, head of the Nazi film industry, has arrived in Hollywood. There is no room in Hollywood for Leni Riefenstahl," declared the League. "In this moment when hundreds of thousands of our brethren await certain death, close your doors to all Nazi agents. Let the world know there is no room in Hollywood for Nazi agents!"

The League, which includes many of the production industry's prominent names among its members, is headed by Donald Ogden Stewart.

According to the Associated Press, Miss Riefenstahl said she was surprised to be "thus personally attacked."

"At my arrival in New York," she said, "I informed the press my trip is absolutely private and that I have no official orders to carry out."

Alfieri Says Italian Market Is Not Closed

In an interview with the correspondent of Milan's largest newspaper, Corriere della Sera, the Minister of Popular Culture, Dino Alfieri, declared it was incorrect to assume that the Italian cinematographic market had been closed to foreign producers.

He said that the recent steps taken by the Italian government field were aimed to bring about a more ordered activity in the self-sufficiency program of the government.

Italo-German Cultural Pact to Affect Films

American film distributors in Rome this week were reported to have expressed the opinion that the new cultural pact between Germany and Italy will have a definite effect upon Nazi-Fascist film commerce, since the agreement specifically covers motion pictures.

Report Purge by Japan

A reliable source in Vienna, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin, said this week that an undisclosed number of Austrian Jewish musicians, teachers at the music conservatory in Kobe, Japan, had found their contracts abruptly annulled bv the Japanese government.

New Shorts for UA

The Countess Keller, who, with her husband, Count Friedrich Keller, has completed a series of color shorts under the series title of "World Windows," was to arrive in New York from London Thursday. The Countess will confer with United Artists on American distribution.

William Dover, personnel manager at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio, has resigned. He plans to enter production.

Film Amateurs' "Ten Best" Named

Editors of "Movie Makers," organ of the Amateur Cinema League, have selected the "ten best" non-theatrical films for 1938. Among the films was "Mexican Fiestas," by Ralph E. Gray, of Mexico City. This film also has won the Hiram Percy Maxim Memorial Award.

Other winning films were "John Doe, Citizen," by Frances Christeson and Harry Merrick, of Los Angeles; "Riches from the Sea," by T. J. Courtney, of Halifax, N. S.; "Santa Passes Out," by John Martin, of Leek, England; "Trees, a Picture Poem," by the late Ripley W. Bugbee, of Pitman, N. J.; "Vida Pacoima," by Randolph B. Clardy, of Los Angeles; "West Coast," by W. W. Champion, of Fresno, Cal. None of the above received compensation.

Other winners, produced for compensation, were "Entitled to Success," by Charles J. Carbonaro, New York City; "How To Use Your Camera," by Kenneth F. Space, of the Harmon Foundation, New York; "Follow the Plow," by the T. W. Willard Motion Picture Company, New York.

Pennsylvania Censor Fight Ends; New York Case Up

Because state's attorney general Bard advised that they had not made out a legal case, the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors this week withdrew its appeal to the state supreme court, from a decision of Judge Curtis Bok, setting aside their censorship in March, on "Baltic Deputy," a Soviet film, as "incompetent and prejudicial." This apparently ends the fight to ban the picture.

In Albany this week, Supreme Court Judge Pierce H. Russell upheld contention by Board of Regents' Charles Brind that appellate division was proper court to review case of "Birth of a Baby," barred by the New York State censor board. Justice Russell ruled on a motion for trial by jury, of the American Committee on Maternal Welfare, Inc., and Sam Citron, producer.

The Pennsylvania Board of Censors this week passed "Professor Mamlock," a Russian made anti-Nazi film.

Tri-National Film Opens New Theatre

The French film "Sacrifice D'Honneur," which is being distributed in this country by Tri-National Films, had its premiere at the Normandie theatre on Park Avenue and Fifty-third Street in New York, Wednesday night. The occasion also marked the opening of the Normandie.

Variety Club Ball

Kansas City's Variety Club held its annual charity ball last Friday night. General chairman was Earl E. Jameson, with Morris Cresswell and Finton Jones co-chairmen. The committees were headed by Lenora Herring, Mr. Jones, Mr. Creswell, George Baker, Mr. Jameson, Frank Hensler, Sam Abend, E. C. Rhoden, Harry A. McClure and Landon Laird.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Finish 14; Start 8

Through Thanksgiving week, besides celebrating a bit and doing a little fire-fighting along the nearby beaches, canyons and arroyos, Hollywood started eight pictures and finished fourteen. The larger figure on the completed side of the ledger shows that a lot of attention was given to mopping up the expanded production program that has been the order of the past few weeks. The 8 means that the town has settled down to the normal average annually arrived at during the late fall and early winter weeks.

In most of the studios, particularly Universal and 20th Century-Fox, the regular seasonal run of product has been cleaned up. Activities during the immediately future weeks will be devoted to the manufacture of bigger pictures. This condition is noted in the list of newly started films, where all but one is a potential candidate for the show-window picture classification. New work at MGM, where two were started, is typical. "Huckleberry Finn" will present Mickey Rooney, Walter Connolly, William Frawley, Elizabeth Risdon, Lynne Carver, Rex Ingram and Jo Ann Sayers. "Song of the West" will team Nelson Eddy with Virginia Bruce, Lionel Barrymore, Victor McLaglen, Edward Arnold and H. B. Warner head the support.

Columbia Launches Pair

Columbia started two pictures. Warren William, Ida Lupino, Virginia Weidler and Rita Hayworth will be the principals in "Lone Wolf's Daughter." The cast for "Let Us Live" will be headed by Henry Fonda, Maureen O'Sullivan and Ralph Bellamy.

"I'm from Missouri" started at Paramount. Bob Burns is the star. Gladys George, Judith Barrett, E. E. Clive, Berry Mackay, Doris Lloyd and Raymond Hatton are included in the cast.

Many big puctires are in praparation at 20th Century-Fox, where "Mr. Moto In Porto Rico," which will feature Peter Lorre, Warren Hymer, Charles D. Brown and Richard Lane, went into work.

Universal began work on "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man." It will parade W. C. Feilds, Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen, Frank Jenks, Edward Brophy, Grady Sutton, David Oliver, Grace Goodall and Frank Melton. Many more names will be added.

At Warner Bros. "Broadway Cavalier" was started. Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell and Maxie Rosenbloom will head the large cast.

To the Cutting Room

Paramount and RKO-Radio, which are credited with half the number of completed productions, and Universal, which wound up three, were the only studios which finished more than one picture. Radio finished four. "The Great Man Votes" will feature John Barrymore and Little Peter Holden with Virginia Weidler, Donald MacBride, Clarence Kolb, Katherine Alexander, Luis Alberni, J. M. Kerrigan, Benny Bartlett, Brandon Tynan, Elizabeth Risdon and Granville Bates. Victor McLaglen, Chester Morris and Wendy Barrie are the stars of "Pacific Liner," which will also present Barry Fitzgerald, Alan Hale, Allan Lane, Paul Guilfoyle, John Wray, Walter Miller, Douglas Walton, Arthur Loft, Halliwell Hobbes, Cy Kendal and Aida Kuznetzoff. In "Beauty for the Asking" Lucille Ball, Patric Knowles, Donald Woods and Frieda Inescort will be seen along with Leona Maricle, Inez Courtney, Frances Mercer, Whitney Bourne and Ann Evers. "Arizona Legion" will star George O'Brien in the company of Laraine Johnson, Carlyle Moore, Chill Wills, Edward Le Saint, Harry Cordin, Tom Chatterton, William Royle, Glen Strange, Monty Montague, Joe Rickson and Robert Burns.

"HOMESPUN STUFF IS WHAT THEY WANT"

His theatres in Colorado and New Mexico have been in the black for 20 years. He plays no double bills, gives away no prizes, has bought and shelved enough "sophisticated dramas" to keep a Fifth Avenue cinema supplied for five years and is taking part in the Movie Quiz contest because he feels doing so comes under the head of "doing his bit."

He is B. P. McCormick of Canyon City, Colo., MOTION PICTURE HERALD subscriber of 20 years' standing, and last week he was visiting Hollywood studios telling production heads that what patrons want most, whether in small towns or in big towns, from small towns, which is a majority, he says, of all the people, is more and more—and still more—"homespun stuff," the Hardy and Jones families, the Withers child and the Temple girl, films of that kind.

"Seeing those pictures," says Mr. McCormick, "makes that old hearth-fire burn a little brighter, seem a little warmer. That's what the American family, backbone of this or any other business, wants most."

Paramount's three are quite diversified. "Two Weeks with Pay" will reunite Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland and feature Joyce Mathews, Donald O'Connor, Billie Lee and Andrew Tombes. The cast for the melodramatic "Persons in Hiding" includes Lynne Overman, J. Carroll Naish, Patricia Morison, William Henry, William Frawley, Elizabeth Risdon, Richard Carle, Charlotte Wynters, Judith Barrett, Richard Denning and Dorothy Howe. John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, E. E. Clive, Elizabeth Patterson, Leo Carroll and Forrester Harvey will be seen in "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police."

The Universal allotment of finished product leans heavily toward melodrama. "Pirates of the Skies" will present Kent Taylor, Rochelle Hudson, Lucien Littlefield, Regis Toomey, Frank Publia, Ray Walker, Marton Martin, Stanley Andrews and Guy Usher. The cast for "Gambling Ship" is head by Robert Wilcox, Helen Mack, Edward Brophy, Irving Pichel, Joseph Sawyer and Selmer Jackson.

"The Little Princess," 20th Century-Fox, Shirley Temple's first picture in color, will also present Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romaro, Arthur Treacher, Sybil Jason, Mary Nash, Miles Mander, Marcia Mae Jones, Deidre Gale and Ira Stevens.

Star of MGM's "Stand Up and Fight" is Robert Taylor. Additional name value is supplied by Wallace Beery, Florence Rice, Helen Broderick, Charles Bickford, Charley Grapewin, Barton MacLane, Robert Gleckler, Jonathan Hale, Minor Watson, Claudia Morgan, John Qualen, Clinton Rosemond, Cy Kendall, Paul Everton and Selmer Jackson.

Monogram finished "I Am a Criminal," in which John Carroll is the star.

The Columbia contribution to the list of completed productions is "Rio Grande Round Up," an outdoor action adventure story. Charles Starrett and Iris Meredith are the leads. Sons of the Pioneers will supply the musical content and Hank Bell, Bob Nolan, Fred Kohler, Jr., Lee Prather and Blackjack Ward will participate in the excitement.

Items

Darkened skies, caused by nearby forest and brush fires, forced Universal to cancel shooting on "Newsboys' Home." MGM to hold up "Idiot's Delight," and Warner Bros. to delay "Oklahoma Kid."

* * *

Following completion of "Charlie Chan in Honolulu," 20th Century-Fox decided to continue Sidney Toler permanently in the role of Charlie Chan.

RKO-Radio has discontinued the "Affairs of Annabel" series.

Jason Joy was named supervisor of writers and directors at 20th Century-Fox, succeeding William Dover, recently resigned.

Rex Ingram, whose last picture was "Green Pastures," will play the role of the slave in MGM's "Huckleberry Finn."

* * *

MGM is negotiating with Warner Bros. to purchase rights to "The Desert Song." If deal is made Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald will be starred in the Sigmund Romberg operetta.

* * *

Having shelved "Rio," Universal has chosen "Half an Angel" for Danielle Darrieux's next starring vehicle. Edward Ludwig will direct.

* * *

With Fox Films and 20th Century-Fox for more than ten years, Warner Baxter will complete his career with the company by appearing in the title role of "The Return of the Cisco Kid," a follow up story to the picture which first made him a star.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

The Wizard of Oz

(MGM)

Fantasy

Notwithstanding such productions as "Alice in Wonderland" and "Babes in Toyland," or maybe because of them, the modern screen has shunned the imagery of fairy tales. Consequently MGM's all-color picturization of L. Frank Baum's famous story of enchantment becomes a subject of unusual importance. Beloved as a stage show, carried into almost every city and town a generation ago by David Montgomery and Fred Stone, it has been made before as a picture, in 1925.

Thematically, the story details the preposterous adventures which befell a little Kansas farm girl and her dog after a cyclone has struck her home.

As "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was a sensational success, producer Mervyn LeRoy anticipates sanguinely the prospects of "The Wizard of Oz." The picture will feature a brilliant array of personalities. All faces will be visible. Frank Morgan is the Wizard, Judy Garland is "Dorothy," the girl. Ray Bolger is the Scarecrow, Jack Haley the Tin Woodman, Bert Lahr the Lion, Billy Burke the Good Witch, Margaret Hamilton the Wicked Witch, and Charley Grapewin will be seen as the child's uncle. The glittering pageantry, spectacular settings, exotic costumes and elaborate dancing specialties will be there, besides half a dozen or more song numbers which Yip Harburg and Harold Arlen composed for Miss Garland, Bolger, Lahr and the Munchkin Chorus.

The care that was exercised in choosing the cast and attending to every detail of story writing, planning production detail and arranging music, specialty and score, was reflected also in the selection of the director. "Captains Courageous" and "Test Pilot," stories vastly different in conception than "The Wizard of Oz," were more than successfully brought to the screen by Victor Fleming. Assignment of Fleming to bring this production to screen realism in all its beauty and charm should serve as a worthy exploitation item.

Release date: To be determined (possibly not until about Easter time).

Pirates of the Skies

(Universal)

Crime Melodrama

A series of baffling crimes has perplexed the state air and motor police. The cleverly disguised instigators have been using carrier pigeons to transmit advance knowledge of large money and jewel shipments. They have contrived a hideaway which defies detection. Then a harum scarum stunt flier, who found transport aviation too tame, joins the air police.

"Pirates in the Skies" will present about ten well-known performers. The hero is Kent Taylor whose recent pictures, among them "A Girl with Ideas" and "Prescription for Romance," have given him considerable following, especially among women patrons. The heroine is Rochelle Hudson, long with Fox and Twentieth Century-Fox. The chief villain is Lucien Littlefield, one of Hollywood's veteran actors. Regis Toomey will be seen in a sympathetic role.

The supporting players featured are Frank Puglia, Ray Walker, Marion Martin, Stanley Andrews and Guy Usher.

The story is an original by Lester Cole, credited with such melodramatic yarns as "Sinners in Paradise," "The Crime of Doctor Hallett" and "Midnight Intruder." Ben Grauman Kohn, who worked on the screen play of "Young Fugitive," for Universal, collaborated.

Joseph McDonough, assistant director at Universal for about twenty years, during which time he worked with practically every prominent director in the business and was associated with the making of such films as "Magnificent Obsession," "Diamond Jim" and "Showboat," gets his first opportunity to handle a production on his own.

Release date: December 16, 1938.

International Spy

(Columbia)

Melodrama

The principal name value in this melodrama of international intrigue will be represented by Ralph Bellamy, Fay Wray, Regis Toomey, Walter Kingsford and Ann Doran. Supplementary personalities are Warren Hull, Forbes Murray, Lorna Gray, Paul Whitney, John Tyrrell and May Wallace.

In transcribing the story to the screen, unusual technique is being utilized. It will be presented in the nature of a "problem picture."

Naturally the story promises to be thrilling and suspenseful. Its authors, Dorrell and Stuart McGowen, have had much experience in preparation of melodramatic screen material through such stories as "Come On Leathernecks," "Ladies in Distress" and "Hollywood Stadium Mystery." So have their collaborator on the screen play, Arthur T. Horman, and the director, Christy Cabanne, maker of "Night Spot" and "The Westland Case" recently.

Release date to be determined.

Tailspin

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Women in Aviation

Aviation, chiefly in war, making men heroes while women suffer, has provided many spectacular motion pictures. "Test Pilot" and "Men with Wings" are of recent memory; "Dawn Patrol" is in the immediate future. Strange enough, the courage and daring of women fliers, the Ruth Elders, Jacqueline Corchrans, Amelia Earharts and their adventurous sisters never have been glorified on the screen until now.

The production is based on a story by Frank Wead, who has written many screen stories of the skies, and is being directed by Roy Del Ruth.

Concerned mainly with women, though men are important in both the romantic and melodramatic phases, women players will be featured, Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Nancy Kelly and Joan Davis heading the cast. They with Jane Wyman and Joan Valerie are the distaff representatives. "Tailspin" also will present Charles Farrell, most recently with Shirley Temple, also Kane Richmond, Wally Vernon, Edward Norris, Robert Lowery, Warren Hymer, J. Anthony Hughes and Jack Pennick.

Release date: January 13, 1938.

Swing, Sister, Swing

(Universal)

Music and Comedy

Swing music, jitterbug dancing, romance and comedy are being woven into "Swing, Sister, Swing," a topical feature story of the picturesque adventures of a trio of small towners, who in introducing a new dance technique set New York and a large portion of the country upside down, until a new fad comes along quickly to make them backnumbers.

The featured players will be Ken Murray, for years a stage comedy headline star and radio broadcast notable and lately seen in "You're a Sweetheart"; Johnny Downs, graduate of the original "Our Gang" and former Paramount player last seen in "Algiers" and "Hold That Co-Ed"; Kathryn Kane, long absent from pictures in favor of the stage and radio, and the popular but not very busy of late Eddie Quillan. Important parts have been assigned Ernest Truex, last in "Swing That Cheer," but remembered for "The Adventures of Marco Polo," Nana Bryant, and a newcomer from the stage, Edna Sedgwyck. The music will be provided by Ted Weems and his orchestra.

The production is based on an original story by Burt Kelly, who is also the producer. The screen play is credited to Charles Grayson, who did "Freshman Year" and was a collaborator on "Swing That Cheer."

Direction was assigned Joseph Santley, who has made many pictures combining comedy and romance with music, among them "She's Got That Swing," "There Goes the Groom" and "Smartest Girl in Town."

Release date: December 12, 1938 (tentative)

Shine On Harvest Moon

(Republic)

Action in The West

Lest any mistakes may be made, because of the title, it may be noted that the picture will have nothing to do with autumnal festivities, sentimental romances born in the times when the frost is on the pumpkin, or anything bucolic.

The hero is Roy Rogers, who had been nominated successor of Gene Autry during a moment that that western champion was feuding with the Republic posse, and who, according to the "What The Pictures Did For Me" section, did all right in his first feature, "Under Western Stars." Other personalities are Mary Hart, another recent discovery, Lulu Belle and Scotty who come of the National Barn Dance radio broadcast program, William Farnum, Stanley Andrews, Matty Roubert, Pat Henning, Frank Jaquet and Joe Whitehead, plus the usual assortment of good and bad cowboys.

In actual history and pulp paper fiction Jackson's Hole has long been an infamous place as an invasion-proof hole in the mountains for cattle rustlers, the while their allies in crime manage things in town.

Jack Natteford, who has written more stories about the west when it really was the west than any man alive without running out of fresh ideas or the ability to renovate old ones, is the author of the story. It is being directed by Joseph Kane who from "Sagebrush Troubador" in 1935 up to "Billy The Kid" in 1938 has had 25 outdoor action films.

Release date: To be determined.

"'The Shining Hour' is for adults but its program partner is notably for the family ...It's BLONDIE and it's a blamed good little comedy based on the newspaper comic strip of the same name. Arthur Lake, Penny Singleton, Gene Lockhart, little Larry Simms and the others do a capital job with roles and scenes. The Simms youngster is corking as Baby Dumpling, and Lake and Miss Singleton do Blondie and Dagwood, his parents, credibly and amusingly. FCC CHARGES WITNESSES SEEK TO TURN PROBE INTO AD FOR NETWORK

NBC's Chief Engineer Says Federal Commission Rules Hamper Establishment of High Fidelity Radio Transmission

The Federal Communications Commission's "explorations" into practices and procedure of radio broadcasting, undertaken two weeks ago at Washington in an attempt to determine whether a "monopoly" exists, took a new turn this week when witnesses for the broadcasters were charged by Commissioner Frank R. McNinch with moulding their testimony into advertisements for the networks. Drifting into a "fishing expedition" at the outset, the hearings up to this week have been productive of loads of statistics, but little else.

Commissioner McNinch's charge was occasioned by the attempt of Phillip J. Hennessy, Jr., counsel for NBC, to display exhibits which "would detail" the rise of the American broadcasting systems. Mr. McNinch characterized the maneuver as "purely and obviously advertising" and called some NBC pamphlets "frills and puffing."

Other developments in this week's hearing included the allegation by O. B. Hanson, NBC chief engineer, that the FCC by its 10-kilocycle separation between channels, hampers establishment of "high fidelity" radio transmission. This was denied by FCC counsel, George Porter, who asserted no separation of less than 40 kilocycles is now used by stations in the same locality.

Physical Side Explained

B. F. McClancy, NBC traffic manager, explained to the Commission the physical side of network programs. The chief difficulty, he explained, was economical transmission. RCA has a contract with American Telephone and Telegraph for use of its wires at a cost more in line with program revenues for NBC, an RCA subsidiary.

With the calling of Mr. McClancy and Dr. C. B. Jooliffe and W. C. Lent, engineers, all of NBC, the committee on Wednesday settled down for a long examination of the technical points in network broadcasting. Witnesses emphasized engineering difficulties in linking and shifting over 150 stations from program to program. They testified that the actual changing of wires is done by the telephone company.

Ten years of effort and millions of dollars have been expended in the technical development of television, from which there is little hope for any return for many years to come, and then only through network operations, according to Mr. Hanson.

John F. Royal, vice-president in charge of NBC programs, completing his testimony, explained the need of balanced programs and the steps taken by his department to assure diversification.

It is left to the local manager of network stations to decide whether he shall take the programs offered by NBC, he said. In the case of stations owned or operated by the chain, there is a standing rule that certain religious, educational and public affairs sustaining programs must be carried, but any other program, sustaining or commercial, may be refused by the station in favor of a program of more interest locally.

EXTRAS' "NO WORK" CALLS TO BE CUT

One of the oldest, albeit to some maddening, customs of Hollywood which extras follow—telephoning to Central Casting for hours daily seeking work—may go by the boards, if the Screen Actors Guild has its way. The Guild will ask the standing committee which will regulate the recently signed eight-year pact of the Guild with the producers covering working conditions of extras, free lance players and other actors to cut down the number of hours Central Casting is open daily from 16 to six.

The telephone situation long has been a sore point in extras' lives. Recognizing the psychological angles, Campbell MacCulloch, manager of the bureau, when he assumed office several years ago changed the answer given by the bureau telephone operators to the players not receiving work from "No Work" to "Call Later."

The standing committee is composed of Murray Kinnell, for the Guild, and Lou Anger, representing the producers. A third member will be appointed by the two members next week.

Advertising as Entertainment

Conceding that there is a trend to get "plugs" into the entertainment parts of commercial programs, Mr. Royal refused to accept the suggestion of William J. Dempsey, FCC counsel, that such programs are rapidly becoming advertising throughout. On the contrary, he said, if advertising can be made entertaining it is not objectionable to the amusement parts.

He said that, while broadcasting had a definite effect upon motion pictures in bringing in sound, the film industry, in turn, had a sharp effect on NBC when the first successful sound film was released.

"Hollywood was in a hectic state, clamoring for sound equipment and personnel," Mr. Hanson explained. Hollywood, he said, took "from our staff more than 50 per cent of our engineers." This raid, he said, "almost wrecked our operations."

Television Problems

Mr. Hanson attempted to outline what he thought would be the field for picture radio.

"Television program cost will far exceed sound program costs because of added costumes, makeup, scenery, props, lights, complicated technique and increased rehearsal time," he said, "to which must be added the cost of carrying the investment of the television equipment, to say nothing of a sound system which must also be provided and operated.

"For this reason networking of television programs is essential from an economic standpoint as well as to provide spontaneity. Unfortunately, no facilities exist for the transmission of television material from city to city. Only two methods are known, one by coaxial cable and the other by radio relays; neither facility is available nor yet developed. Both methods appear to be expensive and may for some time be beyond television's ability to pay for either of them."

The advent of television, Mr. Hanson intimated, will necessitate the provision of facilities even more comprehensive than those of Radio City, where NBC has 28 studios. This will be due to the increasing rehearsal time that will be required to stage shows, as scripts cannot be used. At present, for every hour on the air, programs are rehearsed for seven hours, tying up a studio for eight hours.

The FCC this week broke up what was described as a "monopoly of its own," in the practice of law before it. Effective January 1, the number of attorneys practicing before it will be enlarged. A "two year rule" was adopted, limiting the prohibition imposed upon a lawyer who left the employ of the commission to "matters they have passed upon or handled while in the service of the commission." The commission also adopted a "motions docket," and provided for hearing arguments on petitions and motions filed on pending proceedings.

Two GB Claims Disallowed

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe on Tuesday, in New York, disallowed and expunged two claims of GB Theatres Corporation, in the amounts of $730,120 and $667,297, against Paramount Publix. GB has formally consented to the wiping out of the claims, since in 1926 it made two indentures, and then in 1930 Paramount Publix purchased a large part of GB Theatre's assets and assumed obligation of debentures. Later Paramount Publix transferred the assets to Olympia Theatres, Inc., which assumed the obligations. Now Olympia is in receivership and GB Theatres has had its claims paid in that estate.

MGM Sued for $1,500,000

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was named Tuesday in a $1,500,000 plagiarism suit by Frank Walsh, writer, who said the company used his original, "I Found Kinley," as the basis for "Too Hot to Handle." Walsh said his story was submitted three years ago and rejected.

WARNERS NET $1,929,721 IN YEAR; 1939-40 PRODUCT CONFERENCES OPEN

Heavy Amortization Writeoffs, Summer Losses and $370,000 Undistributed Profits Taxes Cited in Earnings Drop

Warner Brothers Pictures reports net profits of $1,929,721, equal to 41 cents a share on the common, for the fiscal year ended August 27th. The earnings dropped from the $3,282,765 and 80 cents a share earned in the first nine months, due to losses of approximately $1,000,000 during the summer and because of heavy amortization writeoffs. In addition, undistributed profits taxes of about $370,000 detracted from the full-year's results.

For the second quarter of the new year, however, "there will be a very perceptible decrease in amortization charges," Harry M. Warner, president, told stockholders in his annual report, made last Saturday.

The 1937-38 net of $1,929,721 compared with a net of $5,876,182 in 1936-37. In addition to the 1937-38 operating profit there has been a net credit to deficit in the amount of $1,931,024 and capital surplus has been increased by $90,000.

Warott, Inc., 75 per cent of whose capital stock is owned by Warner Brothers Pictures, and Continental Lithograph Corporation, 77.16 per cent of whose common stock and 58.10 per cent of whose preferred stock is owned by Warner Brothers Pictures, are included in the consolidated financial statements for the first time. As a result, the accounts of all subsidiary companies in which the company owned directly or indirectly 75 per cent or more of the equity or common stock are included in the statement.

The gross income, after eliminating intercompany transactions, of Warner Brothers Pictures, and subsidiary companies for the three years ending August 27, 1938 was:

Fiscal Year Ending
August 29, 1936	$ 90,655,502.34*
August 28, 1937	100,516,498.65
August 27, 1938	102,205,911.04

*Adjusted to include Continental Lithograph.
Adjusted to include Warott, Inc. and Continental Lithograph.

"In view of the economic recovery evidenced during 1936 and the first half of 1937, and in anticipation of continued improvement, a number of pictures were planned and produced on a more elaborate scale and at higher costs than had prevailed during the preceding years, which costs were further increased due to new labor contracts, labor laws and taxes," explained Mr. Warner to the stockholders, continuing:

"These pictures were released during the fiscal year just ended, and the higher costs are largely reflected in the profit and loss account through amortization of film costs, which increased from $25,445,916 for the fiscal year ending August 28, 1937 to $30,278,971 for the year ending August 27, 1938. These higher costs will continue to be reflected in the profit and loss account for the quarter ending on November 26, 1938. By that time, however, the greater portion of the costs of these higher cost pictures will have been written off, and for the second quarter which ends on February 25, 1939 there will be a very perceptible decrease in amortization charges.

"The profit for the current quarter cannot be estimated at the present time. However, owing primarily to the higher amortization charges, the net profit for the quarter ending November 26, 1938 will show a very substantial reduction as compared with the corresponding quarter a year ago," he concluded.

41 Cents a Share

The $1,929,721 year's profit, after amortization of film costs, depreciation, interest, federal income taxes, $370,000 surtax on undistributed profits, minority interest, and so on, was equivalent after annual dividend requirements on 103,187 shares of $3.85 cumulative preferred stock (on which unpaid dividends amount to $2,580,253 or $25.00 per share, to and including September 1, 1938) to 41 cents a share, (par $5) on 3,701,090 shares of common stock, excluding 100,254 shares held by company.

This compares with $1.48 a common share on the $5,876,183 net in the preceding year.

Current assets as of Aug. 27, 1938, including $4,005,157 cash, amounted to $26,998,040 and current liabilities were $18,896,828, compared with cash of $4,058,252, current assets of $28,213,964 and current liabilities of $23,099,815 on Aug. 28, 1937.

Net current assets of subsidiaries operating in foreign territories having exchange restrictions (where current assets exceed current liabilities) totaled $276,374 on August 27, this year, against $214,559 on August 28, 1937. Net current liabilities of foreign subsidiaries with exchange restrictions (where current liabilities exceed current assets) were $32,176 on August 27,ths year, against $49,026 a year earlier.

Warners Extend Refund Date

Warner directors, Monday voted to extend to March 15, the time when stockholders might avail themselves of exchanging their presently held optional six per cent convertible debentures (due 1939) for new debentures (1948), under the company's refunding plan.

This is the third extension, since the plan was proposed. The previous time limit was December 1st.

Since the present debentures do not expire until September, 1939, it is expected that the company will obtain the required amount to put through the plan of refunding. The company can declare the plan in effect when 75 per cent, or about $22,000,000 of the $29,400,000 present debentures outstanding, shall have been deposited for the plan.

Presently, Warner Bros. have on file for exchange, $18,864,000 of the present debentures, making the required amount shy around $3,000,000 principal amount.

The plan of exchange provides that the new debentures: (1) will bear the same rate of interest as the present debentures, six per cent; (2) will be entitled to the benefit of a sinking fund under which there will be retired, on Dec. 15 of each of the years 1939, 1940 and 1941, three per cent of the largest aggregate principal amount of the new debentures which shall have been outstanding at any one time—on Dec. 15 of each of the years 1942, 1943 and 1944, four per cent of such largest aggregate principal amount—and on Dec. 15 of each of the years 1945, 1946 and 1947, five per cent of such largest principal amount, (3) will not be convertible into coupon stock.

next season. First was the outlining of plans for merchandising releases for the 16 weeks from December 25th to April 15th.

At the conferences are Major Albert Warner, vice-president and treasurer; Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production; Hal B. Wallis, associate executive in charge of production; Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager; Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity, and Carl Leserman, assistant general sales manager.

It was decided to accord heavy campaigns to back the company's releases during the 16-weeks, for "The Dawn Patrol," "Wings of the Navy," "Crime is a Racket," "Off the Record," "Going Places," "Oklahoma Kid," "Yes, My Darling Daughter," and "Blackwell's Island."

Competition for $25,000 prize money in the "Sears' Drive" will be set up, with each of the company's six district sales managers acting as captain of his district. Prizes will be awarded the winning districts, as well as the winning branches in each.

Resume Sessions on Coast Jan. 15

Mr. Sears left the conference Tuesday night on a swing of the branches over the country, ending at the studios in Burbank on January 15th, at which time he will join a continuance of the product meetings, where President Harry M. Warner presides. Also attending will be Jack Warner, Hal Wallis and Charles Einfeld, who leave for Hollywood Friday.

Pat O'Brien and James Cagney have accepted the captaincies of the western and eastern divisions for the "Sears Drive."

Drive plans were outlined at territorial meetings last week when district and branch managers met.

Carl Leserman is coordinator of the drive.

Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner theatres, left New York Monday for meetings with the managers of the Chicago and Milwaukee zones, held at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago. James Coston, zone manager, presided. Wednesday he held a meeting in Pittsburgh with the managers of that zone.

Warners Have Ten in Work

With ten new pictures in work, a new production peak for the season has been reached at the Warner studios at Burbank. Latest to go before the cameras are "Broadway Cavalier," "Smashing the Money Ring" and "Sweepstakes Winner." In addition, filming is advanced on "Juarez," the Paul Muni-Bette Davis co-starring picture, "Dodge City," "The Oklahoma Kid," "Dark Victory," "Yes, My Darling Daughter," "Always Leave Them Laughing," and "Nancy Drew, Reporter."

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee has named Charles W. Trampe, head of Monogram Midwest Film Company and Film Service, Inc., to the film commission to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of George Fischer. Mr. Trampe was recently honored by the industry on the occasion of his 25th anniversary in the film industry.

A three-reel sound motion picture, "Iowa Comes of Age," is ready for theatrical showings throughout Iowa, it was announced this week by M. L. Hutton, Iowa State Conservation Director, and the members of the Iowa Conservation Commission. The film carries the thematic idea of Iowa's Centennial Year.

PRODUCT SESSIONS IN HOLLYWOOD

Conferences on 1939-40 product are beginning to shape up in Hollywood, with officials of Twentieth Century-Fox, RKO Radio, Universal and Paramount already in California for the purpose.

George J. Schaefer arrived in Hollywood Monday on his first visit as new RKO president. Nate J. Blumberg, Universal, also was on hand for two weeks of new-product talks. Y. Frank Freeman, new Paramount studio manager, was still another arrival.

S. R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, will head a home office delegation westward on December 8th, to meet two days later with Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl Zanuck, Sol Wurtzel and William Goetz, on 1939-40 production, budgets and sales policies.

Floyd Odlum, head of the Atlas investment trust, was to arrive in Hollywood this weekend to discuss studio matters at Paramount and RKO.

Richey Honored; Schines Plan Set

Henderson M. Richey, who recently became director of exhibitor relations for RKO Radio, was honor guest at a testimonial dinner at the Book-Cadillac hotel in Detroit Monday night tendered by former associates in that city.

Also attending the dinner were Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO, and Jules Levy, general sales manager for RKO; W. A. (Al) Steffes, George W. Trendle, David M. Idzal, William A. Carlson and David Newman.

Philip Fox of Columbia has been named chairman of the committee arranging the testimonial dinner for Louis M. Schine and J. Meyer Schine in honor of their quarter of a century in the film industry at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany December 19th.

Sub-committee heads are Bernard G. Kranze, Clayton Eastman, M. A. Grassgreen, Ralph Pielow, Arthur Newmann, Leon Herman, A. Gerald Leary, Eugene Lowe, Paul Krumenacker, Bernard Mills and Ben Smith. Jack Walsh is handling exploitation.

Ball to Oil City

John Ball, theatrical press agent, has been reappointed director of publicity for the Drake and Lyric theatres, operated by Oil City Theatre Company, Oil City, Pa.

Milt Francis, writer and composer, has been added to the production staff of Warner Brothers Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn.

Two Suits Would Bar Pathe Plan

In an effort to block a special stockholders' meeting called for December 13th to consider dissolution of Pathe Film Corporation, Anna Bashlow and 15 other stockholders filed suit in New York supreme court this week for an injunction to restrain the meeting. Hearing was set for December 5th.

The complaint declares that Pathe will receive an inadequate exchange for its assets and asks that the stockholders be enjoined from voting approval of the resolution of the board of directors which was passed November 19th.

The 16 stockholder-plaintiffs claim to hold 2,245 shares of stock. Named as defendants are Pathe, O. Henry Briggs, Henry J. Guild, Robert McKinney, Robert R. Young, Charles A. Stone, Louis Phillips and Gurdon Wattles. To take advantage of 1938 Revenue Law provisions, liquidation must be completed in December.

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company of Wilmington this week also filed a court action seeking to enjoin the distribution, under the Pathe liquidation plan, of 3,500 shares of du Pont Film Manufacturing stock held by Pathe.

Briggs' Statement

Mr Briggs retorted that "counsel for Pathe has advised the company that du Pont's action is based on a contract (made in 1925) which has since been superseded," by subsequent contracts made in 1929, 1930 and 1935. He added that in the minority suit 16 stockholders, holding less than one-half of one per cent of Pathe stock are seeking to enjoin the other 99½ per cent of the stockholders from holding their meeting to vote upon the plan of dissolution, contending that "the plaintiffs have based their complaint upon the erroneous theory that it is the directors who are voting to dissolve when as a matter of fact it is the stockholders."

Pathe's Bound Brook laboratory would be acquired by Mr. Briggs, T. P. Loach and Arthur Miller, laboratory superintendent, in association with Mr. Young, if their offer of $540,000 in 25-year debentures is accepted by stockholders under the liquidation plan.

Under the proposed plan the 7,833 shares of $7 preferred stock will receive $100 a share plus accrued dividends, funds for which will be provided by a bank loan of approximately $1,071,800, which also will take care of a note for $275,000 due the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company.

Report of Pathe Film Corporation and subsidiaries for nine months ended September 30, 1938, shows net profit of $21,613 after depreciation, amortization, interest, federal income taxes, etc., equivalent to $2.76 a share on 7,833 shares of $7 cumulative convertible preferred stock.

This compares with $276,487, equal after preferred dividends, to 40 cents a share on 585,095 shares of common stock for the nine months ended September 30, 1937.

Actors Guild Wants 15%

Harris Connick, managing director of the 1939 San Francisco International Exposition, discounts talk of a possible boycott of the Exposition by the Screen Actors Guild, concerning booking of screen players for appearances. Mr. Connick declared the Exposition would be glad to have the stars at the "right price," but the Screen Actors Guild wants 15 per cent of the receipts, which he termed "too much."

THEY SING

THE SMALLEST PEOPLE IN THE WORLD!

Novelties are the life-blood of show business . . . because they are what people talk about. They are the very essence of "word-of-mouth".

You'll need one just when "The Terror of Tiny Town" is released . . . December 1 . . . in plenty of time for the Christmas season.

t's the first all-midget feature ever filmed. Its actors take themselves seriously—there's a real hero, a real villain (both on Shetland ponies), a heroine (saved in the nick-o'-time), all played with seriousness that leads to laughs by the hundred.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

11 in Production

With six months of the new Quota Act past, there is still little sign of any numerical boost to British production. At the moment of writing, eleven films, none of them of the more highly expensive caliber, are in production with seven studios involved, but four of these are for release by American organizations.

"So This Is London," perhaps the most expensive of the four, for release by Twentieth Century-Fox, and "Inspector Hornleigh," likewise are on the floor at Pinewood though both are due to finish approximately at the time this dispatch leaves England. The other two are the Warner-First National "They Drive by Night" and Irving Asher's "Spy in Black," for release by Columbia. The remainder of the pictures which occupy the other seven stages—a small total out of the industry's seventy or more—are more modest pictures of either single or double quota category, mostly single.

Palatial

Large sets are a feature of two current Associated British productions on the floor at the Elstree studios under the aegis of producer Walter Mycroft. They are designed for the current productions "Black Eyes," being directed by Herbert Brenon, and "Murder in Soho," under the direction of Norman Lee. For the first named film, art director Ian White has erected a palatial interior for the setting of a fashionable Russian restaurant of pre-war vintage, and for the second John Meade has designed a reproduction of a dance floor and cabaret stage of a mythical London night club.

No effort would appear to be too great for the Elstree folk to obtain realism in their film, for not only is Otto Kruger being coached by two former waiters but he has spent a few days in Paris watching Continental waiters at work.

Walter Rilla, the Prince Consort's brother in "Sixty Glorious Years," has been brought into the cast of "Black Eyes."

Sequel by Capt. Norton

The local success of "This Man Is News" has inspired Capt. Richard Norton and Anthony Havelock Allan to make a sequel, which will go into production in the near future at Pinewood, including co-stars Valerie Hobson and Barry K. Barnes. It has been tentatively titled "Legitimate Expenses." Precisely the same unit will be used, with David Macdonald directing the film. The setting this time will be in Paris.

This will be the 28th production of 33-year-old Anthony Havelock Allan, who is in charge of the Pinewood version of "The Lambeth Walk." One of his ambitions is to film "Love on the Dole" with Wendy Hiller.

What is called one of the longest takes in talking picture history has been made on "The Lambeth Walk," which is being directed by Albert de Courville from a scenario by John Paddy Carstairs. The take, four and a half minutes, involves six players, Lupino Lane, Sir Seymour Hicks, Wallace Lupino, Enid Stamp-Taylor, Nora Howard and Leslie Bradley, in a complicated, rapid-fire cross talk, and was successfully concluded in just under an hour. Four cameras were used.

George Formby and Gus McNaughton in "Trouble Brewing," latest Associated British Film Distributors comedy now in production under Anthony Kimmins' direction at the Ealing Studios.

Five Reigns

An epic of five reigns entitled "Through Five Reigns" is being made by W. J. Gell, managing director of Pathé Pictures, and is to be a spectacular feature chronicling the development of the arts and sciences and the industrial progress of the world, and its effect on the lives of the people.

Its canvas is planned to record not only the rise and fall of nations but the destinies of individuals and creeds, the dvelopment of industries and new inventions and the drama of the ordinary Englishman in the war 1914-1918.

It will not be a jingoistic record, but a chronicle of forty-odd years of life and progress in Britain.

Cornish Harbor

Cornish fishermen, in their blue jerseys, have come to Denham to aid local color to scenes in the Irving Asher production, "Q Planes," for Columbia release. A reproduction of a Cornish harbor has been set up at Denham, with four fishing smacks at anchor and two rowing boats bobbing lazily against the harbor wall. This fictional village is the scene of action in the film, when newsreel cameramen led by Valerie Hobson, in the guise of a woman reporter, pursue foreign airplane thieves. Tim Whelan is directing.

Victorian Era

The social graces of the Victorian era, especially those to be found in a period Bloomsbury boarding house, are to be illustrated pointedly in Gainsborough's new comedy for Twentieth Century release, "A Girl Must Live," in course of production at the Islington studios.

A notable setting for much of the action in the film, which is being directed by Carol Reed, youthful exponent of realism, is its Bloomsbury boarding house which has been brought to life with the aid of flower pots containing leafy "annuals," antimaccassars, overcrowded mantle shelves and stuffed birds encased in glass. Particular care was taken with this set, which took thirty workmen four days and required the collaboration of a small army of property men to complete the dressing.

The story is of three chorus girls—Margaret Lockwood, Renee Houston and Lilli Palmer—and Mary Clare, one of the foremost character actresses of the present day, as a red-headed wreck of the Gaiety chorus of yesteryear. Supporting the four players already mentioned are George Robey, Naunton Wayne, Hugh Sinclair, Moore Marriott and others.

Studio Representative

Monja Danischewsky, locally known as Danny, has been appointed press representative at the Ealing studios. The post has been vacant for some considerable time. Danischewsky previously has been associated in a publicity capacity with MGM, British Lion and Capitol.

Natives Recruited

In the sun baked sands of the Sabaloka Gorge, forty miles from Khartoum in the Sudan, shooting is now in full swing on Zoltan Korda's London Film Production, "The Four Feathers."

The War Office and the Sudanese Government have collaborated, and already a considerable amount of footage has been dispatched to Denham for processing.

Several thousand natives of the Fuzzie-Wuzzie tribe have been recruited at Suakin for the battle scenes.

Ralph Richardson now has joined the unit, having finished his work in "Q Planes."

Danish Theatre Tax Yield Rises

During the fiscal year 1936-37, the yield from the Danish amusement tax totaled $2,090,000, an increase over the preceding year of about $71,500, according to a report of the Department of Commerce. The report stated that motion picture theatres in Denmark accounted for about 75 per cent of the tax, and were chiefly responsible for the rise in receipts.

George H. Rosenbaum has been made branch manager of the Gaumont British exchange in Cleveland.

BRITISH EXHIBITORS ASK PROTECTION OF FILM SUPPLY UNDER TELEVISION

Theatremen Note Increasing Use of Films in Broadcasting; Ostrer Seeks Concessions for Motion Picture Industry

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Though it cannot yet be said to have reached the stage of an immediate menace there is every indication that television as an entertainment force is likely to face the cinema showman with a stronger challenge than ever in 1939. Recent developments in the television world indicate that the constant alertness—not to be confused with nerves—of the more enlightened sections of the industry has been by no means inapposite.

Most significant of all the significant television events of the past few months was undoubtedly the public show in the Gaumont British owned Tatler cinema, London, of the British Broadcasting Company's broadcast of the 1938 Armistice ceremony at the Cenotaph.

It was a signal occasion, inasmuch as it was the first upon which the BBC, Government-backed monopoly over the whole of broadcasting and television, permitted the presentation of one of its television broadcasts to the general public. Now, with the success of the Tatler show, as argumentative example, Isidore Ostrer, chief of Gaumont British and power behind Baird Television, has persuaded the BBC chiefs to attend a demonstration of television on the large screen of a London cinema.

Sees Barriers Breaking Down

Long in negotiation with the BBC, Mr. Ostrer is convinced that the Tatler show is a precedent, that it will presage the breaking down of the BBC barriers, and that 1939 will see a much wider, if not a general use of television in picture theatre entertainment.

CEA Shows Concern

British exhibitors manifest their concern—true, a rather shy concern—with the advance of television in the constant meetings and reports of the television committee of Cinimatograph Exhibitors Association, who are watching the progress of the new force, both as an entertainment and as a technical science. It is true that they currently, in their local meetings, give formal expression to the increasing use of films in television and to the multiplication of television shows in public houses and other public and semi-public institutions. They are, however, more alertly watching those developments which may bring television into the picture theatre, convinced, as they are, in increasing numbers that the most commercial and economic way in which to combat the menace of television as a rival entertainment force is to use it to their own ends.

The Armistice broadcast, made possible by the suddenly manifested public spirit of the BBC, was, generally speaking, a technical success. A screen 8 ft. by 6 ft. was used, and the image projected by a cathode ray tube giving greatly increased light. Despite an occasional mistiness in some of the projections and a tendency to curvature on the outer edges of the image, the broadcast came over well. A large invitation audience was present, and members of the public were admitted on request but, under a stipulation by the BBC, without payment.

PRAISE INDEX TO RELEASE CHART

"We wish to state our appreciation of the new alphabetical index to the Release Chart, which you have included in the recent Motion Picture Herald. This index is very helpful."

—PAUL WITTE, City Manager, Lincoln Theatre (Great States Theatres, Inc.), Decatur, Illinois.

"Just noted the new setup on the alphabetical Index in this issue. It's just what's been needed for a long time. I'm sure that a great many others agree with me."

—WILLIAM GOODMAN, Fox Theatre, Hackensack, N. J.

Televising Outdoor Events

The broadcast brought one stage nearer the theatre televising of major outdoor events, among which, during the recent televesion year, have been the Derby, the Trooping of the Colours, Test Matches, the Cup Final, the Boat Race and the Lord Mayor's show. These are the brand of public events which the exhibitor probably would welcome the opportunity to televise, coming as they do directly in the same category as red-hot newsreels, broadcasts such as Mr. Ostrer probably will obtain permission to televise in the theatres of his circuit, which are not all equipped as yet.

Such a permit would at the outset be confined mainly to major Gaumont British theatres, to newsreel houses, and possibly to key cinemas on the Odeon chain, many of which are equipped for the Deutsch-linked Scophony system. The leading house, the Odeon in Leicester Square, proudly flaunts a television serial from its Leicester Square tower. Few other cinemas are yet ready for television, exhibitors having been warned by their General Council not to embark on contracts for equipment until given the executive command "GO!"

BBC Pays Half of Rental

Before any concrete achievement in the field of picture house television is possible it would seem necessary that some spirit, or gesture of collaboration, be achieved between the motion picture industry and the television authorities. As the matter stands at present, exhibitors take the utmost exception to the constant televising of newsreels, for which the BBC pays half the rentals charged the picture house, and to the increasing use of films in the BBC service. It is offered as an apologia that the films used, such as Gaumont's "Aunt Sally" and "Jack Ahoy" and certain foreign pictures, are old ones, but as Councillor Harry Mears, Portsmouth candidate for the vice-presidency of the CEA, has aptly pointed out, there is often more money in old films than in the new.

Broadcasts such as these, and broadcasts such as that of a complete play from a West End theatre the other week, may not be immediately potent competitors to the cinema, but they are a significant precedent. With this in view exhibitors are demanding the formation of a joint trade committee to tackle this question of film supplies at the same time as Mr. Ostrer is doing his best to persuade the television advisory committee to make concessions to the motion picture industry.
